The statement by the chairman of the English Olympic Committee is interpreted in the news columns of the Hochi as an intent of the British to apply the League of Nations' type of economic boycott to sports, and a distinct revelation of the British attitude not to give positive aid to Japan for the organization of the 12th Olympic Games. For this reason, it is believed that the Japanese delegation to the Cairo meeting will now have to face considerable difficulties.

Questioned by the press Wednesday night, the following statement was made by Dr. Matsuzo Nagai, secretary-general of the Tokyo Olympic Organizing Committee who is scheduled to sail from Yokohama today aboard the Canadian Pacific liner Empress of Russia for Vancouver en route to Cairo:

"We have been aware of the unfavorable atmosphere in England. But there is nothing else for us to do but to do our best in the course we must follow. And for this reason, we are going out of the way on our trip to Cairo to the United States to call on Mr. Brundage, president of the American Olympic Association, to explain the conditions in regard to the Games in 1940. And before the opening of the meeting in Cairo, we intend to go to London and Paris to meet the various officials concerned for the same purpose. Ignorant of the true conditions of the Sino-Japanese conflict, it seems there are people in Europe who believe there is danger in ocean travel to Japan. There is much to be done in the matter of clarifying the situation out here."

Werner Klingeberg, technical adviser to the O. O. C. and permanent representative of the I. O. C., will accompany Dr. Nagai today.

Both Dr. Nagai and Mr. Klingeberg Wednesday arranged all details with Takashi Goh, chairman of the games committee, to be looked after during their absence.

Vanguard of the Japanese delegation to Cairo leaving by the Fuji express at 3 p.m. Wednesday from Tokyo Station were: Eijiro Nakatsuka, Masatsune Miyagi, Yoshinori Suzuki and Teruo Shimizu. They are scheduled to board the Nippon Yusen Kaisha liner Fushimi Maru from Kobe today.

Delegates To I.O.C. Meeting Will Hear Tokugawa's Message

Although Prince Iyesato Tokugawa is unable to go to Cairo due to pressure of official business, delegates to the meeting of the International Olympic Committee will hear greetings from him at the opening session on March 10.

For his message as chairman of the Tokyo Olympic Organizing Committee and a member of the I. O. C. has been recorded and the discs, five of them, will be taken to Cairo by the Japanese delegation.

Subscribing to the message to the Tokyo Olympiad from the late Baron de Coubertin, founder of the modern Olympic Games, Prince Tokugawa in his address will express the hope to the delegates that the 12th Olympic Games in Tokyo will prove the fallacy of the much quoted phrase "East is East, and West is West, and Never the Twain Shall Meet," that the Games will offer the opportunity of revealing the contribution to civilization made by the culture of the Orient.

Fordham Never Enjoyed Better Year Than 1937

NEW YORK, Jan—(INS)—Fordham never enjoyed a greater year in athletics than in 1937. Four major and five minor sport aggregations from Rose Hill participated in ninety-two engagements (either games or dual meets of some kind), of which seventy were won, twenty lost, and two tied, for a percentage of .778.

The major sport units, the football, track, basketball and baseball operatives, were victorious on 34 occasions, lost eight times and tied once for a percentage of .810, one of the most remarkable figures ever assembled anywhere.

The minor sports representatives, the R. O. T. C. rifle team, the tennis, golf, cross-country and swimming outfits, won thirty-six, lost twelve and tied one for a percentage of .750.

The football, baseball and basketball teams brought home championships to Rose Hill, while the rifle team won 18 out of 20 matches to capture both the Second Corps Area Intercollegiate Championship and the Hearst Trophy for the Second Corps Area.

The football team, of course, was the outstanding Fordham team of the year. Furthermore, it was the greatest team in Fordham's 49 years of football history. The famous "Seven Blocks of Granite," did not allow a touchdown to be scored through them, and to this fine defensive job was added an offensive man power that moved the ball successfully all season long.

Pittsburgh was engaged in the third successive scoreless tie, and Texas Christian, North Carolina, Purdue, St. Mary's and N. Y. U. were the major victims. Franklin and Marshall and Waynesburgh were overwhelmed in warmup games. The seven victories and one tie gave Jim Crowley's players the Metropolitan Championship, rating behind Pittsburgh as the second best team in the East, and identical rating behind the Panthers in the National picture.

Fordham's baseball team won its eleventh Met Championship in sixteen seasons under the coaching of Jack Coffey, by defeating Long Island University, 9-4, in the highlight game of a record that showed thirteen victories and five losses. The team was not up to the 1936 nine, which won eighteen and lost two, but it was a fine college aggregation, that could generally best its rivals in the city and out.

Coach Vincent Cavanagh, in his third season as basketball mentor, gave Fordham a share in the Met court championship by turning out a team that won thirteen of sixteen games and the last ten on the schedule in succession. Captain Creighton Drury, Bobby Hassmiller, Dick Davis, Jack Daley and Ed Kamen formed a five that stressed teamwork to the extent that they overcame C. C. N. Y., N. Y. U. and Manhattan in a closing February rush, to give the Maroon its best hardwood record in eight years.

The track team not only won its lone dual meet, against C. C. N. Y. outdoors, but totaled 137 points during the indoor season, a new team record. The fine work of the baseball team in the spring was ably supplemented by the golf and tennis teams, each of which won seven matches and lost two, with the golfers also incurring a tie.

Spears Sees Need Of More Offense For Grid Elevens

TOLEDO, Ohio,—Twenty years a football coach—and Dr. Clarence W. Spears still believes today in essentially the same gridiron chicanery. What's more, he wins with it.

"People get oversold on certain phases of the game," declared the genial Toledo University athletic director. "Look at lateral passes: they weren't very successful last season."

Spears didn't ask Santa for a head coaching job like those he filled at Dartmouth, West Virginia, Minnesota, Oregon and Wisconsin before he came to Toledo two seasons ago.

"I'm having a lot of fun here!" he exclaimed. "I'm busy 12 hours a day and working hard. There is a constructive job to be done here." He didn't explain that his "constructive job" already had built up the Rockets to an Ohio football power.

"I use practically the same football as I did at Dartmouth during World War days—the shift, to the single wing, with the balanced and unbalanced line, varied a little with what is the style at the moment," he said.

Spears sees the defense as overwhelming the offense in today's football.

"I think we should change the rules to open up the offense. Allow the forward pass right up to the scrimmage line. Bring back the onside kick, too, from behind the line of scrimmage. The defense wouldn't gang up on the ball carrier like they do now—not if the carrier could make his quick kick and be eligible to go down the field with his fellow backs and recover the ball.

"Those moves would aid the offense, make for more scoring and a more intelligent game, and fewer maneuvers. Since I first advocated it, the pros have adopted passing from anywhere behind the scrimmage line. I still think that's one of the things college football needs."

Drinker Wins Bet, Ends Up In Asylum

VIENNA—(INS)—Johann Neumaier won his bet, became champion drinker of the world, and awoke in a lunatic asylum.

Johann was an Upper Austrian peasant and bet his friends in a Linz tavern 20 Schillings (about $4.) that he could drink any quantity and quality of liquor. He started with ten liters of beer, then four bottles of wine, then drank a liter of whiskey in one gulp and emptied a glass of methylated spirit.

All agreed that he won his bet. But Neumaier did not care to collect the money. He went mad, lost consciousness and doctors are afraid he will never recover.

Bromwich Is Coming Tennis Star Of Australia

Christian Science Monitor

SYDNEY, New South Wales—John Bromwich, baby of Australia's 1937 Davis Cup team, marked himself as Australia's coming star when he defeated Adrian K. Quist in the New South Wales singles final of 1937. He was the youngest competitor ever to win the event.

Bromwich, until he met Quist in the final, had not lost a set on his way to the Championship. After trouncing weak opponents in the first two rounds he allowed Harry C. Hopman, plucky and energetic ex-Davis Cup player, only five games in three sets, in a quarterfinal. Then he defeated Jack Crawford with the loss of 10 games in three sets. "Bromwich," said Crawford after that match, "played a shade better than he had ever done before. He has added pace and length to his left-handed shot, which formerly could be attacked safely. He is filled with confidence, and he has not lost any of his deadly concentration or patience to await a chance."

Quist battered his way to the final by a four-set semi-final victory against Vivian B. McGrath, but went down in a five-set final. Neither he nor Bromwich played his best tennis in this match. The scores in Bromwich's favor were, 4—6, 6—4, 6—1, 2—6, 7—5.

Dr. George H. McElhone, probably the soundest commentator in Australia, said, after watching the week's play in the single championship: "A careful review of the week's play shows that at present Australia does not possess players good enough to send away in quest of the Davis Cup next year. There must be a great improvement in the Victorian and Australian championship before a trip is justified."

But McElhone and other critics believe that Australia has Wimbledon's next woman champion—21-year old Nancye Wynne, of Melbourne, who, with three other Australian girls, will go abroad next year. Miss Wynne proved during the New South Wales championships that she is in a class apart in Australian women's tennis. She is the reigning national champion of most of the States. In the New South Wales final, she beat Thelma Coyne, who would probably beat all except the best three or four overseas players, 6-3, 7-5.

McElhone commented on Miss Wynne: "She is unquestionably the greatest woman player seen on an Australian court, not even excluding Dorothy Round and Australia's own Wimbledon semi-finalists, Daphne Akhurst and Joan Hartigan and any number of other high-class native and visiting players."

Miss Wynne's stroke production is flawless, and her flexible wrist allows her to place the ball at will, even at the last split second. Her service action is perfect and few men in Australia can serve like her. She is tall, slim, and hard-muscled, with a figure like a boy's. She is ice and fire in temperament—cold and imperturbable in most crises and in moment of success or failure.

Handball Association Formed To Prepare For 1940 Olympics

Inasmuch as handball will be listed as an event of the 12th Olympic Games in 1940 if entries are filed by more than five countries, with the view to preparing for the sport the Japan Handball Association was organized at a meeting Wednesday night through the assistance of the Japan Amateur Athletic Federation.

Ryozo Hiranuma, vice-president of the Japan Amateur Athletic Federation, was elected its first president.

For development of the new sport, 15 district divisions, including the Hokkaido, will be formed. Plans for the holding of national championships, Kanto versus Kansai competition, and an inter-collegiate league.

Pro Footballers To Continue Open Game This Year

By JOE F. CARR
President National Football League

COLUMBUS, Ohio, Jan. 4—Fresh from its finest season is both attendance and spectacular play, the National Football League looks forward to even greater things in 1938.

Our selective draft system, under which the weaker teams are given first opportunity to negotiate with graduating college stars, showed its effect for the first time during 1937 and was a heavy factor in providing the tight, colorful race.

The Eastern division surprised every one by jumping up on even terms with the Western half in strength this year, while Washington's victory in the play-off gave the East the national title for the first time in years.

Teams Well Matched

The league teams are so evenly matched now that the addition of a few players could make title contenders of several clubs, notably the Cleveland, Philadelphia, Brooklyn and Pittsburg teams. Cleveland's entrance into the league boosted Midwest interest, and, although the Rams did not win many games, they were a better team than their record indicated.

The league's attendance showed a 15 per cent increase and reached a new high.

We think we are providing the greatest show in football—a game which must be played by experts, but one from which the ordinary fan can get a "kick."

The league will continue to play an open game, and increase scoring possibilities. The goal posts will remain on the goal line to permit more field goals, and forward passes from anywhere behind the line of scrimmage will be permitted as in the past.

Professional football, like professional baseball, is gradually evolving a "farm" system and a major-minor set-up. During 1937 we had working agreements with the American Association, composed of teams around New York and New Jersey; the Dixie League, with teams in Virginia, the Carolinas and District of Columbia, and the Midwest and Western Association circuits.

Same Plan for Baseball

Many players, not yet ready for big-time play, were "farmed" to clubs in those loops for added seasoning. I hope that before many years every town in the country will have a professional football team, affiliated with some league. That also is my aim for professional baseball. (Mr. Carr is promotional director of minor league baseball.)

Several applications for membership in the National League are on file, but I believe the present ten-club circuit will be maintained.

Miami, Fla., is seeking the 1938 play-off game as the feature attraction of its Winter sports carnival, but we are holding off an answer to that city's flattering offer until the annual league meeting in February. The decision will be left to the league's directors.

Our relations with college football are the friendliest. In fact, our rule that no league team may sign a college player until his class has graduated tends to keep many athletes in school who otherwise might desert the classrooms to turn professional.

Elimination Of 'Fluke Hits' Aim Of National

NEW YORK—If there's any truth in what the National League barristers are saying these winter days, the American League should come clean next season and add a new column to its official scores—"unearned hits."

After you have heard President Ford Frick delineate the delights of the National circuit's drowsy new ball, it becomes increasingly clear that in this way alone could the American League waddies atone for their stubborn refusal to scrap the old buck-jumping pellet that the Di Maggios and the Greenbergs love to belt about.

Frick puts the issue so squarely, so honestly, that the hardest American League magnate is likely to break down completely and bewail his delay in seeing the light. But they had their chance at the recent Chicago meeting, and now it's too late.

"What we in the National League are after is true values," admitted Frick in describing the new sphere, which is sewed with five strands as opposed to the rollicksome four-strander. "That's our main aim, no matter which side wins the game or the series or the pennant—truly played contests every day all season."

There. The American League can be as stubborn as it likes and keep on playing with its hopped-up horsehide and knocking "twilight zone home runs" (as Frick calls them), but it can't make light of a statement as solemn and earnest as that one. And that isn't all Frick says, by any means.

"Our aim is to do away with those half-hits which sometimes play a big part in a ball game," he continued. "What we are trying to eliminate is the thing that happens when a batter hits only a piece of the ball instead of connecting squarely.

"Sometimes it's one of those lazy bounders that get to the outfield because the smoothness of the ball won't let the infield grass or clay take hold of it. Sometimes it's a pop fly just out of an infielder's reach. Sometimes it's even a home run in the parks where the stands or fences are not too far away from home plate. The National League ball won't travel that fast or that far when it is only halfhit.

"Squarely hit drives will have just as good chance to become homers as with the old ball. The only change the new ball will make in National League home run statistics is the elimination of fluky homers."

All this, of course, amounts to a frank admission on President Frick's part that patrons of National League parks during the past four years have been taking a genteel licking. Clearly, they haven't been getting their money's worth in the form of "truly played contests" and they have been plied with "fluke hits" so cleverly that they felt no pain. Frick admits all that frankly, but he's penitent, while the American Leaguers aren't. They're going right on with the same business.

It remains to be seen how the National League batters, themselves, take to this "latest progressive move of the senior circuit solons," as it is labeled officially. It would seem to stand to reason that they would be delighted to play honest, foursquare baseball again.

The sturdy outfielder, though he may be hitting only .267, will be able to look the little woman squarely in the eye over the dinner table and say: "I got another blow today, darling—an honest blow."

Fast Ball Relief Pitchers Have Passed On, Says Heving

CHICAGO—(INS)—"It looks as if the day has gone by when a manager calls for a relief pitcher who can throw the ball past the batter. Twelve years ago, Bucky Harris had Fred Marberry throwing that fast one of his across the plate with all his strength. Perhaps the reason is that if the manager has a speed demon on his pitching staff, he uses him as one of his starters. Anyway, I notice that American League managers used only a few fast ball pitchers in relief roles in 1937."

Thus spoke Joe Heving, who took part in 40 games for the Cleveland Indians in '37, won eight and lost four, saved a number of others and never started a contest. Pitched in 40 games. Twenty of them he finished. In 20 others, he was lifted for a pinch hitter or because he was lacking control or effectiveness.

Heving is not a fast ball pitcher. He depends upon control of a sinker that he keeps low. Johnny Murphy of the Yankees, who helped win the pennant by finishing 30 games, is a curve ball artist. Clint Brown, who finished 48 games for the White Sox just mixes them up, overhand, sidearm and underhand. Practically the only fast ball relief pitchers in the American League, last season, were Jack Wilson and John Marcum of Boston and both were starters in addition.

But, to get back to Heving. He is one of the oldes pitchers, in point of experience in either major league. He started playing ball back in 1923, hitting .292 as an outfielder for Bartlesville in the Southwestern league. He then went to Topeka but Topeka dropped out of organized baseball. The season of 1927 found him pitching for Portsmouth in the Virginia league. He won 12 and lost eight. Graduated to the South Atlantic league and won 13 and lost five, leading his circuit in effectiveness.

Memphis bought him for the season of '29 and he landed with the New York Giants in 1930. Started a game against Dazzy Vance on July 4, pitched six scoreless innings and then was knocked out of the box. Back to relief work he went the rest of that year and the next. Was included in a deal with Indianapolis whereby the Giants obtained Outfielder Koenecke. Went great with the Hoosiers and the White Sox bought him for '33. Was second in effectiveness among the league pitchers that year and won seven and lost five, taking part in 40 games. Not so good in '34 and Chicago traded him to Lousville for Outfielder Radcliff.

"Second time I was traded an outfielder," remarked Heving, "I decided to retire. I remained out of baseball a year and then went to Milwaukee."

He won 19 games for the Brewers and Cleveland bought him. At the training camp and in the extended tour with the New York Giants, Heving was used often, yet never a run was scored off him. In fact, not a run was registered against him until May 21 when Washington tallied once but Joe saved the game, at that. Figures are not at hand as to how many games Joe saved for Cleveland but he did win eight by a one-run margin, lost three by two runs and one by three runs. He took four out of five from Boston and downed Detroit twice. His other victories were over Philadelphia and St. Louis.

"Would I prefer a starting job again? Yes and again no. My desire is to do what will prove most valuable to my club," Heving said. "I was starting pitcher in Milwaukee and successful as such. I was relief pitcher in Cleveland and had success. A relief pitcher trains differently than a starting pitcher does and, consequently, unless I hear to the contrary, I shall regard myself as a finisher in 1938."

Britain Out To Rid Veiled Professionals In Amateur Tennis

By R. MAILLARD STEAD

Christian Science Monitor

LONDON—Opening shots have been fired in the campaign to rid British lawn tennis of the Hooded Men in its midst. The veiled professionals, the folk who, while playing as amateurs, make money out of the game. And the reports fall reassuringly upon the ears of those who detect in the continuance of "shamateurism" a grave menace to amateur sport. Not that reports are anything new in connection with this much-discussed problem. One of the troubles is that so many reports have been heard from time to time and yet so little has actually been done in the way of real action.

Now, however, operations commence to look realistic, for the Lawn Tennis Association, governing body here of a game with a temptingly rich treasure chest, has obtained from its members the power to order tournament committees to forward full accounts within three months of the closing date of any open tournament and if required, to furnish all vouchers and other substantiating documents.

The proposal that the L. T. A. should be authorized to make such a demand was passed on the strength of 89 votes against 1 at the 1937 annual general meeting of the association, held here recently under the presidency of Sir Samuel Hoare.

Eight Weeks Rule Favored

The exercise of the right to investigate all that goes on, financially behind the scenes at tournaments may very obviously be expected to frustrate improper payments of expenses to players by tournament committees. But it is questionable whether it can go very far toward eliminating the "shamateurs," whose income from the game reaches them by more devious routes.

A fact that does not seem to have been faced quite squarely is that many so-called amateurs have to make money out of the game in order to keep on being amateurs, so-called. "Big" tennis makes such overwhelming demands upon the time of players concerned in it that, in the words of Sir Samuel Hoare at the annual meeting, it is "impossible for a player with a job of his own to take part."

There are, of course, notable exceptions to this generalization; but not many. The bulk of first-class amateurs require subsidization in one form or another, and that is why so many are in favor of the adoption in Britain of what is known as the Eight Week's Rule of the International Lawn Tennis Federation, prevailing in other countries. This regulation permits full expenses, for traveling and for living, for two months in the year. In other words, it entitles players to be kept for that period of time by the game to which their skill brings so much money.

Wimbledon Yields L.T.A. $54,500

You can obtain a useful working idea of what this money amounts to by taking a glance at the accounts presented at the recent L.T.A. annual meeting. The Association's share of the profits in the 1936 Wimbledon championships—the figures for 1937 are not yet available—was no less than £10,969—an advance by £2108 upon the figure for 1935—and other substantial items of income, contributing to a gross total of £17,880 include £1,677 from membership fees, £698 profit from the British hard-court, championships and £1,470 from the 1937 Davis Cup challenge round.

Even so, the expenses in connection with international play—teams of men and women were sent to the United States for the American championships and the Wightman Cup—were so heavy that the net result of the year's working is a loss of £398. To perceive just how concerned the L.T.A. must be about this, you need only note that its investments total £44,896, its loans to affiliated organizations amount to £10,079, and the sum of £8,316 lies in a special reserve fund, under agreement with the All-England Club, which promotes the Wimbledon championships.

After these enviable figures, one may sympathize, perhaps, with those British players who feel rather hard done by because such concessions at Wimbledon as free meals and car parking are made only to the "nominated" players, entered as official representatives of their countries. The argument is put forward that competitors of all grades of skill are responsible for the resounding financial success of the Wimbledon tournament, and the view is taken that there is no financial necessity whatsoever for the expense of playing at Wimbledon to be greater for the rank and file of competitors than it is for the stars.

The adoption of the Eight Weeks Rule would presumably iron out such discriminations and—in the opinion of many—would make the amateur position decidely more clear-cut than it is today. Several delegates at the 1937 annual general meeting tried to get this very matter placed before the council of the L. T. A. for earnest consideration, but they did not succeed, and a vote was taken on the less revolutionary—and, as you may think, less relevant and less effective—motion regarding the supervision of tournament accounts.

Heads Together

For quite a long time the Lawn Tennis Association has been the butt for criticism by folk who declared that the controlling body was out of touch with the thought of the majority of modern players, that it has been unprogressive and that, if it did perceive certain trends, it behaved very much as if it did not. Well, the L. T. A. can hardly be accused of being aloof in these days, since it has initiated a plan, now actually in operation, for round-table talks between leading players and representatives of the administration.

Sir Samuel Hoare, re-elected president of the L. T. A., presides over these conversations and the free exchange of views and pooling of ideas seems likely to lead to the accomplishment of overdue reforms without the upheaval of a "revolution," or any drastic forcing of hands.

For players and counsclors to get together thus is something fresh.

Warner Says Grid Defense Too Far Ahead Of Offense

NEW ORLEANS.—Glenn S. (Pop) Warner, whose 43 years of coaching have led him from coast to coast, said recently football's defense had stepped too far ahead of the offense.

It was back in 1895 that Pop Warner took his first coaching job, a position at the University of Georgia, and a lot of water has passed under the bridge in the years that saw him directing the Carlisle Indians, Stanford and on through to his present assignment at Temple University.

"For years," said Pop, "the rules committee has been building up the defensive strategy until it is hurting the game. The offense needs some help.

"People don't want to pay their money to see scoreless ties, and we had plenty of them this past year. They don't want to see close games. What they want is action and the only way we can accomplish that end is to keep the offense ahead of the defense."

Warner is one of the some 1,500 coaches, athletic directors and faculty representatives here to attend the annual sessions of the American Football Coaches' Association and the National Collegiate Athletic Association.

To lessen the defensive advantage, Warner suggested a rules change to require a standard formation on defense, such as six or seven men on the line of scrimmage. In behalf of the offense, he believes help would come from allowing forward passing anywhere back of the line of scrimmage, removal of goal posts to the goal line and moving the ball 15 yards instead of 10 from the sidelines.

Pop Warer was chatting with Chester A. (Chet) Wynne of Kentucky, a former Notre Dame fullback who agreed heartily with the Temple pilot's suggestions and added a point that he thought high school teams should play universally under the same rules as collegians.

There were a number of coaches who were ready to insist that the governing committee, which goes into session at Gulfport, Miss., to lay down the playing laws, leave the rules alone. On the whole, there is a cross-section of views that may or may not encourage the committee in its deliberations.

Lou Little of Columbia University, chairman of the coaches' rules committee, has rounded up a national questionnaire on the proposed changes. He will report his findings at the opening session. Little as well as several other coaches and officials was scheduled to reach the scene during the night.

More Swimming Events For Golden Gate Exposition

Christian Science Monitor

SAN FRANCISCO, Calif.—Encouraged by the enthusiasm with which the distance swim from San Francisco to Treasure Island, man-made island in the harbor which is to house the Golden Gate International Exposition, was received by aquatic stars, officials are planning further aquatic events before the opening of the World's Fair of the West in 1939.

Next of the pre-Exposition swim events has been scheduled for early April, according to Art McChrystal, Exposition sports director, who is working out details for the race with Phil Patterson and his committee. The event will be a four-mile "Around Treasure Island" swim.

The committee is still considering whether to make the swim an individual or a team-relay contest; but it will be an invitational affair for all swimmers of the Bay Area, with entry open to both men and women.

The start would be off the causeway from Yerba Buena Island at the southwest corner of Treasure Island, and the race would end in the harbor between the two islands just across the causeway from the starting line Spectators, if they wanted to walk around the island, could get a close-up view of the entire race.

Patterson's swim committee includes Dr. A. deFarrari; Ray Dougherty of the San Francisco public schools; E. C. Lamontagne; Ernst Bransten, Stanford coach; Harold Dittmore; Harry Corbett, swim commissioner of the South End Rowing Club, and other representatives of swim associations.

U.S. Awaiting First Hand Data On 1940 Games

By The Domei Tsushin Sha

NEW YORK, Feb. 2—In view of the increasing possibility that the smaller European nations might switch their support to Great Britain for the holding of the 1940 Olympic Games, the American Olympic Committee, headed by Avery Brundage, who has publicly and consistently voiced American faith in Japan, is anxiously awaiting the arrival of Dr. Matsuzo Nagai, secretary-general of the Japanese Olympic Organizing Committee, to clear up misinformation regarding preparations for the forthcoming Games.

With the Sino-Japanese conflict dragging out and no immediate end in sight, the Continental nations, especially Finland, Norway, Sweden and some of the Central European countries, are exhibiting considerable anxiety over Tokyo's ability to stage the Olympiad by 1940. Great Britain has cleverly agitated for the return of the Games to Europe by announcing that she might be financially unable to send a team to Japan.

The Americans, however, who are expected to send the largest representation to the Games, are highly in favor of keeping the contests in the Far East as a matter of honor and true sportsmanship. But in view of the various rumors regarding Japan's military adventures on the Asiatic Continent, the American Olympic Committee is highly desirous of obtaining first-hand information and reliable assurances from the right parties.

Dr. Nagai, now en route to Cairo, to represent Japan as the International Olympic Conference, is expected to assure the A.O.C. that preparations are being pushed and there should be no fear that Japan will not stage the Games properly. Japan's position is expected to be made clear by Dr. Nagai in his conversations with Mr. Brundage, before the latter's departure for Cairo on February 16.

Sports observers declared today that Mr. Brundage will have some difficulty in defending Japan's stand when he meets Lord Aberdare, Britain's representative to the Cairo meeting, in view of the unfavorable reaction to reports that Japan is not progressing fast enough with the Games preparations.

Mr. Brundage, Domei learns, has received various unfavorable reactions to his interview at Chicago in which he voiced unconditional support of the Japanese Games. American support was reaffirmed last Monday when Juji Kasai, unofficial Japanese envoy to the United States, entertained members of the A.O.C. at a luncheon. Among those attending the luncheon were Frederick Rubien, secretary of the A.O.C.; Consul General Kaname Wakasugi, and Ichiro Sawada, attache of the Japanese Olympic Association in New York.

Several College Coaches Forced Out By Alumni

NEW YORK—Football coaching, a profession as exciting as lion taming and just as hazardous, presents its annual casualty list, a regular if unwelcome feature of the post-season inventory.

At least 10 coaches already are out of jobs. Business interests and, in the case of Army's Gar Davidson, service requirements claimed some, but the majority, including such notables as Harry Kipke of Michigan and Pennsylvania's Harvey Harman, were victims of the usual alumni warery.

The casualties take in every section except the southwest and four major conferences. Here's the list:

Pennsylvania—Harman resigned Monday after a disastrous season in which the Quakers won only two games. Harman, coach since 1930, had fine seasons in 1932 and 1936, losing two games the first year and one the second. Bert Bell, coach of the Philadelphia Eagles, and Lou Little of Columbia have been mentioned for the post along with a score of others.

Michigan—Firing Harry Kipke's job has created a furore. He resigned after a season in which the Wolverines broke even, but alumni say the grumbling started when a poor year in 1936 was followed this fall by defeats in key games with Minnesota and Ohio State.

Eastern alumni are touting Benny Friedman of City College, for the berth. Others lean toward Jack Blott of Wesleyan, a prime favorite with Athletic Director Fielding H. Yost.

Oregon—Prince Callison is the lone victim of alumni disfavor on the Pacific coast. Two unsuccessful seasons in a row forced Callison's resignation. Dutch Clark, who has been mentioned for the post, told New York writers this fall he didn't know enough about fundamentals to coach college football. He is securely entrenched as coach of the Detroit Lions.

Georgia—Harry Mehre resigned although his Bulldogs had a fair season. He has been unofficially "selected" for half a dozen other jobs, but Mississippi is the leading claimant and will talk with him soon.

Mississippi—Ed Walker, a pupil of Pop Warner, resigned after winning four games, losing four and tying one.

South Carolina—Don McCallister lost six games this year, but apparently had survived alumni attacks. A junior alumni group got together, however, and McCallister went out and Rex Enright, former Georgia backfield coach, came in.

Manhattan—Chick Meehan, after giving Manhattan its best season, had a choice between business and football. Chick took business and Herb Kopf, long Lou Little's ablest assistant, is the leading candidate for the Manhattan position.

Army—Gar Davidson, transferred after five years, is replaced by Bill Wood, who must face a stiff schedule minus, under the new three-year rule, the help of former college players.

In the minor colleges Pete Reynolds, who came to Knox and lifted "Old Siwash" out of a record losing streak, has retired from coaching for business; St. Lawrence is seeking a successor for Tom Sullivan, Clyde (Shorty) Propst is out at Southwestern of Tennessee, Don Kellett has succeeded John C. McAvoy as head man at Ursinus and Cincinati switched from Russo Cohen to Joe Meyer during the season.

Level Of Golf Here Said Much Higher Than In Philippines

The level of golf in Japan is much higher than in the Philippines, according to Munenori Hisatomi, who returned to Moji Thursday afternoon by the Takasago Maru from Keelung homeward bound from Manila where he managed Tomekichi Miyamoto and four other pros in their competition in the Philippine Open championships.

Although the first prize money went to a player from Australia, the other leading positions were won by the Japanese golfers, Mr. Hisatomi said.

Mack, 75, Plans To Pilot Team Until Past 80

N.Y. Times

PHILADELPHIA, Dec. 22.—Like Tennyson's brook, "For men may come and men may go," Connie Mack seems to go on forever in baseball. Tomorrow he will celebrate his seventy-fifth birthday anniversary.

The "grand old gentleman" of baseball, spending most of his time at home these days recovering strength lost in an illness late in the baseball season, says he is going to continue managing the Philadelphia Athletics as long as he can.

"I don't intend to quit managing until I have passed my eightieth birthday," he told friends.

Mack, whose name outside of baseball is Cornelius McGillicuddy, always has observed Dec. 23 as his birthday but some one found that records in East Brookfield, Mass., where he was born, give Dec. 22, 1862, as the correct date. He laughingly said he always thought it was Dec. 23.

Record for Continuous Service

Connie is the oldest big league manager and holds the record for continuous service as a pilot. He became the manager of the Athletics in 1901 when the American League established clubs in the East.

Looking ahead and not backward, as many men do at 75, Mack is anticipating a better year for his Athletics next season. He anticipates leading the Athletics south next Spring to Lake Charles, La., where he will start his fifty-fifth year in the game.

"I'm feeling better every day," he said, talking of his plans. "I almost believe we have a chance for the pennant in 1938."

If the Athletics come through, it will Mack's tenth pennant in the American League. His teams have won five world series.

Mack, who also is president of the Athletics, took his first title in 1902. Three years later his club won again, but lost to the Giants in the world series.

In 1910 Mack led the team to the third league title and a world series triumph over the Cubs. In 1911 the Athletics won the league championship and the world series.

Mack Rips Team Apart

They repeated in 1913 and 1914, but after beating the Giants in the 1913 world series they dropped four straight to the Boston Braves in the 1914 classic in one of baseball's biggest upsets. Then Mack ripped his team apart and didn't win another pennant until his great teams from 1929-31 took three consecutive flags. The Mackmen also captured the world series in 1929 and 1930.

The Athletics again declined after 1931, with Mack selling many of his stars. He is now working to mold a bunch of youngsters into another championship club.

The man whose name has gone down in baseball's Hall of Fame at Cooperstown, N. Y., got his biggest thrill when Howard Ehmke struck out thirteen Cubs in the first game of the 1929 world series.

Mack lives a quiet life these days.

"I have to watch my diet and try not to tire myself," he said, "I go over to the grounds (Shibe Park) when I feel like it and the weather is right. Usually if I don't do that I take an automobile ride and tend to a little business at home."

He formerly played golf, but he gave that up a year ago.

Canada Notes Big Boom In Chess Playing

TORONTO, Jan. 4—Depression years caused a boom in chess playing. Thousands in Canada, United States and other countries gave their spare time to a game they found exhilarating and inexpensive.

Saskatchewan, stricken for seven successive years by drought, has more chess players per capita than any other province. In Toronto, where hosts of youngsters could not be absorbed by industry, more than 7000 boys under 16 years of age have become competent chess players under the tutelage of service clubs and other agents aiding underprivileged youth.

Played on an ordinary checker board, with each of the 64 squares identified according to simple rules uniform throughout the world and basically unchanged for more than 2000 years, the game is ideally suited for playing by mail, telephone or telegraph as well as in the home or club.

1000-Players Match

In western Canada 1000 chess players, most of them isolated on farms, have been palying a series of games with 1000 United States players for seven months. The competition, arranged by H. W. Jordan, Moose Jaw, Sask., was planned so each Canadian would play two tournament games with an American.

In addition to arranging and playing in the tournament, Mr. Jordan, a court reporter, has been playing 1000 games by correspondence with other western Canadians.

Bernard Freedman, Toronto merchant, says that he himself has taught several hundred boys in a Toronto club to play chess. "These underprivileged boys learned in a few lessons to apply to chess basic rules which they consciously will apply to life in later years with benefit to themselves," he said.

City Teaches Children

Mr. Freedman advocated the teaching of chess to children in classes by a municipality as in Milwaukee where tuition has been given for six years as a civic enterprise.

"There are thousands of youngsters taking part in tournament play there now," he said. "Fascinated by the game, they have been kept off the streets and it proved to the Mayor he had been right in giving hobby instruction instead of granting a request for additional police to curb juvenile crime. Newspapers there each devote six columns of space weekly to the game and the youngsters' playing."

The fascination of the game for youth in Toronto was remarked by Sid Kirk, athletic and hobby instructor for a service club. He reported youths in evening hobby classes at General Mercer School often showed more interest in chess after he had taught them than they showed in basketball.

"BELIEVE IT OR NOT"---by Ripley

The Galloping Earl

Robert Carey, the first Earl of Monmouth, 1560-1639, was a favorite of Queen Elizabeth of England, and was indebted to her for most of his personal fortune.

When the Queen lay dying in London in March 1603, Carey decided to ingratiate himself with the Queen's successor by being the first to notify James of Scotland of her demise. The Queen died in the early morning of March 24th, and Carey lost no time in mounting his horse for the great ride to James the First's headquarters at Holyrood, Scotland. He covered the distance of 400 miles on horseback in 60 hours, using 3 horses. Considering the bad state of the roads in the 17th century, this ride is a most remarkable feat of horsemanship.

The new King duly rewarded Carey by an appointment as Gentleman of the Chamber and confirmed him in all his possessions.

Optimism Is Expressed Over Drawing Of Canada As Opponent In Davis Cup

Japan will take on Canada in the first round of the Davis Cup competition in the American zone, with play scheduled for the three days beginning either on July 28 or August 4, according to the drawings made Friday at Washington with Secretary of State Cordell Hull and representatives of 25 countries present.

Australia will take on Mexico in the other match of the opening round of the American zone.

The time and place of the match against Canada are to be decided later.

Draw Is Hailed

By taking on Canada in the opening round, there will be an opportunnity for Japan to show her real strength in tennis, according to Tamio Abe, former Davis Cupper. Competition against Mexico would necessitate travel of some 3,000 miles from New York City, and this plus play at a high elevation would further require considerable time there to become acclimatized, Mr. Abe feels.

That meeting Canada first is much better than taking on the strong Australian team in the opening round, is quite clear without any argument, according to Mr. Abe.

The good fortune of not having to go to the expense and trouble of meeting Mexico, which is not expected to furnish much competition, cannot be overestimated, Mr. Abe says. In this respect, Montreal, which is considered the most likely venue for the match, is only an overnight's trip from New York city, and conditions are most favorable for the Japanese Davis Cuppers in matter of time. And so far as weather is considered, the heat is not severe and there will be no handicap experienced.

Mr. Abe believes that there is little chance of defeat at the hands of the Canadian team. The fact that Canada has not entered a team during the past several years is good enough indication to Mr. Abe that the level has not been too promising. Canada was one of Japan's keenest rivals in 1927 and 1928, Mr. Abe recalls. In both years, the doubles on the second day went to five sets with the last going to 10-8. But with Jiro Yamagishi, whom Baron Gottfried von Cramm, the great Reich star, considers within the first ranking players of the world, as the nucleus of the Japanese team, there really should be no trouble in eliminating Canada, in Mr. Abe's opinion.

One source of concern is that with play scheduled in July and August, grass courts will be used to considerable handicap to Japanese players other than Yamagishi. But with sufficient workout at the Westside courts at Forest Hills, this handicap should be overcome, Mr. Abe says.

Australia Is Threat

This brings the issue to the points that the Japanese team's goal is beating Australia. But in Quist, Bromwich and McGrath, rising young stars, plus the veteran, Crawford, Australia is a dangerous threat to the United States to clinch the Davis Cup. As a matter of fact, Mr. Abe is prone to agree with certain experts that Australia stands a better chance than the German team of Baron von Cramm and Henner Henkel to emerge victorious. Last year, the United States defeated Australia in the American zone and Germany in the inter-zone finals.

For the Japanese team to defeat Australia is most difficult, but the match affords the players an opportunity to demonstrate their ability to the fullest extent, and it is most worthwhile, Mr. Abe says.

The inter-zone finals will be played on August 18, 19 and 20, place to be decided later, and the challenge round on September 3, 4 and 5 at the German-town courts at Philadelphia.

The draw for the European zone follows:

First Round
(to be played by May 10)
(A) France vs. Holland.
(B) Poland vs. Denmark.
(C) Ireland vs. Italy.
(D) Czechoslovakia vs. Yugoslavia.
(E) England vs. Rumania.

Second Round
(to be played by May 22)
(F) Germany vs. Norway.
(G) Hungary vs. New Zealand.
(H) Monaco vs. winner of (A).
(I) Winner of (B) vs. winner of (C).
(J) Winner of (D) vs. winner of (E).
(K) Sweden vs. Switzerland.
(L) Greece vs. Belgium.
(M) Austria vs. India.
(to be played by May 31)

Third Round
(N) Winner of (F) vs. winner of (G).
(O) Winner of (H) vs. winner of (I).
(P) Winner of (J) vs. winner of (K).
(Q) Winner of (L) vs. winner of (M).

Quarter-Finals
(to be played by July 24)
Winner of (N) vs. winner of (O).
Winner of (P) vs. winner of (Q).

Finals
(to be played July 29, 30, 31)

Vines And Perry Name 'First Tens'

LOS ANGELES, Jan. 6—The world's outstanding pair of professional tennis stars, Ellsworth Vines and Fred Perry, yesterday named their "first ten" men's singles rankings, dating from 1920 through 1937.

William T. Tilden 2d, the old Philadelphia master, was named by both Vines and Perry in the top spot. For the second position, Perry names Vines and Vines returned the compliment, naming Perry.

They disagreed on Donald Budge, America's current amateur king. Vines placed him fifth and Perry put him sixth.

The selections:

Britain To Bid For 1944 Olympic Games

By The Domei Tsushin Sha

LONDON, Feb. 3—Making a bid for the 1944 Olympiad, Great Britain will ask the International Olympic Committee at its forthcoming session at Cairo to select London as the venue of the Games, Lord Aberdare, British delegate to the Cairo meeting, announced here today.

Lord Aberdare also revealed that Great Britain will propose holding the annual meeting of the I.O.C. of 1939 in London.

Coaches Approve Changes In 1938 Football Rules

NEW YORK, Jan. 4—Football coaches from all sections of America hauled out the "O.K." stamp today and applied it to the three major decisions of the national football rules committee in its week-end deliberations at Edgewater Park, Miss.

Only a few comments were tinged with doubt and even those gridiron tutors who weren't quite certain, agreed the rules changes were good as far as they went.

Goal Line Passes

Most of them, however, gave unqualified praise to the change allowing three incomplete forward passes over the goal line without a touchback being ruled and the ball going to the other team. They also endorsed the decision to bring the ball in 15 yards from the sideline instead of 10 on out-of-bounds plays. A few, however, regretted the decision not to permit forward passing from any point back of the line of scrimmage.

Lou Little of Columbia, chairman of the coaches rules committee, who took part in the national committee's discussions, was an enthusiastic spokesman for his colleagues.

"The rules change that allows three incomplete forward passes to be thrown into the end zone in the same series of downs without the loss of the ball will be a great help to the offense near the goal line," he said. "This is one of the best innovations that has come into football in a long time. Now the defense must stay back and guard against a possible second or third pass. Thus all phases of attack will be greatly improved and there should be more scoring."

Strong Endorsement

Little disclosed that both the coaches and the N. C. A. A. committees gave considerable thought to permitting forward passing from less than five yards back before deciding "this change would not be any help to offensive football."

"They are right," Little added.

His former assistant, Herb Kopf, now head coach at Manhattan, was less enthusiastic, believing the defense still would close up near the goal line to some extent.

Strong endorsements came from Mal Edwards, Purdue's acting coach, who said the changes "will be of great assistance to 1938 quarterbacks," Lewell (Red) Dawson of Tulane, Josh Cody of Florida, Chet Wynne of Kentucky, Glenn Thistlethwaite of Richmand, and Ike Armstrong of Utah.

Williams Newton of North Carolina State, and Gus Dorais of Detroit, pointed out illustrations in Saturday's Santa Clara-Louisiana State "Sugar Bowl" game.

"L. S. U. once lost the ball and a scoring chance when the quaterback called passes on each of the first two downs and both were incomplete in the end zone," said Newton.

"Two great teams and only one touchdown," added Dorais. "Santa Clara, on different occasions, used four, five, six, seven, and eight-man lines."

Dorais Wants Change

Dorais, however, continued to campaign to allow the offensive team to retain the ball when a pass "inadvertently" strikes an ineligible player. "I've fought for that for two years," he said, "and I guess I'll have to go forth again next year."

Fred Thomsen of Arkansas regretted that the five-yard restriction was not removed from forward passes but, in rebuttal, Clyde Waters, well-known New England official, said "that would worry a lot of coaches. It's all right for the pros but, remember, they're more mature than college and high school players."

A number of leading coaches, among them Howard Jones, Southern California; Bill Spaulding, University of California at Los Angeles; Harry Hughes, Colorado State; Bill Kern, Carnegie Tech; and John P. Smith of Duquesne, agreed that the changes would aid the attack although not by any big margin.

Ducky Pond of Pale, expressing the belief that the offense already slightly overbalanced the defense, summed up the whole idea: "The spectators will see more scoring, which they like."

Frick Predicts Great Year In Baseball World

By FORD FRICK
President of the National League

NEW YORK, Jan. 6—There's a wider range of vision than usual for a baseball man standing at the annual crossroads. Looking forward, beyond 1938, is baseball centennial year and, when you turn around there's a century of baseball history stretching all the way back to the summer of 1839 and a village green in upstate New York.

In baseball, there's a new pennant every year. Normally that makes your baseball outlook that way too—a one-year look—and it's always the year just ahead of you.

But because 1939 is centennial year, the whole baseball world will grow more and more 1939 conscious as 1938 moves along. The appropriation of $100,000 by the major leagues started the ball rolling for a memorable centennial celebration.

Not Overlooking 1938

But in looking beyond 1938 don't think I'm overlooking it. I'm expecting and predicting a great year for baseball as a whole, as well as the National League.

We are going to use a new official baseball, one that is changed only slightly; but we think, very wisely. There is no great difference in our new ball's traveling range. A squarely-hit ball will travel just as far in 1938 as in 1937. The purpose of the slightly thickened cover and heavier seam is to give the pitchers a "break," restore some of the balance between offense and defense and eliminate the "cheap" extra-base hit.

The game will really look just as fast, just as snappy, just as exciting, as in 1937. In fact, it will probably look faster, because your infielders and outfielders will get more of a chance on these half-hit drives.

1937 a Great Year

We don't want baseball to be very much different in 1938 than in 1937. It was a great year. Attendance figures in the National League—as in every baseball league in the country, I believe—kept on climbing. We had a close and exciting pennant race, the kind that has become typical of our league. It added up very well indeed for the National League in every column—all except victory in the all-star game and the world series.

So, at the crossroads of 1937 and 1938, I think I can sum up the National League's sentiments by saying, "good-bye, 1937. You were a pretty fine year, but we're expecting young 1938 to be a whole lot better in a couple of spots, meaning particularly a certain July afternoon in Cincinnati and a week or so in early October."

Butler Players Favor Abolition Of Center Jump

INDIANAPOLIS, Jan. 6—Profound opinions about the new basketball rules have come from scores of coaches, grandstand and press box experts who "see all—know all—tell all"—but how about the boys who play the game? How about the fellows who have the actual job of producing field goals? How do they feel about it all?

Take tiny Jerry Steiner, for instance (his opponents haven't been able to catch up with him, let alone take him). Steiner, five feet, seven inches of basketball dynamite, has been leading scorer and spark plug for a Butler University team that has won seven of its first eight games, defeating such outfits as Michigan, Pittsburgh, Northwestern, Cincinnati and Boston University.

"I like it," was Steiner's verdict on the center-jumpless game. Then he grinned and added, "It gives me an edge."

"The new rules have put little guys like me back in the ball game," he said. "Of course, the game is somewhat faster, but it will slow down. There isn't any reason why teams should play fire department basketball all the time. I guess I'm a little more tired after a game now than before the rules change, but I come out of it just as fast as before," he said.

Now to go to the other extreme. There's Bill Merrill, six-foot, one-inch, 190-pound center for Butler, who has had his jumping duties taken away by the new rules.

"Suits me fine," said Merrill. "In fact, it makes it easier for me.

"It takes more energy to make one center jump, particularly against a real tall opponent, than it does for a couple of dashes up and down the floor. Don't let anyone kid you, the job of jumping center after every field goal took plenty out of a player.

"I'm not any more tired after a game now than I was before the change. The game naturally is faster immediately after the field goal is made and the ball is thrown into play, but it always can be slowed up again."

Merrill expressed an opinion the new rules permit more time for thought about offensive maneuvers under the basket.

"It used to be that you had to think of offensive formations around the center circle and then again under the basket," he explained. "Now you can concentrate on your offense under the basket."

Figure Skating Champ To Quit Competition After Current Season

Toshiichi Katayama of Kwansei Gakuin, who competed at the Fourth Winter Olympic Games in 1936 at Garmisch-Partenkirchen and recently won the national figure skating championship, has announced his retirement after the current winter season.

His application for retirement was approved by the Kansai Skating Federation at its meeting Friday night at the Asahi Kaikan at Osaka.

Upon this graduation from Kwansei Gakuin this spring, Katayama will enter military service and has decided to retire from competition simultaneously.

He was a candidate for the Fifth Olympic Winter Games in 1940.

Karel Kozeluh Advocates Open Tennis Tourney

NEW YORK, Jan. 4—Karel Kozeluh, the Czechoslovakian tennis pro and present open champion, who once coached the American Davis Cup team, is back in the United States with decided ideas on the game and its players.

The European veteran, who has won a hatful of titles, will coach in Florida this winter and defend his open title in April. He returned from Europe and a visit home last week. He has played with all the greats from Bill Tilden to Don Budge and he goes out on a limb with everyone else in praise of Budge—as an amateur.

"No amateur could beat Budge last year," he said. "Von Cramm comes close and in another year Bobby Riggs, maybe. But beat him now, no. I do not know whether he will turn pro or not. Myself, I think it is foolish he does not, but that is my view. A nice boy, Donny. Maybe he thinks it best to be amateur."

The Czech is sure that young Bobby Riggs, ranked No. 2 nationally, would be able to carry on capably if Budge turned pro.

"Riggs is marvelous. Very strong and still getting better. He is a kid, and of course, he doesn't pace himself. You see him against Von Cramm? An older player would have won. But Riggs, he burns himself out. Wait until next year."

Kozeluh wants a real open tennis tournament in which the world's top flight amateurs and pros would meet as they do in golf to crown what he calls "the real champion."

"It would be the best tennis and it would be good for the game. It is only reasonble now that there are so many good professionals the public would be anxious to see the best tennis.

"There would be Budge with Vines and Perry playing against him and the others. Budge would still be able to defend the Davis Cup next year after such a tournament if the U. S. L. T. A. would let him. He would not be a pro. Is an amateur golfer a pro for playing in an open tournament? It is foolish.

"So maybe some day we will have a real tournament."

Huskies Train For Defense Of Two 1937 Titles

Christian Science Monitor

SEATTLE, Wash.—This is about the University of Washington Huskies "on land and on sea."

Two hardworking squads of Washington athletes are training to defend two championships—Pacific Coast, and Intercollegiate Rowing Association eight-oared-crew, and Pacific Coast ski.

Seems odd that crew and ski squads can be working out at the same time, but then as they would say in southern California "this is the Golden West and nothing's impossible here!" And anyway they both utilize the same element—water!

As the crew men bend to their oars in preparation for the California-Washington annual regatta to be rowed in the spring, followed by one or two races in the East this year the skiiers are ready for the season's first intersectional meet January 1 over at Sun Valley Idaho, where they'll compete with the big Green Team from Dartmouth in three events—cross-country, down hill and slalom.

Dartmouth Won in '34

This is the second time the two colleges have met. Dartmouth swooped and turned more expertly over the snow to win from the Huskies in 1934 up at Mt. Rainier. But this year the Pacific Coast champions are out to "take" the boys from the East, even though Dartmouth is led by national ski-champion Dick Durrance.

Head ski-coach Otto Lang took over the squad after the preparatory training had been administered by "Cotton" Wilcox, also assistant football coach. Six of the Huskies' lettermen are back and that bids well for Washington. These fellows are Capt. Bob Higman, Lonnie Robinson, Tom Hill, Walter Page, Harold Stacks, and William Hubbach. Added to these snowsters are Otis Lamson, a transfer from Dartmouth—beware—Paul Sceva who competed in Europe last winter, and Ragner Qvale, a Norwegian, the jumper of the squad.

With the increasing interest in winter sports being evidenced both in the East and West these intersectional ski duels should really come to take their place as top-notch intercollegiate sports events. Skiing used to be considered either a rich-man's sport or an experts' privilege. Now anyone who can remain perpendicular on his unruly sticks for a specified distance of twice their length can call himself a skier.

Here in Seattle the sport has grown in popularity year by year until this season anyone who doesn't sit by his fireside polishing his skiis, or who can't tell of the new run he's (or she's) found can't hold his head up out in public.

Coach Has Real Job

Crew, on the other hand is still the specialized sport that it probably always will remain. (Not that everyone can become a top-notch skier in a season or two either.)

Coach Al Ulbrickson has a real job on his hands this year to whip his boys into that machine-like precision that won Washington the 1936 National title and the Olympics, and the 1937 Pacific Coast and I. R. A. championship. Each year Al sweeps the sweeps clean and it's up to each and every aspirant to a sliding seat in the varsity shell to get out and prove he has a right to it.

Five men out of his championship boats of the past two years must be replaced. These are Jim McMillin, Joe Rantz, Roger Morris, Charles Day, and George Hunt. Back again are Don Hume—stroke of strokes—John White, Capt.-Elect Gordon Adam, and Earl Schenck coxswain.

It is recalled that last year's Junior Varsity—college champs in their own class—were considered nearly as good as the varsity. By some experts the J. V. boatload was considered "better." Six of these boys are back and their cox, Don Coy, who was starboard reserve in 1936 and who was out last year is also back.

Coach Ulbrickson is said to be somewhat concerned over his chances this year. But the writer thinks he has little grounds for being so as, apart from this varsity material at hand, he has last year's frosh (also champions of the coast and the Hudson River) the second and third frosh boats, plus other fellows who want to row. Shucks, Al, that doesn't look so bad to an old alumnus!

Four Or Five Frosh Boats

Aside from the varsity prospects it is reported that some 200 frosh turned out for the four or five frosh boats that ply up and down Lake Washington each spring, and in which the Washington system of rowing is taught to potential Hudson river winners.

This brings up the subject of just how long that varsity race should be back there at Poughkeepsie. It has been regularly set at four miles. But now the question is raised by the Rowing Coaches Association as to whether or not that isn't too far?

The lack of training distance to prepare for such a strenuous race on the part of the eastern colleges is given as one reason for bringing up this issue. Rumor has it that Pennsylvania dropped out of the competition last year for this cause.

Of course Ulbrickson at Washington and Ky Ebright, the diminutive mentor at California, have nothing to say about what the distance should be as their colleges are merely "invited" each year to compete on the Hudson.

They were, however, sent memos asking what they thought of the possibilities of reducing the distance—say to three miles. What they have replied officially no one knows.

But their remarks made publically indicate they are in favor of the four-mile race. Ky Ebright said "Rowing is a man's sport. The boys like to row four miles."

Ulbrickson said, "It isn't a difficult race when it is run on fresh water." Both Messrs. Ebright and Ulbrickson have proved that their crews can row the distance and without harm.

Some folks out here—and it is reported elsewhere in the country—have been so bold as to hint that one reason for suggesting the four-to-three-mile change "might be" because the eastern coaches were tiring of seeing California and Washington come back each year and sweep the river. Figures show that since 1932 California has won four and Washington has won five (or a total of nine) of the last 14 races.

Cornell, Navy and Columbia have been the eastern boats to come in first and Navy was the last one to do that in 1931. But even though they should reduce the length of the varsity race the crews out here have proved they can win at four miles and under and no one is particularly perturbed.—Royal Arch Gunnison.

"BELIEVE IT OR NOT"---by Ripley

Utopia For All

Charles Fourier, (1772-1837) French philosopher, founded an important school of philosophy based on these principals: Heating of the two poles, sweetening of the seven seas, adding three more Moons to the satellite of the earth, free love, ample education of children at the cost of the group, not less than seven meals a day and a round of drama, opera, music and all the joyous things of life, thus making it possible for men to attain an average age of 144 years and a height of seven feet.

He had a large following and played a most important part in the pre-socialist movement in Europe, as well as in the United States. For 25 years straight, without ever missing a single day, he would return to his house at the stroke of 12, to wait two hours for the capitalists of the world to come to him with the proposition to put his theories to the practical test, and he waited in vain all his life until the very day of his death.

Five Eyes

A grasshopper has five eyes. Two are located on the base of the antennae or feelers, one in the middle of the forehead, and one on either side of the head. The general belief is that a grasshopper has only two eyes, because of the two complex and large side eyes.

British Committee Denies Discussing With U.S. Boycotting Of '40 Games

By The Domei Tsushin Sha

LONDON, Feb. 4—Although some sections of the British sports circles are in favor of Britain boycotting the Tokyo Games, rumors that the British Olympic Committee had recently discussed the question with the American Olympic Association were officially denied by a spokesman of the committee here today.

Stressing that British sports circles pride themselves in keeping world politics and sports apart, the spokesman, nevertheless admitted that there had appeared some correspondence in the British press against the staging of the 1940 Games at Tokyo, or even allowing Japan to compete at the contests, wherever they are held. These sections of sports circles favor a boycott of the Games, but these quarters are "purely unofficial" and have nothing to do with the Committee.

The spokesman pointed out that the British sent a large team to the last Olympic Games in Berlin despite German persecution of the Jews. The view taken by the committee at that time, he added, was that whatever Germany did off the field of sports should not influence the attitude of British athletes.

He went on to disclose that the committee had not met for some time, its secretary being at Sydney, Australia to attend the British Empire Games. The committee, however, might meet here before the Cairo conference opens in March.

Want Warring Nations Banned

By The Domei Tsushin Sha

HELSINGFORS, Feb. 4—Important amendments to the International Olympic Games rules barring any nation engaged in armed hostilities from staging the Olympic Games as well barring it from participating in the contests may be put forth by Finland at the forthcoming Cairo conference of the I.O.C., Erivon Frenckel, the Finnish delegate to the meeting, intimated here today.

The amendments may be proposed provided that the so-called Oslo Group, comprising of Sweden, Norway, Denmark, Finland, Holland and Belgium, back up the Finnish suggestions. Although these amendments are to become effective in 1944, it is intimated that there is nothing to stop the International Olympic Committee from putting the amendments into action within this year.

The amendments, suggested by Mr. Frenckel, are three: (1) That any country engaged in armed hostilities shall be disqualified to organize the Olympiad; (2) that, in the event a country has been accorded the right to stage the Games, that right shall be automatically cancelled if it becomes involved in a war; and (3) that any country engaged in war shall be prohibited from participating in the contests.

Davis Cup Hopes Appear To Rest Upon 1937 Team

NEW YORK, Jan. 11—It's a long way from January to the mid-summer afternoon when the United States will defend the Davis Cup for the first time since Rene Lacoste and Henri Cochet of France took it away from Germantown in 1927, but the indications are that last year's triumphant players will get the task of defending the trophy.

There's no doubt that Don Budge will be the No. 1 man. Bryan (Bitsy) Grant, who swore he'd never try it again after the lickings he took in the 1937 interzone finals, already has tossed his hat in the ring. The other candidates are Frankie Parker, who replaced Grant as the second singles player against Britain; Bobby Riggs, who didn't make the team last year but won the national No. 2 ranking; Gene Mako, Budge's doubles partner, and Wayne Sabin, the versatile player who went to England last summer as the team's "sparring partner."

Winter Tour

The winter tour of Australia which Budge and Mako got as a reward for their efforts has caused some concern in tennis circles.

While Budget might have profited by a winter's rest in the opinion of many, the results of his matches indicate he hasn't been taking the antipodean tour any too seriously. He has been beaten twice by Germany's Gottfried Erhr. Von Cramm, once drawing protests because of his indifferent attitude.

Then, too, there's the fact that Von Cramm and Henner Henkel of Germany and the Australian stars all are competing through the winter and they're the ones expected to come through to the interzone final and fight it out for the right to challenge the United States.

Limit to Play

In addition Pate, if he again captains the team, plans to limit Budge's summer tournament play just to make sure he won't be stale when the cup matches come around.

Grant, after whipping Riggs Sunday in the Miami Biltmore tournament final, announced he was going to rest a while to avoid the possibility of staleness, which seems to indicate that he, too, has his eye on the late-summer doings. Riggs also is out to show the tennis solons he can't be overlooked this year.

The possibility of Sabin's playing depends upon whether the authorities decide to retain Mako as Budge's doubles mate. Some have contended it was placing an unfair burden upon Budge to force him to "carry" Mako and that Sabin would be better able to hold up his end. The fact remains, however, that Don likes to play with Gene, and that may settle the matter.

Katsuta Is Reelected Lawn Tennis President

Eikichi Katsuta was reelected president of the Japan Lawn Tennis Association at its general meeting at the Marunouchi Kaikan Sunday.

Tetsunosuke Adachi and Zenzo Shimizu were also reelected as vice-presidents.

Named as superintendents were: Seiichi Yosumi and Takeo Mori. Mr. Yosumi is a new appointee.

Directors elected were:

Tamio Abe, Norin Muto, Kazuichi Nagabori, Yoji Yokoyama, Sanya Kashima, Masamichi Sakurai and Yoshikado Nomura for the Kanto.

Iwao Aoki, Toyojiro Oyabu, Kosaburo Yoshikawa, Kiichiro Miyata, Tatsuki Miki and Senmatsu Okawa for the Kansai.

Sadaichi Takamatsu and Shinto Kuno for Tokai.

Shinichi Nagasawa and Kamekichi Daishin for Chugoku.

Yasu Yasukawa and Makito Tsukamoto for Students Federation.

Cleland Named To Marsh Award For Past Season

TORONTO, Jan. 5—(CP)—Second winner of the Lou Marsh memorial trophy, awarded to Canada's "outstanding sport competitor," was announced last night as Lieut. W. Marshal Cleland of the Governor-General's Horse Guards, noted rider who scored a long string of victories in Canadian and United States horse shows in 1937.

The award, first of its kind ever made in Canada to a star in equestrian sports, was announced by a committee of judges headed by P. J. Mulqueen, chairman of the Canadian Olympic committee. The 1936 winner was Dr. Phil Edwards, famous half-miler of British Guiana and Montreal.

Cleland, son of a wealthy Toronto executive and a rider since he was six years old, established himself as one of the world's best amateur riders by winning international events at New York, Chicago, Montreal and Toronto. His home is at Troy, his father's estate near Hamilton.

The judges made their selection from 22 athletes in a dozen or more sports. Among those nominated for the trophy were Bob Rankine of Preston, (Ont.,) winner of the Crow Memorial trophy, given annually by the Amateur Athletic Union of Canada, and Syl Apps, Toronto Maple Leaf hockey star voted the outstanding athlete in a poll of sports writers conducted by The Canadian Press.

Charles Ring, Toronto sportsman and one of the selection judges, donated the trophy in memory of Lou Marsh, late sports editor of the Daily Star. It is open to men and women athletes, professionals and amateurs.

Cleland, a member of the Canadian Army team that competed in several horse shows against teams from the Irish Free State, United States, Holland and Belgium, was outstanding on the tanbark wherever he went.

At the Madison Square Garden show in New York, where international competition was keenest, Cleland won the Brooks Bright Foundation trophy, awarded to the top military rider, and captured the military knock-down-and-out competition.

In addition he was a member of the Canadian military team that won the international military jumping championship and a three-night low-score team competition. In the team jumping competition Cleland rode Roxana, one of his favorite mounts, in perfect fashion over the hurdles.

Credited to his record at the Chicago show were victories in military pairs, three-day team event and the individual championship. In Toronto his victories were in the military touch-and-out event, military pairs and in the featured Midgery Memorial trophy competition.

The trim little Troy lieutenant, whose brother Douglas was almost as successful as he was, also won dozens of other awards in lesser events. When the Marsh Memorial trophy is presented to him Jan. 15 it will be largely for his success against international opposition.

Robina Higgins Best Canadian Woman Athlete

TORONTO.—Robina Higgins of Winnipeg, ace of the feminine division of Canada's team heading for the British Empire games in Australia, got the call as the outstanding woman athlete in Canada in 1937.

By the margin of a single point in the Canadian year-end poll of sports writers, the javelin-thrower edged out another Winnipeg luminary, Mrs. John Rogers, Canadian open golf champion, for the honor.

Selectors listed three athletes in order of preference, three points being scored for a first-team vote, two for second and one for third. In the final tabulation, Miss Higgins had 18 points, Mrs. Rogers, 17.

Best javelin-thrower developed among women athletes in the Dominion, Miss Higgins set a Canadian record of 128ft., 6in. this year and is expected to win her specialty at the Empire games in February.

Mrs. Rogers accomplished one of the best victories in Canadian sport by winning the open golf title at Winnipeg from an international field.

Third in the ballot was Aileen Meagher of Halifax, noted sprinter, who also is on her way to the Empire games. Fourth was Phyllis Dewar of Vancouver, swim star, and tied for fifth, Noel MacDonald, center of the Edmonton Grads basketball team, and Heather Leslie of Winnipeg, Canadian women's close golf champion.

Others mentioned prominently were Thelma Golden, Toronto, softball pitcher; Mrs. Anna Kier Patrick of Vancouver, Canadian women's singles badminton champion; Mrs. Cliff Shuttleworth of Hamilton, Ontario women's golf champion, and Roxy Atkins of Toronto, hurdling star.

Engnestangen Sets New Speed Mark In 500 M. Race

By The Domei Tsushin Sha

DAVOS, Switzerland, Feb. 5—A new international record for the 500-meter speed skating race was set by a young Norwegian, Engnestangen, in the opening of the 31st world skating championships here this morning. His time for the event was 41.8 seconds, clipping off six tenths of a second off the two-year-old mark established by Allan Potts, of the United States, in 1936.

Leo Freisenger, of Chicago, the American champion and a veteran of many international meets, took second with the time of 41.9 seconds, breaking his old American record, while Koregh, of Norway, was third. His time was 42.3 seconds.

Twenty seven competitors from eleven nations: Norway, Finland, Latvia, Switzerland, Austria, the Netherlands, England, the United States, Poland, Germany and Hungary, are participating in the championships. Favored by excellent conditions of the ice and cold and clear weather, new records are expected in the 5,000 and 1,500 meters which will be run either today or tomorrow. The entries in those races are the toughest, it is learned.

A grand reunion for the first world champions will be celebrated tonight following the arrival of five of the six survivors of the first championships which were held here in 1898. Three of the old men, now in their seventies, arrived here last night. They include Edginton, of Britain; two Germans, Kleebergesensburg and Seyler, while two others, a Norwegian, Oestlund and a Dutchman, Greve, are expected here this afternoon.

Another veteran, Szabó, of Hungary, accepted the invitation but today wired the Davos foundation that he was too ill to come. This year's championships are the sixth contests which the local club has sponsored since the first championships were held in 1898.

Ballangrud Takes 5,000 M. Race

By The Domei Tsushin Sha

DAVOS, Switzerland, Feb. 5—Ivar Ballangrud, Norwegian Olympic champion, today took first honors in the 5,000-meter speed skating race at the 31st World Skating Championships which opened here this morning. He covered the distance in 8 minutes 20.2 seconds.

Charles Mathisen, of Norway, placed second with a time of 8 minutes 25.4 seconds, followed by Karl Wazulek, of Austria, who sped through the course in 8 minutes 27.9 seconds.

Brundage Names 12 Men For Olympic Body

NEW YORK, Jan. 7—Avery Brundage, president of the American Olympic Association, last night announced the names of 12 men nominated for membership on the U. S. Olympic track and field committee for the 1940 international games at Tokyo.

The 12 were nominated by the National Collegiate Athletic Association and the Amateur Athletic Union. The American Olympic Association executive committee, meeting here Saturday, will approve the make-up of the various committees, including the track and field group, for the 1940 international games.

Heading the nominees announced by Brundage was Earl J. Thomson, 1920 Olympic hurdles champion and now head track coach at the U.S. Naval Academy. He was one of a half-dozen named by the N. C. A. A. which also nominated Kenneth L. (Hug) Wilson of Northwestern; Alfred Masters of Stanford; W. C. Hunter of Southern California; Wilbur Hutsell of Auburn and Emett Brunson of Rice Institute.

The A. A. U. selections were Judge Thomas T. Reilley, New York; Ward Waylett, Kansas State College; Edward S. Parsons, Northeastern University; George T. Donoghue, Chicago; Edwin F. Schaefer, Buffalo, and John S. Coates, San Francisco.

In the track and field committee for the Olympics, the group will be made up of six members each from the N. C. A. A. and the A. A. U. This dozen will select a 13th member.

Brundage also announced nominees for six other committees.

The executive committee of the association brought its membership to 37 with the election of 10 new members. The new members are:

Romeyn Berry, former graduate manager of Cornell University, now with the New Yorker magazine.

Dr. John Brown, New York, Secretary of the International Board of the Young Men's Christian Association.

William J. Bingham of Cambridge, Mass., graduate manager of athletics at Harvard and manager of the 1936 American Olympic track and field team.

J. Frank Facey, Cambridge, Mass., member of the 1936 Olympic committee.

Clement B. Newbold, Jenkintown, Penna., manager of the 1936 American Olympic rowing squad.

Prof. William Owens, Stanford University, Palo Alto, Calif., president of the National Collegiate Athletic Association.

Prof. L. W. St. John, director of athletics at Ohio State University.

Fred L. Steers, manager of the women's track and field team in the 1936 Olympics.

Maj. Patrick Walsh, New York, quartermaster of the 1936 Olympic team.

Affiliation with the N. C. A. A. or Amateur Athletic Union predominated in election of the ten. Berry, Bingham, Professor Owens, and Professor St. John were affiliated with the N. C. A. A.; Facey, Steers and Major Walsh with the A. A. U.

Twenty-four of the previous 27 members of the committee voted in the election, which was decided on four ballots.

Kazama And Team-mates Win Wrestling Easily

All four wrestlers who recently defeated everything in the Philippines came through with flying colors Sunday afternoon in exhibition bouts held at Y.M.C.A. gymnasium at Kanda to welcome their return. Each won impressively by scoring a fall.

The results were:

Bantamweight—Toyokuki Kuroda (Waseda) defeated Tobari (Keio) 11 minutes 7 seconds.

Featherweight—Hideichi Yoshioka (Meiji) defeated Motoyoshi Oyama (Senshu) in 9 minutes, 55 seconds.

Lightweight—K. Kim (Meiji) defeated Kenyoshi Omiya (Waseda) in 2 minutes 14 seconds.

Welterweight—Eiichi Kazama (Waseda) defeated Toramasa Kikuma (Keio) in 4 minutes, 30 seconds.

U.S. Athletes May Set Faster Pace This Year

By DAN FERRIS
Secretary-Treasurer, National A. A. U.

NEW YORK, Jan. 7—Spurred on by prospects of heavy foreign competition, America's track and field athletes may set an even faster pace in 1938 than they did a year ago when seven world's records were broken by United States standard-bearers.

Opportunity for travel in foreign countries is one of the chief incentives for athletes to remain in competition and, if present plans materialize, more American track and field stars than ever before in a non-Olympic year, will compete abroad this summer.

An international dual meet between the champions of Europe on one side and the U. S. champions on the other is one of the prime international features toward which our athletes will aim.

Although this meet has not yet been definitely arranged, the necessary approval of the Foreign Relations Committee of the A. A. U. already has been granted and negotiations now are under way. The European championships will be held in Paris early in August and present plans call for the international meet a week later. The 1938 winners of the National A. A. U. championship will make up the U. S team.

Plan London Meet

Two other international meets for American athletes definitely are fixed and others are tentatively planned. A team of 10 will compete in the first of these meets in London Aug. 1 and the other will pit the combined Cornell-Princeton squad against Oxford-Cambridge.

Last summer when the Pan-American Games were held in Dallas, the Brazilian Ambassador invited the competing countries to Rio de Janeiro for the Pan American Games of 1938. Although no formal renewal of that invitation has been forthcoming thus far, it is probable that the United States again will be represented.

A team of 10 will visit South Africa late in the summer. Athletes who will make this trip will be chosen from one of the teams competing in Europe.

Foreigners Shun Indoor Meets

For the first time in several years, the major indoor meets will be run without foreign stars. All invitations extended to overseas athletes by the A.A.U. have been declined. Except for Paavo Nurmi and a few others, foreign athletes never have been able to adjust themselves to American board-track conditions. Undoubtedly this was a major factor in the failure of Europeans to come over for the indoor season. One or more, however, probably will race in U.S. outdoor meets.

Such veteran champions as Glenn Cunningham, Archie San Romani, Don2 Lash, Gene Venzke, Joe McCluskey, Tom Deckard, Norman Bright, Forrest Towns, Ray Malott, Jack Patterson, Perrin Walker, Ben Johnson, Elroy Robinson and John Woodruff, to mention only a few, again will be headliners in 1938. With such promising material to press them as Jimmy Smith, Charles Fenske, Ray Mahannah, Dave Rogan, William Feiler, Jimmy Herbert, aul Sanders, Vic Palmerson, Peter Bradley, Louis Burns, Howard Borck, Gregory Rice, Louis Zamperino, Allan Tolmich, Dick Gill, Howard Welch, Jack Weiershauser, Charles Belcher and John Marion, we are certain to see some great racing during 1938 and keen competition usually brings record-breaking performances.

9 Teams Eligible For Students' Swim Meet

Only nine schools will compete in the national students' swimming championships this year, according to a decision reached by the Japan Students' Swimming Federation at its annual meeting Sunday afternoon at the Marunouchi Building.

Those eligible to compete will be the first ranking six teams of last year's meet, plus one representative each from the Kanto, Kansai and Tokai districts. Previously, Kanto had been allowed four teams.

The meet will be held on two days, instead of three.

The dates for the principal meets were selected as follows:

August 6 and 7: national middle schools championships.

September 17 and 18: national students championship.

Dr. Itsutaro Suehiro of the Tokyo Imperial University was elected president of the Federation with Masataro Fujii and Sadaichi Takamatsu as vice-presidents.

Big 'Time' Money Hinders Signing Of Ball Talent

ST. PETERSBURG, Fla., Jan 11—Johnny Nee, ace baseball scout of the world champion New York Yankees, paused in his hunt for diamond talent today to say that big money has made the youngsters harder to sign.

"Baseball's big money has fired the youngsters' imagination," he said. "The boys who have talent don't ask for the opportunity to hook up with a big time organization any more; what they want to know is this:

"'How much will I get?'

"The first thing they do is hire a manager or agent. I don't blame them for trying to get as much money as they can, but it certainly makes it tough on us."

In the old days a visit of a big league scout to a minor league club to look over the town favorite called for a community holiday with all the townsfolk gathered in the stands to cheer their hero.

Today, Nee said, as soon as a budding star begin sto bloom most of the stands are filled with official and unofficial scouts eager to sign the player if he shows anything like big time stuff.

There was a time, Nee recalls, when the manager of a minor league club would invite a scout to look over, at his convenience, a player considered to have the stuff it takes to make a major leaguer.

"Those days are gone," moaned Johnny. "Now the Chamber of Commerce or a high school coach will tell you they have a chap with what it takes but you'll have to bid, because every club in the circuit is wise to him."

The only way to hit virgin territory now, explained Nee, is to haunt the grade and junior high school sandlots.

Christmas Was Once Prohibited

In 1659 the General Court of Massachusetts enacted a law providing "a fine of five shillings for every offense if a body be found observing by abstinence from work, by celebrating or attending a religious service . . . . such a day as Christmas Day." England had enacted similar laws about the same time, which were repealed in 1662. However, the Massachusetts law was not repealed until 1681.

JAPANESE CONVERSATION GRAMMAR
By Mr. Oreste Vaccari and Mrs. Enko Vaccari

THE LONDON TIMES
LITERARY SUPPLEMENT
No. 1844, Saturday, June 5, 1937

....this new manual is practical and useful, and what Count Kabayama in his prefactory note calls its "human method" will make it acceptable to the growing number of English students of Japanese. When the student has mastered its sixty lessons he will have completed the equivalent of an ordinary Japanese school education and will be at home in the language and able to proceed to higher things.

A feature of the book is its transliteration, with Chinese characters of every Japanese example rendered in English spelling so that the student is gradually familiarized with the appearance of the language as well as with its sound.

Studying Japanese with this Grammar Becomes a Real Pleasure

EXTRACTS FROM THE PREFACE

Written by Count Ayské Kabayama, chairman of the Kokusai Bunka Shinkokai (The Society for International Cultural Relations of Tokyo).

"Mr. and Mrs. Vaccari have brought out what I would like to regard as the most complete book to date for the study of Japanese, and have, thereby, provided an effective and practical guide toward a basic study of the Japanese nation and people ....The method introduced by the authors is not only scientific, but human....the particular of the language, fully treated with practical examples, have been regulated in each lesson according to the measure of a partial effort of the mind....The Japanese taught in the book has struck me as of the best commonly accepted diction today....The authors have introduced a new system of giving all the sentences in the book in Japanese characters and Roman transliteration with their respective English translation, an innovation most likely to prove very helpful....Mr. and Mrs. Vaccari have published a book of high merit and may be regarded as the initiators of a new system for teaching Japanese.

U.S. Committee Losing No Time For 1940 Games

By GEORGE M. R. HOLMES

Christian Science Monitor

BOSTON, Jan. 11—Preparations for the Olympic Games of 1940 which are scheduled to take place in Tokyo, so far as the United States are concerned, took a long step forward over the past week end with the American Olympic Committee completing its committees, laying plans for the raising of the money necessary to send the athletes to the seat of action, etc. The next big step in preparing for the games will take place at Cairo in March when the International Olympic Committee holds its meeting and the delegates of all the countries which take part in the games assemble and consider the various questions which are submitted by the different nations. That the games will be held in Japan, or not at all, now seems certain as there would be little time in which to arrange for a transfer to some other nation. A voluntary release by Japan or a decision by the I. O. C. that preparations for the games were not satisfactory enough, are the only grounds for not holding them at Tokyo and there is no chance of either of these happening.

Raising the Necessary Funds

It is pleasing to note that those who are intrusted with raising the money necessary to transport the athletes who will represent Uncle Sam in the varsity events are losing no time in laying plans for this work. It is two years before the games will take place and yet now is none too soon to start in on the financial campaign. It is going to take some $400,000 to cover all the expenses and it is to be hoped that this year will find all of the money in the hands of the A. O. C., at least a couple of weeks before the athletes are due to sail. In 1936 it was not really known until the boat was due to sail for Germany just how many athletes could go at the expense of the A. O. C. Such a situation was not only very unsatisfactory to those who were handling the team; but it was manifestly unfair to those athletes who had worked hard and qualified for one of the teams and then didn't know whether they could go or not. It should never be allowed to occur again. As there is a balance of some $64,000 in the treasury at the present time, only about $350,000 will have to be raised.

More Expected

It also developed at the meetings that the A. O. C. would expect the National Collegiate Athletic Association to contribute more in a financial way since it had attained its goal so far as greater representation on all important Olympic committees was concerned. That the N. C. A. A. readily concurred with this opinion is evidenced by the fact that it has already appointed Frank G. McCormick, director of athletics at the University of Minnesota, to take charge of collegiate fund-raising. It is expected that he and his committee will raise some $100,000, which is twice as much as was collected through N. C. A. A. sources in 1936. Another change in the system of financing the teams was announced by President Avery Brundage. It is to the effect that each individual sport is to finance itself. This was tried out as an emergency measure in 1936 and worked very satisfactorily.

Chance to Place

Another proposal which should prove well worth-while is the adoption of a policy of not transporting athletes to the games whose performances indicate that they are not good enough to have any chance of competing with the world's best on even terms. There are some events in which Uncle Sam cannot produce three athletes who have a chance of winning one of those places in the events in which individual competition counts and there are also games in which Uncle Sam cannot produce a team with a chance of finishing in the prize-winning places. In past years full teams have been sent and this has naturally added to the financial burden. Under the new plan the cost can be quite materially reduced without in any way weakening America's chances of winning all the places it can possibly take which carry prizes or count in the unofficial championship tables which are always compiled.

Ballangrud Captures World's All-Round Speed Skating Title

By The Domei Tsushin Sha

DAVOS, Switzerland, Feb. 6—Ivar Ballangrud, Norwegian Olympic champion, third-place winner of the European speed skating championships, today won the world's all-round speed skating title from a field of 26 competitors with a total of 190.907 points. Wazulek of Austria, with 192.233 points and Methieson, of Norway, the 1938 European title holder, with 192.660 points took second and third respectively.

This is the second time within the last three years in which Ballangrud has won the title, having taken the coveted prize for the first time in 1936.

Ballangrud climaxed this year's performances by jointly taking the 10,000-meter race with Mathieson in 17 minutes 14.4 seconds—a new world record. Langedijk, of Holland, and Wazulek, of Austria, were third and fourth respectively.

Ballangrud also took second in the 1,500 meters speed skating event, following his teammate Engestangen who won the race in 2 minutes and 15.9 seconds. Berzins, of Latvia, was third.

Columbia Routs Yale Five, 44-29, In League Debut

By RUD RENNIE

N.Y. Herald Tribune

NEW YORK, Jan. 9—Columbia's basketball team had no great difficulty defeating Yale last night in the Morningside Heights gymnasium. The Light Blue and White led all the way and won this, the first Eastern Intercollegiate League game of the season, 44 to 29.

Columbia's team, the only undefeated college quintet in the metropolitan district, played with far more assurance than the lads from New Haven. Yale did not handle the ball so deftly and its shooting was off. It never got going.

It was not an exciting contest. Columbia, even though it won, was off form. At no time after the early minutes of play was the outcome in any great doubt.

Johnny O'Brien, was Columbia's high scorer. He scooted around and made nine field goals and one foul for a total of 19 points. He and John Navior, who scored 11 points, were Columbia's sharpshooters. Tom Erickson was Yale's principal scorer. He whipped in six field goals and two fouls and kept his team in the game.

There were about 1,200 persons in the gymnasium. They saw Columbia build up a 20-to-14 lead at the half and improve upon it slightly in the final period. Yale was only one point better in the second half than it was in the first, while Columbia was four points better.

The contest was closest when the score was 5 to 4 in favor of Columbia early in the game. Thereafter Naylor and O'Brien contrived to keep Columbia well in front.

Columbia had more luck with its long shots than it did with those close in. Yale had them pretty well blocked off under the basket and seemed content to let O'Brien and Naylor try their luck from midcourt. This did not do Yale any good.

Midway in the last period Carrol Frantz, Yale's captain, used up his quota of fouls and was out. A minute later Tom Maciocе, Columbia center, followed him.

The Columbia defense was such that Yale never was able to put on a storm. About as pretty a shot as there was in the game was the one O'Brien made toward the end of the first period when he dribbled the length of the court and rose up and dropped the ball in.

So Columbia remained undefeated and stretched its winning streak to five games. Yale has lost the two games it has played.

All-Foreigners Team To Play Kanto O.B. Ruggers On Friday

The annual rugby game between the All-Kanto O. B. fifteen and the All-Japan Foreigners team will be played on Friday, Kigensetsu, at the Meiji Shrine stadium. The kick-off is slated for 2:30 p.m.

Lamport of the Yokohama Country and Athletic Club will captain the all-foreigners fifteen, which will be comprised in the main of players from the Yokohama club and the Kobe Rowing and Athletic Club.

The following players will be in the line-up for the O. B. team: Toyama (Rikkyo), Sunabori (Waseda), Yamashita (Keio), Ono (Waseda), Yamaguchi (Meiji), Tadashi Adachi (Keio), Onishi (Waseda), Shimizu (Keio), forwards; Yamamoto (Waseda), Shin Ito (Waseda), Takarabe (Keio) and Tsugi Ito (Keio), halfbacks; Kitano (Keio), Yoshida (Rikkyo), Kato (Rikkyo) and Yamano (Waseda), three-quarters; and Ogawa (Waseda), goalie.

Australia's Hopes Run High For Davis Cup As Reich Stars Lose

Australia's hopes of winning the coveted Davis Cup this year went skyrocketing on January 31 when Adrian Quist and John Bromwich defeated Baron Gottfried von Cramm and Henner Henkel of the German Davis Cup team in the final of the doubles in the Australian championships at Adelaide. The score was 7—5, 6—4 and 6—0.

Bromwich, youngest member of the Australian Davis Cuppers, was in particularly good form and his good placements had the Reich stars running from one end of the court to the other. Quist proved an excellent partner.

Australia won much encouragement from the victory for the reason that Baron von Cramm and Henkel, though defeated by J. Donald Budge and Gene Mako of the United States in the inter-zone finals last year, turned the tables over the latter in the American championships.

Budge won the singles championship by defeating Bromwich in the final, 6-4, 6-2 and 6-1. The semi-finals were: Budge defeated Quist, 6-4, 6-2 and 8-6; Bromwich defeated Baron von Cramm, 6-3, 7-5 and 6-1.

Minor Leagues Assuming New Responsibility

By W. G. BRAMHAM
President, National Association of Professional Baseball Leagues

DURHAM, N. C., Jan. 11—The minor leagues step into a new year with a new responsibility. Not only has the national association expanded within its former confines, but enters 1938 with a new classification—class E leagues—created at the annual convention in Milwaukee last month.

These new leagues, authorized to take care of an insistent demand on the part of youth for a place in the baseball sun, will be virtual kindergartens of the professional game. They will be limited to modest salary rolls, and are designed, primarily, for "home town" boys and those living within close range of the clubs.

We anticipated the boys would welcome this opportunity, but were far short in our estimate of the amount of interest that would be generated. Our office has been literally swamped with mail from young players since the creation of class E.

Inquiries come from all sections and from all types of boys. They are anxious to start on a baseball career, and the national association has assumed the responsibility of affording them their chance.

In Formative Stage

Class E leagues are in a formative stage. No doubt numerous circuits of this rating will be admitted to membership this year. My advice to the youngsters is to watch their local papers for news of league organization and, after selecting a club close to home, make application for a trial.

Such a rush of mail as we have had is clearly indicative that youth has not lost its interest in baseball, as some would have us believe. On the contrary, I feel that the heavy influx of inquiries convinces, without a doubt, that there has not been so much interest on the part of boys in years.

This rise may be traced to the startling growth of class D leagues. In 1933, only two of them were in operation. There was not much room for the beginner. Last season we had 20 class D circuits, and with this broadened field, the number of youngsters entering the game showed a remarkable increase and interest was stimulated to an exceptional pitch.

37 Minor Leagues Finish

As to the immediate past and present of the national association, I have only to direct attention to the season of 1937. Thirty-seven minor leagues started the campaign and every one finished its schedule. Never in the history of the association has such a record been made.

Furthermore, there was a complete absence of territorial lien debts, indicating that "business was good" and that baseball was back on the plane where it belongs.

With such an encouraging season behind us, we naturally go very hopefully into 1938. We realize that baseball, as well as other amusement enterprises, rides with the ebb and flow of general business conditions. A word of caution is often a better prescription than an overdose of optimism.

Minor league baseball does not want to let prosperity go to its head. It is our purpose to continue in the channels of sane business methods, and under such policy we view the new year with the hope and thought that it will hold both pleasure and profit.

Most Married Couple

Hieronymus of Rome, 342-421, an ecclesiastical writer and philosopher, celebrated his marriage to Barisa, a virtuous Roman lady, in 411, when he was 69 years old. It was Hienonymus' 20th marriage. His previous wives were all dead. Before she married Hieronymus, Barisa too, had had 19 successive husbands.

The 20th marriage was apparently the happiest of all, because it lasted until Hieronymus' death, and his widow never remarried thereafter.

Walker Cup Team Named By U.S.G.A. To Meet British In Scotland

By KERR N. PETRIE

N.Y. Herald Tribune

NEW YORK, Jan. 9—Besides adopting a modified stymie ruling, electing officers for the year, passing an amendment to the constitution and considering a few items classified under general business, the United States Golf Association at its annual meeting yesterday at the Waldorf-Astoria named the team which this year will defend the Walker Cup against Great Britain in the international matches at St. Andrews, Scotland.

Never has there been a time when selection of the Walker Cup squad was so difficult. These were the words of John G. Jackson, and golfers who know the scrambled state of the game in 1937 realize exactly what the retiring president meant and what task confronted the selectors.

Whether they did a good job or a bad one depends upon the individual outlook. One thing at least can be said for the squad. It is representative territorially, comprising players all the way from the Pacific Coast to the Atlantic and reaching away down into Texas and the Gulf of Mexico.

Ouimet Is Non-Playing Captain

Francis Ouimet, the captain, will act in a non-playing capacity. The former national open and amateur champion will have the placing of a squad consisting of Johnny Goodman, amateur titleholder; Johnny Fischer, who won the championship in 1936 at Garden City when the British threat was strong; Ray Billows, runner-up to Goodman; Freddy Haas, of New Orleans; Charles Kocsis, of Detroit; Reynolds Smith, of Dallas; Marvin Ward, of Tacoma, Wash., and Charles R. Yates of Atlanta. T. Suffern Tailer, of New York, and Donald Moe, of Portland, Ore., are named as alternates.

The why and wherefores of a Walker Cup team never are discussed in the open, so golfers are left to their own reflections. Easterners who did not follow the far-off battle in Portland closely may want to know who is this Ward. He was a semi-finalist in the national, and all semi-finalists have been selected. Ward started by defeating Scotty Campbell, 1 up. He then trounced Dr. O. F. Willing, a former Walker Cup player and national runner-up, 5 and 4, came through in a twenty-one-hole match against Freddy Haas and, in the next round, won an extra-hole contest from Winfield Day, of San Gabriel, Calif. In the semi-final he was defeated by Goodman, 1 up.

Metropolitan Amateurs Overlooked

Just a streak, some may say. Why not Frankie Strafaci, who finished ninth in the national open at Oakland Hills, a truly herculean feat, and Willie Turnesa, the metropolitan amateur champion? But if the admirers of these two fine young metropolitan players perhaps feel a little bit put out, what of the followers of Wilford Wehrle, of Scotty Campbell, of Roger Kelly, the qualifying medalist, and of George Voigt, who was a semi-finalist in 1935? It seems that only a little bit of a break has been sufficient to put some in and others out. Billows, who reached the final, deserves a place, but golfers out Wisconsin way say that Wehrle, who grew up with Ray, is a better golfer. Wehrle won the Western last year and was semi-finalist in the British.

But, as the president said, it was a difficult task. Selectors cannot please every one. In pleasing themselves they have at least picked a good and serviceable team, one which will make a good impression wherever it goes. Of course, that is no reflection on some of the well thought of players who have been overlooked.

Golfers Fail to Agree on Stymie

As for the stymie, it seems that the golfers are not yet in agreement. Some tournament players of note would like to have it retained. Others wish to see it abolished. So the U. S. G. A. has agreed to a modification. A stymie laid within six inches of the cup will be lifted.

The U. S. G. A. has had the question under serious consideration for four or five years. The association can only hope that it will be satisfactory, although, as Jackson remarked, it cannot be supposed that there is a solution that will prove satisfactory to everybody.

Correspondence on the stymie question was read. This was in reply to a questionnaire sent out by the U. S. G. A. The replies were interesting and in some instances illuminating. Chick Evans, who has stymied and been stymied for thirty years of championship golf, answered:

"I like the stymie. Match play is dull without it. I think the stymie should remain in the game. It has successfully stood the test of time."

Tommy Tailer is another stymie adherent. "It is a fine shot when played properly," says the former metropolitan champion. "I feel very strongly that it is a fundamental part of the game of golf."

These questionnaires were sent to all qualifiers in the championship. Donald McPhail said he liked the self-laid stymie. Bill Holt, of Rochester, indicated that he disliked it.

Kocsis Calls for Uniformity

Charley Kocsis is for international uniformity. "Fortunately," says he, "I have never had any particular reason to dislike the stymie. It has been in my favor more times than not."

Frank Strafaci thinks elimination would result in a great deal of controversy on questions such as making and lifting the balls. He regards it as a shot in the category of a ball behind a tree, a barn or a stone fence, and declares, therefore, it is difficult for him to express a like or dislike.

Sid Richardson, Edwin C. Kingsley, Jack Westland and Glenn Oatman dislike the stymie. Among those who indicated they liked it are Johnny Goodman, Marvin (Bud) Ward and Matias D. Palacio jr.

"I like the stymie. No one is so capable as to intentionally lay a deliberate stymie. It should be considered a rub of the green. A person who plays an intentional stymie hurts himself. To perform a stymie takes a delicate shot. To play delicate shots in golf is part of the games."

These are quotations from the reply of Johnny Goodman. The champion thinks the stymie should remain in the game and cannot conceive of an adequate alternative to take its place.

Paul Leslie, who does not like the stymie, concludes thus:

"Hurrah for the fourteen-club rule. It will help keep the game one of skill, the property which was fast becoming extinct."

Leslie, however, is strongly of the opinion that the stymie is luck, and says he dislikes being beaten by a fellow who can do nothing else but lay a stymie by means of pure luck. "It takes the pep out of a fellow and the boldness out of golf," declares Paul.

14-Club Rule Found Successful

In his remarks made before he retired in favor of Archie M. Reid, of St. Andrews, Jackson touched upon many pertinent questions. The fourteen-club rule had been well received, he said.

Two championships had been held on the Pacific coast and both had proved successful both from the standpoint of public interest and the number and quality of the golfers participating.

The qualifying round in the national amateur is back to stay. It proved very successful last year when sixty-four players were allowed to qualify for the match play.

Archie Reid, who succeeded Jackson, said he had known every president of the U. S. G. A. personally. The incoming president paid a high compliment to Jackson, emphasizing his tact, sound common sense and his lovable personality. The amendment to the constitution passed at the meeting makes it possible for Jackson and other retiring presidents to retain whatever committee positions they may happen to hold after they have vacated the chair. In introducing his successor, Jackson said that Archie Reid had presented a medal commemorating John Reid, his father, and always regarded as the father of American golf. The medal will be played for in the national amateur qualifying round.

Jess Sweetser Elected Treasurer

Harold W. Pierce, of the Country Club, Brookline, moved from treasurer to vice-president. He was succeeded by Jess W. Sweetser. R. Arthur Wood, of Exmoor, was re-elected vice-president. The full slate of officers follows:

A. M. Reid, St. Andrews, president; Harold W. Pierce, Brookline, Mass., and R. Arthur Wood, Exmoor, vice-presidents; Frank M. Hardt, Merion, secretary; Jess W. Sweetser, Siwanoy, treasurer; Charles W. Littlefield, Montclair, counsel.

The executive committee consists of the above with the addition of George W. Blossom jr., of Onwentsia; Morton G. Bogue, of National; Edward L. Cheney of Cleveland; Paul P. Farrens, of Portland, Ore.; W. F. Nicholson, of Denver; Charles V. Rainwater, of Atlanta, and Thomas Telfer, Oakland, Calif.

Farrens, Nicholson, Pierce, Rainwater, Sweetser, Telfer and Wood represent the necessary seven state, sectional or district golf associations. These are the Pacific Northwest, Colorado, New England, Southern, Metropolitan, California and Western bodies.

Footnote Added to New Rule

Apparently some one already has been having trouble with the fourteen-club rule. The executive committee has added this footnote:

"A competitor is permitted to use during a round only the clubs in his bag when he started except, without unfairly delaying play (1) he may replace a club which becomes unfit for play, and (2) he may add a club or clubs up to the limit of fourteen without borrowing from an opponent or a partner or a fellow competitor."

The association made a net gain in membership during the year of twenty-one clubs. It was good business to take the national amateur to the Pacific Northwest and the public links tourney to San Francisco. Most of the membership gain was registered in those sections.

The implements and ball committee, of which George Blossom jr. is chairman, reported that it has continued to study the golf ball and has found that the present ball is satisfactory. Increase in the flight and roll would necessitate the further lengthening of courses, thus adding to the expense of upkeep.

With the assistance of the manufacturers substantial progress has been made with the preparation of specifications to standardize the ball. This, it was pointed out, is no easy matter. The committee makes tests of weight, sizes, flight and roll of the leading makes of golf balls. It was found that the leading brands came within the specifications, but that one or two of the cheaper brands were not in accordance with the rulings. Upon notification, the manufacturers of these duds removed them from the market.

End Of September Asked By Sweden For 1940 Games

A shift of the dates of the 1940 Olympic Games for one month to the latter part of September has been proposed to the Tokyo Olympic Organizing Committee in a letter received from the Swedish member of the International Olympic Committee, Mr. Edstrom, who is also president of the International Track and Field Federation.

Mr. Edstrom said that if the Games are staged according to the decision reached at the last I. O. C. meeting at Warsaw—during the latter part of August—the probability is strong that the number of contestants from Europe will be considerably small.

To Inform Nagai

The O. O. C. has decided to transmit the contents of the letter to Dr. Matsuzo Nagai, secretary-general of the O. O. C., who is now en route to Seattle on his way to attend the I. O. C. meeting at Cairo.

It will be recalled at the I. O. C. meeting last year at Warsaw, the Japanese delegates suggested the latter part of September as the most suitable time for the Games because of the intense heat in August but it was ignored after a heated controversy between the American-British delegates on the one side and those of the Continental European representatives on the other. The upshot of it was that the last week in August and the first in September were picked.

Indications are that there will be another stormy session at Cairo in March over the dates of the 1940 Games. If the proposal for postponement of one month to the latter part of September is made by the Swedish delegate, there is no doubt that it will be strongly opposed by the American delegation. The reason is that the bulk of the American team will be comprised of university students and the only time they can compete without impairing their school schedule is during the summer vacation.

Japan will support Italy at the I. O. C. meeting at Cairo if the latter applies for the organization of the 13th Olympic Games in 1944, according to Prof. Jigoro Kano, who is scheduled to leave from Yokohama on February 13 aboard the Hakozaki Maru for Singapore, where he will take a transport plane to arrive in Cairo in time for the I. O. C. session. Besides Professor Kano, the two other Japanese members of the I. O. C. are Prince Iyesato Tokugawa and Count Michimasa Soyejima.

Prior to the I. O. C. meeting in Oslo in 1934, Premier Benito Mussolini of Italy waived her claim, despite construction already started in Rome for a giant stadium, for the 1940 Games in favor of Japan because of the latter's desire to stage the 12th Olympic Games in connection with the 2,600th anniversary of the founding of the Japanese Empire. This "Bushido" spirit of the Il Duce has not been forgotten in Japan, according to Professor Kano, and the Japanese votes will go to Italy.

The decision of the 12th Olympic Games in Japan's favor at the I.O.C. meeting in Berlin in 1936 was an exception because the I. O. C. delegates could not come to a decision at their meetng at Oslo. An advance decision of six years is the general rule of the I. O. C. to allow the host city time to prepare for the games.

American Record For 3,000 Set By San Romani

By J. P. ABRAMSON

N.Y. Herald Tribune

NEW YORK, Jan. 9—In a single sensational race, three American youths combined last night in obliterating the once celebrated name of Joie Ray from the record books.

The great and chesty flier from Kankakee, Ill., once held dozens of records, world and American, and dominated the national foor racing scene from the World War to 1924. And the last of his records, his American native mark for 3,000 meters, was shattered last night in the twelfth annual Columbus Council K. of C. games that opened the new indoor track season in the 13th Regiment Armory, Brooklyn with a stunning upheaval and a virtual deadheat finish.

It wasn't Don Lash, late of Indiana, holder of the listed world indoor and outdodor two-mile records and an odds-on favorite to defend the Conklin Trophy, who broke the tape last night. Dumbfounding one and all, Archie San Romani, curly-haired cornetist from Kansas, emerged from a terrific driving finish by lunging forward a hand's span in ahead of Lash, with Joe McCluskey, N. Y. A. C. veteran, in third place, twenty yards away.

San Romani's record-breaking victory was the high light of a meet chock full of surprises and spectacular performances. Robert Rodenkirchen, Cornell freshman, cracked the world indoor record for 100 meters with a 10.7 performance; three meet records were surpassed in the 508 and 800-meter cup races and the high jump; Glenn Cunningham fell and Gene Venzke won the 800 in a meet record 1:55.

All three cracked Joie's last record of 8:31.2, set on the same flat armory floor fifteen years ago. San Romani and Lash were clocked in 8:27.4, and McCluskey in 8:30.8. Never since Paavo Nurmi's visit in 1925 was an indoor season opened in such style. And to bring Nurmi's name into the race again, San Romani's winning performance missed Nurmi's thirteen-year-old world indoor mark by one full second, no more.

The pace at the end was punishing for all, with McCluskey, gritting his teeth and leading the way through the twelfth, thirteenth and fourteenth laps. San Romani was second and Lash third going into the last mad whirl.

San Romani Sprints

Suddenly San Romani, in the red jersey of the New York Curb Exchange A. A., whipped up his marvelous sprint and shot nearly ten yards into the front, as Lash, caught flat-footed, set out in pursuit on the next to last turn.

Archie's tactics proved eminently sound. He was confident of his ability, yet few gave him much chance when Lash fled past him. San Romani, moving up on the outside in the rush for the tape as the Armory crowd roared, closed yard by yard and both shot through the tape shoulder to shoulder. Only the judges on the finish line knew who won.

San Romani's fractional times were 2:17 for the half mile, 4:35.2 for the mile, 6:56 for the mile and a half. The letdown in the third half mile cost him a world indoor mark.

Rodenkirchen Sets Mark

Rodenkirchen, of the N. Y. A. C. clipped a tenth of a second from the indoor 100-meter record with a 10.7 second performance and won the Daly trophy in the three-part sprint series. Rodenkirchen showed a fine turn of speed down the Armory midway in winning the 100-meter, last of the sprints, by a yard from Marty Glickman, Spracus Olympian. This decision gave Rodenkirchen the point trophy, although he was tied with Glickman at five points, for the Cornell freshman also won the eighty-meter dash from Glickman in 9 flat. The Syracusan was first in the sixty meters in 7 seconds flat, with Ed O'Sullivan, of the Curb Exchange, beating Rodenkirchen for second place.

The 100-meter time, caught by all three clockers, Colonel Charles J. Dieges, Mortimer Bishop and Dr. Joseph A. Viverito, eclipsed the 10.3 mark that Bob McAllister, the flying cop, set in 1927. The 10.6 clocking of Herb Weast, of Columbia, a year ago, never received official approval.

Where Lash failed in his cup defense, Jimmy Herbert, making his varsity debut in a New York University uniform, raced to a two-yard victory in the Columbus 500-meter fixture, retaining the Bishop Molloy Trophy and cracking his own meet record by a second and a tenth. Herbert was clocked in 1 minute 5.5 seconds, missing the indoor record by half a second.

The 800-meter test for the Grand Knight Trophy dropped a bombshell into the track inaugural. Glenn Cunningham, the master, seeking his fourth straight victory in the event, stepped on the rail on the last turn and fell head over heels in a somersault, while his rival of a hundred races, Gene Venzke, of the N.Y.A.C., went on to a decisive and surprising four-yard triumph. He cracked Cunningham's meet record by a fifth of a second with a creditable 1:55.

Howie Borck, Manhattan's 1:50.4 half-miler of last season, primed to upset Cunningham, set a fast pace from the gun, with Cunningham working his way from fifth to third in the first quarter. Venzke was lost in the shuffle. Veteran of nine years of top flight racing, he was ignored as a contender among the fast youngsters entered. Entering the third lap, Venzke pushed to the front from nowhere and once again the picture runner was striding stylishly in front. He stayed there.

Borck challenged on the back stretch and passed Venzke for a few strides, but Gene fought him off and held his rail position in the lead. Cunningham was pocketed behind the two of them. He outsmarted himself, for he hugged the rail, believing he could sneak through an opening on the last turn. Instead Glenn misjudged the board curb and went sprawling.

Lash, returning to the track two hours later, could make little perceptible dent in a 1,000-yard handicap, in which he started from scratch behind a mob of twenty-five that jammed the raceway. He ran sixteenth as Andy Neidnig, Manhattan freshman, off the 45-yard mark, won in 2:14.

Toyohara Skiers Win 40 K. Relay In National Meet

The Toyohara Ski Federation registered a major surprise Tuesday in the opening day of the 16th annual skiing championships at the course of the outer garden of the Sapporo Shrine in Sapporo by taking the 40 kilometer relay race. Last year's winner, the Aomori Rinyu contingent was second, Waseda, third, and the Sapporo Railway Bureau representatives, fourth, out of a field of 12 teams.

The winner's time was 3 hours 37 minutes 14 seconds, as follows: Sato, 55 minutes 15 seconds; Ito, 55 minutes 50 seconds, Endo, 54 minutes 29 seconds and Kuwabara, 51 minutes 40 seconds.

The times of the next seven finishing teams were: second, Aomori Rinyu, 3 hours 44 minutes 2 seconds; third, Waseda, 3 hours 46 minutes 40 seconds; fourth, Sapporo Railway Bureau, 3 hours 47 minutes 13 seconds; fifth, Akita Rinyu Club, 3 hours 51 minutes 16 seconds; sixth, Otaru Commercial School, 3 hours 54 minutes 8 seconds; seventh, Gosho Kawanara Agricultural School, 3 hours 56 minutes 21 seconds; eighth, Hokkaido Commercial School, 3 hours 57 minutes 23 seconds.

Interest is at a high pitch because the meet is regarded as a prelude to the Fifth Winter Olympic Games which are scheduled to be held at Sapporo.

Delegates Vote To Ban Spiked Shoes On Grass

By AL LANEY

N.Y. Herald Tribune

NEW YORK, Jan. 9—The Eastern Lawn Tennis Association held its annual meeting at the Vanderbilt yesterday with a room full of delegates in attendance and conducted its business in an atmosphere of calm in which all controversial matters were either disposed of amicably or left off the agenda altogether.

The meeting, nevertheless, managed to use up three hours of the delegates' time, after which its representatives to the meeting of the U. S. L. T. A. in Miami Beach next Saturday were sent forth properly instructed in accord with the call for the gathering of the parent body.

Officers Re-elected

The officers who served the association during 1937 were all re-elected unanimously for another term, the reports of a dozen or so committees were heard and several minor amendments to the constitution were adopted. The more interesting matter of the awarding of tournaments this year, which promises to be a fat one in entries and receipts, was referred to the schedule committee, with power to act on applications.

The officers holding over are: Maskell E. Fox, president; Frederick L. Pond, first vice-president; William Aydelotte second vice-president; Hugh P. Shilstone, secretary, and Anton F. von Bernuth, treasurer.

It was a routine and rather somnolent meeting until the time came for action on that portion of the nation association's call which had to do with the rule on spiked shoes of grass courts, whereupon ensued a half-hour discussion which produced considerable animation and some dissension. The delegates, no doubt, disappointed because the open tournament refused to rear its ugly head, threw themselves into the argument over spikes with a will.

The national association has asked its members to be prepared to vote next Saturday on an amendment to its constitution prohibiting the use of spikes except under conditions which the particular tournament referee deems to warrant them. At present the matter is left to the discretion of the player alone. It is not a new controversy. It has occupied the attention of the Eastern association and the national since spikes were first prohibited more than ten years ago.

Washburn Wants Spikes

The forces in favor of giving spikes back to the boys were led by Watson Washburn, himself an old spike wearer of many years experience, and those against, by Walter Pate, the captain of the successful Davis Cup team of last year, Pate's side won and since he had on it Holcomb Ward, president of the national association, it is presumed that the amendment will carry when it comes up at Miami Beach.

That will be disappointing news for a lot of tennis players who believe spikes essential to their success but grounds keepers and tournament committees along the Eastern seaboard will greet the vote with cheers. It will make no difference whatever to such players as Donald Budge and Gottfried von Cramm, who never wear spikes anyhow and still manage to do rather well.

The Eastern association instructed its delegates to vote for the amendments and it would be strange if the national body did not vote the same way since most of its votes are in the East.

The ranking committee submitted its Eastern lists and since they included no man ranked in the first ten of the nation and only one or two in the women's, there was no discussion. J. Gilbert Hall, ranked No. 17 nationally, was moved to the top of the men's list and Mrs. Dorothy Andrus headed the women's. Joseph Fishbach, who won the national indoor junior title last week, heads the junior list and is placed at No. 9 on the men's.

Danish Mermaids Clip 23.1 Seconds Off 400 M. Relay Record

A Danish women's quartet set a new world's record for the 400 meters relay Wednesday at the swimming meet at Copenhagen by negotiating the distance in 4 minutes 9.7 seconds, according to a Domei dispatch.

It clipped 23.1 seconds off the time in the record books of 4 minutes 32.8 seconds set by the Dutch girls team of the Misses J. Selbach, R. Mastenbroek, T. Wagner and W. Den Ouden on May 23, 1936 at Amsterdam.

U.S.L.T.A. Bars Payment Of Lump Sums To Athletes

N.Y. Times

MIAMI BEACH, Fla., Jan. 15—The United States Lawn Tennis Association moved today to curb excessive payments to amateurs under the heading of traveling expenses, a practice Chairman Louis J. Carruthers of the amateur rule committee said had led to numerous abuses.

The association at its one-day meeting re-elected President Holcombe Ward of New York and other officers. It approved a committee report awarding the 1938 Davs Cup challenge round to the Germantown Cricket Club of Philadelphia and appropriated $11,641 for junior Davis Cup teams and other junior development.

The new rule on traveling expenses prohibits lump sum or round figure payments to amateurs and provides that "such payments shall cover only expenses actually incurred."

Clubs or sub-associations are required to submit detailed reports of payments for traveling and living expenses of players within ten days after tournaments or exhibitions.

Imposition of penalties on offenders was made mandatory instead of optional as at present.

Carruthers said in an interview that in numerous instances lump sum payments to amateurs for traveling expenses to and from tournaments were considerably in excess of actual transportation cost and left players tidy profits.

"We want the player to receive all he has to spend for actual expenses but we don't want him to make a profit," said Carruthers.

"We have noted instances where players doubled up, receiving payments for two-way transportation from some distant point for each of two or more tournaments held in the same locality on succeeding dates."

The curb on traveling expenses, he declared, eliminates one of the chief sources by which an amateur may receive payment for participation in a tournament.

Discussion Is Spirited

An amendment to tournament regulations prohibiting use of spikes on grass courts except when a tournament referee decides ground conditions justify them was adopted by a close vote after spirited discussion.

Recommendations of the national ranking committee again giving J. Donald Budge of Oakland, Calif., No. 1 position was approved. Minor changes were made only in girls' national singles rankings in the lower division.

The executive committee of the association barred six amateurs who took part in an open tennis tournament at White Sulphur Springs, W. Va., last October 13, from participation in events played under the association's auspices.

Players listed were Bryne Bauer, White Sulphur Springs; Robert A. Papps, Milwaukee; Hugh Miller, Charleston, W. Va.; Robert P. Parker, White Sulphur Springs; Gordon Riath, Waterbury, Conn., and Merlynn P. Stevens, Milwaukee.

A Lengthy Debate

The association declined to go on record in favor of a move to have the International Lawn Tennis Federation specifically empower national associations to conduct at least one tournament annually open to both amateurs and professionals, but agreed to support elimination of a federation rule specifically prohibiting such tournaments.

Speakers during a lengthy debate said in view of the association's opposition to open tournaments the furthest it should go should be in supporting elimination of the prohibitory clause, leaving the question to the discretion of each national association.

The action was in the form of a resolution of instructions to the U. S. L. T. A. delegate to the international federation meeting in Paris March 18, when the All-India Federation's motion to permit open tournaments will be acted upon.

The resolution specified that the association's action should not be construed as approval of open tournaments or an indication that they would be permitted by the U. S. L. T. A., "but shall be taken solely as an expression of the right to hold such an event or events which was vested in the various national associations" prior to adoption of the prohibitory rule in 1934.

N.C.A.A. Help For Olympics Fund Is Sought

By J. P. ABRAMSON

N.Y. Herald Tribune

NEW YORK, Jan. 9—The National Collegiate Athletic Association, now accorded equal representation with other governing bodies on Olympic sport committees, should accept equal responsibility in the raising of Olympic funds, the executive committee of the American Olympic Association was told yesterday during its all-day session at the New York A. C.

Leon M. Schoonmaker, representing the Amateur Fencers League of America, which has yielded parity to the N. C. A. A. on the fencing committee, made this suggestion, and the sentiment was generally approved during the discussion that ensued behind closed doors, it was reported. The N. C. A. A. raised approximately $50,000 in 1936, it was stated, and promises a minimum of $100,000 in 1940.

Avery Brundage, of Chicago, president of the A. O. A., estimated that $400,000 would be required to finance the American team in the 1940 Olympics at Tokyo. This is $50,000 more than the estimated cost of America's participation in the Berlin Olympics. Japan's undeclared war was not mentioned in the discussion of 1940 Olympic plans.

Anniversary Fund Planned

Judge Samuel E. Hopt, president of the Amateur Athletic Union, reported that his organization would raise a special Olympic fund of $50,000 in commemoration of the fiftieth anniversary of the A. A. U., which will be celebrated this year.

Gustavus T. Kirby, Olympic treasurer, reported a balance of $35,741.92 in the American Olympic Committee account and a balance of $29,137 in the A. O. A. account. Of the A. O. C. sum, $5,000 was voted for pro-rata distribution to the canoe, fencing, gymnastics, pistol shooting, women's track and field and field hockey teams which paid part of their expenses to the 1936 Olympics.

Most of the routine work accomplished at the executive session consisted of the approval of recently named Olympic sport committees. Two of the twenty-seven committees were not approved. Sanction of the ice hockey committee was deferred pending an effort to clean up the irregularities in amateur hockey, where colleges play with outlaw and professional teams. The presidents of the N. C. A. A. and the A. A. U., Professor William Owens, of Stanford, and Judge Samuel E. Hoyt, of New Haven, were instructed to consult each member of the projected hockey committee with an eye toward settling the perennial problem.

Water Polo Committee Out

The water polo committee was discarded altogether as unconstitutional, since water polo activities come under the jurisdiction of the swimming committee.

Virtually all committee nominees were approved. One peculiar exception was failure to approve Charles L. Diehm, of New York, former vice-president of the Metropolitan A. A. U., because Major Patrick J. Walsh, Metropolitan president, made a plea to substitute Patrick J. Kelly, local boxing chairman.

In accordance with A. O. A. rules, Brundage nominated one additional member to most committees. His choices were, Men's track and field, A. C. Gilbert, New Haven; canoeing, Owen Van Camp, Chicago; speed skating, W. P. Hodous; figure skating, Harry E. Radix, Chicago; skiing, Roger Langley, Barre, Mass.; equestrian sports, Kirby; gymnastics, Roy E. Moore, New York; fencing, Kirby; men's swimming, Robert J. H. Kiphuth, Yale; basketball, Dr. John Brown jr., New York.

Since some of these appointees had already been delegated by governing bodies, the following committee additions were approved; Canoeing, George J. Ryan, Newark; skiing (three auxiliary members), William C. McCarter, Dartmouth; Carl V. Kilgore, Washington, and Paul Sweet, New Hampshire; equestrian sports and modern pentathlon, the Chief of Cavalry of the United States Army; gymnastics, Jerry Hardie, New York, and C. Albert Beling, Newark; men's swimming, Edward J. Kennedy, Columbia, and Professor Thomas J. Cureton jr., Springfield, auxiliary member.

The recommendation that women be appointed managers of all women's teams was approved by the executive committee.

The United States Cavalry Association was elected to Group B membership, which carries with it one delegate and ten votes. The United States Amateur Baseball Congress and the N. C. A. A. were authorized to appoint a committee since baseball will be a demonstration sport on the Tokyo program.

Thirty of the thirty-seven members of the executive committee were present.

Hungarians Vanquish Japanese Table Tennis Team, 5-0, At Osaka

Miklos Szabados and Stefan Kelan, the visiting Hungarian table tennis experts of world fame, scored a 5 to 0 victory over a Japanese contingent in their second appearance at Osaka Wednesday night at the Asahi Kaikan.

The results were:

Szabados defeated Watanabe, 21-17, 22-20, 21-9.

Kelan defeated Kohama, 21-17, 21-14, 21-10.

Szabados and Kelan defeated Watanabe and Kuroda, 21-18, 21-15, 23-25, 21-16.

Kelan defeated Kawakami, 22-20, 21-14, 19-21, 16-21, 21-17.

Szabados defeated Fujimura, 21-19, 21-16, 19-21, 21-17.

The Hungarians will make their final appearance tonight at Kyoto. They are scheduled to leave Kobe on February 13 for South Africa.

Rutgers Mermen Defeat Columbia

N.Y. Herald Tribune

NEW YORK, Jan. 9—Justin Callahan, Columbia University breast stroke star, set a Columbia pool record for 200 yards yesterday afternoon as the Light Blue swimming team bowed to strong Rutgers, 49 to 26. It was the first meet of the season for both squads and the Scarlet won six firsts in the nine events. Jim Reilly jr., son of the Rutgers coach, won two events, the 100-yard free style and the 220-yard free style.

Callahan, brother of Parnell Callahan, former intercollegiate breast stroke champion, stroked to an easy victory in 2:30.5, remarkably fast time and much better than Callahan's former Columbia tank mark of 2:31.2, set last year. It was the best ever made here for the distance.

Reilly took the century in 0:54.6 from Columbia's Jack Thompson and Kenneth MacWhinney, of Rutgers, and the furlong in 2:23.9 from Bill Kirk, of Rutgers, and Frank Brown, of Columbia.

The summaries:

100 yard free style—Won by Jamse Reilly, Rutgers; Jack Thompson, Columbia, second; Kenneth MacWhinney, Rutgers, third. Time 0:54.6.

150-yard back stroke—Won by Tom Finnerty, Columbia; Frank Pare, tgers, second; Alston Jennings, Columbia, third. Time, 1:47.6.

200-yard breast stroke—Won by Justin Callahan, Columbia; Allan Temko, Rutgers, second; George Christiansen, Rutgers, third. Time 2:30.5.

440-yard free style—Won by William Kirk, Rutgers; Murray Poltras, Columbia, second; Steven Stavers, Columbia, third. Time 5:191.

50-yard free style—Won by Stanley Rose, Rutgers; John Lakamp, Rutgers, second; Jennings, Columbia, third. Time, 0:24.6.

220-yard free style—Won by Reilly, Rutgers; Kirk, Rutgers, second; second; Frank Brown, Columbia third. Time, 2:23.9.

Fancy dive—Won by Kenneth Deith, Rutgers (93.33 points); Robert Steadman, Rutgers (71.27), second; Harold Hitwell, Columbia (70.50), third.

400-yard relay—Won by Rutgers (James Barnes, Lakamp, Rose, MacWhinney); Columbia (Reville Fox, Victor Bary, Joss Thompson), second. Time, 3:43.3.

Tatsuta Captures Downhill Skiing Race At Sapporo

Hozo Tatsuta of Waseda won the men's downhill ski race over a 3,800 meter course in the suburbs of Sapporo Wednesday in the second day's competition of the national skiing championships in 5 minutes 10.8 seconds. Nobutoshi Nakagawa of the Sapporo Railway Bureau was second in 5 minutes 16 seconds and Masatoshi Suzuki of Tomariori third in 5 minutes 20.8 seconds.

Two sisters, Kiyoye Suetake and Sumiye Suetake of the Otaru Club placed first and second respectively in the downhill ski race for women in times of 5 minutes 59.2 seconds and 6 minutes 33.2 seconds. Third was Miss Masako Naito of Asahigawa in 6 minutes 56.4 seconds.

With a heavy snowfall from the night previous, the condition of the course proved a handicap to the 160 contestants.

Those finishing within the first ten were:

Men: fourth, Tetsuya Kojima (Hoppane) 5 minutes 22 seconds; fifth, Seio Yutsuki (Waseda) 5 minutes 24.6 seconds; sixth, Tadashi Nozaki (Waseda), 5 minutes 24.8 seconds; seventh, Shoichi Tennai (Owani Club) 5 minutes 26.2 seconds; eighth, Kiyoshi Tamura (Yuzawa) 5 minutes 30.8 seconds; ninth, Susumu Narita (Karukawa) 5 minutes 33.2 seconds; tenth, Tadashi Katagiri (Nagano Club) 5 minutes 35.6 seconds.

Women: fourth, Shizuko Nanaoka (Odate) 6 minutes 59 seconds; fifth, Reiko Minami (Otaru) 7 minutes 5.6 seconds; sixth, Keiko Sato (Asahigawa) 7 minutes 9.6 seconds; seventh, Haruko Sato (Nayoro) 7 minutes 17 seconds; eighth, Shizuko Kawanishi (Asahigawa), 7 minutes 21.6 seconds; ninth, Kiwa Anabuki (Nayoro) 7 minutes 26 seconds; tenth, Tamiko Matsunobu (Otaru Club) 7 minutes 26.3 seconds.

Tatsuta led in the downhill competition of the combined downhill and slalom races with 310.8 points, one point being figured on the basis of one second. Miss Kiyoye Suetake led in the women's division with 359.2 points.

The Wonder Horse

Kranich was the property of Count Anthon Gunther of Oldenburg (1583-1667), stable master and host of the Holy Roman Empire. The horse was given to the count by a band of counterfeiters whom he surprised one night at work in a haunted castle. In exchange, the count granted immunity to all counterfeiters within the state of Oldenburg for a hundred years. Kranich's mane, 16½ feet long, is now preserved in Oldenburg, Germany; the tail, 20½ feet long, is in Copenhagen, Denmark.

Lash Wins 2-Mile Race In Circular Track In N.Y. Indoor Meet

By ARTHUR J. DALEY

N.Y. Times

NEW YORK, Jan. 16—That running phenomenon from Indiana, Don Lash, turned in another of his magnificent performances last night as the Hoosier Iron Man ripped off a 9:11 two miles on the flat 165th Regiment Armory floor at the annual indoor track and field games of the Sixty-ninth Regiment A. A. A. capacity crowd of 3,500 attended.

Lash made no records, because a record of any sort was beyond human reach. The circular track was as much a record vehicle as a merry-go-round would have been. Yet the Indiana post-graduate turned in one of the best of all American two miles, certainly within the best dozen.

The Joyce Kilmer two-mile run was not to have served for a mark-shattering try. Rather, Lash intended taking a whirl at either Archie San Romani's new native American figures of 8:27.4 or Paavo Nurmi's world standard of 8:26.4, both at the intermediate 3,000-meter distance. He came close to neither.

Runner-Up Is Surprised

The metric clocking of the husky blond holder of the two-mile figures was 8:33.6, well off the target. That he did as well as that surprised many, including the runner-up, Joe McCluskey. Before the race Fordham Joe said: "Don won't break 8:40 on this track."

The New York A. C. veteran is a pretty shrewd judge of pace and conditions. That Lash went even faster was further token of the worth of the Hoosier's achievement. The track has no long straightaway from making up lost ertiory and recouping ground in one fell swoop.

As it was, Lash had to run almost the full distance leaning over to fight off the demands of gravity and centrifugal force. He had no room for plowing straight ahead. If nothing else, his feat was a record of some sort for that type of track.

The Hoosier did wear spikes, but that helped him not a whit. He had them filed down to pinlike substance, hardly enough to count. None of the others bothered with spikes, but used their regular flat shoes.

Indiana Don Takes Command

Lash set a murderous pace in the beginning and for half a mile waged a cat-and-dog fight with McCluskey. The lead whipped back and forth every half lap until Indiana Don took command after four of the twenty laps. The first half mile was travedsed in 2:05, which gives some idea of the killing gait.

After that, though, the Iron Man settled down to a more sensible speed as his next halves were covered in 2:21, 2:20.6 and 2:34.4. But the first 880 was responsible for the slowness of the last one.

It was in that final drive that McCluskey, once as far back as seventy yards, really began to make some inroads on the Lash lead. He kept climbing steadily until he was only fifteen yards back at the wire, Eino Pentti was lapped by both and J. Errol Vaughn, the only other starter, quit at the halfway mark.

In another feature, Glenn Cunningham turned in one more of his exceptionally workmanlike jobs in winning the Governor's Thousand and a leg on the Governor Lehman Trophy with a sizzling 2:14.6 effort.

Sets Fast Early Pace

This was a test where the great Kansan refused to be panicked by a fast early pace that was set by Joe Funston of Philadelphia and ran his own race. He surged into the lead after three and a half laps and it was his property the rest of the way.

But before Cunningham took complete control, Howie Borck of Manhattan made one magnificent challenge. He came charging up to the shoulder of the Curb Exchange flier just before the start of the final lap. He never quite made it.

The Jayhawk Juggernaut beat back that bid with a responding kick and then he was off by himself. And Borck ran into difficulties of his own when Frank Slater of Fordham collared him on the last turn and just edged him out for second place, some ten yards behind Cunningham. Funston was distanced, as the two in second and third places did 2:16. The Cunningham quarter was 0:59.4 and the half 2:00.2.

The most promising middle-distance runner of the younger crop, Wesley Wallace, Fordham sophomore, scored a smashing victory in the Father Duffy Memorial 600 in the sparkling time of 1:14.6.

Takes Five-Yard Lead

The Ram ace, moving from third to first in the space of twenty yards three laps from the wire, was never headed thereafter. He slipped away to a full five-yard advantage and let the others battle as they would for the contending places.

None of them could come close. Eddie Brown of the New York A. C. was second until about a foot from the worsted, when Edgar Stripling of New York U. let go with one of his wild-and-wooly finishes to nail the silver medal. Wilbur Kolb of Prudential was fourth, fairly well back with the Violet star eight yards in back of his Maroon rival.

Japanese Delegates To I.A.A.A. Meeting At London Reach N.Y.

By The Domei Tsushin Sha

NEW YORK, Feb. 10—En route to London to attend the 14th plenary session of the International Amateur Athletic Association, Dr. Tosaku Kinoshita and Tadashi Mitsufuji, delegates of the Japanese Amateur Athletic Federation, arrived at the Pennsylvania Station here at 7:30 this morning. They were greeted by Ichiro Sawada, New York attache of the Japanese Olympic Association.

The Japanese delegates later lunched at the Empire State Club with William Ferris, secretary of the American Amateur Athletic Union.

The I.A.A.A. is scheduled to convene February 28.

Hubbell Receives Boost In Salary; To Get $22,000

By RUD RENNIE

N.Y. Herald Tribune

NEW YORK, Jan. 16—Carl Hubbell, the tall, quiet, unassuming left-hander who has won at least twenty games every season for the New York Giants for the last five years, is first among the New York players to come through with his signed contract.

Hubbell's contract was received yesterday. He never causes the club any trouble. He usually is among the first to sign. No mention was made of Carl's salary. He received a rise in pay and obviously he is satisfied with the amount. An unofficial estimate is $22,000.

This will be Hubbell's eleventh year with the Giants. And it is interesting to note that his last two seasons with the team have been his best as far as games won and lost are concerned. He won twenty-six and lost six in 1936. Last year, he won twenty-two and lost eight. In both these years he was the league's leading percentage pitcher.

Helped Win Three Pennants

Scouted by the late John McGraw and purchased from the Beaumont Club of the Texas League in the middle of 1928, Hub made good immediately. In his time with the Giants he has won 192 games, lost them and lost 102. He has fanned 1,256 batsmen. He has done some great pitching for the Giants. He helped them win three pennants and one series. In the World Series of 1937 he was the only Giant pitcher who beat the powerful Yankees.

Closing the 1936 season with sixteen consecutive victories, Hubbell started off last year and won his first eight in a row for an interesting total of twenty-four consecutive league victories.

Leader in Strike-Outs

Hubbell led the league in strikeouts last year with 159. He was ninth in pitching efficiency with an earned run average of 3.19, but first in the esteem of the fans. He is one player who treats victory and defeat alike.

The St. Louis Cardinals also will operate a baseball school for youngsters this spring. Branch Rickey will be headmaster and his instructors will be Frank Frisch, manager of the Cardinals, Ray Blades and Burt Shotten.

While primarily for selected players in the Cardinal organization, the school will welcome a limited number of other players, coaches and managers with or without professional experience. The school will be in operation from February 21 to March 19 in Bradenton, Fla.

Mungo Not Worried

ORLANDO, Fla., Jan. 15—Van Lingle Mungo, Brooklyn's temperamental fireball artist, took time out today to announce he "ain't worrying" about his future connections.

Reports of a brewing Cubs-Dodger deal for the Flatbush Fumblers' mound ace notwithstanding, Mungo shifted a hefty quid of tobacco to one side of his mouth and remarked:

"I'll probably end up again this year with Brooklyn."

"I'm not particular about whose club I play for," he continued. "It doesn't make much difference so long as they come through with a satisfactory contract. I can play ball anywhere."

Mungo, who toiled under a $15,000 contract last season, declined to say if this figure would be satisfactory for 1938, but avowed he "wouldn't take a cut, anyway."

Mungo was reluctant to discuss his differences last year with Burleigh Grimes, Dodger manager.

Grimes, however, cornered out on his farm near New Haven, Mo., exhibited no such hesitancy

"In my opinion, Van Lingle Mungo is a better pitcher than Dizzy Dean," he said

The Flatbush pilot denied he wished to get rid of Mungo.

"If we don't trade Van," he continued, "he'll pitch for us, all right, and win."

Mungo expressed virtually the same sentiment, with a qualification.

"The club will have to come through for me. If it does, you can bet I'll come through for it."

Vande Weghe Sets New Collegiate Swimming Mark

N.Y. Herald Tribune

PRINCETON, N. J., Jan. 15—Scoring in every period, a Harvard sextet defeated Princeton, 3 to 2, for its fifth victory of the season and its second in I. I. I. H. L. competition tonight. Two thousand spectators jammed Baker Rink and saw one of the roughest games on record here.

Austin Harding, second-line wing and the Cantab's high scorer of the current season, scored the first and winning goals and assisted Ralph Pope to the second by way of making the affair a personal triumph. He shared honors with the Cambridge defense men, who effectively turned back a succession of Princeton drives.

Only Captain Burke's hard-riding penalty shot halfway through the second period averted a shutout for the Tigers who consistently failed to click as a unit.

The winning goal came at 5:20 of the final chapter, when Harding came up fast, took a set-up pass from Roberts and beat Nicoll, goalie, to the left-hand corner of the cage. Barnicle later came back and made it 3 to 2, insuring the Tigers their fourth straight defeat by one goal.

Seven penalties were handed out, and the spectators were howling for more when Bengal Doug Cochrane and Fred Cutter came to blows near the end.

Vande Weghe Sets Mark

Princeton athletic team got off to a running start in the afternoon events, sweeping four contests.

The strong Nassau swimming team crushed Columbia, 51 to 24, as Al Vande Weghe, sophomore Olympic star, set an intercollegiate record of 1:36.4 in winning the 150-yard back stroke.

The freshmen natators followed the lead of the varsity with a 50-to-13 route of Peddie; the junior varsity wrestlers scored, 25 to 8, over Brooklyn Polytechnic Institute Jayvees, and the freshman hockey team upset Gilman, 6 to 2.

Vande Weghe's performance was something of a surprise to the onlookers, who looked for record-shattering from another quarter, the 300-yard medley relay. But the tall, slim secretary of his class contented himself with picking up a three-quarter-length lead in the latter event, won by Princeton in the fair time of 3:00, before his ridiculously easy conquest at the longer distance.

Consolation for the Light Blue was embodied in the person of co-Captain Alston Jennings, of Columbia, whose first in the 50-yard free style and second in the 100 netted eight points. Princeton annexed seven firsts and five seconds to two and four, respectively, for Columbia.

Vande Weghe's 1:36.4 bettered the old mark of 1:36.7 created by Tom Munzie, of the University of Michigan, last February. As a freshman, the flying Dutchman turned in 1:36.2, but freshman performances are not eligible for intercollegiate records.

Four Finish Bunched

The fifty-yard free style, won by Jennings, presented a picture finish among the four men. The judges ranked Bill Shand and Hank Van Oss, of Princeton, second and third, with Reville Fox, of Columbia, fourth. The time was 0:24.9. It was the fifth straight victory for the undefeated Tigers.

The Freshmen skaters outclassed their rivals from the outset, rolling up a 4-to-1 margin after two periods, with Dick Poole's two goals leading the way. The defeat of Brooklyn Poly's Jayvees was their fifth straight on the mat, and the opener for Princeton. The freshman swimmers won seven events and lost the 200-yard relay on a disqualification.

The summaries:

Swimming

300-yard medley relay—Won by Princeton (Vande Weghe, Hough, Moeller); Columbia (Finnerty, Callahan, Joss), second. Time, 3:00.

220-yard free style—Won by Simpson, Princeton; Thompson, Columbia, second; Poitras, Columbia, third. Time, 2:20.3.

50-yard free style—Won by Jennings, Columbia; Shand, Princeton, second; Van Oss, Princeton, third. Time, 0:24.9.

Diving—Won by Cranston, Princeton, 110.88 points; Kelley, Princeton, 89.55, second; Hipwell, Columbia, 87.77, third.

100-yard free style—Won by Van Oss, Princeton; Jennings, Columbia, second; Harper, Princeton, third. Time 0:55.3.

150-yard back stroke—Won by Vande Weghe, Princeton; Torrington, Princeton, second; Finnerty, Columbia, third. Time, 1:36.4 (national intercollegiate record and pool record; old record 1:36.7).

200-yard breast stroke—Won by Hough, Princeton; McCarter, Princeton, second; Kuh, Columbia, third. Time, 2:27.

440-yard free style—Won by Callahan, Columbia; Binns, Princeton, second; Stavers, Columbia, third. Time, 5:11.3.

Penn Turns Back Navy By 47 To 36

N.Y. Times

PHILADELPHIA, Jan. 15—Although Captain Alan McFarland scored eighteen points, the Navy lost its first game of the season to Pennsylvania at the Palestra tonight, 47 to 36, before 7,000 spectators.

McFarland, former Penn Charter School athlete, racked up eight field goals, while Captain Bob Dougherty of the Red and Blue was runner-up with seven field goals. Roy Menzel, veteran center, also played a prominent part in Penn's first home victory, caging six field goals and two fouls.

The Navy with its long pass plays gave Penn considerable trouble in the first half, but wilted after that. The home team led, 18 to 17, at the intermission.

After Lynch opened with a foul for the Navy, Penn pulled away to a 5-1 lead on field goals by Dougherty and Menzel and a foul throw by Kozloff.

Midway in the half Penn held a 15-10 lead, but the defense of both teams tightened and neither scored for six minutes. Chesquiere relieved Lynch at center and the Middies spurted to assume a 17-16 lead. Gustafson then put Penn ahead with a field goal.

Four minutes elapsed in the second half before Dougherty netted a field goal, but McFarland matched it for the Middies. Mischo and Dougherty boosted Penn's lead to 25-9 and McFarland got two more field goals. Then Penn went on a scoring spurt and never again was threatened

Tadano Wins Ski Endurance Race For Second Year

Hiroshi Tadano of the Sapporo Railway Bureau came from behind to defeat Tomio Kuwabara of Karafuto to defend his title as national champion in the endurance ski event in the 16th annual national ski championships Thursday in Sapporo. His time over a course of 43 kilometers was 4 hours 16 minutes 20 seconds.

Second was Kuwabara who had a 5-minute lead over Tadano up to a point 12 to 13 kilometers from the goal. At this juncture of the race, Tadano unleashed a great spurt and within 10 kilometers was in the lead. A total of 45 contestants participated in the event. Student skiers never had a chance.

Conditions were ideal for the race. The temperature was 21.2 degrees Fahrenheit with a clear sun shining. There was an added 10 centimeters of snow on the course to facilitate the progress of the contestants.

The results were:

1.—Hiroshi Tadano (Sapporo Railway Bureau), time 4 hours 16 minutes 20 seconds; 2.—Tomio Kuwabara (Karafuto), 4 hours 18 minutes 3 seconds; 3.—Ginzo Yamada (Sunakawa), 4 hours 21 minutes 42 seconds; 4—Tsutomu Sekido (Sapporo Railway Bureau), 4 hours 26 minutes 19 seconds; 5.—Kinsaku Yamada (Akita) 4 hours 30 minutes 4 seconds; 6.—Tameo Sato (Karafuto) 4 hours 34 minutes 20 seconds; 7.—Shigenari Mihei (Sapporo Railway Bureau) 4 hours 34 minutes 44 seconds; 8.—Naomasa Nihei (Fukuoka Railway Bureau) 4 hours 35 minutes 14 seconds; 9.—Kyoji Endo (Karafuto) 4 hours 35 minutes 31 seconds; 10.—Kichigoro Murakami (Akita) 4 hours 36 minutes 18 seconds.

Rikkyo Routs Meiji At Ice Hockey, 11-4

Rikkyo walloped Meiji by 11 goals to 4 Thursday night at the Shibaura skating rink in their second annual ice hockey clash.

Meiji centered its defense on checking the brilliant passing work of Koyanagi and Sunada. In this, it, there was a certain amount of success in the first two periods but not in the third when the Rikkyo skaters proved too fast for the Meiji defense.

The scores by periods were: Rikkyo—3-2-6 and Meiji—1-2-1.

The line-ups were: Rikkyo: Tanaka, Omura, Sunada, Goto, Koyanagi and Saito, forwards; Ohashi and Tani, defense; Yamamoto and Miyake, goalie; Meiji: Taguchi, Yezoi, Tamura, Fukumoto, Ogino and Nakamura, forwards; Mitsuhata and Hirabayashi, defense; and Kudo, goalie.

"BELIEVE IT OR NOT"---by Ripley

The Smallest Country in the World

One of the strangest international curiosities is the tiny German independent state, known under the name of the German Hospice, which is situated between the territories of Vatican City and Rome, Italy. It is composed of a few buildings clustering around the German Church of Santa Maria del l'Anima and is inhabited by members of the German Catholic clergy and laity.

The history of this territory goes back to St. Helena, mother of Emperor Constantine. St. Helena brought back with her from Jerusalem, a mass of earth from the original Calvary, the site of Jesus' Crucifixion. The earth was deposited on the spot where the German Hospice is situated today. The independence of this tiny State is guaranteed by the Vatican State, Italy and Germany.

Jake Ruppert Now Target Of Demands For Bigger Salaries By Yankees

By DAVIS J. WALSH
International News Service Sports Editor

NEW YORK, Jan.—(INS)—This outburst might be entitled, "The Tale of Two Headlines," but if you don't happen to fancy that, suppose we just make it One Headache and simplify everything. It will amount to that in the end, anyhow, with Col. Jake Ruppert, the testy, irascible old brew-master who owns the New York Yankees, being subjected to his annual attack of salary-gout, during which his rubicund countenance slowly deepens with indignation into something very nifty in bird's-eye maple and there are dark spots before his fevered gaze.

Only, of course, these symptoms are expected to become greatly aggravated this time. Last year, for instance, the Yankees had the highest payroll in the history of baseball. And this year, it simply must and will be higher.

First, though, suppose we tell about those headlines, seemingly innocuous in themselves, but harbingers of the Big Headache yet to come. One said, "Henrich Demands $10,000;" the other, "Di Maggio Secretly signed." Neither was exactly true, which is one of the things that already is preying upon the Colonel's mind. Henrich isn't "demanding" $10,000, but he'll probably have to be given very close to that for his second year in the major leagues.

As for Di Maggio, he should ask for $30,000 and should get $25,000. As for Gehrig, he'll probably ask for $50,000 all over again, hope for $40,000 and may wind up taking his same $36,000—which doesn't come under the head of the more difficult things to take. There was, for example, the man in Bryant Park who took laudanum but, anyhow, there are other problems facing the Colonel in the persons of his Mr. Gomez, his Mr. Ruffing and his Mr. Dickey.

The latter got $18,000 last year and, on comparative values, must get more. Mr. Gomez took a five thousand dollar cut, down to $15,000 last year, and simply must come all the way back and even further, since that's what he did in the pitching records of 1937.

As for Mr. Ruffing, he got pushed all the way around on a bicker over salary until well into May, after which he joined the club, won 20 games—and to every practical purpose, the pennant. Something very handsome must be done for, with and on behalf of Mr. Ruffing this time to make up for everything that wasn't done for him the last.

To get right down on the asphalt about the situation with the world's champions, in fact, practically everybody on the club had a big year in 1937—and they won't expect their awards in warm, personal friendship, especially since they'll figure they have that warm, personal friend of the downfallen, Business Manager Barrow, in the middle.

Mr. Barrow had it all figured out that hereafter there must be no more hold-over contracts from one season to another and, on the basis of past performance, he was more or less right. But, with the way things are now, he's probably wishing that he had been wrong, for once.

Reds Will Be Out Of Cellar This Year, Says I.N.S. Scribe

By PAT ROBINSON
International News Service Sports Writer

NEW YORK, Jan. (INS)—The safest bet in all the world of sport for 1938 is this:—the Cincinnati Reds will not finish in the National League cellar.

That's one bet we're willing to risk our other shirt on and the reason we are so confident is that Bill McKechnie says the Reds will not be cellar tenants and when Bill tells you something you can make a bet on it and forget it.

We even venture to predict that the Reds will finish as high as fifth, placing our faith more in the managerial genius of McKechnie than in any apparent skill of the Reds. Bill always has been able to get 110% out of any ball player.

There is only one cloud on Bill's horizon. He might win a pennant in the next three or four years, and if he does, he probably will be fired. He won a pennant with the Pirates and he got the gate. He won a pennant with the Cardinals and they ousted him.

Las year everybody consigned the Bees to the cellar before the season started but when the whistle blew, Bill had them up in fifth place, despite the fact that they were the weakest hitting team in the majors.

Bill is easy going, even tempered and soft voiced. But there is never any doubt as to who is runnnig the ball club. The players like him and give him everything they have in stock. Bill is to baseball what Lou Little is to football. They both can go a long way with very little material.

Bill's greatest asset probably is his ability to develop pitchers which is rather strange in view of the fact that he himself was a third baseman.

Last year he took two aged minor leaguers—Turner and Fette—and developed them into 20 game winners. This year he will have more and potentially better pitching material to work with and for this reason we expect to see Bill put the Reds on top of the second division.

It will be interesting to watch what Bill does with Whitey Moore, Lefty Grissom, Johnny Vander-Meer, Paul Derringer, Ray Davis, Gene Schott and Al Hollingsworth. Do not be surprised if Bill develops a pair of 20 game winners out of that collection.

We don't know just how high the Reds will finish this year but you may be certain Bill McKechnie will have them as high as anybody in the world could get them for there is no better manager anywhere.

Sekiguchi Wins Men's Combined Ski Event For 2 Years In Row

Isamu Sekiguchi of the Hokkaido O. B. club defended his championship for the second straight year in the men's combined downhill and slalom races from a field of 75 contestants in the 13th annual national ski championships Friday at Sapporo. He scored a total of 514.3 points or 196.3 points for the slalom and 318 points for the downhill competition.

Miss Kiyoye Suetake of the Otaru Club was the winner for women's combined downhill and slalom races, with a total of 589.5 points, or 230 points for the slalom and 359.2 points for the downhill part.

The men's slalom championship went to Matsutaro Wakamoto who registered times of 72.6 seconds and 73.4 seconds. Sekiguchi was second in 70 and 80 seconds.

Miss Yasuko Suzuki of Asahigawa won the women's slalom title with 59.2 seconds and 59 seconds. Miss Kiyoye Suetake was second with 57.8 seconds and 63.4 seconds.

Wilson Wished To Play Football But Is Baseballer

NEW YORK, Jan.—(INS)—When Jack Wilson was in teens, he went to Columbia College, now known as Portland University.

"You're just the man I have been looking for," said the football coach. "You must weigh about 180 pounds and can carry the mail. I'll use you as a halfback."

Jack happily reported at home that he was to be a member of the varsity football squad.

"You will do nothing of the kind," said his father. "I want you to concentrate on baseball. I think you have the makings of a big league third baseman."

Jack finally received an offer to sign with Hollywood in 1930 but he found Mike Gazella who had been a member of the New York Yankees for a few years playing third for that team. As there was room for only one third baseman, Jack was released to San Francisco. Conditions just as bad there. To grab the third sack berth, Jack had only to beat out Caveny and Pinelli, two veteran National leaguers. Consequently, Jack was farmed out to Globe, Arizona.

Frisco tried him out again in 1932 and when Jack declined to go back to Arizona, released him outright and Jack went home to play semi-pro ball, trying his hand at outfielding as well as third basing and even pitching occasionally. In fact, he had pitched four games when Spancer Abbott, then managing Portland, looked him over. Jack pitched so well that day that Abbott signed him. He pitched two games for the Beavers, breaking even. The next year, 1934, he had broken even in 18 games when he and George Caster, fellow pitcher, were told to report at the office of Tom Turner.

Both pitchers wondered if they were to be farmed out. Instead, Turner told them to pack at once, that they had been sold to the Philadelphia Athletics. They soon were on the train. They reported to Connie Mack in Cleveland. Connie picked Wilson to pitch the first game in a double header that day.

Jack pitched pretty fair ball but lost. Right after that, he acquired a sore arm and when the season ended, Manager Mack turned him back to Portland. But Jack never pitched for Portland after that. He had his tonsils out, his arm was okey again and Boston bought him.

All he had when he joined the Red Sox was his sensational fast ball but he started to develop a curve ball and finally did so at Syracuse to which club he was optioned. Recalled, he received a chance to pitch against Washington. The game went into extra innings. Along came the eleventh stanza. No one on and Jack at bat. The opposing pitcher pitched three wide ones. Jack then took two strikes and whaled the next one out of the lot for a home run, thus winning his first major league contest. Ever since then he has been a Red Sox regular.

During the last season, he won sixteen games and blazed his fast one by 137 batsmen for a third strike. He was particularly effective against Detroit, beating the Tiger sluggers five times.

Thomson Gives Fine Exhibition At Los Angeles

Christian Science Monitor

LOS ANGELES, Jan. 15—James "Jimmy" Thomson, the Scotch-born golf pro now of Shawnee-on-the-Delaware, Penna., won the Los Angeles open by tying the world mark for stroke competition over a course of championship requirements.

His 273 for the 72 holes over one of the courses in municipal Griffith Park matched the accepted record of Ed Dudley, made last year in the Sacramento (Calif.) open.

The superb performance, forced by a powerful field, was enthusiastically received by fans here. They believed the play was a just reward for their last minutes of scurrying to get a sponsor for the thirteenth annual running of the local event.

This year a $1-top gallery fee was not too much to discourage fans from paying to see the play on their own municipal course, an unusual choice. In past years, the event has been bid for by private clubs to make money, but recently the Woodrow Wilson course in Griffith Park has been chosen in order to eliminate charge for the course. This has cut the gallery fee from $3 to $1, plus tax, although lack of fence has proved a problem in collecting admissions. There are still many fans who are able to convince the course stewards that no admissions can be charged for attendance at an event at a public park.

3000 Watch Final Round

The four-day play here was run off under warm and sunny skies, and no less than 3000 persons saw the winner shoot his last round in 68, three under par. He sizzled through his first two rounds with a 65 and a 66, lapsing into an ordinary 74 for the third round. At dusk on Jan. 10, his 273 was found to be one stroke better than the course record set last year by Harry Cooper in winning the open the first time it was played on municipal grounds.

In all fairness to last year's performance by Dudley at Sacramento, sports writers have agreed that the record was set on a more difficult course under adverse weather conditions.

Nevertheless, it was a spectacular competition led by the nephew of Jack White, said to be the greatest of putters. Thomson himself has earned a reputation for being the longest driver in the business, earned no doubt with the help of his birth in the country which popularized golf and of his burly shoulders which have made him one of the best shotmakers along the Delaware.

First prize amounted to $2,100, augmented by the increase of guarantee from $5,000 to $7,500 in the middle of the tournament.

In winning here, Thomson turned the tables on John Revolta of Evanston, Ill., who recently won from him the Miami-Biltmore $10,000 open in Florida, where they finished one-two.

Little Tied for Third

Third place found a tie between Henry Picard, the "candy man" from Hershey, Penna, and William Lawson Little of San Francisco, former American and British amateur champion. Their score was 278, one stroke behind Revolta, who won $1,260. Third and fourth places split, to give $840 to each.

Little had second placed sewed up until his score began to soar on the final round. He was tied with Thomson on the 65th, where both had accumulated 247 strokes.

In championship form, Thomson finished out with two birdies and the rest pars, while Little went over on three and missed a five-foot putt on the home green, forcing him out of a tie for second.

Little looked as if he was going to be alone in third position until a few minutes later Picard holed a 50-foot putt on the home green.

None of Thomson's rivals cut the corners as close as he did for any single round. Revolta scored 70, 67, 71 and 69; Little, 70, 68, 71 and 69, and Picard, 68, 71, 70 and 69.

Four Tie for Fifth

Tied for fifth were Willie Goggin of San Bruno, Calif., whose final 70 enabled him to post a 277; George von Elm of Los Angeles, Horton Smith of Chicago and Lloyd Mangrum of Dayton, Ohio, whose 5 at the par 3 15th cost him a tie for second.

Olin Dutra, another Los Angeles veteran, tallied 280, one ahead of Bruce McCormick, Los Angeles fireman, the tournament's leading amateur and national public links champion. Last year the Western Avenue player also was the low net amateur.

Next at 283 were Emil Mashie of Fitchburg, Mass., Harold McSpaden of Winchester, Mass., and Ben Coltrin of San Francisco, each receiving $95.66.

Many friends of the new champion are urging him to stay on the sideline for a while in order to preserve the aura of superiority, as did Ralph Guldahl, winner of the national open who did not enter the Los Angeles open, and Johnny Goodman, the national amateur champion who did not enter the western amateur tourney here, although he witnessed it.

All-Foreigners Beaten 22-10 By Kanto O.B.'s In Annual Rugby Tilt

The All-Foreigners fifteen got off to a good start by breaking the ice in the scoring column with a try after 15 minutes of play in the first half but the Kanto O.B. all-stars proved the better conditioned of the two teams and won by 22-10 in their annual rugby games.

The foreigners scored when Austin of Kobe picked up a stray ball and went over for a try. Castleton converted to give them a 5-0 lead but Kato registered a try in 17 minutes and Yamano in 21 minutes to see the Japanese lead by 6 to 5 at half time.

The foreigners showed signs of weariness in the second half with the Japanese pressing.

The line-ups were:

All-Japan Foreigners: Forwards, S. H. Garrod (captain), H. G. Castleton, M. Pestalozzi, C. W. Tait, Hutton, L. L. Swanson, Baer, F. B. Hickson; halfbacks, B. Harriss, Owens; three quarters, Wells, A. M. Scott, R. Isaacsen, A. Austin; fullback, W. A. Guterres.

All-Kanto: Forwards, Toyama, Sunabori, Yamashita, Uno, Yamaguchi, Shimizu, Onishi; halfbacks, Yamamoto, Ito, Takarabe; three quarters, Kitano, Yoshida, Kato, Yamano; fullback, Ogawa.

Referee, Torahiko Shiotani; Touch judges, G. H. Oldridge and Jiro Ito.

Women Managers Rule Feminine Olympic Stars

NEW YORK, Jan. 10—Women managers will take charge of feminine Olympic teams representing the United States, starting with the 1940 games at Tokyo, as a result of action taken Saturday by the executive committee of the American Olympic Association.

Heretofore, men have held the managerial posts for all Olympic teams. The change, first proposed after difficulties arose in connection with the 1936 Olympics, is expected to be ratified and put into effect by the full American Olympic committee, to be organized later this year.

Fred L. Steers of Chicago, manager of the women's track squads in 1932 and 1936, backed the proposal.

It was indicated the case of Eleanor Holm Jarrett, swimmer disbarred from the 1936 team for violation of training rules on shipboard, contributed to the change in managerial policy.

Membership on 27 subcommittees, dealing with the separate Olympic sports and featuring "parity" for the National Collegiate A. A., was ratified with two exceptions.

Hockey committee nominations were tabled, pending consultation with the presidents of the N. C. A. A. and Amateur Athletic Union, relative to the existing problems over amateurism. The Olympic body thereby took cognizance of the disputes arising from operation of eastern teams now outlawed by the A. A. U.

The subcommittee on baseball has authority to be enlarged, to include 18 representatives of the United States Amateur Baseball Congress, headed by Leslie Mann, besides six N. C. A. A. delegates.

Appointments of the "thirteenth man" to important committees, made by Brundage to complete the lists, indicated the A. A. U. will, if necessary, be able to assert continued control of Olympic policies.

A. C. Gilbert of New Haven, long-time A. A. U. leader, was Brundage's selection for the track and field committee. Robert J. H. Kiphuth, Yale coach who had been nominated by both A. A. U. and N. C. A. A. interests, was designated for the swimming committee.

Harridge Swats Talk Of Yankees Being Menace

By WILLIAM HARRIDGE
President, American Baseball League

CHICAGO, Jan. 15—We are approaching the time of the year when baseball is again the general topic of conversation, and predictions are in order as to what is ahead for the American League in 1938.

I do not see how we could ask for much more in 1938 than we accomplished in 1937. The American League won the all-star game at Washington, making it four victories to one defeat, and captured the World Series from the Giants in four victories against one defeat.

Despite the fact that the New York Yankees retained first place from the middle of June, finishing the season thirteen games ahead of Detroit in second place, the gratifying increase in our attendance over 1936 should put a stop to the oft-repeated statement that the Yankees are a menace to our organization.

Yankees No Menace

A club that draws more than a million at home and the same number on the road, which is shared by seven other clubs, can hardly be termed a menace. Detroit, which was handicapped from the start by the loss of its playing manager, Mickey Cochrane, and outstanding pitcher, Lynwood Rowe, finishing second in the championship race and playing to an attendance of over a million, is worthy of much praise. Cochrane, unfortunately, won't be able to catch for Detroit this season.

I think both Detroit and the Chicago White Sox, who finished third, are going to be stronger and give the Yankees a much harder race in 1938 as the result of their big trade this winter. To my mind, it was one of the most even trades in history.

Cochrane has been criticized for giving up two such players as Marvin Owen and Gerald Walker for Vernon Kennedy, a fine pitcher. I can't understand that way of thinking. What Mickey needed was a good pitcher, and he got him. He was in a position to give up some players.

At the same time, I think Owen and Walker will make the White Sox a much better balanced club. Walker is going to be just as popular and as great an attraction at Chicago as he was in Detroit.

Sees Another Big Year

Seven out of eight of our clubs showed an increase in attendance for 1937 over 1936, so that we are not at all alarmed by the so-called menace of the Yankees. We, in the American League, believe we can look forward with much optimism to another banner year in 1938.

Much has been said about the difference in the ball to be used by the two major leagues next season. Until such time as we can thoroughly try out and satisfy ourselves that any new ball we propose to adopt will do what we expect of it, the American League will continue to use in its championship games the so-called standard ball adopted in 1934, which, in reality, was the American League ball in use in our organization since 1910.

For many years the two major leagues, prior to 1934, played with a ball which differed only in the thickness of the cover and the number of strands of thread, and no handicap was apparent on the part of the players of either league when changing to the National or American League ball in interleague games.

The Republican-Democratic Presidential Candidate

Horace Greeley (1811-1872) celebrated American newspaper editor, was a member of the republican party. But he never let party loyalty prevail over his conviction of right and duty. And so we find this republican nominated as candidate for the Presidency on a democratic ticket by the Baltimore convention in 1872, in opposition to a second term for the regular republican nominee General Grant. Greeley was defeated and died a few weeks after the election.

The Cooks' Cook

For 20 years G. Kelleher has operated the Majestic hotel and restaurant at Lake Placid, N. Y., employing an average of 25 people the year round. Just to be sure they get good food and are satisfied with the first meal of each day, Kelleher gets up at five o'clock every morning and personally cooks breakfast for the entire staff. He also likes to know they are all on time for work, and not having to cook their own breakfast is an added incentive to be on time.

Rumanian Set-Up Unconstitutional, Says Ex-Premier

Maniu Declares Affairs Not Grave Enough To Justify Dictatorship

By The Domei Tsushin Sha

BUCHAREST, Feb. 12—Violently attacking the new Rumanian government headed by Dr. Miron Cristea, Dr. Julius Maniu, former Premier and leader of the National Peasant Party, today branded the regime as "dictatorial, unconstitutional and undemocratic."

Dr. Maniu declared, "Although it pretends to be a 'national' government,the fact that the new Government intends to suspend the activity of all political parties, revise the Constitution and manage the country's affairs by decrees, shows its real character."

The Peasant Party leader asserted that the new regime is in defiance of public opinion. He added, "It is particularly painful that a patriarch is involved in this affair." Dr. Maniu denied that the internal situation is grave. He added that the government is making a pretext of gravity to justify exceptional measures highly prejudicial to the country.

Dr. Maniu declared, "It would be much simpler and more normal to entrust power to the National Peasant Party, which is highly popular throughout the country."

Meanwhile, it was declared by observers here that the Iron Guard Fascist organization has adopted an expectant attitude. The Iron Guard news organ Buna Vestire today admitted that the new cabinet includes "highly respectable personalities." It added, "We are waiting for the New Government to act and hope that it will not take measures harmful to the country."

Rome Sees Fascism

By The Domei Tsushin Sha

ROME, Feb. 11—While some observers quarters opined that Rumanian Premier Octavian Goga's resignation was the direct outcome of Anglo-French pressure, other informed circles declared that the outgoing premier's nationalist policy will not be changed and will be continued by the new ministry headed by Dr. Miron Cristea.

The Tribuna, a Rome paper, said today: "Democracies must not rejoice. The new Rumanian Government will follow Goga's line as is shown by its hostility to political parties and the electoral system." The paper adds, "but the whole of Italy actually hopes that the Iron Guard will sooner or later rule."

Neutral observers, meanwhile, describe the new government as a "semi-military dictatorship." They point out that both King Carol and Premier Cristea are apparently concentrating a great deal of authority in the army.

A practical state of seige throughout the country, it was pointed out, has given jurisdiction to the military courts over many types of cases formerly tried by civil tribunals. Army officers, it was added, have been named local prefects while the new regulations ban the publication of photographs of political leaders and newspapers are allowed to print only official communiques regarding foreign affairs.

Chinese Appeals

of its rights."

A message from T. V. Soong, leading Chinese banker and brother-in-law of General Chiang Kai-shek, urged the parley to back "collective action against the aggressor." Mrs. Sun Yat-sen cabled from Hongkong expressing regret that she could not attend the gathering as she had originally planned, but appealing to the delegates for decisive action.

According to Reuter dispatches from China, parades, mass meetings and demonstrations took place in many cities in support of the conference, and public bodies in Hankow, Canton, Shanghai, Chungking, Changsha and Nanching are sending messages of encouragement to London.

Demonstrations Held

Addressing one of the meetings at Hankow, Dr. Wang Ching-wei, chairman of the Central Political Council of the Kuomintang, reportedly reiterated that China "will never surrender to the aggressor."

International Peace Campaign officials also disclosed that many messages expressing support of the conference's objects were received from other countries. These included a message from Colonel Henry L. Stimson, former American Secretary of State, advocating "unofficial severance" of trade relations with Japan.

Dr. V. K. Wellington Koo, Chinese ambassador to Paris, it is learned, will attend the conference instead of Mrs. Sun Yat-sen.

Reuters dispatches reported today that Japanese planes made a new raid on the commercial airdrome near Nanhu and later dropped thousands of handbills on Hankow. Fog reportedly made it impossible for Chinese anti-aircraft batteries to function effectively.

Chiang Expects Much

SHANGHAI, Feb. 12—General Chiang Kai-shek is expecting much of the international gathering in London to adopt a boycott of Japanese goods and to announce substantial support of China, it is learned.

On behalf of the Nationalist Government, the Generalissimo, it is also reported, intends to cable to the parley a message of gratitude urging that the London conference formulate specific and effective measures to check the aggressors. Prior to the opening of the international meeting, Wang Ching-wei and Wang Chung-hui, leaders of the Nationalist Government, broadcast at 4 p.m. yesterday, it is also indicated.

Competent observers here believe the London parley will prove futile.

Monument To Japanese Pioneers Will Rise Soon At Tsukiji Temple

As a tribute to the pioneer Japanese settlers, who, within the last 80 years, have spread their roots in the soil of the United States, Canada and Mexico, a monument will be erected soon near the Nishi-Hongan-ji temple in Tsukiji, Tokyo. It is being sponsored by Kusuemon Tainaka, ex-member of the Lower House and a former resident of Hawaii and the United States.

"Approximately 150,000 Japanese are living in Hawaii and on the American mainland at present, as well as an additional 20,000 or more in Canada and Mexico, most of whom are descendants of those who crossed the Pacific in the latter part of the last century. Hundreds of pioneer graves mark the places where they have struggled and toiled, many of which are completely neglected and forgotten," Mr. Tainaka said.

He has already gathered about him more than 200 influential supporters from political and financial spheres.

"My suggestion," he declared, "has met with praise from all circles. I am confident of success and am sure, the monument will become a pilgrimmage center for all Japanese living abroad when they visit Japan.

"It is our duty to remember the ambitious pioneers who have so successfully established colonies in various places the other side of the Pacific. Perhaps this is one way to expressing our gratitude to those who sleep eternally in foreign graves."

Japan's Reply

their above-mentioned orders thoroughly understood by all the authorities concerned, and in the meantime they and, in an especial degree, the highest command of the fighting services, have with extraordinary concern been doing their utmost for a satisfactory settlement of the affairs in question, by causing the authorities on the spot to establish the facts in every case as clearly and promptly as possible, and then to deal appropriately with the responsible parties according to military law and to make restitution of damages. As there remain certain points requiring further investigation, the Foreign Office authorities and the Army authorities on the spot are now earnestly endeavoring to establish the facts of each case. As regards compensation for loss and damage, it is the intention of the Government to let such matters be settled as far as possible on the spot, and for this purpose they have been maintaining intimate contact with the American authorities there. I trust that Your Excellency is already aware of these matters.

With respect to Hangchow, the Japanese forces which occupied the city on the 22nd December last year, found their supplies from the rear temporarily cut off and they were obliged to obtain provisions on the spot, which necessarily had to be requisitioned owing to the flight of the inhabitants. Prior to their entry into Hangchow, however, the Japanese military authorities had given strict instructions to the commanders of all units regarding the protection of the rights and interests of third Powers, and furthermore, at the time of their entry, they sent gendarmes to post notices on the buildings belonging to the nationals of third Powers, in order to ensure their protection. Nevertheless, in view of the fact that the requisitioning of provisions had to be effected at night, with fighting still in progress, they might have failed to recognize such notices and flags, and furthermore, by reason of the fact that the buildings of the nationals of third Powers were intermingled with those of the Chinese, and that there were no owners to be found in the houses in question, it is possible that some of the requisitioning squads made mistakes in identifying these objects. At the same time, the fact should be noted that there were at the time numerous cases of looting and destruction committed by Chinese rabbles, taking advantage of the prevalent confusion. The difficulty of ascertaining the facts in circumstances such as these will be easily understood.

Mistakes Seen Possible

In the circumstances stated above, if there were cases of Japanese soldiers at Hangchow entering by mistake houses owned by the nationals of third Powers, the purpose of such entry was either the requisition of food or a search for the remnants of Chinese troops, as a necessary measure incident to the conduct of military operations. The military authorities, as the result of a rigid investigation, discovered no evidence to show that any thing whatever other than food-stuffs had been removed from these houses.

A protest is made in Your Excellency's Note on the part of the United States Government on the ground that they had received reports alleging that there had occurred improper acts on the part of Japanese soldiers toward American flags. Deeming it greatly regrettable if, indeed, there had been such occurrences, the Japanese authorities on the spot, requesting the American authorities in Shanghai and Nanking to submit concrete data on these cases, have been conducting thorough-going investigations regarding the matter. With reference to the report that on the 13th December last, Japanese soldiers at Wuhu pulled down and threw into the Yangtze an American flag from a Chinese boat belonging to the American-owned General Hospital at Wuhu, investigations have been made among the troops which were in that city at the time of the reported incident, as a result of which it has been established that no Japanese soldiers have either been involved in, or aware of, the occurrence of any incident of this sort. Besides, an American connected with the said hospital is reported to have stated that, although he had, in the circumstances then existing, presumed the case to be due to the act of Japanese soldiers, he had by no means actually witnessed the facts, such as the throwing of an American flag into the river. Of these facts, I believe, Your Excellency is aware, since they have already been communicated to the American Consul-General at Shanghai by the Japanese Consul-General. Our authorities have been earnestly conducting further investigations in other places than Wuhu, but so far no evidence has been found. The Japanese Government, with a view especially to bringing home to the minds of all troops the importance of respecting the American national emblem, have ordered their instructions in that regard to be transmitted to every unit in China.

3 Measures Taken

In view of the circumstances stated above, the Japanese Government are studying how they can elaborate effective and adequate measures that can as soon as possible be put in force so as to put a definite stop to any occurrence of similar events. Meanwhile, they have taken, in addition to the various measures already in force, other steps including, (1) dispatch to the spot of a high officer from Tokyo in order to insure the full execution of the instructions mentioned above, (2) the stationing of special officers at important points in China to take charge of matters relating to the rights and interests of third Powers, and (3) the reinforcement of the military police in China.

I beg Your Excellency to convey to your Government the earnest intention of the Japanese Government as stated above to devote their best efforts toward the prevention of any recurrence of these incidents in future.

I avail myself of this opportunity to renew to Your Excellency the assurance of my highest consideration.

Tsurumi Visits Senate; Hears Farm Bill Debate

By The Domei Tsushin Sha

WASHINGTON, Feb. 11—Yusuke Tsurumi, "popular" Japanese envoy to the United States, today paid a visit to the Senate to listen to the debate on the revised Farm Bill. He was introduced to the Senators by William H. King, Democratic Senator from Utah.

Hirosi Saito, Japanese ambassador to the United States, who accompanied Mr. Tsurumi, meanwhile waited outside because foreign diplomatic envoys are not entitled to enter the Senate.

It was meanwhile learned that a conference has been arranged between Mr. Tsurumi and a group of Senators to discuss the Far Eastern situation.

Hoshino Bound For Tokyo

By The Domei Tsushin Sha

HSINKING, Feb. 12—Naoki Hoshino, chief of the general affairs of the Manchoukuo State Council, accompanied by a subordinate, left Hsinking for Tokyo at 8 o'clock this morning to consult the Japanese government regarding progress made last year in the five-year industrial development program.

Chinese Raids

ed Pengpu while four others attacked Linhwaikwan, northwest of here, and the rest appeared over this city. Met by Japanese anti-aircraft fire, however, all the Chinese raiders soon took to cover without causing serious damage, it was indicated.

Japanese Planes Attack

An undisclosed number of Japanese military aircraft shortly after 3 o'clock yesterday afternoon bombed Suhsien and Kuchen in the northern part of Anhwei Province on the Tientsin-Pukow Railway, also raiding a troop-train bound for the south, smashing more than 10 cars, it is disclosed today.

Another report indicates that four troop trains consisting of 30 cars were hurriedly dispatched to Kuchen from Hsuchow via Suhsien beginning yesterday afternoon, in an attempt to check the Japanese advance northward. It is also said that a large number of military trucks bearing large reinforcements have been massed around Kuchen.

Damage inflicted on Chinese defenders in recent engagements near Hwaiho River in Anhwei Province has been estimated by the Japanese forces here as follows:

1. The Soeda detachment while crossing the river from Pengpu confiscated 100 rifles, 28 machineguns of Czechoslovakian-make and three trench-mortars, in addition to 500 Chinese soldiers left dead on the field.

2. In the course of crossing the same river from Linhwaikwan, the Yashiro unit captured 360 rifles, 107 machineguns of Czechoslovakian-make, 8 heavy machineguns, one trench-mortar, 80 swords and a large volume of ammunition, in addition to 150 actives and 1,500 soldiers left dead.

Chinese troops participating in the battle are learned to have been composed of the 113th and 114th Divisions of the former Northeastern Army, the independent 34th Brigade of Kweichow affiliated with the Central Army and the crack 1st Division directly associated with General Chiang Kai-shek, the last being one of the most efficient forces under the Generalissimo.

Chinese Forces Trapped

By The Domei Tsushin Sha

CHANGTE, Feb. 12—Their retreat lines having completely been cut off at Ikouchen 12 kilometers south of Tangyin in northern Honan Province this morning, two divisions under General Wan Fu-lin are reportedly like 'a rat in a trap.'

Following the launching of the general offensive yesterday, the Toyama and Ishiguro contingents succeeded in dislodging the Chinese army forces from their entrenchments around Tangyin south of here, and pressed them toward Ikouchen while encircling quickly and vigorously, it is also informed.

Chinese Losses Heavy

By The Domei Tsushin Sha

WEIKIAYING, On Peking-Hankow Railway, Feb. 12—Soldiers of the Chinese Central Army and those under General Wan Fu-lin, who had defended the front lines of Tangyin, in the north of Honan Province on the Peking-Hankow railroad, yesterday were subjected to an annihilative blow after having engaged with the Toyama, Morita and Ishiguro detachments of the Japanese forces on the spot, it is learned.

The Chinese defenders entrenched in pillboxes and dugouts put up a stubborn resistance against the Japanese but were driven back with 150 losses.

It is further revealed that they carried away about 270 other bodies with them in their retreat. The Chinese sustained over 3,000 casualties in yesterday's battle near Tangyin, it is confidently estimated. Prior to the withdrawal, it is also found that the enemy troops buried a number of dynamite and threw poison into the wells of nearby villages.

All the rails and sleepers of the Peking-Hankow Railway between Changte and Sinsiang extending several hundred kilometers, were taken off by the Chinese forces in an attempt to check the Japanese advance, it is found. A number of ditches were also dug at various points along the wrecked sectin, it is added.

Meanwhile, the Kimura engineering corps have already completed repairs of the section between Changte and here.

Finland Is Outpost Against Red Russia

Reich Praises Finns For Valiant Fight Against Communism

By PIERRE J. HUSS
International News Service Staff Correspondent

BERLIN—Hard-bitten little Finland is looked upon by Germany as an outpost against Soviet Russia in the North.

There is ample evidence that in the event of any attack on Finland by Soviet Russia, the latter would quickly have to reckon with action by Germany, which has no intention of ever allowing the Soviets to swallow the country.

Such an understanding became clear with the recent visit to Baron von Neurath, former German Foreign Minister, of Finland's Foreign Minister Holsti, who was given "full assurance of Germany's great sympathy."

While Finland's geographical position as neighbor to Soviet Russia seems to make open adherence to the Triple Anti-Communist pact inadvisable, Finland is regarded as one of the leading sworn foes of Communism.

German officialdom, after the Finnish statesman's visit, publicly branded the Soviet Union as Finland's real and only foe and praised the northern country for arming in self-defense. Finland also was given a pat on the back for its successful internal conquest of Communism, and lauded for its "patience" in the face of repeated "encroachments by the Soviets."

Continuing in this vein, an official comment added:

"Unfortunately again and again there are cases in which Finland must show patience. Only a few weeks ago the Finnish population was aroused justifiably when not less than 12 Soviet airplanes in seven different places "lost their way" over Finnish territory and flew far into Finland. Furthermore, today as in the past, Soviet Russian encroachments at the border are a daily occurrence.

"Finland can rest assured, therefore, of finding understanding for her worries, especially in all those countries which have awakened to the Bolshevist danger. In her effort to keep out of all conflicts of the big powers in the spirit of true neutrality, Finland attempted to develop its policy along the same lines as the Scandinavian countries.

"Finally, a great, fateful problem remains open for Finland—namely what protection aside from her own forces would be at her disposal in case of a conflict forced upon her.

"Hardly a word has to be said today any more about the practical effectiveness of the League of Nations in decisive and risky moments. The big powers belonging to the League of Nations today would hardly be able to render effective assistance because of their geographical position.

Red Cross Entertains

The motion picture section of the Japan Red Cross Society on Saturday entertained soldier patients at the Red Cross branch of the Daiichi Army Hospital with the latest news reels and films of a lighter vein.

At the same hospital at 1 p.m. today, a number of well-known Japanese women artists will be invited to draw impromptu pictures to entertain the soldier's.

eign policy of the United States, by which the State, War and Navy departments could "get together to plan and execute a better defense system at less cost."

The officer furthermore warned against diverting too much attention to the current problems in Europe and the Far East.

Major-General William Marver, in presenting further testimony, declared that the propsed naval expansion program would provide a powerful weapon for offensive operations. He suggested an increase in smaller units, adding that an impregnable harbor defense would be a better defense than warships.

Krock Not Called

The naval affairs committee today rejected a proposal, made by Representative Ralph O. Brewster, of Maine, to summon before the committee Arthur Krock, Washington correspondent of the New York Times.

Earlier, Representative Joseph B. Shannon, of Missouri, declared, 'It would be particularly appropriate to hear Mr. Krock's testimonies because the late Adolphs Ochs, publisher of the New York Times, was approached many times by the British Liberal leader, David Lloyd-George, and Admiral Earl Beatty, hero of the Battle of Jutland, to have the United States navy patrol Asiatic waters while Britain protected Atlantic waters.

"BELIEVE IT OR NOT"---by Ripley

Statement Is Made

At the present moment, however, when there exists no fair and equitable disarmament treaty, we believe that it will readily be understood that Japan, trying, as she is, to ensure the security of her national defense with an armament small in comparison with those of such great naval Powers as Great Britain and the United States cannot afford to disclose her plans of naval construction in compliance with the desire of those three countries.

Cites British Program

Recently Great Britain has, with considerable cause of apprehension to other countries, embarked upon a colossal armament program, and the United States appears also to be on the point of following a similar course. It cannot be considered fair on the part of the three Powers that, in the face of an expansion of armaments in many countries, they should by their recent notes desire the disclosure of the extent of the Japanese naval program and should take up the position that in case Japan should fail to meet with their desire they would dogmatically conclude that Japan must be constructing vessels not in conformity with the limits introduced by treaties to which Japan has never been a party, and that they should make it the reason for their armament expansion. Responsibility for any future development must therefore be borne by the leading naval Powers themselves. Japan would regret it profoundly if these Powers should undertake still more extensive armament construction on such grounds, thereby leaving Japan no alternative but to alter her building plans in order to cope with that construction. As Japan falls behind no Power in the fervent desire for the realization of such fair reductions of naval armament as will contribute to the promotion of peace and amity throughout the world, she hereby desires to assure the nations concerned that she is at all times quite prepared to discuss with them any plan for disarmament which attaches primary importance to quantitative limitation; and she would invite careful consideration of the subject by all who are really devoted to the cause of world peace.

Soviet Will Fight

serted, stand the "bosses" of the Fascist states, reactionary British Imperialists and "all those eager to profit at the expense of somebody else's conflict and blood."

"The crazy idea that the Soviet Union would go to war with Japan in order to obtain as compensation some guarantees of security in the West," said the paper, "could be begotten only by the enfeebled brains of English reactionaries."

Also assailing foreign diplomats in Moscow as the source of much false information, Pravda openly accuses "an important official" of the Afghan Embassy of spreading provocative rumors about Soviet preparations to fight Japan.

Not To Be Shaken

"Neither the English nor any other provocators of war, however," the paper concluded, "will have a chance to see the Soviet Union pursue a policy at somebody else's dictation, under somebody else's pressure or for somebody else's promises.

"The Soviet Government, unswervingly adhering to its policy of peace, will wage war only against aggressors, disturbers of the peace and violators of Soviet frontiers. No international jazz-band of calumny and provocation will disturb the Union's steel composure and calmness."

England Will Ask I.O.C. For '40 Games If Nations Join In Boycott Of Japan

By The Domei Tsushin Sha

LONDON, Feb. 12—In the event the world follows the actions of the British Amateur Athletic Union and the British Empre Games Federaton, who yesterday passed resolutions against British athletes participating in the 1940 Olympic Games at Tokyo, Great Britain will ask the International Olympic Committee for permission to stage the Games here, Havas learns from unofficial sports quarters here today.

The general committee of the A.A.U. met at Chelmsford yesterday and unanimously adopted a resolution banning British participation in the contests. In a press statement, H. F. Pash, a committeeman, expressed the hope that the other countries, especially the United States, would follow the British lead.

Declaring that "it isn't the question of politics as some people think, but a matter of humanity and fair play," Mr. Pash added that what has happened in China had set the feelings of all lovers of sport against those responsible.

Sports circles here, apparently confident that Britain can stir up enough opposition against Japan at the forthcoming meeting of the I.O.C. next March so that Japan would eventually give up the task of staging the Games, are heatedly discussing plans to have the contests transferred here, Havas learns.

The attitude taken by the A.A.U. here and the British Empire Games Federation, which is reported to have passed a resolution similar to the one adopted by the British A.A.U., will be discussed by the British Olympic Association at its annual meeting next Tuesday, and later by the British delegates to the Cairo meeting of the I.O.C., it is learned.

Opposes Warring Country

By The Domei Tsushin Sha

SYDNEY, Feb. 11—Meeting here on the sidelines of the British Empire Games, now in progress as part of the 150th anniversary celebrations of the foundation of Sydney, sports officials of Great Britain and the Dominions today recorded themselves as formally opposed to holding the 1940 Olympics in any country at war.

Should the present conflict between Japan and China continue and the site of the Games be allowed to remain at Tokyo, the officials expressed themselves as "disinclined" to favor British participation. It is understood that the decision was communicated to athletic organizations in other countries.

Today's meeting was attended by leading officials of the British Empire Games Foundation, the executive committee of which comprises representatives of the various national amateur athletic associations in England and other parts of the Empire.

Against Boycotting

By The Domei Tsushin Sha

LONDON, Feb. 11—A Europe-wide survey by Domei regarding the British Amateur Athletic Union's resolution proposing an international boycott of the 1940 Olympic Games at Tokyo today showed no evidence of any wide-spread inclination toward obstructing the forthcoming Olympiad.

Details of the survey reveal that four European nations—namely, Italy, France, Yugoslavia and Austria—have definitely decided to send teams to Tokyo, while Germany is reportedly waiting to see how her athletes perform at the giant Nazi Games at Nuremberg on September 4 before dispatching a delegation to the Far East.

Norway although it has decided to send a team to Tokyo may find some trouble in raising funds as long as the Sino-Japanese conflict continues. Finland and Denmark have not yet decided, while other nations are adopting a policy of watchful waiting the results of the forthcoming meeting at Cairo of the International Olympic Committee.

Meanwhile, it is learned that the British Olympic Committee is meeting next Tuesday, although there is no indication today just what is to be discussed. It is known, however, that the recent action of the A.A.U. here will have some bearing on the meeting despite the fact that whatever the British Empire Games Federation or the Amateur Athletic Union do have only indirect effects on the Olympic Committee's policy.

Not Worried

Professor Jigoro Kano, chief of the Japanese delegation to the meeting of the International Olympic Committee at Cairo, as he left Tokyo Station by the 1:05 p.m. train for Ogaki Sunday with his family who says that Japan has many friends among the I. O. C. members and he is not worried about the reported movements afoot to take the 1940 Olympic Games away from Tokyo. Professor Kano left the train at Yokohama to attend the meeting of the O. O. C. this morning and will leave Tokyo in time to board the Hakozaki Maru from Shimonoseki on February 18.

Canada's Refusal To Play Japan In Davis Cup Likely

Apprehension is felt here that Canada, influenced by the anti-Japanese agitation in England against participation by British athletes in the 1940 Olympic Games in Tokyo, might decide to refuse playing Japan in the first round of the American zone of the Davis Cup competition scheduled for the last week in July, according to the Hochi Shimbun. It is considered the first real storm to be encountered by Japan in her 16 years of history in Davis Cup play since 1922.

Another factor is the contention in some circles that the ¥50,000 necessary for the travel expenditures of the three members of the team through Europe and the United States might better be put to use for national defense in this time of stress in the country from the effects of the Sino-Japanese hostilities.

While Jiro Yamagishi and Fumiteru Nakano, members of the team last year, have been tentatively selected as members for this year's team, it is reported there is considerable difficulty regarding the selection of the third member. Kanto directors of the Japan Lawn Tennis Association are insisting on selection of Reizo Murakami of Keio, doubles partner of Yamagishi, while on the other hand, the Kansai officials are said to be adamant in their claim that Yasumine Kuramitsu of Kansai University, top ranking player for 1937, be named. For this reason, the selection of the team, which is usually made during the latter part of January and not later than the first week in February, has not yet been done this year, it is said. The team too would be leaving the country during the latter part of March.

Officials of the Japan Lawn Tennis Association said Sunday they are not a bit concerned over the rumors that Canada might decline to play Japan, for the reason that the draw has been made by the Davis Cup committee. If Canada withdraws, Japan will have entered the final of the American zone without playing, it is said.

Princeton Wrestlers Win From Penn State, 16-12

STATE COLLGE, Pa., Jan. 15—Charles Toll's victory in the final bout gave Princeton a 16-to-12 decision over Penn State's wrestling team before 3,000 today.

I.C. 4-A Track Meet Scheduled June 3-4

NEW YORK, Jan. 10—The annual track championships of the Intercollegiate Association of Amateur Athletes of America, for years a fixture of the Memorial Day week end, have been set back a week to June 3 and 4 for 1938.

The I. C. 4-A, at its annual meeting last night, made the change, but deferred decision on the site for the meet, leaving it up to Asa Bushnell, the organization's executive officer, to make recommendations to a later meeting of the association board of directors.

The changed date leaves a two-week lapse between the annual heptagonal games among Ivy League colleges, which will be held this year on the third week end in May, and the I. C. 4-A meet.

A move has been under way to return the latter event to one of the eastern college stadiums, rather than to hold it again in New York's municipal stadium on Randall's Island, the site last year. For years the games had been held at Pennsylvania's Franklin Field or Harvard Stadium, and some supporters favor its return to a campus setting, possibly in Princeton's Palmer Stadium.

J. Gilbert Nottleton, Princeton undergraduate, was elected president of the association at the board of directors meeting yesterday, with Henry F. Miller, Yale, vice-president; H. Jamison Swarts, Penn, treasurer; and Gustavus T. Kirby, corresponding secretary and association representative on the executive council of the central office for eastern intercollegiate athletics.

The annual indoor meet will be held March 5 in Madison Square Garden.

Dimaggio Has Idea How Much He Is Worth

By JOHN DREBINGER
N.Y. Times

NEW YORK, Jan 18—Looking remarkably fit and weighing four pounds less than when he discharged his final blast into the reeling Giants last October, Joe DiMaggio, wonder player of the Yankees, swept into New York yesterday after attending a luncheon in his honor in Philadelphia earlier in the day.

In fact, attending luncheons and dinners is ostensibly the prime motive which has brought the American League's home-run champion East from his home and lucrative restaurant business in San Francisco, but he made it clear he would be ready to mix business with pleasure if the Yankees cared to invite him to attend a little conference concerning his 1938 contract.

Taken immediately in tow by Joe Gould, Jim Braddock's fight manager and DiMaggio's bosom pal, the young star reiterated his denial of a week ago on the Coast that he already had signed a Yankee contract, a transaction variously reported to have been closed secretly last Summer with Business Manager Ed Barrow.

Asked Barrow for Tickets

"To tell you the truth," said Joe, "and strange as it may sound, I never saw Barrow once to talk to all last season until just before the world series, when I went to see him about buying two extra world series tickets at the Polo Grounds. I have signed no contract up to now, haven't even seen one, and have no idea what the Yankees intend to offer me.

"I understand they are sending the contracts out this week, and I hope they don't send mine all the way out to San Francisco. Because if they would ask me over to see them I'd go at once and maybe settle the whole business without any further delay."

He even said he would gladly call up Barrow himself except for the hoax he heard somebody had sprung on the Yankee business manager last week on the telephone.

"After that," chuckled Joe, "I'm afraid Barrow would tell me to go to blazes if I told him I was Joe DiMaggio on the phone."

As in his Coast interview, DiMaggio again declined to name any specific salary he would ask for beyond saying he thought he was "entitled to a substantial increase." As a second-year man with the Yanks last season he is understood to have received $15,000.

Waiting for Offer

"While I naturally have an idea what I'm worth," he explained, "I don't think it's up to me to say anything about that now. I'd rather wait until the club has made its offer."

Asked whether he expected to get as much as Lou Gehrig is receiving or "somewhere near" Lou's reported salary of $36,000, Joe replied:

"No, Lou's figure doesn't enter into this thing at all and frankly I don't even know what Gehrig is getting beyond what has been mentioned in the papers. That's really none of my business, and my negotiations with the Yankees will be carried on entirely apart from what they pay Lou."

DiMaggio, who recently was voted the "Player of the Year" by the New York baseball writers and will receive their honor plaque at the chapter's annual dinner at the Hotel Commodore on Jan. 30, will attend numerous functions in the interim. He will return for a one-day visit to Philadelphia today and on Jan. 25 will be guest of honor at the annual dinner of the Philadelphia writers, who also have voted Joe as 1937's outstanding player.

The great DiMag also will be present to root for his friend Braddock when the latter battles Tommy Farr in the Garden Friday night.

McCarthy Second In Line

Johnny McCarthy, the tall, lean Chicago youth who last year took over the none-too-simple task of replacing Bill Terry as the Giants' regular first baseman, yesterday became the second member of the National League champions to accept terms for the 1938 campaign. McCarthy's signed contract arrived on Secretary Eddie Brannick's desk about the same time Eddie himself arrived, a coincidence which immediately served to put Eddie not only in fine humor but excellent voice. He expressed confidence McCarthy would have a great year with the Giants.

In truth, Johnny's strong comeback last year after he was benched for weak hitting in mid-season has made the Chicago youngster loom as an important factor in the coming pennant drive. Following his return to the line-up when Sambo Leslie suffered an injury, McCarthy did a high-grade job in that memorable stretch drive for the pennant. He finished the year with a batting mark of .278 for 114 games, hit 10 homers and drove in 65 runs. Only Mel Ott, with 95, and Jimmy Ripple, with 66, topped him among the Giant players in the last-named department.

Kamegamori Clinches National Ski Jumping Laurels At Sapporo

Takashi Kamegamori of Hokkaido University won the national ski jumping title in the final day of the 16th annual national ski championships at Sapporo Sunday by leaping 59.50 and 66 meters in his two tries for 221.9 points.

Tetsushi Nishi of Waseda was a close second with 59.50 and 63 meters for 124.5 points. Third was Hideo Ito of Meiji with 59 and 61 meters for 212.9 points.

Toshiakira Kumejima of the Karafuto Railway Bureau clinched first honors in the boy's division with jumps of 57.50 and 63 meters.

Tokito Sakada of the Hoppane Club won the championship in the men's combined ski running and jumping event with a total of 454.30 points. He scored 240 points in the running competition and his distances in the jumping were 47 meters on the first jump and another 47 in the second. Kurao Kuji of Waseda was second with 451.50 points.

Kansai Prepared For U.S. Football Clash With Kanto

(Special to The Japan Times)

KOBE, Feb. 11—The gridiron stars of the Kanto will meet the cream of the players from the Kansai in the first international all-star American football game to be played at the Meiji Shrine grounds or the Korakuen stadium in Tokyo on Sunday, March 13 under the auspices of the Tokyo Inter-college American Football League.

The Kanto team will be composed of many "nisei" stars who have made names for themselves in this sport, and other stars who have learned the game here, whereas the Kansai team will include a few 'nisei,' foreigners who have taken up the game here and those experienced in the States, and a number of Kansai University stalwarts.

A keen encounter is expected inasmuch as this is to be the first game of its sort.

Coach Ray Uyeshima has announced the following candidates for the Kansai Aggression line-up:

Brundage Supports Tokyo In Staging '40 Olympic Games

By The Domei Tsushin Sha

NEW YORK, Feb. 11—Avery Brundage, chairman of the American Olympic Association, answering a host of reporters at Chicago regarding what the U.S. intends to do regarding the mounting criticism against Japan, declared today that whatever feeling might exist in the United States of England against Japan's military operations in China, these acts did not constitute grounds for cancelling or refusing participation in the Olympics.

"The American Olympic Committee," he continued, "has consistently held the position that politics hasn't a place in amateur sports, which must always be kept free from distinctions as to color creed or class.

"Athletes should not consider race, religion, economic or political views of the people who play the host to the Olympics. The host merely provides the track and fields, ushers and seats . . . . it has no more to do with the work of the judges, referees, timers or the conduct of events than any visiting nation.

No More Voice Than U. S.

"Japan," he emphasized, "will have no more voice than the United States regards the 1940 Olympics." He expressed the belief that Japan is already going ahead with its plans and would surely carry them out.

"I received a cable last month from the Olympic Organizing Committee at Tokyo declaring that the China Incident would not interfere with the preparations of the Games. This clearly indicates that the sports authorities of Japan are proceeding according to their pledge."

Whether the U.S. Olympic Committee or the athletes like or dislike Japan's military policy, Mr. Brundage reiterated, is beyond the point.

"Our only concern is to be sure that Japan will be able to make and continue her preparations despite the present situation?" he concluded adding that American Olympic Committee will proceed with their plans until the International Olympic Committee decides otherwise.

Although the majority of the American Olympic Association are highly in favor of endorsing Japan for the 1940 Olympics, several prominent members of sports circles including Jeremiah T. Mahoney, past president of the Amateur Athletic Union, and William J. Bingham, former chairman of the American Olympic Track and Field Committee, are campaigning against the holding of the Olympics in Tokyo.

In view of the growing opposition in Europe against the staging of the contests in Japan, the American delegation, it is reported here, is expected to encounter some difficulty in demonstrating a complete separation between sports and politics.

More Positive Action Desired

Pro-Japanese members of the A.A.U. here are anxiously desiring a more positive attitude on the part of Tokyo regarding the Games preparations and just what plans the Japanese have in case the Sino-Japanese conflict is carried out for another six months or even longer.

One official declared that while Tokyo seems unenthusiastic after it had acquired the honor of staging the Olympiad, and although nobody has yet doubted Japan's sincerity to go through with the project, some people have suspected that the Olympic officials at Tokyo are over-optimistic because of their ignorance of the anti-Japanese tide heightening in all parts of the globe.

Nevertheless, A. A. U. officials here believe, he added, that the United States would not change its attitude toward Japan, provided that the Japanese are carrying out the preparations for the games to everyone's satisfaction.

The United States has turned down the Sydney A. A. U.'s request for American participation in the projected boycott of the 1940 Olympic Games at Tokyo, William Ferris, Secretary of the Amateur Athletic Union, told executives of the Union today.

Explaining that the request was made today by radio-telephone from Sydney where the British Empire Games Federation meeting is in progress, Mr. Ferris said that he told the Australians "the United States is not considering such move at all."

British A.A.U. Denies Decision To Boycott Tokyo

By The Domei Tsushin Sha

LONDON, Feb. 13—Disclaiming any responsibility for the interview given last Friday by H. F. Pash stating that the British Amateur Athletic Union had decided to boycott the 1940 Olympic Games at Tokyo, the A.A.U. today announced that any statements which have thus far been made by any one were entirely unofficial and without the sanction of the A.A.A.

The Union, however, refused to confirm or deny Mr. Pash's interview with the press, but added that a statement would be forthcoming soon. It is generally believed that the argument for non-participation in the Tokyo Games was thoroughly thrashed out in the general meeting at Chelmsford.

Meanwhile, with the British Olympic Association scheduled to hold its annual meeting here on Tuesday, officials of the B.O.A. today refused to make any statement regarding what the body would do with regard to the A.A.U.'s reported decision to bar its athletes from participating in the Games. Officials intimated that the boycott question is still premature for Britain has not yet been invited by the Japanese. Any decision will come only after Britain receives the invitation.

O.O.C. Holds Session

Preparing for the forthcoming meeting at Cairo of the International Olympic Committee, the 22nd regular session of the Tokyo Olympic Organizing Committee was held Monday at its headquarters. Present were Dr. Hiroshi Shimomura, vice-chairman of the O.O.C.; Dr. Jigoro Kano, chief Japanese delegate to Cairo; Count Michimasa Soyeshima, Japanese member of the I.O.C.; Ryozo Hifanuma, vice-president of the Japan Amateur Athletic Federation and member of the House of Peers; and other leaders of athletic, tourist and educational circles.

Dr. Shimomura formally presented J. Sigfrid Edstrom's letter, in which the Swedish member of the International Olympic Committee requested that the 1940 Olympic Games be held in the latter part of September on account of the Tokyo weather. It was said, however, that the O.O.C. has no power to change the date since the Warsaw I.O.C. session had decided that the Tokyo Olympiad be held at the end of August to early September, 1940. The O.O.C. members wished that the matter would be smoothly settled, although the Cairo meeting will again take up this matter for discussion.

Count Soyeshima, it was learned, showed numerous letters from influential leaders in England and America assuring him that political angles should not be mixed up with the Tokyo Olympic Games.

The members also discussed Olympic stadium and art competition matters.

A special committee for the construction of the Tokyo Olympic stadium will soon be added to the O.O.C., it was decided at its Monday's meeting at the general office.

Decision to make advance sales of the 1940 Olympic Games tickets from the coming year was one of the main decisions reached Monday by the Japan Amateur Athletic Federation in order to meet expenses of the Tokyo Olympic Organizing Committee, it was learned.

The regular session, which was held at the South Manchuria Railway building, was presided by Dr. Hiroshi Shimomura, president of the athletic body.

Meanwhile, it was also decided that a national drive for patron members of the J.A.A.F. with an annual membership fee of 100 yen will be started in order to strengthen the organization as well as to extend physical program, and a campaign for honorary membership will also be launched.

Recreation programs and physical training programs for general workers will be studied by the J.A.A.A. with the cooperation of the Public Welfare Ministry, it was also disclosed.

Australian Ski Experts Arrive To Show Skill

By The Domei Tsushin Sha

KOBE, Feb. 14—The phenomenal development in winter sports made during a decade will be shown with the visit of Peter Alburg and Walter E. Reed, Australian skiing experts, who arrived here today aboard the Canberra Maru.

They will visit Suganuma Nagano Prefecture and other ski centers, taking motion pictures.

They will return home aboard the Canberra Maru on March 1.

Coast Conference Backed On Survey

N.Y. Times

LOS ANGELES, Jan. 18—Member schools of the far flung Pacific Coast Conference pledged cooperation today and predicted long strides would be taken in the move toward meeting a ticklish problem—the subsidization of college athletics.

The program, which shapes up more as a survey of individual policies of the eight major conference institutions rather than an investigation of practices, may take a year or longer to complete.

Key figure of the survey is a former G-man and private investigator, Edwin N. Atherton, who already has started the work.

"The conference desires to improve its rules governing aid to athletes to the end that these rules may be reasonable and fair, and we have therefore appointed a committee to study the sources of income of conference athletes," said Hugh C. Willette, president of the conference and a professor at the University of Southern California

Frank Reports Asked

"The conference," he continued, "is urging all athletes interviewed by its official agent to give frank and complete statements regarding their source of income and regarding all forms of aid, financial or otherwise, which they may have received in the past.

"The purpose of the study is entirely constructive. I believe we are the first conference to employ an agent skilled in fact finding to make a through survey of this kind.

"From the results we expect to learn the basis for a revision of our rules, if need be, to make them just and workable for students who are self-supporting, or partially so, and whose opportunities for selfhelp may be limited by the time spent in athletics."

"I am in full accord with the ideals of this plan. I hope it succeeds," said Howard Jones, football coach at Southern California.

Coaches Support Plan

Similar expressions were made up and down the coast today.

Head Football Coach Leonard (Stub) Allison of California, remarked, "It's none of my business. The faculty put it in. My big concern is teaching boys how to play football as per my contract."

"If there is anything wrong with the Conference and this investigation will clear it up, I'm for it. Otherwise, I don't know what it's all about," added Coach Claude (Tiny) Thornhill of Stanford.

Head Coach Jimmy Phelan of Washington, said "The survey proves that the faculty is trying to show the public that it means business, and if anythings is wrong, will correct it. We at Washington are glad to see this action which is the first step toward establishing a commissioner's office."

Fonseca Makes New Friends For American League

NEW YORK, Jan. 15—One of the real secrets of the ascendancy of the roistering American Leaguers over their now hapless pals in the National dead ball loop, is a slicker from the Golden Gate who does his tricks with movies instead of mirrors.

For the third straight year, Lewis Albert Fonseca is on tour with his sound movies on baseball. Movies aren't exactly new, but you must see those projected on the screen by Producer Fonseca. His current production, "Batter Up," is so interesting it makes even the Giant fans forget there is any other big league except the American. In fact, the only time you see a National Leaguer in the movie is when the Americans are making their fine feathered friends look like rookies in a Class B loop.

Producer Fonseca, probably the greatest scout and missionary in baseball, traveled some 35,000 miles with his movie kit last year, showing his film before an estimated audience of more than a half million fans and kids. He shows it in schools, churches, dance halls and at all kinds of banquets and luncheons on a chance the pictures will fire somebody's imagination—certainly a bunch of new American League paying customers and maybe a youngster who'll become another Joe Di Maggio.

Fans Know Baseball

The 1938 edition made a lot of spectators sorry for the National League. The only well known National Leaguer present was Frank Frisch commander of the St. Louis Cardinals.

Lew has a lot of fun on his journeys up and down the land talking of the American League's might.

"You fellows in the city think you know baseball, but you're just fair," says the director of the infant baseball movie business. "Why, those fellows you think are country hicks could stump most of you. I pride myself on my knowledge of the rules and riddles of the game, but I get stumped almost every time I lay myself open to questions."

Lew told one on himself. "At Battle Creek, Mich., where I set a record by showing seven times in one day, a fellow asked me a riddle. If there were runners on first and second and no one out, and the batter hit a ball that caromed off the first baseman's head and hit one of the runners, what would be the situation? That's what he wanted to know. I should have known that all runners would be safe, but I hesitated a bit, asking the interrogator for a few minutes to think it over. Did he give it to me? Not much! With a look of disdain on his face, he stalked out of the hall."

Fonseca a Veteran

Lew under some pressure, admitted there are a few National League fans left in the country.

"Some try to heckle me, but I'm an experienced trouper, you know. One sure way to get them feeling good is my story of how I made the front page of the newspapers on three separate occasions. The first time was when I won the American League batting championship. Next was when I was named manager of the White Sox, and the third (and last) time was when I got fired by the White Sox."

Lew is just the man for the movie business because he's really been through the mill as a duffer, star, manager and a ball player. He was cut out for the stage, too. As a lad in San Francisco, he was preparing for the stage as a singer when someone induced him to try baseball. Once his vocal ability netted him a raise. When he was with Cincinnati, he sang in vaudeville to pick up some change during the winter months. His boss, the late Garry Herrmann, heard him.

"Ach!" said Herrmann, "a man who can sing like that needs more money." And he gave Lou a $1000 raise.

Dutch Mermaid Sets Up New World Record In 400 M. Backstroke

By The Domei Tsushin Sha

AMSTERDAM, Feb. 13—Negotiating the 400-meters backstroke event in 5 minutes 41.4 seconds, Miss Anna Van Segglem today set a new world record for the distance, breaking the old mark held by the famous Danish swimmer, Miss Ragnhild Hveger, by 3.1 seconds. The record was set in a standard-size pool.

Medwick Rejects Cards' Pay Offer

ST. PETERSBURG, Fla., Jan. 17—Outfielder Joe Medwick of the had reluctantly joined the early St. Louis Cardinals said today he season baseball hold-outs despite his club's voluntary offer of a rise in pay.

Medwick was voted the "most valuable player" in the National League last season, but said he based his claim for more money on his record as the league's champion batter.

Joe received his contract from the Cardinals Saturday. He said today he had returned it unsigned. It carried an increase in salary, but Medwick thought the rise was not enough. He declined to say how much he received last year and how great an increase had been offered for 1938.

Hold-Out Explains Stand

"While I greatly appreciate the honor accorded to me as the 'most valuable player' in the league," he said, "I want it understood that my salary demands are based upon my actions on the field and I feel that I am entitled to a substantial increase over last year."

At St. Louis, General Manager Branch Rickey of the Cardinals said Medwick never had been hard to sign during his major league career.

Marquette Boats League Of Nations Basketball Squad

MILWAUKEE, Jan.—(INS)—Marquette university's "League of Nations" basketball team has aroused so much comment that an itemization has been requested.

Glenn (Sparky) Adams and Erwin (Mouse) Graf, first-string forwards, are English and German, respectively. Paul Sokody, high-scoring center, is Hungarian. The guards, Dave Quabius and George Hesik, are Norwegian and Bohemian, respectively. Bobby Deneen is an Irish forward, and Al Cofone, an Italian troubleshooter.

William Hughes is a Welshman; George Belhumeur, French, Joe Gresik, Polish; George Kuker, a Slav; Bob Mullen, Irish; Ralph Amsden, English, and Dan Koster and Bill Staffeld, Germans.

Golf Caddying May Be Barred To Minors In U.S.

NEW York, Jan. 21—The golfer of the future may have to tote his own clubs or make sure in advance that his bag-carrier is more than 16 years old.

Led by the New York State Department of Labor, various states are seeking to include caddying among the types of employment barred to minors 16 or under. Leaders of the opposition are Morton L. Bogue and Charles W. Littlefield of New York, past and present general counsel to the United States Golf Association.

A revision of the New York State labor statutes, substituting the phrase "performance of service" for "occupation for gain" in the list of unlawful employment for minors not holding employment certificates, affected caddying.

"I believe that child welfare legislation should be directed primarily at harmful employment," Bogue said today. "Naturally, there should be restrictions against having youngsters work in plants or places where they are subjected to a harmful environment.

"But after all, a boy who totes my golf bag this afternoon—and don't forget that the 14-club rule has made it lighter—tomorrow morning probably will be carrying his own and playing golf at the same time. Furthermore, caddying is no more arduous and just as healthful as working on a farm—and farm work is exempted under the present law.

"There are two means by which remedial action can be taken. Either the legislature can exempt caddies from the child labor law, or the Department of Labor can remedy the difficulty itself by the application of reason to the interpretation of the law."

Right now, the department is pursuing a diametrically opposite course. Its representatives have written to and visited numerous clubs in the metropolitan area to see if younger caddies have employment certificates.

The Federal Government and 47 of the 48 states—New York excepted—do not require clubs to include caddies when filling unemployment census and social security figures, and thus do not regard them as employes.

Bogue and Littlefield already have addressed themselves to child welfare officials in Albany, and there is a strong likelihood that the State Department of Labor shortly will bring up a test case, probably involving the Deepdale (Long Island) Golf Club, of which both Bogue and John G. Jackson, retired U. S. G. A. president, are members.

Kawazu Wins Backstroke Title Of Philippines

Kentaro Kawazu, one of Japan's best known backstroke stars, won the 100-meter backstroke championship of the Philippines on Monday at Manila when he defeated Saramal after a nip and tuck race. His time was 1 minute 15.7 seconds. Kawazu went from Taiwan to compete.

Raab, Ohio State Back, Ruled Out By Big Ten

COLUMBUS, Ohio, Jan. 15—Francis A. Schmidt, coach of Ohio State University, said today a Big Ten committee had ruled Johnny Raab, star fullback, was ineligible for further competition because he participated in two games while a freshman at Fordham University.

The committee overrode Ohio State's contention that Raab had not participated in collegiate competition while at Fordham because the Eastern contests were against prep school elevens.

In six games last season before a knee injury benched him, Raab carried the ball sixty-five times for 324 yards.

"It's quite a blow, naturally," Schmidt said, "for to me it seemed that Johnny was due for his greatest season in 1938."

The Tent Tomb

Sir Richard Burton (1821-1890), famous English traveler, linguist and author, translater of the "Arabian Nights," and first European to reach Mecca, is buried at Mortlake, England. His tomb is a marble tent, surmounted by a nine-pointed golden star. The interior of the tomb is hung with camel bells which the traveler collected during his travels. A remarkable tomb for a most remarkable man.

America Cancels Trip Promised Japanese Swimmers This Year

Project No. 1 of the Japan Amateur Swimming Federation for 1938—visit of an all-star Japanese team to the United States—has gone by the boards.

A request that the contracting parties in the United States be released from the invitation extended last year and formally accepted by the local Federation has been received in a cable from Coach Bob Kiphuth, who headed the American swimming delegation to the Olympic Games in Berlin in 1936.

Accordingly, directors of the Federation met Tuesday night at its headquarters and revised its schedule of the national championships for the year and discussed plans with the view to development of a strong team for the 1940 Games. The schedule is to be announced after approval at the extraordinary meeting of the directors on February 27.

Reason for the cancellation of the Japanese team's visit, according to the Asahi this morning, is fear on the part of the Los Angeles Chamber of Commerce, which has been making plans for the appearance of the Japanese swimmers, that anti-Japanese feeling in the United States has become so intensified as to necessitate canceling the project for the time being.

No Japanese swimming delegation has gone to the United States since the 1932 Olympic Games at Los Angeles when the Japanese startled the world by making a clean sweep in the men's racing events except the 400 meter free-style which Clarence (Buster) Crabbe, a Honolulu boy and now a motion picture actor in Hollywood, won for the United States.

Leiber, Of Giants, Stages His Annual Holdout Act

PHOENIX, Ariz., Jan. 22—Hank Leiber, New York Giants outfielder, joined the holdout ranks for the third consecutive year today when he returned his contract unsigned. Leiber said he was not satisfied with the terms.

Early Grace, who caught for the Philadelphia nationals last season, said he had not decided whether he would play this season. Grace was traded to the St. Louis Cardinals, who assigned him to their Columbus American Association farm.

Amateur Boxing Team To Exhibit In Kyushu

The Japan Amateur Boxing Association will send a selected team to Kyushu for development of the sport there.

The program follows: February 17 at Hakata; February 18 at Sasebo; February 19 at Kumamoto; February 20 at Kagoshima; and February 23 at Wakamatsu.

The team will make an appearance at Hiroshima on February 27 and return to Tokyo on March 1.

It will be the second trip sponsored by the Association.

Grant Calls Riggs Best Net Prospect

CORAL GABLES, Fla., Jan.—(INS)—Take it from Bryan "Bitsy" Grant, Atanta's bit of tennis dynamite, this boy Bobby Riggs, Chicago, in time will be regarded as one of the world's greatest netters.

And "Bitsy," who has played them all, should know.

Grant, who again won the annual Miami Biltmore Men's Tennis Championships, in which he was defending titleholder—a crown he won last year from Donald Budge in an upset finals—is confident Riggs is the greatest American prospect to come forward in many a year.

"He will never have the finishing off shots that Don Budge uses," commented the Atlantan; "but he is the 'thinkingest' player I have ever met. He thinks his shots out in advance like a fellow who had been playing the topnotchers for years. I have never seen a youngster like him on the courts. I don't see how he can miss being great. He's good now, but mark my word, he'll be regarded as great in a year or so."

Grant went on to explain that Riggs plays a vastly different type of tennis than Don Budge's game. "Don overpowers 'em, commented Bitsy. "He's got the powerful finishing shots and the physique to back them up. Riggs could never be that type player. Bobby resembles more the European type that for ten years have made it miserable for U.S. players. He plays strictly a back-court game. But how he plays it."

The Atlantan was perfectly satisfied with the new ranking list. "I deserved no better than No. 4 the way I played last year," he argued, "I hope I can better that this year but these legs are a year older. I have to be faster with my thinking to make up for any apparent slowing up in my legs which are my chief asset in court covering. Riggs deserved that No. 2 spot they gave him and he and Budge should make a great Davis Cup combination."

Grant also had a word of praise for Frank Kovacs, gangling Oakland, Cal., youth who played in the tournament here. "He's got the build and the strokes," he commented. "In addition he's only 18 years old and will be plenty tough in another year."

Boxing Experts Think Bud Baer Better Than Max

By LAWTON CARVER
International News Service

NEW YORK, Jan.—(INS)—Many competent boxing critics express the opinion that Buddy Baer, a comparative novice, is a better fighter right now than his older brother Max Baer ever was at the height of his career, and a further test of the 250-pounder youngster will be presented in March when he goes up against Gunnar Barlund.

The latter, a Finn who fought for his country in the 1932 Olympic Games, is not the greatest fighter in the world by any stretch of the imagination, but he is a corking good trial horse. If Buddy can beat Barlund he will have advanced a very big and impressive step up the pugilistic ladder.

Lawton Carver

That Manager Ancil Hoffman, who led Max to the world heavyweight championship, has plenty of confidence in Buddy is shown by the fact that he recently turned down a shot with Joe Louis and all that it would mean in a financial way.

"Buddy is not ready yet for Louis," Hoffman said and that end that.

The Louis fight was the prize proposed for the winner of the Buddy Baer-Eddie Hogan bout, and Buddy earned it with one of the most sensational knockouts in months, only to be kept away from Louis until such time as he is sufficiently seasoned for such fast company.

Even the fact that if he had been permitted to meet Louis he would be getting a crack at the heavyweight title could not nudge Hoffman into acceptance of the bout. As a result, Nathan Mann gets the shot scheduled for February 23.

The younger of the Baers stands 6 feet 6½ inches and apparently has everything to make for fistic greatness—some boxing skill, plenty of heart, ambition, a suddenly developed coolness under fire and a right hand punch that would drop a steer.

His punch was never displayed to better advantage than in his fight with Hogan, who was lifted from the floor, jacknifed in the air and dropped on the back of his neck with a blow that might have sent a smaller man hurtling over the ropes. Hogan is no baby himself, standing well above six feet and weighing 225.

The two big differences between Buddy and Max centers around their attitude toward boxing and their punching style. Max always treated boxing as a huge joke in contrast to Buddy's earnestness, and the former was a long swinger with his right—a potent one, to be sure, but still a swinger. Buddy hits short and straight and generally with deadly results.

Anyhow, about two or three more fights will indicate where he is headed.

Kongo Fights Atsumi At Hibiya Hall, Feb. 25

Eiichi Atsumi of Hamamatsu, who recently fought to a draw with the veteran, Isamu Ito, will meet Iwao Kongo, sensational flyweight of the Usuda Boxing Club, in the main event over eight rounds on Friday evening, February 25, at the Hibiya Public Hall auditorium.

In his most recent appearance, Kongo fought Kurazo Takami of the Nichibei Boxing Club and despite a more than 10 pound weight disadvantage, was the aggressor all the way through and should have won the decision. It was called a draw. Interesting point in the forthcoming bout is whether Kongo will be able to knock out the up and coming Atsumi.

Tetsu Yamaoka of the Kikusui Club will meet Yukito Tanaka of the Usuda Club in the other eight rounder double main event.

There will be four six rounders and two four round preliminaries on the card which is to be held under the auspices of the Usuda Boxing Club.

Pitchers Over 6 Ft. Headed For Majors

NEW YORK.—(INS)—One dozen pitchers towering well above 6 feet stand out as a leading feature of the army of young players mobilizing for spring training at National League camps. Not in years has a major league training season loomed so bright in promise for the eight managers of baseball's senior major circuit.

The success of Cliff Melton, the Giant's gigantic southpaw last year in his first full term as a major leaguer, doubtless had a lot to do with inspiring this trend in the selection of material for the National League twirling staffs of 1938. The notable absence of trading within the National League over the winter has been due mainly to the intensive work going on in each club's organization toward marshalling the strongest array of new talent from the minor leagues ever gathered together by one league in one training season.

Buck Marrow, brought up from Louisville by Brooklyn last fall, and Andy Sierra, Pirate southpaw rookie from Gainesville, lead the league's new men-at-arms in altitude, each rearing his rugged brow 6 feet 4 inches above teeleval. Max (Lefty) Macon, of the Cardinals, lacks only an inch of equaling them in feet and inches.

These three behemoths top the record herd of hefty moundsmen in linear extension upward from the sod. Newel Kimball, back with the Cubs after a farm-out season with Milwaukee, stands 6 feet 2½ inches without spikes, as does also Hy Vandenburg, Giants' man-at-arms from Baltimore.

The youths who can give the 6-feet mark a 2-inch handicap in a measuring contest are Earl Allen and Tom Reis, of the Phils, Morton Cooper, of the Cardinals and Doc Epperly, Cubs. New York's Duke Benne and Philadelphia's Bill Ehrensberger each stand an inch and a half above 6 feet, while Boston's Dick Errickson, 6:01, rounds out the dozen doughty destroyers whose aim is fame and fortune in the ranks of 1938 varsity men-at-arms with National League forces.

Tokyo Told A.O.A. In Firm Support Of Tokyo Games

In spite of the reported boycotting agitation in Great Britain and in the Dominions, the American Olympic Association stands in firm support of Tokyo in staging the 12th Olympic Games, according to a letter Russel L. Durgin, honorary secretary of the Tokyo Y. M. C. A. has received from G. T. Kirby treasurer of the American Olympic Association.

Mr. Kirby's letter follows in part:

"On January 6 and 8, there was a meeting of the Executive Committee of the American Olympic Association. Somehow or other the rumor got around Japan that the American Olympic Committee and President Brundage were not in favor of the Games being held in Tokyo and would join in a boycott against such Games to be held there. This rumor was of course unfounded, while we have had and undoubtedly will continue to have some boycotting or attempts at boycotting of Japanese goods by reason of sympathizers with China and some because of a genuine reaction against Japan, and others because they are always for the under-dog there has never been a discussion within the Olympic ranks as to our not going to Japan.

Politics Not An Issue

"I really believe that at last we have gotten over to the people of the United States that participation in the Olympic Games does not mean voicing or otherwise evidencing our approval or disapproval of the policies, politics or position of the country in which the Games are being held. As I have put it many times, my going to a Jewish Synagogue or Roman Catholic Church as I do from time to time to attend a wedding, funeral or other function, does not make me either a Jew or a Roman Catholic or in sympathy with or against their doctrines. In point of fact, I believe that politically more and more our people are beginning to believe that our business is our own business and not that of the rest of the world, that we are becoming more and more pro-American and less and less anti-German or anti-Japanese or anti-anyone else. For example, only a few days ago I showed some motion pictures of the 1936 Olympic Games before a college group at Trenton, New Jersey, and I told them just about what I have said in regard to location of the Games not being of importance, pointed out to them what a Great job Germany had done for the 1936 Games and how, if Hitler had a tail, nobody saw it, but on the contrary saw a very kindly, enthusiastic, well disposed sportsman and gentleman, and I was very much surprised and delighted when that part of the picture was shown where Hitler entered with Baillet-Latour and in a very kindly and fatherly manner received a bouquet from a little girl, that my audience actually cheered.

"But in any event, Brundage cabled to the Japanese Olympic Committee to the effect that there was nothing in these rumors and on Saturday we had a cablegram from the Japanese Olympic Committee to the effect that the preparations for the Games were going on and that they would be held and that the Japan-China conflict would make no difference therewith.

Sees End of Conflict

"Knowing my Orient fairly well, I personally am rather inclined to believe that by 1939 Japan and China will come to some understanding as to territorial acquisition, form of government, and economic and trade arrangements. If this be so, such feeling as there is in this country and elsewhere will certainly die down before 1940 and the Games should be a great success. And what is true as to the Games will be even truer as to the Recreation Congress for even wars should make no difference as to the holdings of these Congresses which have behind them the heart-throb of the world for a saner, better life."

Hina Matsuri

Once again the march of the seasons brings around one of Japan's most picturesque fetes—Hina Matsuri, or The Dolls' Festival. In keeping with the traditional observation of the festival, Mitsukoshi is now featuring an which will continue until March 2. Hina Matsuri is not a mere toy carnival—it is part and parcel of a Japanese child's up-bringing, intended through the medium of dolls to inculcate ancestral respect and to teach the virtues of harmony and domestic happiness . . . A particular invitation is extended our foreign friends to visit the Exhibition.

No Decision Taken By British O.A. On '40 Olympics

By The Domei Tsushin Sha

LONDON, Feb. 15—During a half-public, half-private annual general meeting here tonight, the British Olympic Association discussed "the matter of the Tokyo Olympic Games, but in view of the fact that it is the International Olympic Committee which decides on the venue, no resolution was submitted," a spokesman declared to newspapermen.

When the meeting convened, newspapermen were allowed to listen to the proceedings, but shortly before 6:30, Dr. G. A. Lowe, honorary secretary of the Amateur Athletic Association, rose and said, "I don't want to embarrass anybody, so I will ask the press to leave the room." Seven pressmen, including the correspondent of Domei, were obliged to leave the session which was continued in camera.

45 Minutes In Camera

After more than 45 minutes of secret discussion, the session adjourned and sent a spokesman to see the banished reports. The spokesman admitted that the question of the Olympic Games at Tokyo had been discussed, but in view of the fact that there is a meeting of the I. O. C. at Cairo in March, and since the I. O. C. must decide the venue of the games, no resolution was submitted at the meeting.

Before the newspapermen were ousted, Lord Burghley, British member of the International Olympic Committee, and H. F. Pash, member of the general committee of the British A.A.U., were reported to have had an argument as to whether a boycott of the Tokyo Games should or should not be discussed.

Lord Burghley declared during the heated debate, "Everyone will realize this difficult situation. The I.O.C. is due to meet at Cairo next month and I do think that it will serve no useful purpose to have any discussion of the matter at the present time. The various individual views of the Associations are well known to the I.O.C. members from this country. I think I would prefer to leave it at that."

Mr. Pash, it is understood, also suggested an advance in the date for the Cairo meeting in order to enable London, or whatever city is to replace Tokyo, to begin preparations as soon as possible.

Pash Called To Account

Calling to account Mr. Pash who is reported to have made violent remarks concerning the inadvisability of Tokyo as the venue for the next Olympiad, Dr. Lowe requested that Mr. Pash refrain from further discussions of a possible boycott of Tokyo.

It is understood that the majority of attending members, during the secret session, strongly opposed the severe suggestions made by Mr. Pash condemning such action as at least premature in view of the fact that a formal invitation has not been received.

Princeton Stars Clip 2 Records In Swim Meet

N.Y. Herald Tribune

PRINCETON, N. J., Jan. 22—Princeton's varsity swimmers broke two national intercollegiate records and took seven of nine first places in routing Cornell, 54-to-21, in the main attraction of an eight-event sports program this afternoon. Yale defeated Princeton, 5-to-4, in squash racquets in the other varsity event.

Al VanDeWeghe provided the fireworks in the swimming meet, as he churned to a new mark of 1:35.7 in the 150-yard backstroke and a half hour later turned in a 1:00.4 for the opening leg in the 300-yard medley relay in which the Bengal trio of VanDeWeghe, Dick Hough and Captain Jim Simpson set a new standard of 2:56.2.

VanDeWeghe won his specialty by fifteen yards from Mel Blessing, of Cornell. His performance lowered his own old figures of 1:36.4.

In the medley the Olympic star handed Hough an eighteen-yard lead, which the breast stroker increased to fifty-five yards with a sparkling 1:01.6 century, and Simpson added another ten yards to the margin with a sound 0:54.2 in the free style hundred. The time eclipsed the figures of 2:57.4 set by Cummin, Jameson and Hutter, of Harvard, at Cambridge last February.

Bissell, of Yale, defeated Norm Hayes, 15-10, 15-9, 13-16, 18-15, in the deciding squash racquet match after Princeton had won the first four matches.

The Princeton wrestling team whitewashed Pennsylvania, 34 to 0, for its seventeenth straight dual meet victory tonight. The Tigers registered five falls. Mouse Amory, captain, required two overtime periods to defeat Benn Ruggerio in the closest match of the evening.

The Princeton freshman hockey, swimming and wrestling outfits triumphed as the first year basketball forces fell, 30-to-27, before Hun School. The Tiger Jayvee hockey team downed the Crescent A. C., but the J. V. pololsts lost, 19-to-15, to undefeated Lawrenceville.

The summaries:

Swift Counter-Action Urged To Check Venue Shift Of 1940 Games

By The Domei Tsushin Sha

NEW YORK, Feb. 15—Japan must take swift counter-measures if she wants to forestall the attempt of some officials of the British Olympic Committee to transfer the 1940 Olympiad from Tokyo to Europe, possibly to London, pro-Japanese sports observers declared here today.

Although Japan has sufficient reasons to insist on staging the 1940 contests in view of the fact that the I.O.C. itself had legitimately given Tokyo the right, an extremely complicated situation for both Japan and the International Olympic Committee will arise if the Japanese do not take measures to prevent Britain from making a formal suggestion at the I.O.C. meeting next month to transfer the venue of the Games, these circles predicted.

There has arisen among American sport circles some opposition to the principle of absolute isolation of sports from politics as has been consistently advocated by Avery Brundage, chairman of the American Olympic Committee. One of the leaders of the opposition is Jeremiah T. Mahoney, former president of the A.O.C. who took exception to the staging of the 1936 Olympic Games in Berlin because of the anti-Semitic practices of the Nazi regime.

Pro Ball Teams To Begin Practice

Before the end of the month, all seven teams of the Japanese Professional Baseball Federation will have started their spring training for the 1938 ball season.

First to rouse themselves from the inactiveness during the cold winter were members of the Osaka Hankyus at the Takarazuka grounds at Osaka on February 12. The Tokyo Giants left for the Shizuoka ball grounds on Tuesday and will commence full fledged training on Sunday.

Nineteen members of the Eagles started indoor workouts at the Y. M. C. A. gymnasium at Kanda Wednesday afternoon and will continue until February 22 after which the team will go into active training at Odawara on February 23.

The Osaka Tigers, champions for 1937, began limbering up their muscles on February 13 at the gymnasium at the Koshien stadium.

Nagoya, Nagoya Dolfins and the Senators are expected to get into action before the end of the month.

Columbia Books Tulane For 1939 Football Game

Columbia University will meet Tulane in an intersectional football clash in New York, November 18, 1939, it was announced recently. The game, a slight departure from the Lions' all-Ivy 1938 schedule, will probably be played at Baker Field.

Tulane will be the first Louisiana eleven ever to meet Columbia. Other 1939 rivals already scheduled for the Lions include Princeton and Army.

Armstrong Stops Venturi In Sixth Before 12,500 Fans

By JAMES P. DAWSON

N.Y. Times

NEW YORK, Jan. 13—Was he fouled or was he knocked out?

Some 12,500 fight fans left Madison Square Garden last night asking this question after Henry Armstrong, the fighting flash from the Pacific Coast who holds the world's featherweight crown, had gained credit for a knockout over Enrico Venturi, agile Italian, in the sixth round of what was to have been the ten-round feature in the Eighth Avenue arena.

The finish came after 2 minutes 49 seconds of the session. Venturi, pressed and harried, shaken and staggered, and on one occasion floored cleanly under a right to the jaw which sent him to his fingertips, went down under Armstrong's right dig to the body, claiming foul. Venturi's face was contorted in pain under the blow, one of the many Armstrong's flailing arms drove to the mid-section.

Referee Arthur Donovan rushed between the pair and warned Armstrong for fouling. Automatically that warning recognized a foul and took from Armstrong in its last few seconds a round he had won on action.

But when Venturi sank in his own ccorner and stretched full length on his back, Referee Donovan turned from warning Armstrong, motioned Frank Fullam, knockdown time keeper, to start a count, and proceeded to count ten over the prostrate Venturi, who made not a move to regain his feet.

No Alternative for Referee

To the writer the punch which ended the fight seemed fair. Referee Donovan's warning was official recognition of a foul, however, but when Venturi went down to the ring floor, Donovan had no alternative but to count and give Armstrong a knockout victory. It was the second such defeat Venturi has suffered in his career and the first of which the Italian has been a victim in an American ring. Justo Suarez scored the other in South America nine years ago.

Promoter Mike Jacobs of the Twentieth Century S. C., who staged the bout, announced following the ending he had been instructed by the State Athletic Commission to withhold Venturi's money pending an investigation. Dr. William H. Walker, commission physician examined Venturi after the affair and announced he found no traces of a foul blow.

Armstrong's title was not at stake in this battle, a savage, furious one while it lasted, because the featherweight limit of 126 pounds was ignored by both fighters. Armstrong weighed 134½ pounds and Venturi 137¾ pounds.

On action up to the sixth round Armstrong had all the better of the argument. He won four of the first five sessions, dropping only the second, in which Venturi outboxed him smartly.

Armstrong Presses Action

For the rest, it was all Armstrong. He pressed the action from the moment when, before the echo of the first bell died, he looped a right to Venturi's jaw which came from nowhere with consequent surprise and made the Italian blink.

Near the end of the first round Armstrong shook Venturi to his hoels. After being outboxed in the second the victor came back in the third, pushed in contemptuously against Venturi's best blows and several times grazed the Italian's jaw with powerful rights. In one clinch Venturi emerged claiming a foul, which was ignored.

For most of the fourth Venturi outboxed his foe, but Armstrong never was swerved from his set purpose. He was after a knockout and never stopped trying.

Down Like A Shot

When the fourth had but twenty seconds to go, Armstrong's right flashed from his hips, crashed against the jaw of Venturi and the Italian went down like a shot. Venturi was up before a count could be started and Armstrong was after him for the kill. But the bell rang before the chance presented itself, and though he chased his rival through the fifth, Armstrong didn't get a chance to land another vital blow.

Through the sixth Armstrong continued to chase his foe. Not all of Armstrong's punches landed, but he rocked Venturi with a right and a left to the jaw. Near Venturi's corner Armstrong banged home his right for the body, which ended the battle.

The paid attendance was 11,947 and the gross receipts were $32,433.

Filipino Wrestlers, Boxers To Arrive On May 1 For Exhibition

Five boxing and four wrestling champions will be invited from the Philippine Commonwealth to this country jointly by the Japan Amateur Boxing Federation and the All-Japan Amateur Wrestling Association.

The Filipinos are scheduled to sail from Manila aboard the N.Y.K. liner Kumo Maru on April 20 according to the present plan, and will arrive at Kobe on May 1.

The schedule adopted follows: May 7 at Tokyo; May 11 at Nagoya; May 14 at Osaka; and May 21 at Keijo.

Advance Ticket Demand Heavy For Auto Race

Christian Science Monitor

INDIANAPOLIS, Ind., Jan. 13—The big guns of Indianapolis spoke out with an international roar this week for renewal of racing in the 26th annual 500-mile contest next May 30th.

First, T. E. (Pop) Myers, veteran general manager of the speed show, announced that the ticket sale had opened and that the advance demand already was greater than ever before.

Then, Ted Allen, secretary of the Contest Board of the American Automobile Association, which sponsors the speed classic, declared that under new International rules in force at Indianapolis this year, a faster and more spectacular race than ever before will be witnessed.

Shaw vs. Hepburn

The speed fans of Indianapolis already have started their visitations to the huge amphitheater on whose 2½-mile circular course the greatest drivers have roared to fame for the past quarter century. They saw again Wilbur Shaw, the doughty little speed king who captured the 1937 classic and established a new all-time speed record of 113.580 miles per hour, and Ralph Hepburn, fighting it out mile after mile with Shaw finally emerging the victor by a scant two seconds.

On the records, and in the thoughts of the spectators, the 1937 race went down as the closest and most exciting in all the history of the grim red bricks where fame and fate ride hand in hand. Hepburn's average was 113.565 miles an hour, and furiously behind him came Ted Horn, blond bombshell of California, followed by the great money-driver, Louis Meyer.

Adopt International Rules

International rules adopted this year by Indianapolis mark a radical change in design, experts concede. Instead of the huge 366 cubic inch engines permitted last year, a maximum of 274 cubic inches displacement without superchargers, and 183 inches with superchargers will be allowed. Thus smaller motors with increase power will propel the sleek-nosed racing creations in the 1938 race.

Although two-man cars will be permitted, it seems almost certain this will be one-man car racing, with every driving star in his own. Riding mechanics, courageous little comrades of racing aces, must sit on the sidelines or take their places in the pits. This is the first return to one-man cars under Indianapolis rules since 1929, the year that Ray Keech roared to victory, with Louis Meyer a close second.

Latvis Stars As Williams Routs McGill Five, 41-27

WILLIAMSTOWN, Mass., Jan. 22—Captain Mike Latvis led the Williams basketball team to a 41-to-27 victory over McGill's five tonight. The Purple captain and Pete Seay, diminutive forward, scored ten and seven points respectively while Chipley sunk six field goals to head the Canadians.

Wrestling Coach At Oklahoma Given High Praise

Christian Science Monitor

STILLWATER, Okla., Jan. 21—Startling records have been run up in the history of American intercollegiate athletics; and when a survey is made on the basis of all-time records against all kinds of national and international competition the 22-year coaching performance of Edward Clark Gallagher on the wrestling mats of Oklahoma A. and M. College here deserves special mention.

Saturday night at Manhattan, Kan., Coach Gallagher's Cowboy varsity wrestling team begins its 1938 campaign against Kansas State College, runnerup for the Big Six Conference team championship in 1937, with high hopes of furthering Gallagher's unique coaching record which has resulted so far in 112 victories, 5 defeats, and 4 ties.

That is the mark Ed. Gallagher has stamped in the books since he first slipped a pair of overalls on a husky, sunburned Oklahoma farm lad back in 1916 and shoved him onto a makeshift mat. Included in Gallagher's 22-year record are six Southwest Conference championships, first in 1917, and successively from 1920 through 1925; Missouri Valley Conference titles from 1925 through 1928; and National A.A.U. titles in 1925, 1927, 1931, 1935 and 1936.

National College Titles

With the establishment of the national intercollegiate tournament, the Aggies won the first three titles in 1928, 1929, and 1930. The team title was then abolished, but the Cowboys took the unofficial title in 1931 and 1933. Indiana, unofficially, was best in 1932. Since the reestablishment of the team title, the Ags romped in winners again in 1934, 1935, and 1937. The University of Oklahoma was champion in 1936.

Under Gallagher the Aggies have wound up their dual meet season undefeated against the pick of the nation's teams 16 times in 20 years. Over a period of 12 seasons, from 1921 to 1932, the Cowboy matmen ran up a string of 70 straight wins.

A. and M. first took to the mats in 1915, one year previous to Gallagher's arrival in Stillwater as mat coach. In a combination wrestling and gymnastic meet the Cowboys downed O. U., although no score is available.

Track and Grid Star

Gallagher, a track and grid star here in his undergraduate days, became interested in wrestling in 1916, but his team bowed to the University of Texas in the only meet of that year. There were no intercollegiate matches during the war years of 1918 and 1919, but the brilliant rise of A and M. in the mat world began immediately after the armistice.

Of the five defeats the Gallaghermen have suffered, two came in 1921 and Iowa State down the Aggies, on a road trip that saw Nebraska and another at Weatherford last spring with Southwestern Teachers being the victors. The only loss ever suffered at home was in 1932 when Oklahoma lefeated the Aggies 13½ to 12½.

Before that reversal at the hands of Coach Paul Keen, himself a former Aggie mat star, the Cowboys had won 70 consecutive matches against crack teams of the country, including Navy and West Virginia of the East, Indiana and Iowa State of the Midwest, and the powerful southwestern clubs of Kansas, Oklahoma and Texas.

Average 25 Points a Match

One hundred and twenty-one times the Aggies have vaulted into the canvas corral for Ed Gallagher, amassing a total of 3107 points to their opponents' 764. The all-time average gives the Aggies 25 points per match to their opponent' 6. The best record of any team was that of 1929 which scored 244 points to opponents' 27 in nine matches. Teams of 1931 and 1935 won double championships, taking both the national intercollegiate and national A.A.U. titles.

One of Gallagher's greatest teams was that of 1931, which carried five national champions in the lineup. It was that squad which turned back Kansas by a perfect score of 4 to 0, winning eight straight falls in a match that required only 28 minutes of elapsed time from the moment the first man climbed into the ring until the referee raised Conrad Caldwell's hand to signify a victory in the heavyweight bout.

Gallagher has turned out 29 intercollegiate belt-holders and the same member of national A. A. U. champions. In addition, he has landed 15 men on the American Olympic teams of 1924, 1928, 1932 and 1936. Three of his boy have won world's titles in the Olympics.

"BELIEVE IT OR NOT"---by Ripley

The Blind Boatbuilder

John B. Herreshoff (1841-1915) was engaged in the construction of his first boat, the "Meteor," when he became completely blind at the age of 15 (1855). After a few months of despondency, he took a new hold on life and completed the boat very successfully. He subsequently became a boat and yachtbuilder of great renown, and constructed the 5 American Cup Defenders of 1892, 1895, 1899, 1901 and 1903.

On one occasion a South American country commissioned Herreshoff with the very intricate construction of 3 torpedo boats. The blind boatbuilder made the elaborate cost calculations, on which he based his bid, within 20 minutes.

Alexander Is Latest Added To Baseball's Hall Of Fame

By JOHN DREBINGER

N.Y. Times

NEW YORK, Jan. 19—Receiving 81 per cent of a record vote, in addition to being the only one to receive the necessary 75 per cent, Grover Cleveland Alexander, famous National League pitcher for a score of years, became the latest diamond immortal to have his name added to baseball's Hall of Fame at Cooperstown, N.Y. Announcement of Alexander's selection was made yesterday by the Hall of Fame Elections Committee, which had just completed tabulating the Baseball Writers Association's third annual pote.

A total of 262 ballots was cast, thereby making 197 the minimum figure eligible for choice. Alexander's vote was 212.

Three other stars of past years fell slightly under the required 75 per cent. These were George Sister, brilliant first baseman of the Browns in the last decade, who received 179; Wee Willie Keeler, famous outfielder of the old Orioles and later the New York Highlanders, who polled 177, and Eddie Collins, one-time star second baseman of the Athletics and White Sox and now business manager of the Red Sox, who placed fourth with 175.

Others to receive more than 100 votes were Rube Waddell, Connie Mack's eccentric left-hander of thirty years ago, with 148; Frank Chance, the Chicago Cubs' peerless leader of a quarter of a century ago, 133; Ed Delehanty, forerunner of the great sluggers of today, 132, and Big Ed Walsh, former pitching ace of the White Sox, 110.

Ten Names on Each Ballot

In all, the writers, each of whom was permitted to name ten candidates on his ballot, listed 119 players. The scribes were allowed to vote only for players active after 1900 but no longer playing in 1937.

Alexander thus became the ninth baseball luminary voted into the Hall of Fame by the writers since the practice was inaugurated in 1936. Already named were Ty Cobb, Babe Ruth, Honus Wagner, Christy Mathewson, Walter Johnson, Napoleon Lajoie, Tris Speaker and Cy Young.

In addition to these diamond greats the major league owners at their annual meeting in Chicago last month voted to include automatically five others for their long and meritorious services to baseball. These were George Wright, who managed the first professional baseball club, the old Cincinnati Red Stockings; Morgan G. Bulkeley, first president of the National League; Ban Johnson, founder and first president of the American League; John J. McGraw, for thirty years manager of the Giants, and Connie Mack, Athletics' manager since the inauguration of the American League.

Alexander, know to his colleagues as Old Pete, began his major league career in 1911 with the Phillies and almost immediately blazed a trial that for twenty years was to win him renown as one of the greatest right-handers of all time. He won twenty-eight games for the Phillies in his first year, a record no freshman pitcher has matched since, and from 1915 to 1917 turned in three successive campaigns, in each of which he scored thirty or more victories.

Sergeant in World War

In 1918 Alex was traded to the Cubs, but served nearly all of the year with the A. E. F. in the World War, rising to the rank of sergeant. In 1919 he picked up the thread of his amazing feats with the Cubs, switched to the Cardinals in 1926 and concluded his career in 1930 with the club with which he had started, the Phillies.

He saw active service in three world series, first with the Cardinals in 1926 and 1927.

Carefree and easy going, with an utter disregard of training rules that frequently had him in difficulties with his managers, Alexander hung up records, some of which are destined to remain on the books for many years. Some of the outstanding ones include: Most National League games pitched, 696; most games won, 373; a league earned-run mark of 1.22 for pitchers working in 250 innings or more; ninety shutouts, a lifetime record, and sixtees shut-outs in one season, a major league record he set in 1916.

Germany To Construct 453 Pools This Year To Develop Swimming

Four hundred fifty three swimming pools will be constructed in Germany this year as the first step in a six-year plan to develop speed swimming through the efforts of the German Swimming Committee, according to a mail story received by Domei from Berlin.

After deliberation of a number of plans, the committee decided to build 3,600 pools throughout the country during the six years, it is said.

At the Olympic Games at Berlin in 1936, it will be remembered that Helmust Fischer of Germany placed fifth in the men's 100 meters freestyle finals while Erwin Sietas, also of the Reich team, was second in the 200 meters breaststroke. Germany was fifth in the men's 800 meters relay.

Cards Offer Dean $10,000 Contract

N.Y. Times

BRADENTON, Fla., Jan. 14—The St. Louis Cardinal baseball club opened its annual salary sideshow, featuring the one and only Dizzy Dean, today.

For the first time in a number of years there was a note of seriousness in the ballyhoo. "Ol' Diz' wasn't so hot last season, winning only thirteen games and losing ten, so the Cards would cut his pay more than 50 per cent.

Branch Rickey, vice president of the club, said at St. Louis the Cards had mailed Dean a contract calling for $10,000 for one season on the mound.

"Ol' Diz," receiving the contract here and immediately declaring he would return it unsigned, insisted the $10,000 offer represented a cut of $15,500.

No Bonus Offer Attached

"We made Dizzy a straight, unqualified offer of $10,000 for his services in 1938," said Rickey. "There are no clauses providing for a bonus, based on victories or anything else. It is what we thought we ought to offer him in view of circumstances."

The big pitcher, who was voted the major disappointment of the 1937 sports world, said:

"I expected a cut—but not such a big one. When I was winning twenty or more games a season for the Cardinals they didn't raise my pay by $15,500, so why should they cut me that much when I happened to have a bad season through no fault of my own.

Names Bottom Figure

"I think I am entitled to at least $20,000 this year. Certainly my salary shouldn't be trimmed to less than $17,500. That's positively the lowest they can go if they expect me to pitch, and I don't know that I will accept that. I'm sending that contract back."

Asked to comment on Dean's statement that his pay should not be less than $17,500, Rickey said.

"The club is not taking an arbitrary position. We want all our players signed and all of them satisfied. We believe that we will reach an agreement with Dean and that he will be in uniform at the scheduled time, ready to give his best efforts."

Dean, who smiled and agreed with the sports writers when they dubbed him 1937's star disappointment, claimed a broken big toe and a sore arm caused his poor showing last season.

Meanwhile, Dean was concerned with other money matters. A traffic officer charged the pitcher put on too much speed this morning in driving through neighboring Palmetto, and handed him a ticket. Dizzy handed him $10 and that was that.

Tokyo Preparing For Games, Nagai Tells Americans

By The Domei Tsushin Sha

NEW YORK, Feb. 16—Speaking before the New York Athletic Club tonight, Dr. Matsuzo Nagai, secretary-general of the Tokyo Olympic Organizing Committee, personally reassured attending members of the Amateur Athletic Union and the American Olympic Association that the Japanese sports authorities are doing their utmost in furthering preparations for the 1940 Olympic Games. Work is going ahead at a satisfactory pace despite the unfortunate Sino-Japanese conflict, he added.

The Japanese Diet has also approved appropriations for financing the Olympic Games despite the burdens already occasioned by the conflict, he continued, adding that he felt confident that everything would go on as scheduled.

Invites Americans

Concluding his short address, he extended a hearty invitation to the American friends of Japan to visit Tokyo during the Olympic Games.

Tonight's dinner given by the N.Y. Athletic Club was held in honor of Garland M. Hammond, past president of the American Olympic Association and the A.A.U., who was celebrating his 80th birthday today. Mr. Hammond in replying to Dr. Nagai's welcome to come to Japan asserted: "I am 80 years old, however, I am sure I will visit Tokyo in 1940." In his brief address, he made a plea for Japanese-American friendship declaring that friendly ties must be promoted through the Olympic Games.

Avery Brundage, chairman of the American Olympic Committee, expressed hope that Japan will meet with success at the forthcoming meeting of the International Olympic Committee at Cairo. Referring to Dr. Nagai, he asserted that he was glad to confer at Cairo with such a gentleman of the most prominent type.

Klingeberg Optimistic

Walter Klingeberg, German technical adviser of the Japanese Olympic Organizing Committee, informally reported that Japan's preparations were "progressing," although he intimated that he was not fully satisfied with the rate plans were being pushed. He added however that he was optimistic of the future progress.

Following the dinner, Dr. Nagai, Mr. Brundage and Mr. Klingeberg sailed for Europe aboard the liner Hansa. Both Dr. Nagai and Mr. Klingeberg arrived here this morning and made their quarters at the Hotel Astor instead of at Japanese Consul General Kaname Wakasugi's residence. They were welcomed by reporters and members of the local consulate.

Toronto Routs Dartmouth Six

TORONTO, Jan. 22—The University of Toronto defeated Dartmouth University, 9 to 4, in an International Intercollegiate Hockey League game today. It was Dartmouth's second league defeat inside twenty-four hours, Queen's University having downed the United States' college sextet at Kingston last night, 9 to 1.

The victory left Toronto tied with Queen's for second place in the Canadian section of the international intercollegiate loop. McGill University holds first place.

Moochie MacIlquham and Art Fremes, forwards, led the Canadian team's attack. Fremes counted four goals and two assists, while McIlquham collected two counters and five assists. Dick Craig, Toronto center, contributed one goal and an assist.

Fud Mather and Harpo Walsh were most effective for Dartmouth. Each chalked up one goal and helped on another. East team failed to score on a penalty shot.

Play was even during the first period, each squad scoring twice, but in the second Toronto broke loose to count three times and in the third Dartmouth was against outscored, four goals to two. The line-up:

Ski Jumping Contest To Be Held Feb. 27 At Korakuen Stadium

The first annual All-Japan ski jumping championships at Tokyo will be held on Sunday afternoon, February 27, beginning at 2 p.m., at a specially constructed schanze at Korakuen stadium at Suidobashi, under the auspices of the Nichi Nichi Shimbun.

The schanze, work on which is rapidly progressing, will be 38.14 meters high.

Competing will be 17 jumpers, who have been selected as candidates for the Fifth Olympic Winter Games at Sapporo in 1940, as well as first ranking skiers of the Tokyo universities.

Athletic Survey Being Conducted On Pacific Coast

LOS ANGELES, Jan. 19—The Pacific Coast Conference drew national attention today with a survey to find out where its college athletes get money for an education. Chief fact finder was Edwin Atherton, former G-man, commissioned to dig for a year into the affairs of the individual schools in the conference and the students who compete in its sports events.

Hugh C. Willett, conference president and faculty representative of University of Southern California, set down the program when he said:

"The conference desires to improve its rules governing aid to the athletes to the end that these rules may be reasonable and fair.

"The conference is urging every athlete interviewed by its official agent to give frank and complete statements regarding sources of income and regarding all forms of aid, financial or otherwise, which he may have received in the past.

"From the results of this survey we expect to learn the basis for a revision of our rules, if need be, to make them just and workable for students who are self supporting, or partially so, and whose opportunities for self help may be limited by the time spent in athletics."

Hearty accord to the program was voiced by football Coaches Howard Jones of Southern California and Jimmy Phelan of Washington, Athletic Director Ray Eckmann of Washington, William Ackerman, graduate manager of University of California at Los Angeles, and others.

"A careful study made by the right man will tend to equalize the policies of individual schools in the conference," said Ackerman. "Some of them may be too strict, others too loose, in aiding athletes. The survey should be of considerable value."

Atherton said his work may keep him occupied even longer than a year. His reports will be submitted to a faculty committee headed by Dean Earl J. Miller of University of California at Los Angeles, which will in turn offer recommendations for regulations and possibly appointment of a commissioner to supervise the rules.

Leonard B. (Stub) Allison, football coach at California, when asked for comment, said: "It's none of my business. The faculty put it in. My big concern is teaching boys how to play football, as per my contract."

Claude (Tiny) Thornhill of Stanford added: "If there is anything wrong with the conference and this investigation will clear it up, I'm for it. Otherwise, I don't know what it's all about."

1938 Tennis Boom In United States Forecast By Ward

By HOLCOMBE WARD
President, United States Lawn Tennis Association

N.Y. Times

The past year marked a renaissance in tennis which should continue throughout 1938. The winning of the Davis Cup, emblematic of the international team championship, proved a stimulus which should have far-reaching effects upon the game for several years to come.

The number of tournaments, as well as the number of competitors and spectators, reached a new high for the past decade. There is every evidence this record will be surpassed in 1938.

The U. S. L. T. A. will continue to keep step with the increasing popular interest in the game. Arrangements already are under way to broaden our promotional activities in many ways.

Extent of Program

Junior and boy, junior Davis Cup, interscholastic and intercollegiate development work will be continued upon a larger scale than ever before. During the past year the U. S. L. T. A. sanctioned junior tournaments in more than one hundred and fifty cities, held thirty-four interscholastic championship qualifying tournaments and established training squads in fifty clubs. In addition over four hundred senior tournaments were sanctioned.

The new tennis films are expected to prove one of the outstanding features of this educational campaign. Close to three thousand feet of film has been prepared and offered for exhibition to clubs, colleges, universities, schools, recreation centers and so forth. They will provide an entertaining and instructive exhibition of about two hours.

The films include a series of pictures both at nominal speed and slow motion of the important matches played during the 1937 singles championships at Forest Hills. Close-ups of such famous players as Donald Budge, Baron Gottfried von Cramm, Anita Lizana, Jadwiga Jedrzejowska, in addition to such famous players of the past as Tilden, Johnston, Patterson, Lacoste and others, are shown. They analyze stroke production in both slow motion and suspended animation.

The revival of the service bulletin has produced closer contact between the national association and its member clubs, as well as the individual members. This service will be continued and developed in 1938.

Game's Ideals Stressed

Through the officers and sixty-odd committees of the national association, advice and assistance are available on all problems arising in connection with club and game activities.

The U. S. L. T. A. will continue its efforts to develop tennis in schools, clubs, colleges and public parks, and to maintain the fine traditions, lofty ideals and high standards of sportsmanship associated with the game. Much of our work consists of providing opportunities to thousands of boys and girls to play tennis; opportunities to build heath and character; opportunities to learn the lessons in courage, determination, self-control, love of fair play which hard, clean, competitive tennis teaches—lessons which are remembered long after school or college ends.

Rugby Series To Open

Sunday will mark the opening of the annual rugby league of graduates of Waseda, Meiji, Keio, Rikkyo universities and the Peers School.

"BELIEVE IT OR NOT"—by Ripley

Wellington's Long Trousers

It is hard for us to realize what a drastic innovation long pants were in men's attire. As recently as 1820, certain churches barred from their pulpits, preachers wearing long trousers. It is recorded of President Madison that he was the first United States President to wear long trousers.

Though by 1825 trousers were accepted as suitable for daytime street wear, it took longer to establish them as correct for evening. In England the Duke of Wellington pioneered for the new garb, appearing at his club one evening in a pair of tight fitting trousers reaching to his ankles. Fellow members were amazed at his "impudence," and ejected him from his club.

Cunningham Given 1,500-Meter Spot On All-Star Team

By ARTHUR J. DALEY

N.Y. Times

NEW YORK, Jan. 24—In the most artful bit of juggling he has attempted in the last dozen years, Daniel J. Ferris, secretary-treasurer of the Amateur Athletic Union, presented his All-America track and field team yesterday in Spalding's Athletic Almanac, which is just off the press.

Mr. Ferris distributed his benisons with a lavish hand. Where Jesse Owens had four places a year ago and there were double awards galore, only two men have been named twice on the combination for 1938, neither of them in events of any particular consequence.

The team follows that trend of a year ago in American track circles, the rise of newcomers in the sport. Twelve men were named who were not on the squad a year ago, the most thorough turnover of talent in recent memory.

In dissecting any All-America combination one usually looks to see who was omitted rather than who made the grade. The most startling of these was Archie San Romani. But the reason was simple. There was no room for him.

Mishap at Milwaukee

Glenn Cunningham was given the coveted 1,500-meter spot, quite properly enough. Although San Romani won the indoor crown and fell just as he was making his bid for outdoor honors at Milwaukee in the nationals, his fellow Kansan was the miler of the year—metric or otherwise.

The Jayhawk flier was supreme indoors and won everything except this one test in which he did not compete. Outdoors Cunningham, while beaten by both San Romani and Don Lash at Princeton in America's fastest mile of the year, 4:07.2, came back after the Milwaukee mishap to demonstrate his right to top-ranking honors by trouncing his closest friend in the Labor meet mile.

But San Romani had plenty of select company in those who missed the Ferris boat. Six Olympic champions of 1936 were dropped from the roll: Owens and Glenn Morris (no longer amateurs) as well as Archie Williams, Cornelius Johnson, Ken Carpenter and Earle Meadows.

One to come through was that middle-distance phenomenon, Ol' John Woodruff, a repeater at 800 meters. Elroy Robinson broke the world record at the distance last Summer, but Ol' John pushed him down a peg to 1,000 meters and took over the metric half for himself.

Rival Broke Two Marks

There can be no quibbling with the rotund secretary-treasurer for his choice of Woodruff over Robinson. The Olympic champion won the national and N. C. A. A. half-mile crowns even though his San Francisco rival smashed the world 800-meter and 880-yard records in one shot with a dazzling 1:49.6 performance.

The indoor and outdoor national title chases served as Mr. Ferris' guiding rule in nearly every instance. There were only five departures from it. One was the selection of Forrest Towns, the Olympic high hurdles king, over the 110-meter timber-topping route in spite of the fact that Allan Tolmich of Wayne upset him in the nationals for his only defeat of the year.

A Consistent Performer

The other four exceptions were Pat Dengis in the marathon, Sam Francis in the shot-put, Alton Terry in the javelin throw, and Mel Walker in the high-jump. Dengis was the most consistent marathoner of the year. So was the Nebraska and Chicago Bear fullback in the shot, even though he did not take a whirl at the Milwaukee games. Terry was the best of the spear tossers right up to the nationals, when he failed rather badly.

There might be some raised eyebrows at the confining of Don Lash to only one position, cross-country. Had Mr. Ferris been in a more generous mood he might have awarded the Hoosier Iron Man 5,000 and 10,000 meter places. But he hardly could give him the 10,000 over Eino Pentti without doing as great an injustice to Joe McCluskey in the 5,000. And Fordham Joe deserved something.

Japanese Delegates Arrive At Paris For Annual I.A.A.A. Meet

PARIS, Feb. 17—Dr. Tosaku Kinoshita and Tadashi Mitsufuji, Japanese delegates to the 14th plenary session of the International Amateur Athletic Association, arrived at the Saint-Lazare Station here at 2:15 p.m. today. The session is scheduled to meet here on February 28.

The Japanese delegates expect to meet committeemen of the French Athletic Federation tomorrow, after which Mr. Mitsufuji will leave for London on a three-day visit to the British capital.

Interviewed by Domei immediately after their arrival, the Japanese delegates admitted that, in view of the general sentiments in Europe, they expect some difficulties in persuading all the nations represented at the forthcoming meeting to participate in the 1940 Olympiad at Tokyo.

Detroit Favored By Louis For Bout With Schmeling

By JAMES P. DAWSON

N.Y. Times

NEW YORK, Jan. 20—When Joe Louis defends his world heavyweight title against Max Schmeling of Germany, the former champion, under the terms of their contract which provide for an undetermined June date, the battle-ground will be Detroit, unless present plans collapse.

The Automobile City stepped into the picture yesterday with what appears to be a distinct edge over New York and Chicago in the scramble for this attractive sporting event.

From Frank MacDonnell, chairman of Michigan's Boxing Commission, came the admission over the long-distance telephone that negotiations conducted quietly for the past few weeks had reached the stage where only some minor details remain to be adjusted before a definite announcement is made.

Tigers' Home Renamed

Briggs Field, the new name by which a modernized Navin Field will be known, will be the scene of the title struggle, according to Chairman MacDonnell. This is the home of the American League's Detroit Tigers, used advantageously in the past as a scene for boxing and wrestling matches.

The plant, in addition to being renamed, is being extensively renovated, changes including the installation of an upper tier circling the entire park. At present the upper tier only partly circles the playing field.

When the construction work is completed Briggs Field will have a capacity between 85,000 and 90,000 for events permitting seats on the playing field. This is understood to be one of the inducements for the bout.

Another and more important one is the fact that Louis is a Detroit product, and his home-town admirers are eager to see him in action as champion. There is the additional consideration that John Roxborough and Julian Black, with Louis, have the final decision in the selection of a battle site, and it is understood they already have expressed their willingness to have the championship bout in Detroit.

Schmeling never has boxed in Detroit, beyond an exhibition. However, the challenger must go wherever the champion decides.

No Confirmation From Jacobs

Promoter Mike Jacobs of the Twentieth Century S. C., who has the title bout under contract, professed ignorance of the Detroit plans last night and declined to confirm or deny he had been conducting negotiations. It is known, however, that Detroit interests have prepared a proposition which he probably will not reject.

While professing ignorance of the plans, Promoter Jacobs nevertheless stated frankly the match would go to the city offering the best inducements, a statement he has made repeatedly since the signing of articles for the bout. As far as can be learned, only limited hotel accommodations are delaying Promoter Jacobs's acceptance of the Detroit proposition.

This latest development has upset, temporarily at least, plans to stage a Louis-Schmeling bout in Chicago, notwithstanding the fact that Joe Triner, chairman of the Illinois State Athletic Commission, has made flattering offers to have Jacobs return to the field where he last year promoted the bout in which Louis won the title from James J. Braddock. In view of the fact that Louis has yet to defend his title against Nathan Mann in Madison Square Garden on Feb. 23, it is likely a definite announcement of his plans will be delayed by Promoter Jacobs until after that bout.

Germany Hopes Games Will Be Held During Latter Part Of Sept.

Europe favors holding of the Olympic Games in Tokyo in the latter part of September of that year instead of the end of August and early September on account of Tokyo's weather, Reichssportfuhrer H. V. Tschammer und Osten, president of the German Olympic Committee, has notified the Tokyo Olympic Organizing Committee by letter.

The German sports director wrote that Tokyo's weather would be uncomfortable for European contestants since they are unfamiliar with such humidity. He gave assurance, however, to send a huge delegation to Japan to support the 1940 Olympiad regardless of the time element.

The German team, it was further stated, is ambitious to win the championship of the XIIth Olympic Games, and training has already been planned.

Cunningham Just Keeps A-Running And Says Nothing

NEW YORK, Jan. 18—Ole Man River and Glenn Cunningham are two of a kind—they just keep rollin' and they don't say nothin.'

The calm resourceful Kansan has just one answer to the frequent question, "When are you going to quit?"

"When I can't keep up with the rest of the boys." That's what he said a year ago and now, on the threshold of another indoor season of racing, he says it again.

In his sixth year as a top flight miler, Glenn has shown no signs of deterioration. In 1933 he ran a 4:13 mile indoors to start his campaign. This month he ran his first big mile of the year at the Sugar Bowl meet in 4:13.2.

Between those two races lie five years of great footracing. The silent young fellow, who had represented the United States at Los Angeles at the 1932 Olympics, has become one of the great sport figures of the decade. He has 18 miles under 4:15 and six under 4:10 to his credit and has been a leading figure in a golden age of mile racing that has chopped almost three seconds off the record Jules Ladoumegue set in 1931.

Cunningham has set world records in the mile, outdoors and indoors; 1500 meters indoors, 1000 yards outdoors and indoors and an American record at three-quarters of a mile. Oddly enough the record he prized most, his outdoor mile of 4:06.7, which seemed inviolate, was cracked last summer by Stanley Woodersen of England, who ran the distance in 4:06.6.

Glenn is one of the strongest runners of track history. It was a Kansas boyhood—with cows to milk, wood to chop, wheat to harvest and other farm tasks—that built his phenomenal endurance.

The Kansan is not a stylist in running form although his method is sound. He has the erect style and high arm carry of the Finns and his stride is deceptive, being longer than it appears.

One of the ablest judges of pace in modern track, Cunningham once ran a mile in 4:11.1 in which his fractional times were 63s. for the first quarter, 62.5 for the two middle quarters and 63.1 for the final quarter. When he ran his record-breaking outdoor mile at Princeton he did 61.8, 64.0, 61.8, 59.1 for quarterly times.

Glenn has little of Jack Lovelock's jauntiness, Bill Bonthron's good looks or Billy Carr's beautiful style to win the crowds. His fame has been built upon a solid foundation of great races not only from a standpoint of time but from his willingness as a competitor.

He just keeps rollin'.

Cyclists To Commence Training For '40 Games

About 20 cyclists will be selected by the Japan Cycling Association as the first group for the 1940 Olympic team and will go into training for 10 days beginning March 20 at Omiya, according to announcement today.

The decision was taken simultaneously with the action of the Tokyo Olympic Organizing Committee recently to construct the Olympic cycling course at the Omiya park. Tentative plans call for a 500-meter circular track covered with concrete.

Riggs Expects To Make U.S. Davis Cup Team

TAMPA, Fla., Jan. 24—Bobby Riggs, young Chicago tennis player who ranks second in the United States for 1937, figures he is virtually sure to be a member of the team which defends the Davis Cup in this country next summer.

Riggs captured the Dixie tennis championship yesterday with a straight-set victory over Wayne Sabin of Los Angeles, conqueror of Bryan M. Grant of Atlanta in the semifinals, and immediately began planning for the cup tryouts. Elwood Cooke, Portland, Ore., and Frank Kovacs, San Francisco, won the doubles championship by beating Riggs and Sabin, 5—7, 4—6, 7—5, 6—1, 6—4.

"They can hardly leave me off this time," Bobby said. "I don't know whether or not I'll play, but I'm sure to be a member of the team."

Riggs thinks the singles will be played by Budge and either him or Grant. The Chicagoan didn't hesitate to say that he had a tough battle ahead of him with the Atlanta star for the other singles position.

Riggs said he and Wayne Sabin, alternate on last year's American cup team, who paired with Riggs in the Dixie tournament doubles, would be able to hold their own against Budge and Gene Mako, cup doubles team last year. He hinted he thought Sabin had a chance to be Budge's partner.

The elimination of Grant in the semifinals prevented Riggs from seeking revenge over the Atlantan who beat him in the finals of the Biltmore tournament at Miami recently.

"But, I don't know whether or not I'll lick him the next time we meet," Riggs said. "Bitsy probably will be more determined than ever when we play again, and goodness, he's tough enough already."

Japan Would Become Member Of World Glider Association

Considering the rapid progress Japan has made in gliding, the Imperial Aero-Society of Japan has recently made an application for membership to the I.S.T.U.S., international organization of gliding, which was organized in Berlin to promote the art of glider flying. Sixteen different nations including Germany, Britain, France, America and Italy, are its members.

Germany is advocating gliding as a new event on the Olympic program. The International Olympic Committee meeting to be held in Cairo in March will take up this matter and decide whether this sport of motorless-flying will be added to the Tokyo Olympic program.

When the application for membership is accepted, the Imperial Aero-Society of Japan will send, according to I.S.T.U.S.'s rule, two representatives to the Berlin headquarters, most likely Dr. Sakihei Fujiwara and Hiroshi Saito of the Kyushu Imperial University, who is now in Germany.

"BELIEVE IT OR NOT"---by Ripley

Hits Tokyo Olympics

CAMBRIDGE, Mass., Jan. 24—William J. Bingham, director of athletics at Harvard University and a member of the Olympic Games committee, tonight voiced his disapproval of Tokyo as scene of the 1940 Olympics.

"I am sorry that those in charge are awarding the contests to aggressor nations whose governments do not recognize public morality or national honor," said Bingham in an interview.

"These nations, and especially Germany in 1936, use the games as a symbol of national power and glory. They are spoiling the purposes for which the games were revived."

Bingham was chairman of the Olympic track committee for the 1936 games.

Abe Is Appointed Manager-Captain Of Davis Cuppers

Out to make a better showing in the Davis Cup competition, the Japan Lawn Tennis Association has decided in the dispatching of three players this year with the addition of a manager-captain.

The selection of Tamio Abe of the Tomon Club, former Davis Cupper and for several years a resident of London, as manager-captain and of Jiro Yamagishi of Keio, Fumiteru Nakano of Hosei, and Yasumine Kuramitsu of Kansai University as the players was announced Saturday night.

Yamagishi and Nagano represented Japan last year, losing to the United States in the opening round of the American zone at San Francisco.

To Leave March 18

With the exception of Yamagishi, Abe and the other two players are scheduled to leave Kobe on March 18 aboard the Terukuni Maru for the purpose of competing in goodwill matches in Italy and Germany. After this, they will appear in the All-French championships at Paris which begin on June 2 and the Wimbledon championships slated to start from June 20. They will then go to the United States.

Due to his studies at Keio, Yamagishi will leave Japan during the latter part of June and go direct to the United States to join Abe and the other players in New York about the middle of July, well in time for the first round matches against Canada. While the American Committee has set August 4, 5 and 6 for the Japan-Canada matches, the local association plans to negotiate with the Canadian authorities to stage the matches instead on July 28, 29 and 30. Indications are that the venue will be Montreal.

In the event of a victory over the Canadians—Captain Abe is most optimistic—the final of the American zone will be played against the Australians, who are expected to have no trouble eliminating Mexico, on August 11, 12 and 13, the site to be determined later.

Manager Long Needed

The need of a manager-captain has been sorely felt for a number of years. In this respect, it is believed that what contributed mostly to the decision of the local association was the visit of the German Davis Cup team last November with Dr. Henrich Kleinschroth, former German Davis Cupper, as manager. Baron Gottfried von Cramm, for instance, declared that it is impossible for members of a Davis Cup team to perform at their best when faced the added responsibility of looking after expenditures and travel arrangements.

Medley Swim Won By Miss Rains, 13

N.Y. Times

NEW YORK, Jan. 24—The establishment of an American record at the new distance of 150 yards for the medley swim featured an aquatic carnival at the Women's Swimming Association pool yesterday. The record-maker was Miss Helene Rains, 13-year-old star of the W. S. A., who turned in a neat 1:56.3 to post new short-course figures.

The 150-yard medley contest was accepted by the A. A. U. last year as a record distance. Since this event yesterday was the first, the fastest time of the day automatically became a new mark. Miss Rains turned in her speediest clocking in her heat and could not quite match it in the final, which was won in 1:57.3.

The trials were uniformly better than finals. Miss Elizabeth (Pat) Ryan of the W. S. A. and member of the 1936 Olympic team, now 15, set the fast time of 1:02.6 in winning her first heat of the 100-yard handicap test.

After that she clicked off 1:03.9 in the semi-final but could not quite touch her first time again in the final. In this, she did 1:03.3 and that brought her no better than a third place. Virtually at scratch, she yielded a fourteen-second start to the winner, Miss Mary Louise Thomson of the Goldsboro S. A. of North Carolina, and thirteen seconds to the runner-up, Miss Pauline Daly, unattached.

THE SUMMARIES

200-Yard Breast-Stroke (Handicap)—Won by Miss Anna Nerich, Women's S. A. (17 seconds); Miss Lorraine Fischer, Women's S. A. (14 seconds), second; Miss Eileen Jeffers, Women's S. A. (16 second), third. Time—3:08.1.

100-Yard Back-Stroke (Handicap)—Won by Miss Constance Lang, Women's S. A. (18 seconds); Miss Mildred Fetterer, Women's S. A. (22 seconds), second; Miss Erno Etueve, Women's S. A. (15 seconds), third. Time—1:22.3.

150-Yard Medley (Scratch)—Won by Miss Helen Rains, Women's S. A.; Miss Lorraine Fischer, Women's S. A., second; Miss Prince Nufer, Goldsboro S. A., N. C., third. Time—1:57.3 (1:56.3 [1:56.3 in heat, establishing a new American short course record; none listed).

100-Yard Handicap—Won by Miss Mary Louis Thomson, Goldsboro S. A., N. C. (18 seconds); Miss Pauline Daly, unattached (13 seconds), second; Miss Elizabeth Ryan, Women's S. A. (4 seconds), third Time—1:14.8.

100-Yard Handicap (Closed to Juniors of Women's S. A.)—Won by Miss Phoebe Rosen (scratch); Miss Peggy Viets (14 seconds), second; Miss Isabella Brady (17 seconds), third. Time—1:20.5.

California Crew Has Hard Schedule

Christian Science Monitor

BERKELEY, Calif., Jan. 20—Because he believes intercollegiate crew racing is growing into the "headliner" class, Coach Ky Ebright has arranged for this year the most ambitious schedule the University of California's varsity crew has undertaken.

The season's opener will be an interclass meet on the Oakland Estuary, March 5. First collegiate opponent will be Oregon State, which will meet the Bears March 12 on the Estuary. April 16, the California crew will race Washington, at Seattle. Returning home, the Bears will meet U. C. L. A. on April 23, on the Oakland Estuary. On June 20, the crew will take part in the annual regatta at Poughkeepsie.

Ebright has not decided between two conflicting dates for July 1. The Mid-Continent regatta at Marietta, Ohio, and the national Spring championships at Long Beach, Calif., are both scheduled for that day.

Before going to work preparing for this tough schedule, members of the Varsity Rowing Club will hold their annual dance Saturday evening at the Hotel Oakland. Intensive pretice workouts on the Estuary start Monday, Jan. 24.

Ebright announced the varsity shell for the first workout would probably be manned by Larry Arpin, Pete Porterfield or Curt Rocca, Al Daggett, Emil Bergh, Jim Schaeffer, Gwyn Sharrer, Stebe Frost and Coxswain Harry Kenny. Number four position has not yet been filled.

Indian Hockey Team Likely To Perform Here Coming Summer

If negotiations under way materialize, the field hockey team of Panjab University at Rahor, India, recognized as the world's strongest, will perform in Japan this summer at the invitation of the Japan Hockey Association, it became known at the latter's meeting Sunday afternoon at its headquarters at the Marunouchi Building.

The desire to visit Japan was expressed by the Panjab authorities last year and it was greeted here with enthusiasm inasmuch as such a trip would contribute greatly to the development of a strong team for the 1940 Olympic Games.

As a step towards preparation for the Games in 1940, the Association will select 25 players for training purposes for 10 days beginning July 25 in Tokyo.

Holdout Season Under Way With Several Players

ST. PETERSBURG, Fla., Jan. 20—The holdout season won't open officially until spring training gets under way, but there are enough dissatisfied players in Florida alone to give baseball club officials plenty to think about.

Even Dizzy Dean's perennial salary troubles can't top the complaints of Joe Medwick, Van Lingle Mungo, Paul Waner and Paul Derringer.

American League teams are in for some argument, too. Wes Ferrell, Washington pitcher who winters at Sarasota, objected to a $3000 salary cut. Russell Van Atta, spending the off-season here, returned his contract to the St. Louis Browns unsigned because he said he could not agree to some provisions having nothing to do with salary.

Dean's situation is unique, for him. Usually he demands a raise. But after his mediocre showing in 1937 "Ole Diz" admitted himself a reduction was in order. Even at that, the $10,000 pay check St. Louis offered almost floored the pitcher.

He said it represented a $15,500 slash. Dizzy stopped pumping gas at his Bradenton filling station to say he thought $17,500 would be about the right price.

At Sarasota, Waner intimated he thought the contract Pittsburgh sent him was more in line for a two-for-a-nickel player than for one of the leading left-handed hitters in the league.

The center of most of the trade discussions this Winter, Mungo has heard nothing definite from the Brooklyn Dodgers. The fireball pitcher said he "rather expected a raise" and indicated there would be a big kick if the club offered less than the $15,000 he was reported to have been paid last season.

Mungo, who is instructing in a baseball school at Orlando, said he believed Manager Burleigh Grimes "will go to bat for me on a contract" despite their clashes of last Summer.

Medwick, fishing and golfing here, fired his contract right back at the Cardinals with the statement a proffered raise was not enough. The leading batter and "most valuable" player in the National League did not divulge the amount offered or the salary he wanted.

Cincinnati is believed to have offered Derringer $7,500. The pitcher said at Sarasota he would not accept what he called a $10,500 reduction.

Tennis Pros Well Received In California

Christian Science Monitor

SAN FRANCISCO, Jan. 20—Despite the fact that Pacific Coast Conference basketball games are on full blast around here, two groups of professional athletes have completely stolen the sports show here.

First, two tennis stars, Fred Perry, of England, and Ellsworth Vines, acclaimed by many as the world's greatest tennis player, took to the indoor court to win the plaudits of the cash customers.

Secondly, the Washington Redskins, billed as the "World's Professional Football Champions" and spark plugged by "Slingin' Sammy" Baugh, the game's great forward passer, cavorted in practice on the Civic Center green, and finally defeated an all-Star Pacific Coast team on a muddy Kezar Stadium Field, 14-13. That more than 5000 folks sat through such a deluge—so wet that seagulls even alighted in the stadium—and cheered two teams they had never seen before right up to the last gun, is indicative of the place professional sport is achieving.

Vines Beats Perry

In the tennis match Vines beat out a 10-8, 4-6, 6-3 victory over Perry and was quoted as saying he is "fully confident" he would win the 1938 Winter barnstorming tour from Fred. Last season they split even, each winning 37 matches. The first match the two played down in Los Angeles went on into the wee small hours of the morning, beginning with glamorous movie stars watching from the boxes and ending with janitors leaning on their long broom handles. In case any of those who were there still haven't heard what the final score was, and are interested, Vines came from behind to win 4-6, 13-11, 8-10, 6-2, 6-3. When they get to Madison Square Garden in New York, the promoters might have them play the first two sets before dinner.

Of course, the arrival of these two stars in the San Francisco Bay region immediately roused the speculation of tennis enthusiasts over the possibility of Don Budge, world's amateur champion, turning professional next season.

It seems pretty well established, according to sources here that should know, that Don will join with either Perry or Vines, or both next Winter to pound the white pellet across the net to the joy of the professionals and the disappointment of the Lawn Tennis and Davis Cup officials.

Wants Pro Championships

Because professional tennis has been so well received here and because the Bay Area is chockful of tennis players and close followers of the game, Howard Kinsey, the well-known tennis professional, has said that he is trying to get the World's Professional Tennis Championships for San Francisco next year as a feature of the World's Fair.

And because the North American zone matches between Japan and the United States were so well attended last Spring, out on the grass-tex courts of the Olympic Club at Lakeside, a definite move is under way to secure a similar Davis Cup series for 1938.

Tennis continues to be "looking up" here and the long drive on the part of tennis enthusiasts for more of the sport is gradually being satisfied.

Even though there was considerable interest in the professional football tilt here, it looks as though it'll be a long time before it becomes very profitable on this coast with the Rose Bowl game (California-Alabama) netting about $346,500 and the Big Game (Stanford-California) bringing some $382,800 . . . or will that act as an incentive to the promoters?

One reason, I think, for Pacific Coast Conference basketball drawing so little interest from the sports followers here is the small pavilions, both at California and particularly at Stanford, which practically forbid outsiders from attending.

There are some 4000 students at Stanford, and only 2700 sets in the pavilion. The public—let alone students—can't get in! What's to prevent the athletic managers of the two colleges (California and Stanford) from working out an agreement with one of the local auditoriums to play their conference games, at least, up here in San Francisco? They'd not only make more money, but such a move would interest thousands of people in one of the best college sports of the day. They need only look to New York to see the crowds attend. I know others have propounded this idea, but there's no harm in hammering away at it until the sought-after results are obtained.

Karafuto Skiers Win Championship Of Meiji Shrine Athletic Games

The skiers from Karafuto won the championship of the ski competition closing the Meiji Shrine games Sunday at Nozawa by registering a total of 45 points. Hokkaido was second with 31 points, Nagano third with 22 points, Niigata fourth with 16 points and Toyama fifth with 11 points.

The other teams that figured in the scoring follow: Gunma 9, Akita 7, Aomori 4, Tottori 4, Kyoto 2, Yamagata 2 and Fukushima 1.

Karafuto's score sheet follows: downhill race, 0; relay, 7; slalom, 0; long distance, 19; combined downhill and slalom, 0; combined event, 4; and jumping, 15.

MacPhail Chosen New Manager Of The Dodgers

By ROSCOE McGOWEN

N.Y. Times

NEW YORK, Jan. 20—Baseball's "new dealer" took charge of the fortunes of the Brooklyn club yesterday. Leland Stanford (Larry) MacPhail, the man who pulled the Cincinnati Reds out of the "red," was elected executive vice president of the Dodgers, "with full and complete authority over the operation of the club, including all its minor league activities."

MacPhail's contract, on his own statement to the press yesterday, is for a term of three years, during which period he hopes to move the Dodgers out of the second division doldrums into the pleasant sailing breezes of the first division.

His annual salary, while not officially revealed, may be said authoritatively to be $20,000.

Text of Announcement

The official announcement, released by Stephen W. McKeever, president of the club, at the Brooklyn offices early yesterday without any other official comment, read as follows:

"Larry MacPhail has been elected executive vice president of the Brooklyn Baseball Club under a long-term contract.

"He will assume his duties immediately and has already submitted a complete and constructive program designed to establish the Dodgers as an aggressive competitor in the National League.

"He will have full and complete authority over the operations of the club, including all its minor league activities.

"We take particular pride in the appointment of Mr. MacPhail. His experience and ability amply qualify him to carry out successfully the program that has been adopted."

As to that program, it came as a surprise to the general run of observers that night baseball in Brooklyn run about tenth on MacPhail's list of things necessary to be done.

Not Important in Brooklyn

"I would say," MacPhail told a couple of dozen writers who interviewed him en masse, "that night baseball isn't important in Brooklyn—not as important as other things. The situation in Cincinnati was different.

"Out there," explained the freckle-faced ex-A. E. F. captain who aided in a hare-brained attempt to kidnap Kaiser Wilhelm after the armistice, "night baseball was a life-saver. We averaged 22,000 attendance in the seven games the first year and did as well the second year. But I'd say that Brooklyn doesn't need night baseball, considering the potential patronage there. All it needs is a winning club."

The first two points on MacPhail's program are:

First, building a ball club.

Second, perfecting a farm organization.

He didn't go into points intervening between these two and night baseball.

Direct queries about the trading of Van Lingle Mungo, the sultry-tempered fireball pitching ace, who has been variously quoted and misquoted about his feelings toward Manager Burleigh Grimes and the club, brought this more or less direct answer:

"I will trade anybody on the club, including MacPhail and Grimes, if it will help the club."

Cash Is Not Wanted

MacPhail was very emphatic that the club had no players for sale; that any deals made would have to bring helpful players to Brooklyn and not cash.

"I can assure you," he said, "that the club is fully financed with funds to purchase players—if players we need are purchaseable. But," he asked, "where can you buy 'em?"

MacPhail has already made his first move toward improving the farm system by adding the Nashville club of the Southern Association, of which the ex-Red manager, Chuck Dressen, is the pilot, to the list of those with which the Dodgers will have a working agreement.

"I fixed that last night by telephone," said Larry, "right after I had signed up with Brooklyn. And we'll probably have an agreement with Macon of the South Atlantic League, too."

Only one other official of the Brooklyn club, Vice President Joe Gilleaudeau, was present at the conference, but let MacPhail do all the talking.

The new Brooklyn executive is 47 years old. He was born in Detroit. His first connection with baseball was as a minor league first baseman in Michigan. His second was when he purchased the Columbus club of the American Association, which he later sold to the Cardinal chain.

Met Rickey at Michigan

He attended three different colleges, Beloit, Michigan and George Washington. His acquaintance with Branch Rickey, high mogul of the St. Louis farm system, was formed at Michigan.

MacPhail expects to leave here Friday for Grand Rapids, Mich., where for the past year he has been helping to run his father's banking and investment business. There he will meet Grimes and expects to confer with the Dodger manager for the next ten days.

Among other subjects he will take up with Burleigh is the idea of advancing the date for starting training at Clearwater by at least a week. The present schedule calls for the pitchers and catchers to report on March 7 and the balance of the squad three days later.

"I think that's too late for the batterymen," MacPhail said. "They ought to have more time and if Grimes agrees with me, we'll report earlier."

Landis Voted 1938 Baseball Merit Award

By RUD RENNIE

N.Y. Herald Tribune

NEW YORK, Jan. 23—The tenth annual award by the New York Chapter of the Baseball Writers' Association of America "for services to baseball over a period of years" has been voted this year to Kenesaw Mountain Landis, Commissioner of Baseball, it was announced yesterday. He will receive an appropriate plaque at the chapter's dinner next Sunday in the Commodore.

The others who have been so honored are Miller Huggins, former manager of the New York Yankees; William B. Hanna, former baseball writer for the New York Herald Tribune; Babe Ruth, former Yankee outfielder; Wilbert Robinson, former manager of the Brooklyn Dodgers; John McGraw, former manager of the New York Giants; Walter Johnson, former Washington pitcher; Rabbit Maranville, former shortstop; Connie Mack, manager of the Philadelphia Athletics; Frank Frisch, manager of the St. Louis Cardinals, and Travis Jackson, former captain of the New York Giants.

Landis, who has been czar of organized beseball since 1921, is an old friend who, even though in his seventy-second year, still enjoys his round of golf with the boys.

Newsboy, errand boy and bicycle racer in his youth, Landis went in for law, and was graduated from Northwestern University. A struggling young lawyer, his break came when Judge Walter Cresham, a Federal jurist in Chicago, was appointed Secretary of State by President Grover Cleveland. Judge Gresham took Landis to Washington with him as his private secretary.

When Gresham died, Landis returned to Chicago and resumed his law practice. In 1904 he conducted Frank Lowden's campaign for Governor. The next year, President Theodore Roosevelt appointed him to the Federal bench in Chicago.

While a Federal judge, Landis achieved nation-wide notice by fining the Standard Oil Company $29,000,000.

Brought Into Baseball

It was during the war between the Federal League and organized baseball that Landis's services as arbiter were sought. So he came into the baseball picture. And, after August Hermann resigned as chairman of the National Commission, Ladis was induced by representatives of both major leagues to act as High Commissioner of Baseball.

Landis entered baseball in turbulent times. There had been a funny World Series in 1919. Baseball needed policing. That has been the commissioner's job: to keep the club owners from violating their own laws and to protect the rights of the individual player. He has done it well.

Miss Henie Gets Ovation In Show At N.Y. Garden

By LINCOLN A. WERDEN
N.Y. Times

NEW YORK, Jan. 25—Greeted by a thunderous ovation, Sonja Henie came back to New York last night as the star of the latest figure-skating show to be presented at Madison Square Garden, the Hollywood Ice Revue.

From the moment the famous young lady, who has followed Olympic achievements with her success in motion pictures, stepped on the ice until she made her final curtsy as the doll in the concluding number, "Babes in Toyland," there was never a doubt that the 16,000 who packed the arena to capacity had come solely to see Sonja.

Each time she skated, whether it was the dainty Norwegian folk dance, the Liebestraum or the beautiful Vienna waltz, there were insistent demands for more and more encores. At the conclusion of the evening Miss Henie came to the microphone to express her thanks personally for the magnificent tribute paid to her by admirers.

Personality Wins Spectators

Those who have seen Miss Henie in past carnivals at the Garden saw her once more not only as one of the world's most talented skaters but a young woman of grace and charm. It was not only the smoothness and precision of her skating but her personality that captivated the gathering.

Miss Henie has done a great deal to popularize skating wherever she has appeared, and last night she added something more. She gave a Hollywood style to figure-skating productions. There was no denying the touch. The ladies and gentlemen of the ensemble were chosen with an eye for theatrical effect as well as for their merit as skaters. And although there did not appear to be many claimants for national honors among them, nevertheless they skated splendidly in unison and their well-drilled numbers gave a freshness and verve to the production.

The costuming was in good taste and the "Babes in Toyland" number, with all the familiar characters present—the teddy bears, Little Red Riding Hood—was colorful.

Staging Is Expert

Miss Henie and her cast of eighty also benefited by excellent staging. From the big white permanent set new effects were introduced. Varicolored lights set along the sideboards of the rink flooded the ice with splotches of color that matched Miss Henie's costumes.

And the Hollywood idea was carried further in the Susie-Q and rhumba numbers. In fact, with the swing music and the cast dancing, it did not require much imagination to believe you were watching a stage production, not a skating show.

Judging by the score sheet of applause, Miss Henie's Russian dance and her Viennese waltz were about even, with three encores apiece. The first of these brought the initial half of the program to an end and a group of youngsters from the Children's Village, which shared the proceeds of last night's presentation, appeared in time to give Miss Henie a big bouquet of roses.

The waltz was skated by Miss Henie and six partners. Wearing a cloak of sequins over a white skating costume, Miss Henie was a stunning picture. After the prolonged applause and encores she skated "the song of allegiance." It was announced then that Miss Henie wished to salute the United States as her newly adopted country.

An Elaborate Tableau

"Babes in Toyland" was the most elaborate of the six scenes in which Miss Henie skated. Miss Henie was in the midst of the animals and wooden soldiers as the animated doll that arrived in a huge cellophane box.

One of the most exciting bits in the show was the barrel jumping on skates done by twelve men in the cast. Two of them came down an icy chute and dashed over the ice, clearing a row of barrels in a grand leap.

A touch of comedy was furnished by the Seller brothers, who fenced (without skates) and did a clever dance on barrel staves.

Throughout the show Miss Henie did many of the spins, jumps and steps that marked her triumphs in Olympic competition. But she has the versatility to adapt her skating to productions of this kind, which have found a popular place. And now that Miss Henie has stopped skating in competition, she is skating to please. She certainly did that last night.

18,000 Calls Received

So many telephone calls were received at the Garden for information on the show that one of the operators, Miss Sally Dunn, became "temporarily deaf" and had to consult an ear specialist. It was estimated that 18,000 calls have been received by the Garden concerning the revue during the last twenty days.

Dillon's 17 Goals Top Hockey List

MONTREAL, Jan. 24—The statistical news of the week in the National Hockey League has been Cecil Dillon's rise to the point where he is the undisputed goalgetting leader of the big circuit.

No even Gordie Drillon of Toronto can challenge now the New York Ranger's supremacy in the scoring department. The Maple Leafs' young winger still leads the league in total points on goals and assists, but it is Dillon who is out ahead on the actual tallies.

He has 17. That puts him three up on Drillon, George Mantha and Toe Blake of the Canadiens. Dillon fattened his average by three goals during the week, boosting himself to 17 goals and 12 assists.

But young Drillon is the league's leading helper on goals, with 18 assists. Those and hi 14 goals give him a margin of three points on Dillon in the total count.

Tied for second place in assists, three points behind the Toronto player, are Syl Apps of the Leafs, Rod Lorrain of the Canadiens and Marty Barry of the Detroit Red Wings. In the penalty division, Allen Shields of Montreal Maroons is still unchallenged. He has 57 minutes on the bench.

Canada Beats England By 3—1 To Capture World's Hockey Title

Canada won the world's ice hockey championship on Sunday by defeating England by three goals to one in the final of the championships held at Prague from February 11, according to a dispatch received by Domei.

Thus did Canada avenge itself of defeat in the Fourth Winter Olympic Games at Garmisch-Partenkirchen, Germany, in 1936. The score then in England's favor was 2 to 1.

U.S. Men Advance At Table Tennis

LONDON, Jan. 24—The United States women's table tennis team, defending the world championship and the Corbillon Cup, lost two of its first three matches today but the American men scored three straight victories in defense of their world title.

The men's team, which won the Swaythling Cup last year, topped its performances for the day by beating England, 5 to 0, in the third match tonight. Earlier the Americans beat Germany, 5—2, and Wales, 5—0.

The American women's only victory was gained at the expense of Ireland, 3—0. They lost their first match to Hungary, 3—1, and took a 3—0 defeat from England tonight.

America's men players must dispose of Ireland, Poland, Latvia and Austria in their own division to be certain of qualifying for the final play-off against the Group 2 winner Wednesday.

Today's opening team matches were speedily concluded because of the arrangements made to handle the large field. The rule setting a twenty-minute time limit to prevent long-drawn-out matches was invoked for the first time. A corps of fifty interpreters served the field of nearly 300 players representing sixteen nations and helped prevent misunderstandings.

The United States men's team is without the services of Robert G. Blattner of St. Louis. On the squad are James H. McClure of Indianapolis and Sol Schiff of New York, veterans of last year's squad; George Hendry of St. Louis and Louis Pagliaro of New York.

Miss Ruth Aarons of New York, world, United States and English champion, is missing from the women's squad. Miss Mildred Wilkinson and Miss Betty Hendry of St. Louis and Mrs. Clara Harrison of Cleveland make up the team.

A. Bergman of Austria will defend his individual title against a field of sixty the latter part of the week. The defending titleholders are missing from both the women's individual competition and men's doubles, where McClure and Blattner were the 1937 winners. McClure has teamed with Schiff this year.

Nankai Railway Nine Wants Place In Pro Circuit

The recently organized baseball team of the Nankai Electric Railway Co. of Osaka is expected to apply shortly for admittance into the All-Japan Professional baseball league, according to Domei.

Coach Takasu and his scouts have been at the Choyokan inn at Toranomon for sometime now looking for material and it is reported that they have signed an impressive array of players. Announcement of the latter will not be made until after the graduation exercises for the middle schools and universities during the middle part of next month.

Approval of the team's application is expected inasmuch as the two other Osaka clubs already in the league, the Osaka Hankyus and the Osaka Tigers, have made recommendation to that end. But indications are that the team will not be entered into the regular league games until the autumn season. Meanwhile, the new club will compete in non-league games with the other teams.

First practice will be held on February 28 at the company's new grounds at Ohama.

Tsuneo Tsuri, pitching hope of the Kansai University team, has signed up with the Osaka Tigers, champions of the professional league's 1937 season, according to announcement today. He was a star pitcher of the Himeji Middle School. Last fall, he was one of the leading hitters in the Kansai University league.

First Glider Meet For Middle Schools To Be Held Mar. 29-30

The first glider meet of middle schools in the Kanto District will be held at the Toda-Bashi-Gawara Glider Field, Itabashi Ward on March 29 and 30 under the auspices of the Imperial Aero-Society of Japan. Seventeen students, representing four schools in Tokyo Prefecture and six in Kanagawa, Saitama, Chiba, Ibaragi, Tochigi and Gumma, will take part in the coming event.

The contest which is hailed as a timely project, will be sponsored by the Education Office, Public Welfare Office and Air Boards of the Service Departments.

Japanese Win Title

Takeo Matsumoto of Hosei University and Yasuo Tsuruta of Keio won the doubles title in the All-Comers tennis championships at Manila on Monday afternoon by defeating the Filipino team comprised of Anpon and Calmos, 6-3, 3-6, 4-6, 6-3 and 6-2, according to a Domei dispatch.

Matsuyama Beats Furuta In Three-Cushion Match

Kinrey Matsuyama, one of the world's foremost billiardists, defeated Furuta, national champion, 40 points to 29 in a special three-cushion match Monday night at the Matsuyama Hall in Nishi Ginza.

Matsuyama's high run was seven points and he won the match in 49 innings. Furuta's high run was four points.

The Job Was Worth It

During the years 1920 to 1926, Frank F. Gore, of Akron, Ohio, commuted between Akron and Cleveland, where he worked. His daily trip included a mile walk from his home to the station, then a train ride to Cleveland and an additional walk to his job. The same procedure was reversed on his return home.

His traveling figured to about 70 miles a day by railroad and 4 miles afoot. The distance covered in 6 years would equal 5 times the circumference of the earth.

Twice As Cold As Zero

The thermometer is based upon the interval between two fixed points, namely the freezing point and the boiling point (32 degrees and 212 degrees respectively). Zero on the Fahrenheit scale (32 degrees below the freezing point) is known as the cold terminal, because it constituted the coldest temperature known to Fahrenheit (a mixture of salt and snow).

Doubling zero on the Fahrenheit scale, it is necessary to multiply 32 degrees by 2. Twice as cold as zero is therefore 64 degrees below the freezing point, or 32 degrees below zero.

I.S.F. Refuses To Shake Hands With The I.O.C.

The International Ski Federation will not compete in the Fifth Winter Olympic Games scheduled for Sapporo in 1940.

This became certain with its decision Tuesday at its congress at Helsinki not to become affiliated with the International Olympic Committee, according to a Domei dispatch. Proposal by the German delegation of an amendment with the view to having the two organizations shake hands failed of adoption. It was in the nature of a compromise to have the Olympic Games use Olympic rules and the Ski Federation meets use I. S. F. rules.

For a matter over six years now the two organizations have been in controversy over the eligibility of contestants. According to the I. S. F., ski instructors, coaches and guides are permitted to compete as amateurs, but not so with the I. O. C., which holds that they are professionals and bars them from competition in the Olympic Games.

Upshot of the whole matter is that the number of contestants in the 1940 Games at Sapporo will be reduced. The Tokyo Olympic Committee, however, is determined to stage skiing as a part of the Fifth Winter Olympic Games.

Japan's application for the staging of the International Ski Federation's championships for the year 1940 was deferred to sometime after the I. O. C. meeting at Cairo next month by a vote of 9 to 6. Supporting Japan were Germany, Italy, Finland, Hungary and Sweden. Leading the opposition were Norway, Switzerland and England, according to the Domei dispatch.

Whether the Fifth Winter Olympic Games will be definitely held at Sapporo will be decided at the I. O. C. meeting at Cairo. The I. O. C. awarded the Games to Sapporo in 1936 with the proviso that the venue might be shifted at the Cairo meeting in the event adequate preparation of facilities had not been made by that time.

Coaching Offers Rejected By Kipke

DETROIT, Jan. 29—Harry G. Kipke, former football mentor at the University of Michigan, tonight announced his retirement from the coaching profession.

Kipke, dismissed recently after nine years as Michigan coach, revealed that he had accepted a position as a salesman with the C. J. Edwards Company, Detroit concern that represents manufacturers of watches, tools, hardware and rubber goods.

"It would have been nice to continue in football," Kipke said. "The game has a strange fascination and it is hard to break away, but I had the future to think of and I finally decided that I had better get started in business before it is too late.

"In permanently retiring from football, I can say that I have had my full share of thrills, and heartaches, victories and defeats, joys and sorrows, as player and as a coach. I've been up and I've been down. I hit the peak and touched the bottom and I will always look upon football as the best game in the world."

Kipke disclosed that he had several coaching offers, one of them from a Southern university.

At 35 years of age, Kipke closes a gridiron career that began as a halfback at Lansing Central High School, continued as a student at Michigan and then as a coach at two other colleges before he returned to his alma mater.

"Kip" is rated as one of Michigan's greatest punters and defensive halfbacks. A senior in 1923, Kipke captained the Wolverines.

There has been no inkling as to who will succeed Kipke at Michigan.

Eight Big League Clubs Will Train On Florida Soil

TAMPA, Fla., Jan. 19—Throughout south and central Florida groundskeepers and grass-growers have begun to cast expectant eyes on the month of February, for by then they must have their baseball parks in condition for the annual Spring training of major and minor league clubs and the subsequent short season of the Grapefruit League.

The 1938 season will find at least 23 clubs, of greater and lesser importance, training on Florida fields. Most of them are within brassie-shot range of Tampa, which makes it just dandy for the club secretaries who arrange transportation for exhibition games. Most of the bus jumps can be figured in minutes, and few exceed two hours on the road.

A survey reveals that so far, eight major league clubs, six from the International League, five from the American Association, three Southern Association, and one Eastern League outfit have made hotel reservations. The major league clubs figure about $30,000 each, and the minors hope to get off with $10,000 a club for training expenses. Here, according to the latest information, is the lineup:

American League

Boston Red Sox at Sarasota.
Detroit Tigers at Lakeland.
Washington Senators at Orlando.
New York Yankees at St. Petersburg.

National League

Boston Bees at Bradenton.
Brooklyn Dodgers at Clearwater.
St. Louis Cardinals at St. Petersburg.
Cincinati Reds at Tampa.

International League

Buffalo at Plant City.
Newark at Sebring.
Toronto at Avon Park.
Montreal at Lake Wales.
Rochester at Tarpon Springs.
Syracuse at Ybor City (Tampa).

American Association

Louisville at Arcadia.
Indianapolis at Bartow.
Minneapolis at Daytona Beach.
Kansas City at Haines City.
Columbus at Winter Haven.

Southern Association

Nashville at Tallahassee.
Chattanooga at Daytona Beach.

Eastern League

Trenton at St. Augustine.

Most of the training sites are communities of from 8,000 to 20,000 population.

Matsumoto Captures Singles Net Title Of The Philippines

Takeo Matsumoto of Hosei University, Japan's No. 2 ranking player for 1937, won the Philippine singles tennis championship Tuesday afternoon at Manila by defeating the up and coming Filipino star, Ladao, in three sets at the Rizal courts, in the finals. The scores were 6-0, 6-1 and 7-5.

Thus did both the singles and the doubles titles come to Japan, as on the previous day, Matsumoto and Yasua Tsuruta of Keio had clinched the doubles championship.

Both Ladao and Matsumoto resorted to a deep base line attack in the first two sets but the Filipino was erratic and Matsumoto had no trouble taking them. In the third set, Ladao switched to play at the net but Matsumoto outsmarted him with effective lobbying and well placed shots.

Austrian Alps Ski Playground Since The War

Christian Science Monitor.

ST. ANTON AM ARLBERG, Austria—Before the World War, the Austrian Alps were little known and still less explored by visitors, particularly during the winter. Now two factors have combined to make them a favored playground for thousands: the development of skiing under the lead of Hannes Schneider, famous skier, and the construction of 14 cable railways which have made the snow peaks and ski-runs easily accessible.

Almost concurrently with the celebration of Hannes Schneider's thirtieth anniversary as a ski instructor, the village where he lives, St. Anton, opened the fifteenth cable track, the "Galzigbahn." It offers facilities for transporting, within one hour, 210 passengers from St. Anton (about 4330 feet high) to the top of the Galzig (7000 feet).

The Austrian State and some foreign friends have contributed toward the costs of construction, amounting to some $300,000. It is planned eventually to build an additional track which is to lead still higher up into the regions of snow and ice.

Hannes Schneider, who started his ski career as a small boy on a pair of barrel staves, has since become the recognized authority in the "snow-field" and, besides, one of the most popular Austrians.

Never will the Austrians forget that he has remained true to this country, refusing several tempting offers from foreign lands. He is credited with having made St. Anton, a picturesque but poor Tyrolese village, a sort of ski university, attracting lovers of the "white art" from many parts of the globe.

A ski-master's symposium held here for the unification of instructional methods has set up a new standard of the Austrian ski-technique. During the Summer and Fall Herr Schneider tours the world as a lecturer. The films in which he has starred, "Wonder of the Snowshoe" and "Sunshine Over the Arlberg," have attained world fame.

Noboru Miki, baseball star, who will enter Sanwa Ginko Osaka Honten.

Giants Will Win Again With Same Team, Says Terry

By JAMES P. DAWSON
N.Y. Times

NEW YORK, Jan. 30—The Giants are going to win the National League pennant this year with the same club that topped the National League last season. The race will be even closer among the first division clubs. Furthermore, with the exception of five regulars, every one of New York's squad of thirty-one players is trading material.

Bill Terry made these declarations yesterday in the offices of the Giants' president, Horace C. Stoneham. The Giant field pilot, here for the International League meeting, the fifteenth annual dinner of the Baseball Writers Association, which is to be held this evening in the Hotel Commodore, and the National League meeting which will start Tuesday, took time from his other baseball duties to give a clear, forthright appraisal of his 1938 machine and what he expects to do with it.

The possibility of deals has not been entirely dissipated, although the outlook is not too promising, Terry said.

Five Exceptions Named

"I am always ready to talk trade with the other fellows if the proposition will help my club," said Terry. "Any member of the team save Ott, Hubbell, Bartell, Whitehead and Melton is trading material, if I can get what I want. But you can't do that these days. The fellow who will trade with you wants material that would wreck your ball club. Take Brooklyn, for instance.

"It looks as if we'll have the same club on the field next season that we had last. At any rate, I am not contemplating any changes in the infield. I expect to start with McCarthy, Whitehead, Bartell and Otto. We'll carry Chiozza because we can use him in the infield or outfield. We'll have Hubbell, Melton, Castleman, Schumacher and Gumbert as starting pitchers. If Lohrman stands up, he'll be handy on relief with Coffmann and Baker.

"Mancuso and Danning will do the catching, and not necessarily as specialists. I mean I won't use Danning for the left-handers and Gus for the right-handers. I believe if a fellow is going along all right, let him keep right on going.

Berger in Utility Role

"In the outfield we'll have Ripple, Leiber and Joe Moore. Berger will be around as utility and for power. He was a handy man for us last season and I see no reason why he shouldn't be even better this year. He assures me his hand is all right and I know he's a hard worker, a fellow who loves to play the game. We'll carry Sam Leslie, too.

"I think we'll win again this year, easier than we did last season, even though I look for sterner opposition from the first-division clubs. St. Louis looks like the club to beat."

Terry also sees trouble from Chicago. "The Cubs will be tough, too," he continued, "perhaps the toughest of the bunch. The Pirates may come along, too. But I don't think the league's second division will be as strong this year as it was last.

"Take Brooklyn, for instance. What have they got? And Boston. They had three fellows last year who had great years. But I don't look for them to repeat this year.

"Castleman's doctor assures me Clyde'll be all right this year, and that will give us added pitching strength. It was at Castleman's own request we sent him a contract for $1. He asked that we do that so that he could satisfy himself he would be all right. If he is okay, of course, he'll get a raise over last year.

"Vandenberg is a young pitcher who may come through for us. If he does, and Castleman comes back for us, we'll surely win easier than we did last year. Of course, I expect the Yankees will win in the other league."

Terry said he has not discussed trades with Larry MacPhail, the new Brooklyn executive vice-president, and indicated deals in that direction are remote. Bill McKechnie, he said, talked of Burgess Whitehead at the meetings in Milwaukee and Chicago, as well as one or two outfielders, and for a time a three-cornered deal involving the Giants, Reds and Cubs was discussed, but at no time was it near completion.

Montreal Downs Yale's Sextet, 5-3

N.Y. Times

MONTREAL, Jan. 29—The fast-skating University of Montreal squad had too much experience for Yale today and chalked up its first victory of the season in the International Intercollegiate Hockey League to move out of the league cellar. The French collegians handed the visitors a 5-3 setback before a crowd of not more than 200 fans.

The loss dropped the Bulldogs, who have yet to win a league contest this year, into the spot vacated by Montreal. On Monday night the Elis face the unbeaten McGill team in the second game of their week-end visit. They are not conceded much chance of stopping the high-flying Redmen.

Roger Gagne, diminutive Montreal right winger, beat the American collegians almost single-handed. Gagne, turning in his best display on the Forum ice in some time, scored three goals and passed to Jean Grignon for the other two markers. Grignon also had a hand in two of Gagne's scoring efforts.

Montreal Takes Command

The Elis got off to a poor start and were trailing, 1—0, before the second minute had elapsed. Unfamiliarity with the ice surface had the Bulldogs going around in circles and Montreal took command of the play. A penalty to Clint Childs paved the way for Montreal's second goal, putting Yale definitely on the defensive, but from that point on the visitors refused to back down and more than held their own until well on in the third period.

Harold Howe was the sparkplug as Yale gallantly tried to make up the deficit. The giant defenseman plunged through Montreal's defense twice in the middle session to bring Yale up on even terms.

But all Howe's efforts went for naught as Gagne took fast passes from Grignon to give Montreal a 4-2 edge in the final period. Dude Humphrey brought Yale closer on a smart combination play with Ed Toland and Childs, but Gagne broke away from a Yale power play near the end of the game to clinch the verdict.

Howe's two scoring plays were the most spectacular of game although other Elis came close on numerous occasions. Clement Kite, Dave Boles, Bill Platt and Childs missed great chances but poor shooting when in a position to score nullified their efforts.

Chinese Sports Body Protests Against '40 Games In Tokyo

The Chinese Amateur Athletic Federation sent a letter recently to Count Henri Baillet-Latour, chairman of the International Olympic Committee, who is now in Rome, protesting against the organization of the 12th Olympic Games in Tokyo, according to a Domei dispatch from Rome.

The letter gave formal notice of China's intention not to compete in the Games if held in Tokyo, but that she would be most happy to participate should the venue be switched elsewhere.

Nature of this letter was considered too political, as being contrary to the ideals of the Olympic Games, by Count Baillet-Latour and rejected, the Domei dispatch said.

Cornell Defeats Penn Quintet By 36-30 Score

N.Y. Times

PHILADELPHIA, Jan. 29—Cornell strengthened its hold on second place in the Eastern Intercollegiate League by defeating the Pennsylvania basketball team at the Palestra tonight, 36—30, before 5,000 persons.

The victory, first for the Ithacans over the Red and Blue since 1936, was Cornell's fourth in the league race, as against only one setback, and brought the Big Red team within a half game of the pace-setting Dartmouth squad, which was idle tonight.

Penn, 1937 league champion, drooped to a tie for fifth place and was virtually eliminated as a title contender.

Tom Rich and Carlton Wilson starred for Cornell, the former getting five field goals and the latter three and as many straight fouls. Cornell played without Walter Foertsch, ace forward, who injured his knee early in the week.

Captain Bob Dougherty excelled for the Red and Blue with six field goals and one foul. Bob Menzel scored 10 points.

Rich sent the Ithacans into the lead with a tap-in goal after two minutes of play. Gustafson tossed a foul and Leonard converted two charity shots, but Menzel got a field goal from a scrimmage under the net.

Leonard made good on another foul shot and Menzel tied the score with a side-court goal. Shots by McDonald and Wilson gave the Ithacans a 4-point lead midway in the half and Polzer's overhead shot raised it to 11—5.

The defense of both teams tightened, but Cornell managed to maintain an advantage, the half ending with the score 18—13 in its favor. Leonard's final shot of the half was aimed from beyond the center of the court.

Menzel caged a one-hand field goal and tossed a foul in the first two minutes of the second half to cut Cornell's lead to 18—16. Captain Dougherty's field goal from the side tied the score, but Rich put the Ithacans back in front again. Mischo's foul and a field goal by Dougherty sent Penn ahead at 21—20.

Lead Again Changes

Wilson's foul toss and McDonald's long toss were followed by Dougherty's fourth field goal. Wilson arched the ball in from near mid-floor and the Ithacans had a 27-23 margin with ten minutes to go.

Side shots by Wilson and Rich increased the advantage. With five minutes remaining, Dougherty flipped in another field goal from beyond the foul line and Menzel converted a foul. Vaughn made his first 2-pointer of the game, bringing Cornell's lead to 32—26.

Dougherty came through with a long field goal. Wilson dropped in a foul toss. Kozloff's long field goal cut Cornell's lead to 34—30 with a minute left. In the closing seconds Rich caged his fifth field goal.

April 17: Tigers versus Nagoya at Naruto.

Budge Displays Form In Beating Jack Bromwich

ADELAIDE, Australia, Jan. 29—Don Budge, world's No. 1 amateur tennis star, proved conclusively today that his exhibition match defeats were no sign of a slump when he routed Jack Bromwich, 19-year-old Australian Davis Cupper, 6—4, 6—2, 6—1, to add the Australian lawn tennis title to his American and Wimbledon crowns.

Twice during his Australian visit Budge had lost to Bromwich in exhibitions, and once to Baron Gottfried von Cramm of Germany. But today the Australian youngster had no chance at all. Budge took command of the situation at the outset and had his opponent baffled and erratic long before the end of the match.

Sound stroking from the baseline enabled Bromwich to halt Budge after the American had taken a 4—0 lead in the first set, and win the next three games. Budge took the eighth to lead at 5—3, lost the ninth at love, then called on his blistering service to win the tenth and the set.

In the second and third sets, the Californian who previously had won the Victoria championship also by downing Bromwich in straight sets, again ran up commanding leads. Bromwich appeared worried and listless, and no longer was able to get his shots under control.

Budge ran off the last four games of the final set in succession.

The women's singles title also went to the United States as Miss Dorothy May Bundy of Santa Monica, Calif., whipped Australia's Miss Stevenson, 6—3, 6—2.

In a mixed doubles semi-final, Gene Mako, Budge's doubles partner, and Miss Dorothy Workman of California lost to C. F. Long and Miss Nancy Wynne of Australia, 6-2, 6—3.

The Mystery of the Earth's Motion

The day of 24 hours is based on the assumption that it takes the earth exactly 24 hours to complete one full rotation on its axis.

The truth is, that due to the earth's simultaneous revolution around the sun, the complete rotation is performed in 23 hours, 56 minutes and 4 seconds. The earth thus gains about 4 minutes a day. Over 365 days, this gain will aggregate one complete extra revolution on its axis. In a year of 365 days, therefore, the earth completes 366 rotations.

Translated into the illusory motion of the sun and stars, the result is that while the sun rises and sets 365 times, the stars rise and set 366 times within a normal year.

Cunningham Wins Mile At Boston Games, Beating San Romani

By ARTHUR J. DALEY

N.Y. Times

BOSTON, Jan. 29—With another of his superlatively competent performances, Glenn Cunningham, a master workman always, scored a smashing twelve-yard victory over Archie San Romani in the mile run that featured the Prout Memorial Games of the Massachusetts Knights of Columbus before a capacity gathering of 14,000 in the Boston Garden tonight.

As a dress rehearsal for next Saturday's Wanamaker Mile in New York, this was a gem of artistic beauty. A lap and a half from the finish Cunningham let go with a lifting burst that carried him past his Curb Exchange clubmate and bosom friend to a magnificent triumph in 4:13.8, his fourth straight in this particular race and his seventh mile triumph in a row in the major circuit.

Cunningham was poetry in motion as he fled over the gray pine boards in a race that developed into a tandem affair that saw San Romani, Cunningham and Gene Venzke locked in a three-cornered battle for the last six laps. They spreadeagled the field and built up to a climax that rushed along with the same rapidity of the race itself.

Twenty-five minutes after he had turned in a superb 9:04.6 two miles, Don Lash essayed the mile as well, a tribute to his courage but hardly to his common sense. The Iron Man raced out in front for the second quarter and attempted to slow up the test but San Romani fled past him, dragging Cunningham and Venzke along with him.

That was all there was to it. Lash finally dropped out on the last lap, hopelessly in the ruck as the other three galloped along like a team. But once the 28-year-old Cunningham fired away, his fellow-Kansan had no answer in response. San Romani still has to defeat his rival from the Corn Belt on boards. The time at the quarters was 0:63, 2:12 and 3:14.8, the Jayhawk veteran finishing with a 59-second last quarter.

The amazing Joe McCluskey, a veteran of nine years of foot racing at the ripe old age of 26, ran the greatest two-mile race of his life tonight, reaped all the plaudits but just missed a victory in one of the most spectacular distance tests that this Athens of America ever has seen.

The mighty Lash, forced to summon all the fire and power in his rugged frame in a blazing finish, just nailed Fordham Joe in the last twenty yards after a struggle that had the huge crowd in a state of frenzy. The Hoosier drove over the line in 9:04.6, Boston's second fastest two miles, as McCluskey was caught in 9:05.

Set Record in Hub

Only the world record of 8:58 that the Indiana post-graduate turned in here a year ago surpassed the achievement that Lash carved out in this thriller and, if further proof of the McCluskey feat be needed, it might be pointed out that he peerless Paavo Nurmi never did faster than 9:12 in the Hub.

The race had the gathering edging forward in its seats from the moment that Governor Charle F. Hurley of Massachusetts fired the starting gun. Lash, McCluskey, Floyd Lochner and Tommy Deckard, national champions all, alternated in the lead of a bitter cat-and-dog fight that saw elbows flung around in disdain and roughness in all the clinches.

Eight laps from the end McCluskey shuffled up to the fore and there he stayed despite frantic efforts to dislodge him. He outsprinted Lash, outsprinted Lochner and outsprinted Deckard in turn as the pro-McCluskey crowd went wild with joy.

Bedlam broke loose as the bell lap found Fordham Joe still in the fore with Lochner ahead of Lash, a very bad spot at that moment for the king of the two-milers. But in the backstretch the Hoosier let go with a superhuman burst that lifted him right past the Oklahoman, but McCluskey still was flying along in high.

Around the turn they whirled with Lash in hot pursuit. Desperately McCluskey fought him off but the Iron Man had too much power in that last furious drive. He collared the New York A. C. veteran a scant twenty yards from the wire as Lochner finished eight yards further back, with Deckard outdistanced.

In a blasting drive in the last half-lap, Jim Herbert, unbeaten N. Y. U. ace, flashed to victory in the Prout 600, repeating his triumph of a year ago and setting a new meet record in the bargain. Shunted into the background in the early going, the Negro wearer of the Violet silks paced himself skilfully and let go with his challenge at the proper time.

He caught a fading Dick Gill of Boston College and then had enough left to fight off Howie Borck of Manhattan in the homestretch to win by two yards in the slick time of 1:14, figures that are four-tenths of a second better than the meet mark he posted a year ago.

A new middle-distance star catapulted to the fore in the Bishop Cheverus 1,000-yard run as Sam Miller of Indiana, leading most of the way, won by eight yards from such stalwarts as Charlie Beetham and Lou Burns in 2:16.6. Mayor Maurice J. Tobin of Boston was the guest starter.

Olympic champion Forrest Towns of Georgia, a world record breaker over longer routes but out of his element in the short 45-yard hurdles test, slammed through to victory in his season's debut as he won in a smart field in the smart time of 0:05.8, one-tenth off the universal figures.

The top-ranking man also triumphed in the 50-yard dash, where little Ben Johnson of Columbia, probably America's premier sprinter, hurtled down the straightaway to a one-foot success over the swift Brown sophomore ace, Ken Clapp, with Olympian Marty Glickman of Syracuse a very close third.

Present Balanced Quartet

This race was the personal property of the Lion Negro all the way. He was off his marks like a bullet and hummed down the straight-away always out in the clear by a small but still quite decisive margin. Clapp ran well right up to the wire, when he suddenly clutched the back of his thigh as he pulled a muscle slightly. The time of 0:05.4 was good enough for an early season victory.

One of the early relay races saw Manhattan carve out a clean-cut victory over N.Y.U. in a race that was a bit on the strange side. The Jaspers presented a two-mile team of Joe Moclair, Red Reilly, Joe Zeitler and Lou Burns, a combination with plenty of balance.

The Violet, however, was top-heavy in its last two legs with the swift Curtis Giddings and Ed Stripling following the slower Martin Witte and Dave Urbach. At the end of the first two legs the Green had a thirty-yard lead on last place New York.

But Giddings chopped that down to ten and Stripling finally burst past Burns in the middle stages of the test. The lanky Jasper was patently loafing, conserving his energies both for the 1,000-yard special and the final sprint.

Suddenly the bell sounded for the last lap. Stanley Holt, ace Rhode Island State performer, came whirling up in a mad dash for the tape and might have made it had there been any tape there. As it was, the bell tinkled once more for the real final lap and Holt finished last. Burns let go when he really had to and won by three yards in 7:57.8.

Holy Cross Cubs Excel

The mile relays ended dismally for both Manhattan and N.Y.U. The Jasper second man fell and the Violet first one dropped a stick as the Holy Cross freshmen turned in the fastest time of the evening, 3:27. One victor from the metropolis was Ed O'Sullivan of the Curb Exchange, who won the 300 by ten yards from Bob Bodenkirchen of the N.Y.A.C. in 33 seconds flat.

The lone field event produced a surprise as Les Steers, a high school boy from Palo Alto, won the high jump at 6 feet 5¾ inches. He defeated Mel Walker, the world record holder, and Cornelius Johnson, the Olympic champion.

'Brother Acts' At Michigan In Four Sports

Christian Science Monitor

ANN ARBOR, Mich., Jan. 29—Five "Brother Acts," probably a record in collegiate sports, feature Michigan's athletic program. Each set of brothers competes in the same sport. Two sets of twins are also included.

Headlining the acts are the James Brothers—Gib and Eldon—whose hockey play makes Michigan a top-flight team. Gib, a senior, last year set an all-time scoring record with 45 points and ranks with John Sherf and Vic Heyliger as an all-time Michigan great in the sport. His sensational play at wing this year has been a major factor in Wolverine success and he again leads Michigan scoring with 18 points in eight games, including 10 goals and 7 assists.

Gib and Spike

Teaming with Gib this year is Aldon, better known as Spike, whose play in goal was a feature of the Minnesota series. Spike is a sophomore, but has had considerable experience in amateur circles around Ottawa, the James home.

Hockey also has another set of brothers, twins, both lettermen. They are the Chase brothers of Detroit—Ed and Bill. Ed is a member of the second front line while Bill is a reserve for Spike James in goal.

Nichols Brothers

Michigan wrestling depends heavily upon the Nichols brothers of Crespo, Iowa—Harold and Don. Harold, a regular at 145 pounds, is a letter winner from last year, while Don, as a sophomore, has been a valuable asset wrestling either at 175 pounds or as a heavyweight. Don won his 175-pound match in Michigan's first dual meet with Indiana and stepped up to the unlimited division against Michigan State to win again.

Another set of twins is making a bid on the track team and keeps Wolverine coaches guessing as to their identity. They are Fred and Carl Culver, graduates of Detroit Central. They compete in the sprints. Fred, or is it Carl, is also a high-jump candidate.

A swimming "Brother Act" will not be realized until next year when freshman Bill Holmes will be available to team with brother, Dave, now a sophomore.

Swope Predicts More Turf Gains In United States

By HERBERT BAYARD SWOPE
N. Y. Racing Commission Chairman

NEW YORK, Jan. 25—Never in the history of the turf has a year's outlook been more promising than that which we envisage for 1938.

Last year closed with a record showing the turf to have attained greater prosperity than ever before. This result was attained by greater attendance larger gate receipts, greater distribution to horsemen, greater State tax receipts, larger number of horses engaged, and a generally higher quality of sport.

From every viewpoint it is conservative to say the rate of progress will be continued this year. Certain basic reforms are under way that will contribute to greater public interest.

Plans are being made to remove the stress too generally existing on 2-year-old racing and to increase opportunities for the older horses. The recently concluded meeting of the National Association of State Racing Commissioners adopted the resolutions offered by New York for increased riding weights. This will give more years of usefulness to good jockeys who, under the old rules, almost dropped out of contention because of the encouragement given to lightweight riders.

103-Pound Minimum

We shall come into the season with a minimum of 103 pounds in all overnight condition and claiming races and we shall not permit allowances to start at a figure lower than six pounds under the scale.

The new uniform rule with respect to apprentices will aid in developing promising riding material, since the five-pound allowance will be granted to apprentices until they have ridden forty winners.

Many famous races, including New York's classic handicaps for older horses have been increased in value. This is one of the factors making it worthwhile for trainers to avoid ruining horses by too much competition as 2-year-olds.

A determined effort is being made to accentuate distance races. The public likes the longer races better than the mad scrambles on straightaways and sprints around turns.

It is in quality that our greatest promise is found. We have already established two idols—and racing needs idols. They are War Admiral and Seabiscuit, the standouts of 1937 that we hope will match strides this year. There is a chance, too, that Pompoon, champion 2-year-old of 1936 and strong rival of War Admiral last Spring, will regain eminence.

Some Fine 3-Year-Olds

At the moment it would be difficult to pick the 3-year-old that will win the Kentucky Derby and the championship. But there is fine material to be found in such as Menow, Tiger and Fighting Fox. If Can't Wait rounds into form he, too, will be dangerous. The fillies also offer unusual possibilities.

This year promises to settle the question of pari-mutuels in New York, the only State in which there is oral wagering. That problem has been removed from the Legislature and will be settled by the State Constitutional Convention. If the convention decides to remove the present prohibition against pari-mutuels, then the next step will be the passage of the new Constitution at the referendum next November.

Thereafter the Legislature could devise such enabling acts as it deemed wise and we would have the pari-mutuel system in the Spring of 1939. But if the new Constitution makes no change with reference to the pari-mutuels, then racing will continue under its present legal organization.

Greenberg And York Will Rival Homer Twins Of Yankees

DETROIT, Jan. 29—Mickey Cochrane is not predicting an American League pennant for his Detroit Tigers, but he expects to show the circuit this season a pair of home run twins that will improve on the Lou Gehrig-Joe Di Maggio performance.

That would be a flock of home runs. Di Maggio led the American League last season with 46 and Gehrig had 37.

Hank Greenberg, towering first baseman, and Rudy York, rookie catcher, are the Cochrane hopes. Greenberg hit 40 homers in 1937 and York was good for 35.

Cochrane bases his theory on three points. They are:

Greenberg's competitive spirit will spur him to greater efforts with York in the lineup regularly.

York, now the regular catcher, will play in more games. Last season York appeared in 104 contests, but in many cases he batted only once, appearing as a pinch hitter.

New Detroit stands in left field will cut down the wind that formerly hampered right-handed hitters.

Cochrane said he will leave Monday for Florida to prepare for the training season. The Detroit manager said the club had heard nothing from Lynwood Rowe, whose arm failed him after two sensational seasons on the mound. The big right-hander is unsigned and remains on the voluntarily retired list, but the Tiger management expects him to report at Lakewood, Fla., and show what he can do.

If Rowe's arm comes back, President Walter O. Briggs of the Tigers will be ready to talk contract and Cochrane will have the best pitching staff since the club's championship days.

Tommy Bridges, Vernon Kennedy, Eden Auker, Cletus Poffenberger and George Gill, with Rowe, probably would do very nicely, Cochrane argues, but he said he would not count on Rowe for some time.

Bruno, U.S. Wrestling Champion, To Compete Here Next Summer

Emilio Bruno, amateur lightweight wrestling champion of the United States, who captained the American wrestling team led by Coach Roy Moore to this country last year, will be invited here next Summer for a series of bouts by the Japan Amateur Wrestling Association.

The hope that he might be invited to Japan during his Summer vacation was expressed by Bruno in a letter recently to the Association.

Bruno's performance was the outstanding feature of the American team last year and his visit next Summer is expected to contribute much to the development of the sport in this country, especially when enthusiastic preparation is going on for the Olympic Games.

Rose Bowl Games Will Be Open To General Public

PASADENA, Calif., Jan. 26—Rose Bowl football games of the future are going to be open to the public. The Pacific Coast Conference intends to preclude, by legislative action at its June meeting, the possibility of a recurrence of the ticket distribution system that marked the 1938 contest between the Universities of California and Alabama.

Prof. Hugh Willett of the University of Southern California, secretary of the Conference, says the league "is and always has been anxious to protect the rights of the public" in distribution of tickets for the post-season game.

Tickets were not offered to the public for the 1938 game. The University of California management, after inviting Alabama, announced it would, under Conference rules, offer students and alumni blocks of six tickets each.

Because California has one of the largest alumni groups in the nation, 30,000, the general public was excluded from the game. Pasadena residents, although their city was host, officially, could not get seats. Some of the criticism of the ticket distribution was directed at Pasadena, and its officials had to point out that the University of California, not Pasadena, was in charge of the tickets.

Eventually, because of the storm of criticism, Dr. Robert Gordon Sproul, president of the University of California, wrote a Pasadena resident, "California stands ready to decline now any (Rose Bowl) invitations which it may be in a position to receive in the future," and that students and alumni "would rather have the friendly support of all citizens of California than to assume the burden of a post-season game, regardless of emolument, which will lead to even minor embarrassment."

Willet said today the Conference fully intends to correct the method of ticket distribution.

Britishers Told Japan Determined To Stage 40 Games

By The Domei Tsushin Sha

LONDON, Feb. 22—During conversations here this morning with Lord Aberdare, British delegate to the Cairo meeting of the International Olympic Committee, Dr. Tosaku Kinoshita, Japanese delegate to the International Amateur Athletic Association, explained that Japan is firmly determined to go ahead with the organization of the 1940 Olympic Games.

Dr. Kinoshita based his assertion upon the data he had brought from Tokyo regarding the preparations so far made by the Japanese organizers.

The Japanese delegate, who is now here on a brief visit prior to attending the 14th session of the I.A.A.A. in Paris next Monday, also met E. J. Holt, Vice President of the Amateur Athletic Union, in the afternoon for a similar purpose. The latter reportedly admitted that no one can dispute Tokyo's title to stage the next Olympic Games unless Japan voluntarily waives the right.

Mr. Holt also did not deny the existence of ill-feeling against Japan in some section of British sporting circles but said that this section was not influential. He added, however, that the British Olympic Committee cannot commit itself until the I.O.C. meeting at Cairo.

I.S.F. Adamant

By The Domei Tsushin Sha

HELSINGFORS, Feb. 22—Possibility of the International Ski Federation competing in the Fifth Winter Olympic Games to be held in Sapporo, Japan, in 1940 rapidly dwindled today as the second plenary session of the I.S.F., which convened here yesterday, again rejected a proposal to amend its rules so as to remove the differences with the constitution of the International Olympic Committee.

Final decision, however, as to whether the I.S.F. will have its own games at Sapporo along with the Winter Olympic Games, was left until after the Cairo meeting of the International Olympic Committee which is scheduled to convene in March.

Dr. Seishichi Ono, Japanese delegate, together with the Swedish, Italian, Finnish and Hungarian representatives supported the proposal which was submitted by the German delegate, but the representatives of other nations asserted that the rules of the I.O.C., instead of those of the I.S.F., should be altered. The proposal was rejected by a vote of nine to six.

Japan's firm determination to stage the 1940 Winter Olympic Games at Sapporo was reiterated by the Tokyo Olympic Organizing Committee Wednesday.

"It is almost impossible to think of losing the 1940 Winter Olympic Games," said Mr. Katsuji Ogawa, one one of the O.O.C. officials. "As far as we are concerned, we will send out invitations according to the Olympic spirit and rules, and the Sapporo Games will be held. No matter whatever happens, we are ready to stage the Winter Olympic Games."

"BELIEVE IT OR NOT"---by Ripley

The Milk Train

Dr. Herman N. Bundesen, President of the Chicago Board of Health, was offered the use of a train by the Chicago and Eastern Illinois Railway Company, to prove the assertion that milk had enough energy in it to run a train.

Dr. Bundesen had a quantity of soured milk dried and pressed into briquettes. Two tons of this "white coal" was loaded on the tender and fired the locomotive from Chicago to Chicago Heights, on a regular, scheduled run of 26 miles with an eleven car train.

Ski Federation Plans '39 Meet On Grand Scale

Despite the unfavorable attitude of the International Ski Federation taken at its recent meeting at Helsinki in connection with the Fifth Olympic Winter Games in 1940 at Sapporo, the All-Japan Ski Federation is determined to stage the ski championships with large degree of success in 1940. It was considerably encouraged with the national championships held at Sapporo early this month.

The decision has been taken by the Federation to stage next year's championships in real Olympic style from February 3 to 14 at Sapporo with skiing, skating and bobsled events included.

I.S.F. Session Ends

HELSINKI, Feb. 23—The annual plenary session of the International Ski Federation, which convened here on Monday, was brought to a close this afternoon after electing a new executive committee which will decide the venue of the 1940 I.S.F. meet after the Cairo conference of the International Olympic Committee in March.

Competent observers opined that the new executive committee, on which Japan will not be represented is unlikely to decide in favor of Sapporo as the venue of the 1940 I.S.F. meet, but it is believed possible that the meet can be held so as not to interfere with the Winter Olympics.

Several of the nations which sent delegates to the current plenary session of the I.S.F., it was pointed out, have already notified Japan informally of their intention to compete in the 1940 Winter Games.

Dr. Seishichi Ono, Japanese delegate, will leave for Berlin by air tomorrow en route to Cairo, while Jiro Takahashi, also a member of the delegation, will go to Lahti where the annual I.S.F. competitions are scheduled to get under way tomorrow.

'Whizzer' White Star Cager On Colorado Five

BOULDER, Colorado, Jan. 23—Yes, the "Whizzer" is still in there whizzing.

Byron White, All-America gridder, Phi Beta Kappa, Rhodes scholar and the target for a $15,000 pro football contract, has swapped cleats for rubber soles as a guard on Colorado's basketball team.

Athletes and coaches will tell you it is hard to make the sudden switch, but this hasn't worried White.

Two weeks after he played against Rice in the Cotton Bowl football game Jan. 1, White had won his regular job on the cage team. He was All-Rocky Mountain Conference guard last year.

Which game would he rather play?

"Gosh, I really don't know," White grinned today. "Basketball is a good change from football. They're both fun.

"In some ways basketball is roughter than football.

"Naturally, I don't mean a player can get banged up as in football, but for a game in which you're supposed to shoot and pass and cut, there is a lot of rough-and-tumble play."

Some experts contend White is as capable on the basketball floor as he is with a football. His coach, Forrest (Frosty) Cox, former Kansas University football and basketball star, says:

"I'm firmly convinced Byron could make the all-conference basketball team in any conference in the country."

As for that $15,000 contract Pittsburgh Pirate officials said they have mailed him—"I'll believe it when I see it," White said. "I won't say what I'll do about it until and if I get it."

Cochran Defeats Schaefer, 269-250

NEW YORK, Jan. 27—After five successive setbacks, Walker Cochran of San Francisco broke into the winning column in his 3,500-point match with Jake Schaefer of Chicago for the world's 28.2 balkline billiard championship last night at the Strand Academy. He captured the sixth block, 269—250, in sixteen innings.

Starting the day with a deficit of 363 points, Cochran bowed in the matinee session, 250—164, in thirteen frames and fell 449 points behind. Although victorious at night the Californian failed to capitalize on the first opening favoring him and showed a gain of only 19 points. Thus, the sixth block wound up with Schaefer, the defending title-holder, enjoying a 1,500-1,070 advantage.

Cochran, meeting with more success with three-cushion shots than in the previous games, got off to an early lead at night, relinquished it for a while and then clinched the victory in the fifteenth. Needing only 13 to take the block, Cochran proceeded to run 32 before being stumped by a difficult cushion-carom and Schaefer quickly gathered the necessary 8 points to complete his quota.

Three miscues by Schaefer hurt the Chicagoan's cause, considerably. Except for the eighth inning, when he tallied 75 for the high run of the session, Schaefer played below his usual form. Cochran's best run was one of 39. Incidentally, a miscue halted the longest run of the game.

In the afternoon Schaefer again set the pace for high runs with a cluster of 72 in the ninth. Cochran's best was a string of 42 in the third.

Tsuda Off To London To See Lord Aberdare

By The Domei Tsushin Sha

GENEVA, Feb. 24—Masao Tsuda, member of the Japan Olympic Organizing Committee, will leave for London tomorrow afternoon in order to see Lord Aberdare, British delegate to the Cairo meeting of the International Olympic Committee, with regard to anti-Japanese agitation in Britain, it was disclosed here this morning.

Sports circles here recalled that both the British Amateur Athletic Union and the British Empire Games Federation recently passed resolutions to boycott the forthcoming 1940 Olympic Games to be held in Tokyo.

Wise Prince Takes Stake At Miami; Mucho Gusto Next

By BRYAN FIELD

MIAMI, Fla., Jan. 29—Carrying on with a surprising show of power in the last furlong when many thought he would falter, Wise Prince today captured the $7,000 Miami Beach Handicap at Hialeah Park, finishing the mile in 1:37 flat and losing many highly fancied horses through the stretch. Considered only a sprinter, the 6-year-old son of Wise Counselor who bears the silks of Felix Spatola definitely eclipsed several route runners supposed to have great possibilities for the $50,000 added Widener Challenge Cup.

Wise Prince drew off to win by a length and a half from Mucho Gusto, now owned by Ramsey and Coppage. Three lengths farther to the rear, Go Home closed very fast from a slow beginning to land the show.

The Spatola star earned $5,250 and must be reckoned as one who has improved smartly since the beginning of the Florida season. He paid $16.40 for $2.

Looking ahead to the Widener, it is ironical to consider that of the sixteen starters today, three are not eligible for the big event on March 5 and of those three two finished in the money. Neither Wise Prince nor Go Home was named for the Widener. The third ineligible, Preeminent, finished well back.

Victor Carries 114 Pounds

Not only did Wise Prince win decisively, but he did so under 114 pounds. Carroll Bierman was in the saddle and did an excellent job, getting him well placed and then driving on to victory.

The mutuel play on the Miami Beach contributed heavily to the day's total of $539,291. It was the largest handle of the meeting.

Mrs. Emil Denemark's entry of War Minstrel and Corinto was favored at slightly more than 4 to 1. The only scratch was Teufel, but his stablemate, Melodist, went to the post.

After a post delay, caused largely by Clocks and Go Home, a good start was effected with Clocks making the early pace. This horse, who was such a surprise in winning the Inaugural Handicap, was in the No. 14 post position and had to cross from there to get the van. This took a lot of early speed, but across he went, and away to what looked like a decisive lead.

Mucho Gusto and Wise Prince had the early speed to stay within striking distance of the leader. War Minstrel made a move halfway through the race, but he stopped at the far turn. Infantry and Brush Hook, the second and third choices respectively, never came to contention.

Mucho Gusto Passes Clocks

At the top of the stretch it seemed Mucho Gusto would pass Clocks. He eventually did, but the real move was that of Wise Prince. Bierman turned loose this sprinter as if he were merely going along in a dash. It was toward the end of the mile, but Wise Prince drew away.

Mucho Gusto held on to get the place, while Clocks faded to fourth. Finishing very fast was Go Home, a trailer in the early part.

The secondary feature saw a decisive victory and a fine performance by Townsend B. Martin's Cravat. This 3-year-old son of Sickle finished a mile in 1:38 flat in the Sarasota Purse, scoring by four lengths. The performance of Cravat was expected, in view of his fine previous effort, and he merely toyed with five others.

Backed into odds-on-favoritism, Cravat returned only $3.50. He was well rated in the early part and then came on nicely when asked to put away the opposition. Mythical King was second and Mightily third.

Great Britain Out To Regain Polo Trophy From U.S.

LONDON, Jan. 26—Great Britain has started a two-year, $150,000 campaign to regain the Westchester Polo Cup from the United States.

The Hurlingham Polo Association, which will challenge the United States in September, 1939, announced it already has bought 18 ponies for the cup matches. It will purchase 30 more before the 1939 season starts.

The Association has two agents looking for ponies, Robert Skene in Australia and Maj. Robert Leaf in the Argentine. The championship stables already are in order and the ponies are being trained at Osmaston.

Britain and the United States first competed for the cup in 1886; Britain won it last in 1914. British failure in the last two decades is blamed here on lack of preparation and money.

They contend American riders spend about four times more money for their ponies. The Hurlingham Association hopes to offset its disadvantages with this long-term practice and buying scheme.

Veterans of the British squad at present are Eric H. Tyrrell-Martin, captain of the 1936 Hurlingham team who now is practicing in California; Gerald Balding, Capt. C. I. T. (Pat) Roark, Hesketh Hughes and Capt. Humphrey Guinness. But the Association shortly will issue a call to all Englishmen at home and abroad to rally for one really serious invasion of the American fields.

Sonja Captures New York With Her Skating

NEW YORK, Jan. 27—Sonja has arrived. The little Norwegian girl who won her way into the affections of her native country when she captured the Olympic fancy-skating championship on their renewal after the war, has now won her way into the same position among the other nations of the world, as she proved this week when she drew thousands into Madison Square Garden for her initial ice carnival all on her own.

It is the same Sonja. Hollywood may have captured her; but it has not changed her a bit. She is the same apostle of joy which she was when she crept over here on her first appearance, and promptly established herself as in a class by herself. The same ebullient enthusiasm which carried her to the heights was present in her performance this week. The same technical skill which enabled her to dominate the field in the world championships and Olympic Games was present. She was hardly a bit more mature, yet there was a quality of enjoyment which only real contentment can give.

Hollywood did itself proud in arranging the Carnival, but Sonja did them proud in turn. Flitting from the old Norwegian melodies which she learned as a child, before anybody but her family knew the joy of her presence, through Strauss of waltzes and that masterpiece of Victor Herbert, Babes in Toyland, right up to the severest tests of musical interpretation, the Prince Igor ballet, that typical expression of the Russian temperament, and above all, the Liebestraum of Franz Liszt, she fulfilled every demand of the music, yet all the time there was no limit to her own enjoyment of the fear.

Skates Play a Part

Her skates were as much a part of her as her blond hair. They played their part in getting her around through the maneuvers, rather faster than an ordinary dancer, but though she says they bothered the camera men in her pictures, by bringing her into focus too soon, they did not interfere with her interpretations in the least. Even in the Liebestraum, that most difficult of dancers' problems of interpretation, the spirit of the music was perfectly conceived and executed. It was a tribute to her work that during its performance the vast audience on the opening night was absolutely silent. At other times they frolicked with her just as she frolicked, but that called for silence, and she got it.

It was interesting to watch how she utilized the steps that she had learned for her Olympic routines, in the wider field she now occupies. The spins, turns and reverses were all there, fitted in wherever they seemed to match the music. Her dancing doll in the Babes in Toyland finale was full of them, and the Liszt Song of Allegiance, in which she announced her intention to become an American citizen as soon as she can, was composed of nothing else.

Just as that St. Olaf, whose cross of honor she so proudly wears, brought Christianity to her native land, and that Leif Ericson, after whom her brother is named, sallied forth on the first European visit to America, so Sonja, who first made the United States conscious of fancy skating, and paved the way to the present popularity of skiing, has launched forth on a new voyage, with success already assured.

Through the Crack

The celebrated Edward Irving had been lecturing at Dumfries. A wag in the locality met Watty Dunlop the next day. The latter said: "Weel, Willie, mon, an' what do ye think of Mr. Irving?"

"Oh," said Willie contemptuously, "the man's crack't."

Dunlop patted him on the shoulder with a quiet remark, "Willie, ye'll aften see a light peeping through a crack!"

Bradman Is Named To Lead Australians

MELBOURNE, Jan. 28—Captained by Don Bradman, the Australian cricket team to tour England this Summer was announced yesterday. Seven players who visited the Mother Country in 1934 are included, while six of those selected have yet to make their debut in test matches between the two countries.

England and Australia have met in 139 test matches. The Antipodeans, holders of the "Ashes," emblematic of world cricket supremacy, lead with 56 victories, two more than their rivals. Twenty-nine contests were drawn. The team:

Don Bradman, C. L. Badcock, F. A. Ward, C. W. Walker, M. G. Waite, South Australia; S. J. McCabe, S. Barnes, A. G. Chipperfield, J. H. Fingleton, W. J. O'Reilly, E. S. White, New South Wales; B. A. Barnett, A. L. Hassett, L. O'B. Fleetwood-Smith, E. L. McCormick, Victoria; W. A. Brown, Queensland.

Names famous in Australian cricket are missing from the team. W. M. Woodfull, captain of the 1934 team, has retired from the game and other players well known to English crowds include W. H. Ponsford, A. F. Kippax, W. A. Oldfield, C. V. Grimmett and T. W. Wall.

Five tests are scheduled for the tour. Two will be played in London and the others at Nottingham, Manchester and Leeds.

Oregon Signs Oliver To Coach Football

Christian Science Monitor

EUGENE, Ore., Jan. 27—G. A. (Tex) Oliver, for the past five years head football coach at the University of Arizona, has been chosen grid coach at the University of Oregon, replacing Prince G. Callison, who resigned in December.

Oliver will be employed on a three-year contract at $6000 per year, the same salary as was paid Callison. He is expected to report in time for spring football practice early in March.

The new coach, who will be one of the youngest in the Pacific Coast Conference, won 32 games and lost 11 while at Arizonia. Last fall his Arizona eleven defeated Oregon 20 to 6 in a post-season contest. His team also won from University of Kansas, Oklahoma A. and M., and Loyola of Los Angeles. Arizona teams won championships in that section in 1934, 1935 and 1936.

Oliver was selected from a field of more than 50 candidates, which the University Athletic Board pruned down to four, A. E. Shields, assistant coach at Oregon; Theodore Bank, head coach at University of Idaho; and James M. Bradshaw, coach at Fresno State College.

Oliver played football at West Point from 1918 to 1921 and had a season at University of Souther California in 1923.

Davis Cuppers To Play In Italy And Germany

Excluding Jiro Yamagishi, Japan's No. 1 tennis player, who must needs remain here until June because of his studies at Keio University, the three members of Japan's Davis Cup team for this year will play their gondwill matches against Italian players during the latter part of April and the Reich stars in the latter part of May, according to present indications.

Leaving aboard the Terukuni Maru from Kobe on March 18 are Manager-Captain Tamio Abe, Fumiteru Nakano and Yasumine Kuramitsu. They are scheduled to arrive at Naples on April 18.

Shunjiro Miyauchi, representative at London of the Japan Tennis Association, has been asked to make negotiations with the Italian and German authorities.

Four-Mile Race Kept On Program At Poughkeepsie

By ROBERT F. KELLEY

N.Y. Times

NEW YORK, Jan. 27—When the annual regatta of the Intercollegiate Rowing Association is held at Poughkeepsie in June, the varsity race will be over the same historic four miles that it has been rowed during most of its long career since 1905. This was settled yesterday at the annual meeting here of the board of stewards, which also set a tentative date of Monday, June 27, for the events which form this climax day for most of the colleges which have crews in the country.

Ordinarily, the meeting of the stewards confines itself to setting the date and issuing invitations to non-members of the association to send crews. This year, however, there was the added interest in seeing whether the stewards would do something with the request of the rowing coaches that the distance of the varsity event be changed from four miles to three. The date was set, subject to confirmation as to tidal conditions, etc., and the times of the race were planned as 2:45 p.m.—freshmen at two miles; 3:45—junior varsities at three miles; 4:45—varsities at 4 miles, all times Eastern standard.

The usual invitations are to be sent to Washington, California, Wisconsin, Princeton and Massachusetts Institute of Technology, with the probability that the Western crews would accept and the Eastern refuse.

Statement by Board

The meeting then turned to the subject of proposed changes and, after considerable executive discussion, the following statement was made by Maxwell Stevenson, chairman, for the board:

"The board of stewards of the Intercollegiate Rowing Association received a petition from the Rowing Coaches Organization of America, forwarded through the director of athletics of Columbia University requesting the distance of the varsity race on the Hudson be reduced from four to three miles.

"The Rowing Coaches Organization of America also requested that the finish line be established at the three-mile mark. A similar petition to shorten the race to three miles was also received from the members of the Varsity Boat Club of the University of Pennsylvania.

"The board of stewards, after due consideration, decided unanimously to maintain the varsity race of the Intercollegiate Rowing Association at Poughkeepsie at four miles for the following reasons:

"1. In the stewards' opinion this distance furnishes a better test of rowing than a shorter race and takes a finer crew to win it.

"2. In the opinion of the stewards a four-mile race entails no undue strain on a well-conditioned oarsman.

"3. Four miles is the classic distance and has been rowed by Oxford and Cambridge for over a hundred years, by Yale and Harvard and the three original members of the I. R. A. for well over fifty years. The stewards consider the regatta as probably one of the greatest athletic events of the world, and in their opinion the varsity race at Poughkeepsie would lose prestige if the distance was shortened to three miles. This prestige naturally accrues to the men who row in the boat.

Will Solve Difficulties

"(Note—The board of stewards was informed that, owing to unfavorable conditions of the lower Schuylkill River the University of Pennsylvania will be forced to move its rowing activities to the Flat Rock Dam course, where 4½ miles is available. This will therefore solve the training difficulties for Poughkeepsie, and, as it is expected to make this change by the Spring of 1939, it is believed that Pennsylvania will again participate in the I.R.A. regatta of that year.)

"The stewards consider the changing of the finish line from the present 4-mile mark to the present 3-mile mark would give spectators aboard the observation train a considerably obstructed view, owing to the presence of the Highland railroad station, the ferry house, several boathouses, etc., at that point. It would also necessitate rowing the first mile of the race across a strong side current above Krum Elbow if the race were run on a straight course, or, as an alternative, it would have to be rowed around a sharp bend at that point. For the above reasons the stewards consider this proposed change inadvisable."

The reference to the proposed new course for Penn rowing is significant, as it was the retirement of Penn from the regatta last year—on the grounds it could not prepare for four miles—that brought the agitation for the reduction of the distance of the varsity race. If Penn does go to the course further up the Schuylkill, but easily reached by bus, there will be plenty of room for rowing. A regatta was successfully held there in 1932 and it is understood this year's Blackwell Cup race at Philadelphia will be rowed on it.

Louis Kayoes Mann In Third Round At N.Y.

By The Domei Tsushin Sha

The Brown Bomber tonight showed his fight fans that he still has the punch left as he rendered a merciless beating on Mann, rocking him with terrific punches to the head. Although starting aggressively in the first round, Mann was stopped early in the second for a count of nine.

Louis opened the third canto with a stream of hard-rocking lefts flooring the young Connecticut Yankee three times. Bleedy and groggy Mann refused to sit up after being knocked down for the third time.

This was Louis' second fight since he won the championship from James Braddock on June 22 at Chicago last year. The Brown Bomber was almost floored by the British champion, Tommy Farr, last fall.

Mann weighed 193½ at the start of the fight, while the negro champion tipped the scales at 200.

Ando Elected Captain Of Senshu 'U' Fencers

Katsuyasu Ando has been elected captain of the Senshu University fencing team for 1938, according to announcement Thursday.

Kazuo Kumagai was named coach with Saiichiro Michiya as manager.

"BELIEVE IT OR NOT"---by Ripley

The Blind Historian

William H. Prescott (1796-1859) lost the sight of one eye through an accident and the sight of the other as a result of an inflammation, so that to all intents and purposes he was totally blind before he started on his career as a historian. He purchased an instrument called a noctograph. This implement, consisting of a frame crossed by a number of brass wires, held a sheet of thin carbon paper on which the blind man could write with a short pointed stylus instead of a pen. It was on this contrivance that Prescott wrote a series of great works on the history of Spain, Mexico and Peru, with an endurance that baffles comprehension. It was easily the most heartbreaking handicap genius has ever mastered.

Army Five Beats Penn By 39 To 29

N.Y. Times

WEST POINT, N. Y., Jan. 26—Army's basketball five added the University of Pennsylvania to its list of victims today, the Cadets winning by 39 to 29 in a well-played game. It was Army's, seventh straight victory, with no defeats thus far.

Penn fell before a whirlwind attack led by Cadet Brinker, Army's star forward, who rang up 21 points on five field goals and 11 points from the foul line. Brinker missed only two foul shots. Mischo led Penn's attack with 11 points.

Army's defense was so strong that Penn was unable to break through for a field goal until after fifteen minutes of play. The visitors had been shooting from long range until then. Army closed the half in the lead, 22 to 16.

McDavid led off for the Cadets soon after the opening with a point from the foul line. Stanley netted a foul for Penn. Dougherty was fouled and made good and Penn was in the lead for the first and last time. From that point on Army went out in front, Samuel, Sullivan, Rogner and Gillem all scoring from scrimmage before Penn got the range. Connelly's long shot from almost center court was a feature play of the first half.

Britishers Start Talk Tokyo Discussing 'Deal' With Rome On Olympics

By The Domei Tsushin Sha

LONDON, Feb. 24—Speculating on the possibilities of Japanese relinquishment of the 1940 Olympic Games, British sporting circles here, according to the Associated Press, were freely discussing the probability that Japan may "deal" with Italy to shift the 1940 Games to Rome because of the threatened boycott.

The news agency understood that under the deal, Italy will be given the 1940 Games providing Japan gets the 1944 Games.

Meanwhile, as the Cairo meeting of the International Olympic Committee nears, the A. P. ascertained three definite facts, (1) that there is no widespread sympathy for a boycott of the Tokyo Olympics, (2) that Japan will not give up the Games or make a deal with Italy unless the Far Eastern conflict and threatened British boycott become too severe, and (3) that the International Olympic Committee is in danger of being divided into political blocs corresponding to the present political blocs in world affairs.

Germans Thanked

Saburo Kojima, president of the Japan Ski Association, Friday sent a letter of thanks to Reichssportfuehrer H. von Tschammer und Osten for the continued solid support of Germany while Japan is going through the presently considered difficult period in international sports circles.

Dr. Kojima, it was learned, stated Japan will stage the 5th Winter Olympic Games regardless of wilful agitations against Japan. He also assured the German official of Japan's firm determinations and preparedness for the 1940 Summer Games.

Koyanagi Is Elected Rikkyo Hockey Captain

Seishi Koyanagi, one of the speediest forwards in Tokyo's ice hockey circles, will lead Rikkyo University's sextet next season. His election as captain was announced Friday.

Masao Yamamoto was elected assistant captain; Nobuo Mochizuki as manager, and Hideo Sato as assistant manager.

Sarazen Praises Golf Courses He Saw In Japan

N.Y. Times

NEW YORK, Jan. 27—Gene Sarazen, accompanied by his wife, came home yesterday from a voyage that took him around the world. Although he played golf in such places as Bali and Japan and saw many interesting sights, there was one thing that bothered him a lot.

"It's probably a funny thing," he remarked as the Italian liner Rex came up the bay, "but in all the countries I visited I didn't see a decent herd of cattle or even a fairly good cow."

After the ship docked he and Mrs. Sarazen hurried away to their Connecticut farm to have a good look at a first-class member of the bovine family. Mrs. Sarazen is recovering from the effects of travel in the Orient. A physician advised them to cut short their tour at Singapore because of the excessive heat.

The golfer said he had been surprised to find so many good courses in Japan and so many good golfers. In Bali he took out his clubs and knocked a ball around just for practice, and discovered that he was the first professional golfer ever to visit the islands.

"I guess it's the only place in the world where Joe Kirkwood hasn't been," he observed. "Even so, they weren't particularly interested in the game, and there wasn't any place to play a real round, anyway."

Somewhere along the route (it wasn't clear just where) Sarazen ran into Walter Hagen and Kirkwood. He saw an advertisement of a match in which the two were to play, and called on them at their hotel.

"I sent up a note asking where I could buy a ticket, as I was a man interested in the game of golf," he recalled. "Hagen came down and almost fainted, he was so surprised."

The Sarazens went as far as Singapore with Albert D. Lasker, chairman of the board of Lord Thomas. Mrs. Sarazen lost twelve pounds on the trip, while Gene added a few. He plans to go to Battle Creek, Mich., to get in shape for competition in the Summer.

Gomez, Hold-Out, Refuses $15,000 To Be One Of 31

N.Y. Times

NEW YORK, Jan. 26—The rapidly growing list of major league holdouts yesterday acquired another conspicuous recruit, Vernon (Lefty) Gomez, southpaw ace of the world champion Yankees and No. 1 pitcher of the American League in effectiveness.

At Reno, where he's divorcing his actress wife, June O'Dea, Gomez revealed he had been offered a $15,000 contract, representing an increase of $1,500. Like most other Yankee contracts, this was considered the club's "opening bid."

Gomez, whose pay was cut from $20,000 to $13,500 last year after two mediocre seasons, made a sensational come-back in 1937. He won twenty-one games, against eleven defeats, and led all pitchers with an earned-run average of 2.33 per game. He was the strike-out king of the majors, with 194 victims, and topped off his year by heating the Giants twice in the world series.

Gomez joined two team-mates in the hold-out class Joe DiMaggio and George Selkirk, both outfielders. DiMaggio not only turned down a $25,000 offer, representing a $10,000 rise, but joined the Yankee front office by demanding $40,000.

Nothing Heard From Gehrig

Of last year's hold-out crop of Yankees, the biggest the club ever had, only Jake Powell is conceded to have his signature on the dotted line. Nothing yet has been heard from Lou Gehrig, top man with $36,000; Red Ruffing, who held out until the season was a month old; or Bill Dickey, backstop who drew $18,000.

The big 1937 hold-out crop soon may be exceeded, judging by the rapidity with which the athletes are making their dissatisfaction a matter of public record. Even the Giants, famous for being one big, happy family, have uncovered two hold-outs. Outfielder Hank Leiber and Catcher Harry Danning. Leiber was a casualty most of 1937.

A check-up shows thirty-one avowed hold-outs in the two major leagues, with a number of precincts still to be heard from. The silent attitude of most clubs on salary subjects makes it difficult to determine the real extent of dissatisfaction. The White Sox, with seven known hold-outs, lead the list.

Some Annual Hold-Outs

Annually the names of Paul Waner of the Pirates, Dizzy Dean of the Cardinals, Zeke Bonura of the White Sox and Joe Stripp, ex-Dodger now on the Cardinal roster, appear among the hold-outs. This year is no exception.

Prominent on the list, otherwise, are Joe Medwick and Johnny Mize, power hitters of the Cardinals; Cy Blanton, Pittsburgh pitcher; Wes Ferrell and Al Simmons of the Senators, Monty Stratton, star White Sox pitcher, and Frank Demaree, heavy-hitting outfielder of the Cubs. Joe DiMaggio's brother, Vince of the Bees, also is a hold-out.

On the other hand, Cleveland has signed its renowned young pitcher, Bob Feller, for a reported $17,000, Carl Hubbell is in the Giants' fold as usual, and the Cubs have autographed contracts from Gaby Hartnett, among others.

No Comment by Barrow

Informed last night of the report that Gomez had declared himself dissatisfied with the salary offered him, Business Manager Ed Barrow of the Yankees stated last night that inasmuch as he had received no direct word from the lefthander since contracts were mailed out last week he could make no comment.

"Gomez's unsigned contract has not arrived yet," said Barrow, "and as we have no idea what he is demanding there is nothing we can say at this time."

In local baseball circles Gomez's action caused no great surprise, for it generally had been accepted that the ace southpaw would show plenty of indignation unless his pay should be restored to the figure he received prior to what he styled a "serious amputation" last Spring.

Foxx Signs For Red Sox

BOSTON, Jan. 25—Mixing business with pleasure, according to Eddie Collins' phone call from Philadelphia, Jimmy Foxx, Red Sox first baseman, today signed his 1938 contract before attending the Philadelphia baseball writers' dinner.

Collins also announced the signing of Charlie Wagner, right-handed pitcher obtained from Minneapolis. The 22-year-old hurler, who won twenty and lost fourteen for the Millers last season, motored to Philadelphia from Reading.

DAYTON, Ohio, Jan. 25—Alvin Powell, Yankee outfielder, announced today he had signed his 1938 contract. He declined to reveal the figures, but stated the amount was the same as last year with a bonus clause.

GREENSBORO, N. C., Jan. 25—Rick Ferrell, catcher for the Senators, said today he had accepted a $1,000 cut for this season as compared with 1937. Ferrell, who lost six weeks of play on account of hand injuries last year, said he would be ready to begin Spring training February 28.

4-Minute Mile Held Possible On A Good Day

By PAT ROBINSON
International News Service Sports Writer

NEW YORK.—What are the chances for a 4-minute mile?

All track experts and the leading milers of the day agree that it is humanly impossible.

There are at least four runners in the world today who have an outside chance to turn in a four-minute mile if conditions are perfect. These are Sidney Wooderson, the English law clerk, and the Americans Glenn Cunningham, Archie San Romani and Don Lash. Jack Lovelock also would have to be numbered among these had he not retired from competition to devote his time to medicine.

Years ago a 4:30 mile was often good enough to win in college competition. In those days a four-minute mile was believed to be beyond accomplishment. Nobody even speculated about it.

Then along came John Paul Jones of Cornell to knock about sixteen seconds off the ordinary time and then Norman Taber of Brown, running against four quarter milers dropped the figures down around 4:12.

Next came Joie Ray and then Paavo Nurmi, the marvelous Finn, to take the mark down to 4:10, or so. It was Nurmi who showed Americans how a mile should be run. Our boys used to run a fast pair of quarters, ease off in the third quarter, and then give the final quarter all they had.

But Nurmi, running by the stop watch on his wrist, made that third quarter about as fast as his others, and our own lads followed suit and the time began to drop.

Lovelock raced to a new world mark over the fast Princeton track in 4:07:6 and the world began to sit up and take notice. Perhaps that four-minute mile idea wasn't so far fetched after all.

Then the barrel-chested Cunningham brought the world record down to 4:06.7 and Wooderson lowered it to 4:06.6 where it stands today.

A. G. Hill, Wooderson's coach, is among those who firmly believe that the English runner can do a 4-minute mile under perfect conditions.

Hill has been quoted as saying that his present mark was made on a track at least four seconds slower than the Princeton track which will give you a good slant on the young man's ability as a runner.

Given a windless day, a fast track and stiff competition, and any one of these named might do the eight furlongs in four minutes.

It's interesting to note the way in which the three fastest miles were run. Here they are by quarters:

Lovelock	61.4	62.2	65.1	58.9
Cunningham	61.8	64.0	61.8	59.1
Wooderson	58.6	64.0	64.6	59.4

If you take the fastest quarter from each, you will note the composite mile is within a fraction of a second of 4 minutes. It may be that one of them will do that very thing one of these days.

Tony Lazzeri Was Brains Of Yankee Club, Says Dykes

PHILADELPHIA, Pa.—(INS)—The loss of Tony Lazzeri, sparkplug second baseman, will cost the Yankees the American League pennant in 1938, in the opinion of Jimmy Dykes, manager of the Chicago White Sox.

"Lazzeri was the brains of the Yankee club," Dykes told a group of sports writers here. "Whenever a pitcher got into a jam, whenever a catcher was undecided what to call for, whenever the outfield needed advice—they all went to Tony for help.

"He was the dynamo that ran the Yankee club. Watch what happens next year," Dykes added.

Ski Jump Championships At Korakuen On Sunday

Who will win the first ski jumping championships to be held in the midst of Tokyo?

That is the question confronting sports fans of the capital today. At 2 p.m. Sunday will see the opening of the first annual championships sponsored by the Tokyo Nichi Nichi at a specially rigged up schanze at the Korakuen baseball stadium at Suidobashi.

Japan's most prominent jumpers, including Olympic contestants, will compete.

Ladies Find Trousers Ideal Fall Golf Garb

NEW YORK.—(INS)—Autumn golf events in England and Scotland showed that trousers are extensively popular brisk weather golf garb for women players across the Atlantic. Mrs. Helen Holm, Scottish Lady, champion, and Miss Jessie Anderson, British Lady champion, both wore flannel slacks during the recent Scottish Ladies' County championship, won by Mrs. Holm on the 22nd hole.

Finns Win 40 Km. Relay Of I.S.F. Championships

By The Domei Tsushin Sha

LAHATI, Feb. 24—A Finnish triumph today marked the opening of the annual competitions of the International Ski Federation as the Finnish team took first honors in the 40-kilometer relay race with a time of 2 hours 38 minutes 42 seconds.

The Norwegian team placed second by covering the distance in 2 hours 42 minutes 30 seconds, followed closely by the Swedish team with a time of 2 hours 43 minutes 9 seconds. The Swiss, German and Italian teams took fourth, fifth, and sixth places respectively.

Canadian Academy Cagers Beat Tokyo

The Canadian Academy boys and girls quintets of Kobe scored a clean sweep over the American School cagers in their annual games Friday at the American School's court at Meguro to stop the Tokyoites' winning streak for two years. The scores were 33-16 and 18-7 respectively.

The girls from Kobe started the day's activities in great style by dumping baskets from all angles to register a 10 to 2 lead at half time. Captain Patty Ahrens of the visitors was the outstanding star of the game, scoring a total of 10 points.

Speed and height were factors that won for Kobe in the boys game that followed. John Clark, the Kobe center, gave the American School supporters heart-ache by registering single-handedly 22 points.

The line-up were:

American School girls: Foote (2), F; Mayer (capt.) (2), F; Durgin (6), C; Fowler (1), G; Suzuki (0), G.

Canadian Academy girls: Topping (2), F; Ninomiya (2), F; Ahrens (capt.) (10), C; Brady (0), G; Foote (0), G.

Austria Upsets U.S. At Table Tennis, 5-3

LONDON, Jan. 25—The United States lost virtually all chance of retaining either the men's or women's world table tennis championships today as each team suffered one defeat today.

The men, who had won their first five matches, suffered their initial setback against unbeaten Austria. The margin was 5 to 3, enough to damage, if not to destroy, America's hopes of retaining the Swaythling Cup. The victory made Austria the favorite in its group, along with Hungary, unbeaten in Group Two. The two group winners are to play for the title tomorrow.

Earlier the American men had beaten Poland, 5-2, and Latvia, 5-0. Jimmy McClure of Indianapolis featured the match against Austria by winning, 21-19, 9-21, 21-16, from R. R. Bergmann, who claims the world title. McClure, one of two seeded Americans, also began to play in the men's singles championship, defeating F. R. Langmead of England, 21-14, 21-17, 21-9.

The American women, winners of the Corbillon Cup last year, also won two of three matches, but were out of the running with only three victories in six starts. Czechoslovakia is the only unbeaten women's team. After bowing to Austria, 3-0, the American women defeated Belgium, 3-1, and the Netherlands, 3-0.

Kongo Knocks Out Atsumi In Fifth; Sasazaki Wins

Iwao Kongo, up-and coming fighter of the Usuda gymnasium, knocked out Eiichi Atsumi of Hamamatsu in the fifth round of their eight round bout Friday night at the Hibiya Public Hall auditorium. Kongo weighed in at 107 pounds and Atsumi at 100.

In the other number of the double main event, Hiro Sasazaki, featherweight of the Nippon Boxing Club, scored a cleancut decision over Yukito Tanaka of the Usuda club over eight rounds. Sasazaki weighed in at 126 pounds and Tanaka at 132 pounds.

Kongo scored his knockout when his body blows sent Atsumi down for an eight count in the fifth. As Atsumi stood up, Kongo bored in and another barrage of body blows sent Atsumi down for the full count.

Atsumi might have made a better showing had he resorted to long distance boxing instead of trading blows with the charging Kongo. The latter was in good condition and scored effectively with his lefts and rights to the face and body. But he will have to change that blind charging of his with his face down.

The bout between Sasazaki and Tanaka was a nip and tuck affair for four rounds. Tanaka piled up points with left and right hooks to the face and body but Sasazaki weathered through the storm and the tide of the battle turned in the fifth round when Tanaka began showing signs of tiring. Then it was Sasazaki who began scoring with left jabs and straight rights to the body.

Mancuso Balks At Cut In Salary

Herald Tribune

HOUSTON, Tex., Jan. 29.—Gus Mancuso, contribution of Houston's sandlots to the National League took exception to a recent article by Bill Terry, his manager, which appeared in "The Saturday Evening Post."

In that article the Giants' manager said he never reduced salaries of deserving players.

"But he is trying to cut my salary," said Mancuso. "The contract mailed to me paged my 1937 stipend. And I'm not going to take it. I've given five years of good service to the Giants, and if they don't meet my 1937 figure I'll become a hold-out."

Joe Moore, left fielder, and Harry Gumbert, pitcher, who are visiting in Houston, also said they have not returned their 1933 contracts.

Moore said he was offered the same figure he received in 1937 and wanted a raise. Gumbert, here with his wife on a visit to his parents, declined to discuss his contract. He said he expected to come to terms soon.

Dick Bartell, Giant shortstop who is a holdout, has taken exception to another part of Terry's magazine article. Bartell says he never received a cut of the money paid Terry for radio appearances and for indorsing advertised articles. The manager wrote he split half of his fees among his players.

Both Mancuso and Moore said they had shared in the "gravy," but not in the last three years.

"That's probably why Bartell didn't know of the splits," said Mancuso. "I don't recall any since 1935 when Dick joined the club."

Mancuso said Terry always had treated him fairly and often had given members of the Giants sage counsel on financial matters.

"I'd be easier to trade if I'd sign at a reduced figure. But I won't," he said. "If I'm to play for another club it will be at the figure I received in 1937."

Crowther Named Penn Line Coach

PHILADELPHIA, Jan. 25—Rae Crowther, line coach at Harvard University for the past three seasons, was appointed football line coach today at the University of Pennsylvania.

Announcement of Crowther's appointment was made by George A. Munger, recently named head coach to succeed Harvey Harman, who resigned after a poor season in 1937. The appointment was confirmed by university authorities.

Crowther, who lives in suburban Ardmore, played end on the Colgate teams of 1922, 1923 and 1924 under Dick Harlow. When Harlow took the coaching job at Harvard, Crowther went to Cambridge as line coach. He held the post three years.

Bingham Lauds Choice

CAMBRIDGE, Mass., Jan. 25—William J. Bingham, Harvard athletic director, today congratulated Pennsylvania over its acquisition of Rae Crowther as its line coach.

"Pennsylvania is to be congratulated on the appointment of Rae Crowther," Bingham said. "In the three years in which he has been in Cambridge we all came to have a high regard for him because of his excellent coaching ability and his personal qualities."

Bingham said that Head Coach Dick Harlow, now en route from Florida, would appoint Crowther's successor on the Harvard varsity coaching staff.

"Selecting Crowther's successor is entirely in Dick Harlow's hands," Bingham explained. "Harlow yearly nominates the members of his coaching staff, which in turn are referred to the committee on the regulation of athletic sports for approval."

Strong Objection Looming Against Games In Tokyo

By The Domei Tsushin Sha

AMSTERDAM, Feb. 25—Strong pressure is likely to be brought to bear upon Japan at the forthcoming annual session of the International Amateur Athletic Federation, scheduled to convene at Paris on Monday, in an attempt to induce her to renounce the right to organize the 1940 Olympics, the Paris correspondent of the newspaper "Telegraaf" reported today.

Delegates of some country, especially Great Britain and her dominions, the correspondent predicted, will raise objections at the forthcoming session to staging the next Olympic Games at Tokyo. There is reason to believe, he asserted, that many countries concerned judge the Far Eastern situation to be almost hopeless.

Pash Clashes With Burghley

By The Domei Tsushin Sha

LONDON, Feb. 25—Exposing to public view the simmering feud between the British Amateur Athletic Association and the British Olympic Association over whether or not British opposition to the 1940 Games at Tokyo should be soft-pedalled until next month's meeting of the I.O.C. at Cairo, H. P. Pash, vice-president of the A.A.A., today assailed the B.O.A. and insisted upon the right to publish the resolution barring British participation in the Games.

"I see absolutely no reason for withholding from publication the resolution passed recently by the A.A.A.," he told press interviewers adding that the resolution gave "lead to other branches of sport and has already received the support of the general public which does not sympathize with Japanese actions in China."

The question of British participation in the forthcoming Olympia is a matter of great interest for the British public and hence whatever action the British Olympic Association or the A.A.A. take should not be censored, Mr. Pash said while expressing particular regret over the fact that during a recent meeting of the B.O.A. press representatives were asked to leave during the important part of the discussions.

Lord Burghley, British member of the International Olympic Committee, refused to make much of the A.A.A. in previous statements to the press resolution which was unanimously passed by the general committee barring British athletes from participating in the Games if they are held at Tokyo. He felt that any boycott should not be unilateral and has repeatedly favored action pending the decisions taken by the International Olympic Committee.

Mr. Pash, however, asserting that the A.A.A. is a representative body of sport circles in the United Kingdom and in view of the fact that the committee's passage of the resolution was unanimous, has insisted that both the A.A.A. and the B.O.A. start its anti-Japanese campaign immediately so that by the time the I.O.C. meeting comes around, strong opposition to Japan will have developed.

Cochrane Given Most Courageous Athlete Award

N.Y. Times

PHILADELPHIA, Jan. 25—Mickey Cochrane, manager of the Detroit Tigers, tonight was named the "most courageous athlete of 1937" by the Philadelphia Sporting Writers Association.

Before a line-up of notables in the sporting realm and 1,000 guests at the association's banquet, the plucky manager and former catcher of the Philadelphia Athletics was given a plaque.

"Here was a man that lay at death's door but who came back before the season ended to lead his team," said Al Horwits, president of the association, in presenting the award.

Hit by Pitched Ball

Cochrane was seriously injured last Summer when struck on the head by a fast ball pitched by Irving (Bump) Hadley of the New York Yankees in a game at New York.

"The committee could find no one more outstanding or more deserving for the awards," Horwits declared.

Cochrane is the third recipient of the award. Two years ago Charles Gelbert, then with the St. Louis Cardinals, was given the plaque. Last year Bruce Campbell of the Cleveland Indians was honored.

Joe DiMaggio of the New York Yankees, voted the most valuable player last season, was given a cup, and Carl Hubbell of the New York Giants, selected as the best pitcher, also received a trophy.

The dinner this year was arranged as a deferred birthday party for Connie Mack, venerable manager of the Philadelphia Athletics. Present to pay tribute to Mack were dozens of baseball men, many of whom shared with him some of his most notable successes.

Members of the champion Athletic teams of 1910-14 attended, as well as stars of more recent years and some of the managers who spend their Summers trying to outguess Mack.

Mack to Carry On

Joe McCarthy was there, and Joe Cronin, Bucky Harris, Jimmy Dykes and Clark Griffith, president of the Washington Senators.

Mack spiked rumors that he would retire as manager of the Athletics with "I am going to continue as long as I can. There has been a lot of talk about my resignation," he said, "but I love baseball and I am not going to quit and I am not going to."

Rumors that the dean of baseball pilots would give up the managership and direct the affairs of the club merely as president became current several months ago when he was ill.

"I'm feeling much stronger these days and expect to be ready to go to training next month," Mack declared. "I haven't the faintest notion of giving up while there's still a chance to make another try for a championship."

Yoshioka Becomes Co-holder Of World's 100-M. Dash Record

By The Domei Tsushin Sha

PARIS, Feb. 25—Ryutoku Yoshioka, Japan's ace sprinter, was today recognized as one of the four holders of the official international record of 10.3 seconds for the men's 100-meter dash by the rules and records committee of the International Amateur Atheltic Federation meeting here.

Three other sprinters, whose title to the record was simultaneously recognized, were: Ralph Metcalf, United States; Jesse Owens, United States; and Lennart Strandberg, Sweden.

Dr. Tosaku Kinoshita, Japanese delegate, attended the committee meeting.

Yoshioka established his record at the Japanese-Philippine Athletic Meet held at the Meiji Shrine Stadium, Tokyo, on June 15, 1935.

Schmeling Beats Foord But Blows Lack K.O. Power

By ALBION ROSS

N.Y. Times

HAMBURG, Jan. 30—The same Max Schmeling who knocked out Joe Louis could get nothing better than a victory on points today over the oft-defeated South African, Ben Foord. It was only last Autumn that Max Baer forced Foord to give up in the ninth round.

The explanation for today's upset is not that Schmeling had an off day. On the contrary, he boxed with his customary control and generalship. The post-fight argument among the 21,000 spectators is, therefore, whether Foord owes his "moral victory" to Schmeling's lenience or to his own efforts.

To many it looked as if Schmeling's punches lacked a knockout sting. Foord never was even slightly groggy until the twelfth and final round. Then he was driven from corner to corner before the bombardment of Max's rights, which failed, however, to put him out.

Two Rounds for Loser

The point scores are not published in Germany. However, the universal opinion seems to be that Max took ten of the twelve rounds and Foord the other two.

Certainly the South African heavyweight must be considerably more of a fighter than his list of defeats would show. He absorbed considerable punishment throughout without seeming to lose his freshness. Ben first started to breathe hard after ninth, and acquired a nose bleed, but he remained dangerous right through the eleventh round. It seems doubtful, however, if Foord could have held up another three rounds if it had been a fifteen-round fight. He was unable to do any damage to Schmeling.

Max left the ring with only a sprained thumb to show he had engaged in anything more than a workout. Defense was no problem for Schmeling. Foord has an unfortunate trick of drawing his arm back and giving away every intended blow of importance. The German moved about the ring, weaving and dodging with almost mathematical exactness. It seems unlikely that Foord succeeded in landing a single clean, straight right during the whole bout.

A Good-Humored Boxer

Of today's fight can be said what is not necessarily true in international sport events. It was an almost exaggeratedly friendly affair. Foord, who is richly endowed with some sort of apparently limitless South African good humor, grinned at Schmeling even when the German stalked him into a corner and was exhausting at his tricks to land a knockout blow.

Perhaps Foord's grin was good psychology. At least it seems to have hampered Schmeling more than the Brown Bomber's famous poker face. At one point, in the eleventh, Foord simply turned his back and walked slowly to the other side of the ring to get his bearings. The referee expostulated and Schmeling walked behind Foord with a grin on his face which delighted the crowd.

The gate for the fight was probably 150,000 marks. Schmeling weighed 192.9 pounds and Foord 207.

No Victory Demonstration

The whole affair had been a gentleman's fight, with no boasting beforehand and no recriminations afterward. Foord was popular with the German crowd and the rare moments when he had the advantage were lustily applauded. There was no victory heil demonstration afterward with upraised arms and the Horst Wessel song such as followed Schmeling's victory over Steve Hamas in the same hall two years ago. Instead, Schmeling insisted on putting the victory wreath on his opponent's shoulders, to the spectators' great satisfaction.

Today's event was unique, however, as being probably the first boxing match ever opened with a political speech. The speech was delivered in honor of the fifth anniversary of the Hitler regime by the "fuehrer of German boxing." He told his audience—to a considerable extent foreign—to be grateful to Hitler to whom, he said, "our thoughts turn today." This address was followed by the singing of both national hymns.

Schmeling's manager in Germany, Max Machon, announced tonight that Schmeling would fight one more bout before meeting Louis in June. However, he was unwilling to reveal Max's opponent.

Foord's manager received an offer tonight, following his man's good showing, for a fight in New York between Foord and the victor in the Harry Thomas-Tony Galento bout.

National Swim Championships Given To Kansai

The national swimming championships this year will be held on August 19, 20 and 21 at the Koshien pool, near Osaka, instead of at the Meiji Shrine pool, it was decided by the Japan Amateur Swimming Federation at its meeting Sunday at the Chuotei restaurant in Marunouchi. Fifty directors from all parts of the country attended.

At the same time, it was ruled that the first three placing contestants in each event and those swimmers considered promising should be selected as candidates for the Japanese teams for the 12th Olympic Games in 1940.

Stars To Coach

Of particular interest was the decision taken to have the swimmers of the first water devote their time toward coaching prospects in the middle schools with the view to developing strong representation in the forthcoming Olympic Games.

To this end, a two-week training period has been scheduled from March 25 to April 7 at the Koshien pool for boys middle school swimmers with the following as coaches: Shozo Makino and Shigeo Arai, freestyle; Yasuhiko Kojima, backstroke; Reizo Koike, Tetsuo Hamuro and Tsutomu Noda, breaststroke; Assisting will be Katsuo Takaishi, Japan's first Olympic star, Saito, Kawaishi and Ishida.

A two-week practice will be held for those above the "C" class at the Tokyo Imperial University's indoor pool between April 5 and the 20.

A combined training period will be held for selected middle school swimmers at the Koshien pool from August 9 to 18.

Training will be held of the first selected group of Olympic candidates either at Osaka or Tokyo during the forthcoming Winter season.

For the girls in the Kanto district, a 10-day training will be staged at the Sixth Prefectural Higher Girls School pool from March 25 to April 3 with Mrsa Hatsuye Sugaya, the former Miss Matsuzawa.

Trip to U.S. Abandoned

The Federation moved to abandon altogether plans for the staging of a Japan-America meet at Los Angeles next Summer. Cancellation of an invitation to the Federation to dispatch a team was announced by the sponsors due to anti-Japanese feeling in the United States, according to reports reaching here.

The following schedule for the principal meets was prepared:

May (latter part), Meiji Shrine pool, Kanto intercollegiate water polo league.

June 5—Meiji Shrine pool, Waseda-Keio swimming meet.

June 12—Meiji Shrine pool, Meiji Nippon and Rikkyo Universities, triangle swimming meet.

July 30 and 31—Meiji Shrine pool, Kanto preliminaries of the national middle school championship. On the same days, the Kansai preliminaries will be held at the Koshien pool.

August 2 and 3—Meiji Shrine pool, girls' Kanto and Kansai preliminaries for girls secondary school championship meet.

August 6 and 7—Meiji Shrine pool, the Kanto open water-polo championships, which will also be the Kanto preliminaries for the national meet.

August 6 and 7 (night)—Meiji Shrine pool, national middle school swimming meet.

August 10 (night)—Meiji Shrine pool, the Kanto open swimming championship meet, also to be the Kanto preliminaries for the national meet.

August 21—Tokyo Higher Normal School pool, national normal school championship meet.

August 27 and 28—Shinura pool, national championship meet.

August 26 and 27 (night)—Meiji Shrine pool, national businessmen's championship meet.

August 27 and 28—Shinura pool, Japan women's open meet.

September (early part)—Meiji Shrine pool, Tokyo grammar school meet.

September 9 (night), 10 and 11 (day)—Meiji Shrine pool, the Kanto intercollegiate meet, which will also be the Kanto preliminaries for the national intercollegiate championship meet.

September (early part), Shinura pool, Tokai student championship meet.

September (early part), Koshien pool, the Kansai intercollegiate championship meet, also to be the Kansai preliminaries for the national intercollegiate meet.

September 17 and 18—Meiji Shrine pool, national intercollegiate championship meet.

September (latter part), Meiji Shrine pool, the Kanto intercollegiate water polo tournament.

Bears Rout All-Stars

NEW ORLEANS, Jan. 30—The Chicago Bears, champions of the western section of the National Professional Football League, defeated a team designated as the Southern All-Stars, 41 to 20, in a charity game today. Net proceeds went to the President's Birthday Fund for the National Foundation for Infantile Paralysis.

About 7,000 fans saw the Bears outpass and outrun the Southern college players in an exhibition of wide-open football. The All-Stars relied almost entirely on passes and laterals to score, with Gaynell Tinsley, Don Hutson, Pat Coffee, Rock Reed, Slick Morton and Al Lind in the starring roles.

John Doehring, sensational southpaw passer for the Bears, flipped one behind his back to Lester McDonald for 25 yards and the pro team's final touchdown as the Bears made a show of the game.

Sam Francis scored twice for the Bears, with other touchdowns made by Bulvid, Nori, McDonald and Nolting. Tinsley, Lind and Hutson scored for the All-Stars.

Latter Part Of Sept. Urged By I.T.F.F. For Olympic Games

That the latter part of September or the middle part of October be chosen for the staging of the 12th Olympic Games in Tokyo in 1940 was the recommendation reached by a committee of the International Amateur Track and Field Federation's meeting presently going on at Paris, according to a Domei report reaching here.

The committee also voted selection of the Tokyo to Mitaka course for the marathon, it was learned.

Schaefer Retains 28.2 Billiard Title

N.Y. Times

NEW YORK, Jan. 31—Jake Schaefer of Chicago retained the world 28.2 balkline billiard championship, conquering Welker Cochran of San Francisco by 824 points in their fourteen-block match concluded last night at the Strand Academy. The final score was 3,500 to 2,676.

The rivals divided the final two sessions, Cochran triumphing in the thirteenth block yesterday afternoon, 339 to 250, in eighteen innings and Schaefer prevailing at night, 250 to 92, in eleven frames.

Cochran provided the highlight when he ran 121, the best cluster recorded by either player during the match. In making his fine cluster in the eighth inning of the thirteenth block, the Californian flashed splendid control and a varied assortment of neatly executed shots.

The champion was considerably off form in the early stages of the afternoon session, but regained his stride at the close. His best effort netted him 81 in the sixteenth frame, but he topped that figure in the evening by clicking 86 in the fourth.

Just before Schaefer ran out with an unfinished cluster of 64 in his eleventh turn, Cochran registered his best run of the final block, 49.

Schaefer's high run for the match was 106, in the second session. He triumphed in ten blocks, while Cochran outscored him in four.

THE SCORES BY INNING

Afternoon Block

Chchran—11, 9, 10, 11, 20, 2, 7 121, 0, 73, 6, 49, 31, 0, 15, 0, 33—398. Grand total—2,584.

Schaefer—29, 3, 29, 11, 3, 0, 21, 5, 9, 17, 1, 10, 1, 2, 2, 81, 0, 26—250. Grand total—3,250.

Schaefer—0, 0, 10, 86, 36, 35, 1, 7, 1, 10, 64—250. Grand total, 3,500.

Cochran—3, 0, 1, 0, 1, 2, 0, 36, 0, 49—92. Grand total, 2,676.

Lou Larson scored his second straight victory when he defeated Jack Van Gelder, 40 to 39, in 55 frames in the three-cushion tourney at McGirr's Academy yesterday. The winner had a high run of 4, his opponent 3. In another engagement Milton Kaye beat Sam Ackerman, 40 to 33, in 58 innings. Each had a cluster of 4.

Youngster Wins Ski Jumping Title In Tokyo

In the first ski jumping contests ever held in Tokyo, Fumio Asaki, youngster from the Hokkaido Commercial School, beat a field of the best jumpers in the country to clinch the championship of the first annual championships sponsored by the Nichi Nichi Sunday afternoon at the specially rigged up schanze at the Korakuen stadium. A bumper crowd of 30,000 persons turned out to see 29 contestants soar through the air.

Asaki was credited with 322.7 points or 173.7 points for distance and 159 points for form. His jumps were 32 meters, 30.50 meters and 31.50 meters.

Ryuichi Kimura, graduate of the Otaru Middle School, was second with 332.2 points and Goro Adachi of the Sapporo Railway Bureau, who competed at the last Winter Olympic Games at Garmisch-Partenkirchen in 1936, was third with 332.1 points.

To the same Kimura went the trophies presented by President Kojima of the Ski Federation and Mayor Itia Kobashi for the longest jump without a spill and for the best form displayed.

The approach was shortened by three meters to preclude jumpers from landing on level ground.

Results of the first 10 follow:

Fumio Asaki, Hokkaido Commercial School, 332.7 points; three jumps of 32 meters, 30.5 meters and 31.5 meters.

Ryuichi Kimura, Otaru Middle (graduate), 332.2 points; 30, 31.5, 32.5.

Hideo Ito, Meiji University, 325; 30.5, 30.5, 31.

Iwao Miyashima, Hokkaido Mines, 323.1; 30, 31, 31.

Shiro Nomura, Hokkaido Commercial, 319.8; 28, 30.5, 32.5.

Sadao Muramoto, Waseda University, 319.3; 30, 32, 31.5.

Matsutaro Wakamoto, Hoppane, 317.1; 28.5, 30.5, 30.

Isamu Sekiguchi, Hokkaido, 313; 27, 29, 29.

Yasuo Kuji, Waseda University, 311; 27.5, 29, 31.

Cocktails Opposed

BUDAPEST, Feb. — (INS) — A vigorous anti-cocktail campaign was launched by Hungary's most important feminine organization, the League of Women with University Degrees. The League issued a manifesto pointing out that cocktail is bad for the health besides it is "immoral" because people get very drunk at cocktail parties and incline to flirtations. The League requests Hungarian society women not to drink any more cocktail and refuse invitations to cocktail parties.

Father of Royalty

King Max Joseph of Bavaria (1756-1825) was the father of a king, Ludwig of Bavaria, of three queens, Elizabeth of Prussia, Marie and Leopoldine of Saxony, of one empress, Caroline of Austria. He was grandfather of 2 emperors, Franz Joseph of Austria and Maximilian of Mexico; of 2 kings, Maximilian II of Bavaria and Otto of Greece, 2 empresses, Elizabeth of Austria, and Marie Louis of France, 2 queens, Queen of Naples and Queen of the Belgians; and he was great-grandfather of 3 kings of Bavaria, Ludwig II, Otto I and Ludwig III.

Wild Boy of Bara Banki

In 1928, irrigation engineers working in Bara Banki, United Provinces, India, disturbed a pack of wolves while marking lines through the tall moongrass, and much to their amazement found with them a small boy walking on all fours. To capture him, they had to surround and trap him in the same manner they caught wild animals. Taking the boy to the nearby village, he was claimed by a family who said he had been dragged away during the night by wild animals six years before, when he was less than a year old. At the time he was photographed, the boy had just learned to stand and walk like a human being; he could speak simple sentences, but still snarled and growled when defending himself from other children.

Ate His Hat

K. D. Thomson of Melbourne, Australia, was so certain he could answer correctly 95 per cent of the questions asked over the local questionnaire radio program, that he made a bet—he would eat his hat if he failed. The payoff came when he put mashed potatoes and roast beef on his stylish Panama hat and consumed every bite of the unappetizing dish.

Construction Of Olympic Stadia To Start Soon, O.O.C. States Formally

Construction of the main stadium and other stadia for the 12th Olympic Games in Tokyo will be started in the near future, according to announcement by the Tokyo Olympic Organizing Committee Monday.

Careful consideration and study regarding the location, capacity and other matters pertaining to the facilities have been carried on during the past months and definite conclusions reached.

The standing committee of the O.O.C. has appointed the necessary committee to take over the affairs of the various construction operations, as follows:

Representing the O.O.C. are: Dr. Hiroshi Shimomura, Ryozo Hiranuma, Choji Manabe, Dr. Izutaro Suehiro, Dr. Takashi Goh, Fumio Takashima, Masatsune Miyaki (Representative, Genzaburo Shirayama), Dr. Tadaoki Yamamoto and Dr. Yasujiro Niwa.

Representing the Ministry of Welfare: Masasuke Kodama, Chief, Bureau of the Physical Development; Goro Murata, Chief of the Physical Education Department; Hiroshi Nagai, Chief of the Equipment and Facilities Department.

Representing Tokyo City: Shigeru Hayashi, Chief of the City Planning Department; Jiro Ono, Chief of the Construction Department; Kiyoshi Inoshita, Chief of the Park and Playground Department; Shinichi Hori, Chief of the Road Construction Department; Shigetomo Yamaguchi, Chief of the Physical Education Department; Saburo Morita, Chief engineer of the Tokyo Bay Administration Bureau; Daikichi Yasui, Chief of the Finance Department; Noboru Tanikawa, Chief of the Planning Department; Eiichi Isomura, General Secretary of Tokyo City.

The O. O. C. Monday decided to present a united front in support of the decision of the National Ski Association of Japan to stage the Winter Olympic Games at Sapporo in 1940 regardless of the contrary decision of the International Ski Federation at Helsinki.

Dr. Katsuji Ogawa, of the N. S. A. J. made detailed reports on the F. I. S. congress at the O. O. C. meeting, which was attended by the O. O. C. members as well as the representatives of the Welfare Ministry, at the South Manchuria Railway Building. Dr. Ogawa stated that there are at least ten nations favoring participation in the Winter Olympic Games despite the F. I. S.'s decision according to a report from Dr. Seishichi Ono, Japanese delegate to the Helsinki meeting.

The O. O. C. will hold its executive committee meeting at 6 p.m. Friday at the Chuotei in order to study important matters concerning the main Olympic stadium, it was announced Monday.

Ironing out various phases regarding preparation for the 1940 Games, the Japan Amateur Athletic Association held its directors meeting Monday afternoon at the South Manchuria Railway Building under the chairmanship of Dr. Hiroshi Shimomura, its president.

The athletic body is expecting to make a drive for special and honorary membership in order to strengthen the structure of the J.A.A.A. It was decided, however, to postpone such campaign until the conclusion of the Cairo session of the International Olympic Committee.

Meanwhile, it was revealed at the meeting that the Philippine Commonwealth is enthusiastically seeking to stage the 1940 Oriental Championship Games.

Tazuhama To Represent Japan At Wrestling Body's Talks At Rome

Hiroshi Tazuhama, director of the Japan Amateur Wrestling Association, was formally chosen Monday to represent Japan at the forthcoming International Amateur Wrestling Federation congress to be held at Rome for two days beginning April 12.

Mr. Tazuhama will leave Yokohama aboard the N.Y.K. liner Taiyo Maru on March 9 arriving at San Francisco on April 25, and is expected to reach Rome on April 9, according to the present schedule.

Fordham Beats Georgetown, 38-36 In Casaba Tilt

N.Y. Times

NEW YORK, Feb. 2—In one of the most thrilling games seen in the Fordham gymnasium in years, Fordham defeated Georgetown last night in a five-minute overtime period, 38-36. Baskets by Dutch Weil and Jack Welch won for the Rams.

Fordham annexed the game by outlasting the visitors from the Potomac. With the lead changing hands a score of times and neither team holding more than a 3-point advantage during the entire second half, the Rams swept up from behind with less than two minutes to play and knotted the score on a set shot by Kamen and a foul by Hassmiller.

As the overtime period began, Captain Petroskey and his team tired noticeably and a fresh five could not help matters after Weil and Welch found the cords. Captain Dick Davis and Welch led the Maroon scorers with 12 and 10 points, while Captain Petroskey, Ed Kurtyka and Murphy were high for the Hoyas.

The Rams presented a well-knit defense and Georgetown resorted to set shots to keep the score even. Bassin opend with a foul, Hassmiller hooked a beautiful one-hand throw and Davis dropped in a pretty shot. Kurtyka sank two from beyond the foul line to send the Hoyas ahead, 5—4.

Bassin Ties the Count

For the next eight minutes the lead see-sawed. Close-up baskets by Davis and Weil were offset by two more set shots by Kurtyka and Petroskey. At this point Kamen shifted over to watch Kurtyka, but the keen-eyed Hoya guard looped in another of his specialties soon after a follow-up field goal by Davis and a set shot by Hassmiller.

A foul by Bassin tied the count at 12—12. Then Fordham put together five points in a row. A foul by Hassmiller, a set shot by Welch and Davis' fourth field goal made it 17—12.

The entrance of Bertrand added speed to the Georgetown attack. He tallied on a one-hand follow-up shot and Murphy made it 17—16 on a set toss. After Jack Welch caged his second long one, Nolan and Murphy both scored from underneath to give the Hoyas a 20-19 lead just before the half-time gun.

The teams continued their fast pace in the second half with Kamen, Davis and Hassmiller scoring from the floor to counteract two set shots by Nolan and a close-up basket by Murphy, as the visitors maintained a one-point lead at 26-25. Davis sent Fordham ahead after a pass from Hassmiller. Murphy talied on a set shot but the Maroon went ahead again, 29-28, on a goal by Welch.

Petroskey Scores From Side

Georgetown again took the lead on a side shot by Petroskey. Welch cut the Hoya defense on a dribble and scored. Petroskey registered and Georgetown went ahead, 32—31. Another shot by Petroskey gave Georgetown a 34—31 advantage, but Fordham tied it on a long shot by Kamen and a foul by Hassmiller. The crowd went wild with the game forced into overtime with the score at 34—34.

A one-handed shot by Weil sent Fordham ahead, 36—34. Welch dribbled the length of the floor to give the Rams a 4-point lead and Georgetown sent in a fresh quintet.

The Orcutt Boys Club of Bridgeport defeated the Fordham freshmen in a preliminary game, 36—31. Carl Lewis, Maroon cub forward led the scorers with 12 points.

Match With Baer Refused By Farr

N.Y. Times

NEW YORK, Feb. 2—Tommy Farr's refusal yesterday to consider either Max Baer or Jimmy Adamick shattered plans of Promoter Mike Jacobs for another indoor bout here for the British Empire heavyweight champion.

Farr, in a conference with Jacobs at the Hippodrome, said he wanted a match with Max Schmeling or Joe Louis before their proposed heavyweight title bout in June. Otherwise he would be ready to meet the winner in September.

Promoter Jacobs forthwith launched plans to pair Baer and Adamick, since Farr said he would meet Baer again only if Max regained some of the prestige he had lost in his defeats here at the hands of James J. Braddock and Louis.

"I have already beaten Baer so that meeting him again would be a step backward for me, unless he re-establishes himself," said Farr. "I can return to England and keep busy enough. If Schmeling wants a tune-up fight before meeting Louis I'll box him. Louis, too, can have a bout with me as a tune-up, if he wants it. Or I'll wait until the Fall to meet the Louis-Schmeling winner. But I have no intention of fighting either Baer or Adamick at this time."

Baer and his manager, Ancil Hoffman, are expected here Friday. Adamick, too, is expected that day, accompanied by his manager, Jack Kearns.

To Work in Corner

Braddock is scheduled to make his debut tonight as a licensed second of boxers when he coaches Bob Tow, Washington heavyweight, against Clarence (Red) Burman of Baltimore in the ten-round feature bout at the Hippodrome.

Braddock is interested in the management of Tow with Joe Gould. Jack Dempsey, who is interested in Burman's management with Max Waxman, will be near the Baltimorean's corner.

Herbie Katz, Brooklyn light-heavyweight, and Stanley Hasrato, Yonkers boxer, are paired in the eight-round semi-final. Two six-round events and a four-round preliminary also are scheduled.

The State Athletic Commission granted Braddock his second's license yesterday after he had appeared to make a formal announcement of his retirement from competition.

Dr. Eugene Kenny of the commission staff examined Tony Galento, New Jersey heavyweight, and announced that the boxer was fully recovered from a recent injury to his right hand.

Britain Wants 1944 Games But Not 1940's

N.Y. Times

LONDON, Feb. 1—The British Olympic committee met tonight to discuss the apparent failure of Japanese athletic officials to issue invitations for the 1940 Olympics at Tokyo and to decide whether Great Britain was prepared to accept an invitation if it gets one.

The meeting was not even announced here, but Lord Aberdare, who will represent Great Britain at the international Olympic meeting at Cairo in March, told The Associated Press the committee met "to draft my instructions for the Cairo conference."

"I don't think we will be prepared to make a statement of our views before the international meeting is held," he added. "But personally I doubt that we will be able to get support to finance sending a team to Tokyo even if the committee decides to send one."

Berlin Boycott Different

Lord Aberdare said in his opinion a clear distinction should be made between the boycott of the Berlin Olympics in 1936 and the move against Tokyo.

"The Berlin boycott was confined to a small faction," he explained. "Resentment against Japan here is national and, judging from United States reports, international."

Saying there was no question of taking the games away from Tokyo, Lord Aberdare added: "But I believe true sportsmanship would indicate that Japan should put the question entirely in the hands of the international committee. Obviously China can scarcely be expected to send a team to Tokyo and if the war continues western nations must think seriously about sending boatloads of athletes through unsafe waters."

Briton's Do Not Want Games

He added that Great Britain definitely was not interested in holding the 1940 games even if Japan abandons them. "We want them in 1944 and not before. We tried to stage them once on two years' notice and won't try it gain."

Lord Aberdare also said he hoped to exchange views with Avery Brundage, president of the American Olympic Committee, before the Cairo meeting with a view to adopting a common course.

Yachting, Sculling Equipment Listed For Special Levy

Of the special goods to be taxed from April 1 to provide special funds for the military expenditures in China, it is interesting to note that the list includes such sporting goods as golf, billiards, hunting, yachting and sculling equipment. And there are no exemption levels for these items.

Another feature is that of the equipment necessary for the Olympic Games, only those for yachting and sculling will be taxed.

Notre Dame's Eleven Loses Captain Shellogg

SOUTH BEND, Ind., Jan. 29—The Notre Dame football team lost its captain today when Alec Regis Shellogg, captain-elect for 1938, withdrew from school.

Shellogg's withdrawal was announced when he resigned his captaincy. He offered no explanation for his action and school authorities refrained from comment.

Shellogg had played right tackle during the 1936 and 1937 seasons, winning a letter both years. His home is in Newcastle, Pa.

Tsuri Allowed To Play For Osaka Tigers

The Japan Professional Baseball Federation has announced approval of the Osaka Tigers' enrollment of Tsuneo Tsuri, star pitcher of Kansai University, as a player. He is 22 years old.

Iguro, Kikuchi Place 10th And 12th In Ski Jump At Lahti

By The Domei Tsushin Sha

LAHTI, Finland, Feb. 27—Sixty thousand spectators, including President Kyoesti Kallio of Finland and many foreign diplomats, today watched Norway's crack representatives walk off with four of the first six places in the jumping competition of the International Ski Federation meet inaugurated here last Thursday.

Absjoern Ruud led the invaders, copping the championship with two jumps of 63.5 and 64 meters, which netted him a total of 226.4 points. Marusarz of Poland took second with 226.1 points, Myhra of Norway third with 225, Bradl of Austria fourth with 221.4, and Andersen and Konsgard of Norway fifth and sixth places respectively with 220.3 and 218.9 points.

Masatsugu Iguro, of Japan, tenth with 215.6 points, and Tomizo Kikuchi twelfth with 213.8 points.

Norway also annexed top honors in the combined jumping and 18-kilometer race event, Hoffsbakken winning the championship while his team-mate, Viniarengen, took third. Westberg of Sweden placed second in the event.

Landis, DiMaggio Honored At Feed Given By Scribes

N.Y. Times

NEW YORK, Jan. 31—Although occasionally skidding off the base lines in the manner of ardent Dodgers bent upon doing something extraordinary, the baseball writers of New York successfully brought the 1938 "indoor" season to a close on a ringing high note last night at their fifteenth annual dinner and frolic.

The event, held in the grand ballroom of the Hotel Commodore, drew a record crowd of more than 800 enthusiasts who accorded a thunderous ovation to the scribes' two leading guests of honor, Kenesaw Mountain Landis, commissioner of baseball, and Joe DiMaggio, wonder player of the world champion Yankees.

To the judge went the plaque for meritorious services to baseball over a long period of years and there was a rousing reception for the white-haired former jurist who back in 1920 stepped from a Federal bench to embark upon a brilliant career as baseball's guiding genius, following the 1919 world series scandals.

When the presentation was made to Commissioner Landis by President Tom Meany of the writers' New York Chapter, the judge extolled the national pastime as he expressed his appreciation. He termed baseball a "stronghold of democracy in these days of strife."

Because of ill health, which forced him to forego visits North during the Winter, the commissioner had not been able to attend the writers' dinner for several years, but he insisted on making this trip from his retreat in Clearwater, Fla., despite an offer by the scribes that he receive his honors "from a distance" and address the gathering by telephonic arrangements.

The Judge Keeps His Word

"Nonsense," boomed the judge, "it would sound like a voice from the grave. I'll be there, boys, I'll be there." And there he was.

Another boisterous welcome was accorded to DiMaggio when the American League's new home-run champion received the plaque as the outstanding player of last year.

From the dais a battery of orators, introduced by Toastmaster Sid Mercer, cut loose with a veritable broadside. Among the speakers were Governor Herbert H. Lehman, Postmaster General James A. Farley, Mayor Fiorello La Guardia and former Mayor James J. Walker, but before the folks had time to run out in order to cast their votes accordingly, Jimmy McWilliams and Joe Cook, noted radio entertainers, barged in to upset the entire political outlook, along with Warren Brown, Chicago sports writer. Governor A. Harry Moore of New Jersey also was present.

Then, just to give the thing a mild baseball touch, one of the greatest ball players of all time—the famous John Honus Wagner—was invited to give his views on the game as played today in contrast with his era of nearly a score of years ago.

Spurred by the presence of their severest critic and now their most distinguished literary contemporary, Bill Terry, the scribes, in their stage productions, really went to town on the old colonel. On the receiving end of a "Charlie McCarthy skit," Terry had little to say in rebuttal beyond reiterating his belief that the Giants would win another pennant regardless.

Max Kase and Jim Kahn, scribeners, gave an excellent reason why vaudeville went into a permanent recession. A young fellow named John Kieran sang something about "A Vulgar Boatman."

"Brain Trust" Portrayed

A comprehensive portrayal of the Cubs new "brain trust," augmented by Tony Lazzeri, was unfolded with Charlie Segar, Willie Hennigan and Lou Effrat providing the brains. Then, without an apology of any sort another edition of the famous minstrel show was allowed to roll from the press and on to the stage.

Between heats the scribes received substantial help from Bill Robinson, the noted tap dancer; Jack White, Pat Harrington and Buddy Hassett.

Headed by Presidents Ford Frick and Will Harridge of the National and American Leagues, as well as Frank Shaughnessy, head of the International League, practically all of the major league clubs were represented, as well as a host of minor league organizations. Among the big league pilots present, in addition to Terry, were Frankie Frisch, Jimmy Wilson, Burleigh Grimes, Casey Stengel, Joe McCarthy, Joe Cronin, Mickey Cochrane, Jimmy Dykes and Bill McKechnie.

Also in attendance were diamond luminaries galore, including Babe Ruth, Jimmy Foxx, Herb Pennock, Al Schacht, Joe Medwick Billy Jurges, Bob Grove, Eddie Collins, Jimmy Collins and a host of others.

By way of demonstrating that the scribes at least still refuse to regard him as the "forgotten man" of baseball, they called the famous Babe to the speaker's table to receive a silver bat.

Virtually every other sport was amply represented, the boxing world contributing the presence of James J. Braddock, while in a corner sat a singular group that kept talking of end runs, lateral passes and onside kicks. These included Lou Little, football mentor of Columbia University; Jim Crowley of Fordham and Dr. Mal Stevens of New York University.

McGill Defeats Yale's Hockey Team By 6 To 3

N.Y. Times

MONTREAL, Jan. 31—Yale University's hockey team put up a gallant fight tonight before bowing to McGill's Redmen, 6—3, in an International Intercollegiate Hockey League game. The Reds took over the league leadership from Toronto as a result of the victory.

A crowd of about 3,500 saw the game and expected McGill to run up a high score, but the Redmen, after a flying start, which helped them to a 5—0 lead midway through the game, retreated, under terrific pounding from Yale's huge defensemen, Harold Howe and Seabury.

Leading the attack for the Redmen were Howie Walker, with one goal and two assists; Ronnie Perowne, Russ McConnell, Paul Pidcock and Bill O'Brien, who had a goal and assist apiece; Andy Anton, one goal, and Gordon Crutchfield, an assist.

Dud Humphrey made two of Yale's goals, Seabury getting the other. Clint Childs made the plays for two of the markers and Gil Humphrey passed to Seabury for the latter's counter.

Malcolm H. Farmer athletic director at Yale, and Lewis Douglas, principal of McGill, faced off the puck to send the teams into action.

Bill Bundy, Yale goalie, was in sensational form and kept the Redmen from scoring until the fourteenth minute of the period, when Perowne crashed through the defense after taking a pass from Walker at the blue line. Perowne drove the puck into the twine as Bundy fell in an attempt to save.

Regular Line Returns

The goal spurred the sons of Eli, but when McGill's regular line returned it was not to be denied. McConnell made a goal after Bundy had saved brilliantly on several rebounds in a pile-up around Yale's nets. Crutchfield and Pidcock drew assists on the goal, which came at 17:48.

Dave Boies skated in for Yale's best effort just before the period ended. Tennant had to jump fast to clear the puck.

Gillespie drove a hard shot from the blue line to open the second period. Tennant's view was blocked at the time but the puck landed right on his pads. Pidcock and McConnell combined to make the score 3—0, the former counting at 4:32, after McConnell had missed a perfect pass-out.

Bundy missed a soft shot O'Brien fired from the right wing at 5:28. O'Brien's shot never left the ice. Walker drew an assist.

Howe and Gibson, giant Yale defense men, began to throw their weight about and McGill's attack slowed a bit. The Redmen spurted again when Ed Toland was banished for tripping Perowne. A series of power plays crumpled against Yale's defense and Toland returned to the ice before McGill could increase its lead.

Crowd Cheers Eli Tally

Walker gave McGill a 5-0 lead at 11:24 on a passing advance with O'Brien and Perowne. About two minutes later the crowd broke into a roar when the Elis crashed into the scoring. Seabury started the play with Dud Humphrey firing the goal. Childs also drew an assist.

Anton went down to score unassisted to make it 6—1 and then was sent off for charging, giving Yale its first opportunity for a series of power plays.

An old-time hockey game skit put on by the Central Y. M. C. A. held up the third period several minutes. Blue-line infractions slowed play during the first few minutes, but Seabury enlivened the game again by hurdling McGill's defense for Yale's second goal. His first try missed, but Gil Humphrey picked up the rebound and passed to Seabury, who counted at 4:10.

Seabury and McConnell began to push each other about as the Elis continued pressing, sending four forward. The Redmen took a pummeling from Yale's husky defense but there were no penalties.

The Bulldogs maintained their steady offensive drive and were rewarded at 14:35 when Dud Humphrey scored the most spectacular goal of the game. Childs made the play and Humphrey went across McGill's nets, drew Tennant out of position and flicked the rubber home.

Prospects Are Bright For Staging Of 1940 Games In Sept.-Oct.

By The Domei Tsushin Sha

PARIS, March 1—Postponement of the scheduled opening date of the 1940 Tokyo Olympics from the end of August to late in September was advocated by Avery Brundage, chairman of the American Olympic Association and delegate to Cairo, at the International Amateur Athletic Federation's session here today.

Instead of holding the games from the end of August until the middle of September, Mr. Brundage suggested that it would be better to stage them during the last part of September and first part of October in order to avoid the heat and humidity of the Tokyo summer.

He indicated that he would formally propose the change at the forthcoming International Olympic Committee meeting at Cairo, when it is expected that Britain and France will also support the suggestion.

Japanese Supported

By The Domei Tsushin Sha

PARIS, Feb. 28—Strongly deploring the attitude of many nations who are against participation in the 1940 Olympic Games at Tokyo for political reasons, Mr. Mericamp, French delegate to the International Amateur Athletic Federation, which opened its annual session here this morning, asked the attending delegates to deal fairly with Japan.

The aims of the I.A.A.F. are to establish friendly and sincere collaboration among its members for the welfare of the sport world, he pointed out, adding that all the countries must work together if the forthcoming Olympiad is to be a success.

Up to Federation

Indirectly referring to the question whether the I.A.A.F. would boycott the Olympics if some of its member delegates took such action, Mr. Mericamp pointed out that each national federation is its own master at home and that the international federation should not interfere. The same rule, he added, applies in reverse cases.

He recalled that in 1936 the American delegation was seriously debating whether it would take part in the Olympic Games at Berlin and when the question was brought up before the I.A.A.F. council it was turned down.

Just what the Federation intends to do in the next few days regarding its attitude toward the Tokyo Olympics, however, remains to be seen. Some well-informed observers point out that the British delegates here are not as strongly opposed to Japan as has been feared.

The impression gathered from loose talk is that the British are becoming gradually more in favor of Tokyo, the Havas Agency learns. The strongest opposition is anticipated by the Dominions, chiefly Australia. The final question depends almost on whether the major nations can persuade the Dominions to change their minds.

Tomorrow's session of the I.A.A.F. is likely to make some definite decisions regarding participation in the Games. Optimistic observers are confident that the Federation will vote in favor of Tokyo. The decisions reached here are important for the Cairo conference of the International Olympic Committee merely ratifies the questions unofficially passed by the Federation.

The delegates today engaged in a heated discussion over whether the relay zones should be widened from 10 meters to 15 meters. The American, French and Italian delegates favored the widening of the relay zones to 15 meters, while the Finnish representative insisted upon 20 meters.

To Map Out Agenda

The question will be decided tomorrow when the body discusses the regulations for mapping out the agenda of the Tokyo Games. Elections will also be held tomororw.

The Congress today was attended by 40 delegates, representing the major sports countries of the world.

Americans Win Doubles Title In Table Tennis

LONDON, Jan. 31—Jimmy McClure of Indianapolis and Sol Schiff of New York won the world men's doubles table tennis championship Saturday, defeating the crack Hungarian pair of G. Barna and L. Bellak, 21—18, 15—21, 19—21, 21—14, 21—19.

It was the first title the American squad had salvaged from the wreckage European players had made of the various crowns the United States captured at last year's tournament.

The International Table Tennis Federation, meeting in conjunction with the tournament, awarded the 1939 championship to Egypt and said the 1940 tourney would be held either in Germany or Hungary.

Trudl Pritzi of Austria won the women's singles championship by downing Vlasha Depetrisova of Czechoslovakia, 21-13, 21-13, 21-17. The title was left undefended this year by Ruth Aarons of New York.

Miss W. Woodhead of England and L. Bellak of Hungary won the mixed doubles title by defeating Miss V. Votrubcova and B. Vana of Czechoslovakia, 21-14, 16-21, 21-13, 18-21, 22-20.

B. Vana of Czechoslovakia won the men's singles title, defeating H. Bergmann of Austria, the defending champon, 20-22, 21-9, 21-16, 21-14. Vana had reached the finals by downing G. Barna, the five-time world champion, while Bergman defeated T. Hazi of Hungary in straight games.

Umpires Are Selected For Pro Ball League

Four umpires each will call them in Osaka and Tokyo according to the line-ups for the forthcoming season of the Japan Professional Baseball Federation announced by the latter Tuesday.

The appointment of Hidenosuke Shima, former assistant coach of the Nagoya Dolfins, as an umpire increases the list of official arbiters to eight. They will be stationed as follows:

Tokyo: Yutaka Ikeda (chief); Nadao Sawahigashi, Saburo Yokozawa and Hidenosuke Shima.

Osaka: Enmei Nidegawa, Kiichi Kawakubo, Uichi Kanemasa and Shoichiro Sugimura.

The umpires will officiate in a body whenever the eight member teams of the league play in one city.

Maharaja's Four Suggested For Play In America

By A TIMES CORRESPONDENT

An article has recently appeared in an Indian newspaper suggesting that the Maharaja of Jaipur's team, which won the Championship Polo Tournament at Calcutta the other day, should be chosen as the British Empire's representative in the forthcoming Westchester Cup series in America. Perhaps their brilliant form has led to an exaggerated notion of their capabilities from the international point of view and in any case it is reasonably certain to state that no such step is likely. That, however, is a side issue and what does stand out clearly is that Jaipur is a really splendid team. The team possesses in Raj Kumar Prithi Singh one whom many regard as one of the two best No. 1s now playing. Rao Raja Hanut Singh is known to all, and the Maharaja, now quite recovered from his accident, is playing as brilliantly as ever. Besides this they have a magnificent string of ponies and also the means of drawing on a large reserve in India.

Though the championship tournament is now history, people are still discussing the final, when Jaipur met and defeated the Bhopal team which consisted of the Nawab, Gerald Balding, Hesketh Hughes, and R. Skene. I did not myself see the game, but from reliable accounts I gather that the Jaipur team all played up to expectation. For Bhopal Mr. Balding stood out and played a magnificent game, ably seconded by the Nawab, who was in great form. Mr. Skene, however, though playing well up to his handicap of six goals, did not reproduce his Hurlingham Champion Cup form. He was, in fact, disappointing and at no time suggested that he was an international No. 1.

Bombay Tournament

Polo interest in India now centers on Bombay.

The Bombay polo authorities have been making a big bid in the last few years to make their tournament what it used to be in the far distant days of the nineties, when it was one of the most important tournaments in India. They have two beautiful grounds in the middle of the racecourse, which being all reclaimed land and artificially levelled, is absolutely flat and true and easy on the ponies' legs—an important consideration in this land of brick-hard and dusty grounds. The tournament has attracted a big entry—Jaipur (the champions, but with Captain Sanger playing in the place of the Maharaja, who is remaining at his home till the Prince of Wales tournament at Delhi next month), Kashmir, which is practically the late Bhopal side over again, several local and near-local teams, and the Golconda team sponsored by the "Prince of Berar," the heir of the Nizam of Hyderabad.

This team is interesting, as a team from so far to the south has not been in the limelight for some time, but I fear their chances of great success against first-class teams is lessened, as I hear they still stick to the fetish of the dribbling game as opposed to the hard-hitting up and down game of most teams. This dribbling game at the hands of the late Shah Mirza Beg was wonderfully successful, and completely puzzled and defeated countless opponents, but then Shah Mirza was almost a wizard with the ball and seemingly could do exactly as he wished with it, and unless in the hands of such another, who I hear is not to be found in the Golconda ranks at present, the dribbling game is not likely to be very successful.

Depressing Prospect

I was talking recently to one of the older generation of India Princes, who was in his day in the forefront of Indian polo and who is still a keen student of the game, and he gave me the impression that he takes a very gloomy view of Indian polo prospects. One by one the Indian rulers are dropping out of the game, and no more are coming forward—Jodhpur has ceased playing, the Kashmir team has stopped; I understand that polo at Bhopal will not be resumed after this year, and at present only Jaipur forms the brilliant exception. No new talent is discoverable either among the British players or among the younger generation of players in the Indian States. In fact, I was told only recently that for three whole years not a player of the first class has emerged from the ranks of the mediocre, and it is obvious that if this state of affairs goes on much longer polo in India will be in a very bad way indeed.

The ponies and their training have never been better, and in this connection it may be interesting to record the fact that the pony belonging to the Goulburn team, Mr. Skene's Maitland, for which the Maharaja of Kashmir gave the sensational price of 1,700 guineas at the sale last year, has never even appeared on an Indian polo ground. The reason being, I understand, that foot trouble developed in Bombay—whether from faulty shoeing or not I am not in a position to state, but the fact remains he has not played yet.

20 Nations Would Play Baseball During Olympics

Feasibility of at least 20 countries competing if baseball is formally adopted as an event of the 12th Olympic Games in 1940 is stated in a letter received by the Tokyo Six University Baseball Federation from Leslie Mann, executive secretary of the International Baseball Congress which was organized during the 11th Olympic Games at Berlin in 1936.

They are: Egypt, France, Hawaii, Cuba, China, Peru, South Africa, North Africa, Belgium, England, Canada, Philippines, Holland, Sweden, Germany, Costa Rica, India, Spain, Mexico, Japan and the United States.

The proposal that baseball be included in the Olympic program is expected to be presented by Prof. Jigoro Kano, head of the Japanese delegation, at the meeting of the International Olympic Committee opening next week at Cairo. Undoubtedly, he will be supported by Avery Brundage, head of the American delegation.

Ever since the suggestion has been made by Mr. Mann, the Tokyo Six University Baseball Federation has been pushing a move here toward the realization of the proposal and it has been given approval by the Tokyo Olympic Organizing Committee.

Having stated their intentions of competing in a demonstration series at Tokyo in 1940 are China, Philippines, Hawaii, England, Germany, Mexico, Cuba, Japan and the United States. Indications are that the tourney will be slated for amateur baseball championship of the world.

Crews At Oxford Continue Their Winter Training

Times, London

LONDON, Feb. 9—The weather was cold but dry at Henley yesterday, when the Oxford crews continued their training. Dr. P. C. Mallam again took charge of both crews and one change in the order of rowing was made, R. E. Readhead coming in at bow of the Isis crew as G. C. C. Pepys was still suffering from his back trouble. For their chief work of the afternoon each crew were set to row the Royal Regatta course downstream.

Isis were the first to go afloat, paddling up toward Marsh Lock before coming down to the Regatta winning-post and then starting their row. Bingham took them off rowing 9½ 18, and 33 strokes in the first quarter, half, and full minute, but he dropped to 29 in the second minute, and at Fawley, reached in 3 min. 24 sec., the crew were only striking 27. There was little life in their rowing, but approaching Temple Island Bingham started to work up the rate. He was well supported by his stern oarsmen and the crew were rowing 30, and at 34 and completed the course in 6 min. 59 sec.

The University crew went afloat shortly after the launch had returned to the Leander Club and they had a short journey up above Henley Bridge before coming down and starting on their row. Hodgson did not attempt a high rate of striking but took the crew off at 8½, 16, and 31 in the first quarter, half, and full minute. He lengthened out and dropped the rate to 28, while at Fawley, reached in 3 min. 19 sec., the crew were only rowing 26. The rate had been raised to 29 at the top of the Island, and for the final burst Hodgson worked up to 35 and the crew completed the course in 6 min. 52 sec., which was seven seconds faster than the Isis crew. Afterwards the two crews paddled down to Hambleden Lock and back and their paddling again showed an improvement.

The order of rowing was:—

University Crew—J. C. Philpot (Radley and Worcester), bow, J. L. Garton (Eton and Magdalen), R. R. Stewart (Eton and Magdalen), H. A. W. Forbes (St. Paul's and Magdalen), J. P. Burrough (St. Edward's and St. Edmund Hall), F. A. L. Waldron (Shrewsbury and Trinity), J. C. Cherry (Westminster and Brasenose), A. B. Hodgson (Eton and Oriel), stroke, G. J. P. Merifield (King Edward VI School, Southampton, and St. Edmund Hall), cox.

Isis Crew—R. E. Readhead (Winchester and New College), bow, N. F. D. Graham (Eton and New College), A. G. Slemeck (St. Edward's and St. Edmund Hall), J. E. Stockton (Shrewsbury and Trinity), R. D. Burnell (Eton and Magdalen), H. M. Young (Westminster and Trinity), G. Huse (Latymer Upper School, Hammersmith, and Oriel), J. R. Bingham (Bedford and Pembroke), stroke, E. M. Pilkington (Worksop and Keble), cox.

Finns In Clean Sweep In Endurance Event

By The Domei Tsushin Sha

LAHTI, Feb. 28—A sweeping Finnish triumph marked the close today of the five-day annual meet of the International Ski Federation here as five out of the six places in the 50-kilometer endurance race run this afternoon went to Finnish skiers. Ten thousand spectators were at the finish line to greet the victors.

Bergendahl, of Norway, was the only "outsider" to place in the event, taking third behind Jalkanen and Ranta, while fourth, fifth and sixth places also went to the Finns. Jalkanen's winning time was 4 hours six minutes and 9 seconds, while Ranta and Bergendahl covered the distance in 4 hours, 10 minutes and 44 seconds and 4 hours, 10 minutes and 54 seconds respectively.

Drillon Sets Pace In Hockey Scoring

MONTREAL, Jan. 31—Rinkdom's rhyming rivals—Drillon and Dillon—are still showing the National Hockey Leaguers that they possess more than a couple of names that might fit into a couple of verse. In the N. H. L.'s book of scoring efforts the same names lead all the rest.

There is more truth than poetry in the league's official statistics, for Gordon Drillon of the Toronto Maple Leafs is still the circuit's leading point-getter, as he has been all season. And Dillon, the sniping ace of New York Rangers, is right behind.

Between the pair they've got the scoring honers pretty well monopolized. The Manhattanite's 18 goals and 13 assists make him also the league's top goal-getter. Drillon's 16 goals and 18 assists give him the leadership in the helping out department, shared with Syl Apps of the Leafs, and put him second to Dillon in actual goals.

In the International group Apps is five points behind his smooth teammate, with 11 and 18. Three points behind Dillon at the top of the American group is Bill Cowley of Boston Bruins, his 28 points split evenly between goals and assists.

Still the loop's undisputed bad man, Allan Shields of the Montreal Maroons has 59 minutes in penalties. But Red Horner of Toronto, who turned gentleman early in the season, has been backsliding and maybe yet will give him a race. Red has 53 minutes.

The Federation also announced selection of 50 and 88 athletes respectively for the men's No. 1 and No. 2 groups of candidates for the Olympic Games in 1940 as well as 42 women candidates, for a grand total of 180. With the view to preparing for the 1940 Games, the Federation also has picked trainers for districts throughout the country. Head coach is Genzaburo Noda.

A group of athletes from the men's first and second teams will be selected for training in Tokyo from April 4 to 8 with another group simultaneously in Osaka.

Eton College Loses To King's College At Rugby, 28 To 6

Times, London

LONDON, Feb. 9—Eton College met their first defeat of the season yesterday when King's College School, Wimbledon, beat them on South Meadow by three goals, one dropped goal, and three tries (28 points) to two tries (6 points). Eton were without M. G. Allen, their captain, who was injured last week.

The visitors scored two tries in the first quarter of an hour through Wildey and Clokey, neither of which was converted, and then Eton carried play into their opponents' half and Hughes-Onslow went over for a try wide out. The King's College backs made several good passing movements and Diacon scored two capital tries between the posts, and in each instance Thomas converted.

Eton rallied after the interval but the handling of their backs was disappointing, and from a breakaway Williams dropped a goal for the winners. Immediately afterwards Williams was injured and had to be carried off, but King's continued to have the better of the game and Dickinson and Diacon scored further tries. Thomas converting one of them. Eton reduced the lead when MacKeurtan scored wide of the posts, but King's were combining much better than Eton, their handling and kicking was good, and they had little difficulty in holding on to their lead.

The teams were:—

Eton College.—J. A. L. Stewart, back; J. G. MacKeurtan, A. G. Hughes-Onslow, M. B. Henderson, and G. B. MacKean, three-quarter backs; B. Garritt and I. R. Campbell, half-backs; D. Bruce, the Hon. J. R. Godley, A. G. Heywood, D. J. Ker, H. P. Jay, C. D. Rich, A. O. Magniac, and C. W. Parker, forwards.

King's College School, Wimbledon.—G. R. Elliott, back; C. Wildery, R. M. Williams, P. O. James, and K. Clokey, three-quarter backs; J. K. Murphy and P. J. Dickinson, half-backs; L. R. Thomas, W. E. Bennett, W. J. Hamlin, A. G. Harris, A. Rosenberg, J. A. Chitty, J. R. Stott, and A. F. Diacon, forwards.

The Tiger Queen

Efua Kobi was the mother of King Prempeh of Ashanti, a negro Kingdom of Western Africa. The Kings of Ashanti were long notorious for their bloodthirsty customs and human sacrifices. Efua Kobi, wife of Kong Koffee, made herself obnoxious to the British by establishing a record in marital murder. She was convicted of having killed 40 husbands, and the reason given was that "she did not like them any more." Ashanti became a British colony in August 1896, after a British expedition entered Coomassie, the Capital and deposed the King and his Queen mother, who were both sent into exile.

Martin In Cards' Fold

ST. LOUIS, Jan. 27—John Leonard (Pepper) Martin, the "Wild Horse of the Osage," signed a one-year contract with the Cardinals today and said he was "rarin' to go."

Martin, who will be playing his eighth season with the club in 1938, was called from his Oklahoma home for a salary conference but apparently he and Branch Rickey, vice president, had little difficulty. Terms of the contract were not announced.

Before the conversation Martin presented a gift of venison to Rickey.

A knee injury which handicapped the outfielder in 1937 no longer bothers him, Martin said, explaining he had "rested" it through the off season.

Finland Reported Ready To Stage 1940 Olympics If I.O.C. Transfers Site

By The Domei Tsushin Sha

PARIS, March 1—Though not intending to press its claims without general support, Finland is fully prepared to supplant Japan as organizer of the 1940 Olympiad if the forthcoming I.O.C. meeting at Cairo should favor taking the Games away from Tokyo, the Paris-Soir reports from Helsinki today.

Playing up the story under a big headline reading, "Finland Ready to Organize 1940 Games," the paper reported that U. K. Kekkonen, Finnish Home Minister, told its Helsinki correspondent that Finland would be glad to take over the hostship of the Games.

"We do not ask anything," he reportedly declared, "but we might take Japan's place. We are ready."

The Paris-Soir also claimed confirmation by Mr. Frenckell, president of various Finnish sport organizations, who informed the paper's correspondent that full plans have been prepared to take care of the eventuality of a transfer of the 1940 Games to Finland.

Revival of Finland's candidacy was considered significant in view of the current International Amateur Athletic Federation's session here, many of the delegates to which are going to Cairo for the meeting of the International Olympic Committee.

Date Switch Opposed

By The Domei Tsushin Sha

PARIS, March 1—A Japanese proposal to defer the opening of the 1940 Tokyo Olympics from August until September in order to avoid Summer heat today encountered strong opposition by the British, French and American delegates at the closing session of the annual International Amateur Athletic Federation meeting here.

Disagreement arose when Dr. Tosaku Kinoshita, on behalf of the Japanese Olympic Committee, proposed that the Games be held in September and October instead of August and September as decided by the last session of the I.O.C. at Warsaw. In view of the divergent opinions expressed, the I.A.A.F. Congress merely decided to refer the proposal to the impending I.O.C. meeting at Cairo.

Not For Students

Dr. Kinoshita explained that postponement of the Games until late in September would assure better climatic conditions, but Avery Brundage of the United States, Mr. Mericamp of France and Mr. Abrahams of Britain strongly objected on the ground that student athletes would be unable to take part if the competitions continued into October.

The German, Italian and Swedish delegates, however, expressed themselves in favor of the Japanese proposal, discussion continuing for three quarters of an hour before the Congress finally decided to pass the question on to the Cairo meeting without action.

In the course of his speech at the closing session, Dr. Kinoshita vigorously reiterated Japan's determination to carry out organization of the 1940 Games at Tokyo regardless of whether or not the China conflict can be successfully terminated before that time.

After deciding to adopt the American starting block from the beginning of next year and to include a 10-kilometer walking race among the events of the 1940 Games, the Congress wound up its proceedings by electing a new I.A.A.F. board comprising the following members:

Dr. J. Sigfrid Edstroem, of Sweden, president;

Bo Ekelund, of Sweden, general secretary;

D. Karl Ritter von Halt, of Germany;

Marquis L. Ridolfi, of Italy;

S. Stankovits, of Hungary;

Dr. D. G. A. Lowe, of Great Britain;

Avery Brundage, of the United States;

Paul Mericamp, of France; and

Dr. Matsuzo Nagai, of Japan.

Attend Reception

Following adjournment of the two-day parley, the Japanese and other foreign delegates this afternoon attended a reception given in their honor at the Paris City Hall. Many are scheduled to leave shortly en route to Cairo for the I.O.C. meeting which will start on March 10.

Former Navy Minister Francois Pietri, one of the French delegates to the Cairo meeting, already sailed for Egypt today from Marseilles aboard the liner Champollion. He will be followed shortly by the two other members of the French delegation, Albert Glandaz and the Marquis de Polignac.

Yamagishi Outstanding In Two Phases Of Play

Jiro Yamagishi, Japan's No. 1 player and Davis Cupper, is credited with being outstanding in two phases of play—speed and drop shots—in a selection by John Van Ryn, former American Davis Cup player.

The others include: court manner—Baron Gottfried von Cramm; service—Hare of England; volley—Wilmer Allison (U.S.A.); net game—Hunt (U.S.A.); back court—Riggs (U.S.A.); forehand—Baron von Cramm; backhand—J. Donald Budge (U.S.A.); smash—Hare (England); half-volley—Mangin (U.S.A.); smashing power—Budge (U.S.A.); calmness—Baron von Cramm; accuracy—Grant (U.S.A.) and Riggs (U.S.A.); headwork—Parker (U.S.A.); lobbing—Riggs (U.S.A.); and chop—Parker (U.S.A.).

'Boy Wonder' Ott Signs With Terry And Rarin' To Go

By JOHN DREBINGER

N.Y. Times

NEW YORK, Jan. 27—Spurred by what is rapidly developing into some additional rivalry between the two organizations, both the Giants and the Yankees announced yesterday that appreciable headway is being made in the matter of bringing signed ball players into the fold.

Just when ominous whisperings were going about that some of the better-known Giants were not jumping aboard the bandwagon with customary alacrity, Secretary Eddie Brannick bobbed up with the signed document of Master Melvin Ott, perennial boy wonder of the Polo Grounds.

"I guess that ought to let every one know that things are moving pretty nicely on this side of Forty-second Street," said Eddie as he resumed the business of looking for his eyeglasses, which, in the general excitement, he had mislaid. He was positive, however, he could see well enough without glasses to read the large, bold letters of the Gretna prodigy's signature.

Next Move Barrow's

But just when Brannick thought the Giants had the day all to themselves, Ed Barrow, the busy business manager of the Yankees, barged in with a double announcement. On his desk, he said, were the signed contracts of George Selkirk, clouting right fielder of the world champions, and Kemp Wicker, left-handed relief flinger.

Selkirk, who a few days ago had been reported dissatisfied with the terms originally offered, arrived at Yankee offices from his home in Rochester. Twinkletoes, as he is known to his colleagues, was bright and early at 9 a.m., and in less time than it takes him to twinkle from first to second for an extra base he emerged from Barrow's office smiling and apparently satisfied.

While the figures he accepted were not revealed, it is generally believed he got his salary adjusted to read about $10,000 for the season.

Although out nearly half of the 1937 campaign with an arm and shoulder injury, Selkirk made a strong comeback at the close of the season and took part in all five world series games. He hit .328 for seventy-eight games and contributed eighteen home runs. Completely recovered, he is slated to start the coming season as Joe McCarthy's regular right fielder.

Wicker Winning Pitcher

Wicker, a Newark farm product, showed excellent improvement last season and finished the year with a record of seven victories against only three defeats.

Ott, easily one of the seven wonders of baseball, will embark on his fourteenth season with the Giants at Baton Rouge, La., in the Spring, despite the fact that he will not attain his twenty-ninth birthday until March 2 next.

It was in 1925 that Master Melvin, a chubby little fellow from New Orleans, who thought he might be a catcher, ushered himself into the august presence of the late John McGraw. In the years that followed Ott developed into a brilliant outfielder in addition to becoming the mainspring of the Giants' driving power.

Last season, however, with Manager Bill Terry confronted with the necessity of doing something drastic around third base, he asked Ott to shift from his familiar right-field post to that blistering corner of the infield.

The result was almost electrifying and the Giants' surge to the top virtually began with the afternoon Mel made his famous switch in positions.

The shift also produced a notable uplift in Ott's batting, for most of the first half of the season saw him wallowing in one of the worst slumps of his career. However, he finished strong, closed with a batting mark of .294 and tied Joe Medwick with thirty-one circuit blow apiece for the National League's home-run honors.

this class of yachting will have one of its best Summers.

Baseball Wages Are 'Scandalous,' Welch Declares

NEW YORK, Jan. 25—Joe Di Maggio, demanding $35,000 for performing with the Yankees the coming season, finds no supporter in a player of a bygone day, Mickey Welch, who pitched for the original New York Giants from 1882 to 1892.

Welch thinks the present day salary scale in the big leagues is scandalous and that it is damaging to team cooperation the way the figures of the various players are aired annually.

"Most I ever got in my life was ¥4,000 a year," he recalled, "and that was right at the end of my career. Believe me, I worked for it, too. Days I wasn't pitching I played centerfield, and the first year we were in the National League I had to be at the park an hour or so ahead of time to mind the 'stile.'"

Welch's manager at that time was the colorful Jim Mutrie, first pilot of the Giants, who passed on here yesterday. They were great friends, but he can't even imagine what would have happened to their friendship if he had tried to hold out on Mutrie for a larger salary.

"Buck Ewing, the greatest catcher ever, was the highest paid man on the team at $3,200. The third year, I think it was, Buck asked Mutrie for $3,500, pointing out that he was captain and practically field manager of the team. Mutrie didn't like it much, but he finally agreed to the raise providing Buck would catch 100 games, which he did.

"This Di Maggio, now, he's no super player. He's a low-ball hitter and we would have pitched to him in my day. He never would have seen a ball like that one he knocked out of the park on Cliff Melton in the last game of the world series. He's not half the player that Buck Ewing was."

It might be pointed out, if Welch seems slightly prejudiced in Ewing's case, that Buck was his battery mate. On July 3, 1885, with Ewing catching, Welch shut out Chicago, 1 to 0. They hopped to Buffalo that night, and the next morning Welch stopped Buffalo, 6 to 0. That afternoon he weakened slightly and beat Buffalo only 6 to 2. He won 17 straight games before that string was broken.

Those were great days, Welch admits. They put on a show, and baseball was a fighting matter. The visiting players always were taken from their hotel to the park in big, gaudy carriages.

"It was great fun, though, and I'm glad I was in on it," sighed Welch. "Now all I want to see is Buck Ewing in this baseball Hall of Fame. There's a man who was 100 years ahead of his time."

Mundorff Would Modify New Cage Ruling On Jump

ATLANTA, Ga., Feb. 8—While not directly opposed to elimination of the center jump, Roy Mundorff, basketball coach at Georgia Tech since 1927, said yesterday the new rule has created an "unfair advantage" that should be remedied.

The unfairness follows the scoring of a field goal, the veteran cage professor explained. He believes the rules can be adjusted to eliminate the advantage without a return of the jump at center.

"Suppose a team on defense in its back court," Mundorff said, "is particularly alert and aggressive. Because of this alertness, a member of the defensive team suddenly intercepts a lateral pass on the edge of the defense. He and the ball drive fast toward his goal.

"A member of the other team attempts to overtake him, but is unable to do so. As the player with the ball drives to the basket and is successful in shooting the goal, his driving forces him 10 or 12 feet beyond the end line.

"The opponent, who was somewhat lax, receives the ball as it comes through the basket, immediately steps out of bounds at the end line, quickly throws it into the field of play, and the drive is on.

"Look at the situation: There are five members of one team with the ball, driving down court for the purpose of scoring, opposed by only four players. This is certainly an unfair advantage due to the laxity on the part of the team that had its pass intercepted."

Mundorff said he did not propose a return to the old rule. He said a possible remedy to the situation could be gained by having the official handle the ball for three or four seconds after a successful goal from the field.

Medica's Head Roll In Swimming Being Experimented Here

The head roll by which famed Jack Medica of the United States breathed with ease continuously as he participated in the last national swimming championships in the Meiji Shrine pool is being experimented here by local experts, according to the Asahi this morning.

Blanks Are Out For The Illinois Relay Carnival

CHAMPAIGN, Ill., Feb. 8—Entry blanks for the indoor relay carnival of the University of Illinois, which will be revived March 5, have been mailed to the leading universities and colleges of the nation, Leo T. Johnson, head track coach and director of the competition, announces.

Founded in 1917 by Harry L. Gill, former Illinois track coach, now consulting coach, it was recognized as one of the outstanding meets of its kind and there was general regret after the 1931 carnival when conditions compelled the Illini to give it up until such a time as it could be resumed.

Announcement last year by Director Wendell S. Wilson that Illinois would revive the carnival met with approval from the coaches of the Big Ten and other prominent conferences.

The program, announced by Coach Johnson, follows the schedules of former years with the exception of the four-mile university relay which is replaced by a one-mile team race. The program is as follows:

University Relays—One-mile, two-mile, one-mile team race and medley (medley distances, 880, 440, three-quarters and mile).

College Relays—One-mile, two-mile, medley.

Special Relay—320-yard high hurdles shuttle relay, open to universities and colleges.

Special Events—75-yard dash, low and high hurdles; 300-yard, 1000-yard and 1500-meter runs; high and broad jumps; shotput and pole vault.

All-Around Championship—Events, 75-yard dash and high hurdles, high and broad jumps, shotput, pole vault, and 880-yard run.

The vast university armory, 400 x 200 feet, with no interfering columns, which houses a 6¾ laps to the mile cinder running track, will again be the scene of the carnival.

The college relays, all-around championship and preliminaries in the special events will be run off in the afternoon. Beginning at 7:30 o'clock at night, the university relays, the special shuttle hurdles relay and the special events will be contested on a speedy schedule which will start the final event, the class-mile university relay at 9:30.

Present record-holders are as follows:

University Relays

One Mile—Missouri, 3:22.9.

Two miles—Ohio State, 7:53.4.

Four miles—Pennsylvania, 17:50.5.

Medley—Chicago, 10:27.7.

College Relays

One Mile—Kansas State Teachers, 3:26.5.

Two miles—Kansas State Teachers, 8:00.3.

Medley—Wichita Univ. 10:35.2.

320-Yard High-Hurdle Shuttle Relay

Nebraska—:40.5.

Special Events

75-yard dash—Elder, Notre Dame, 7.4.

75-yard low hurdles—Johnson, Michigan, Sentman, Illinois, :08.

75-yard high hurdles—Sentman, Illinois, :09.

300-yard dash—Alderman, Michigan State, 31.2.

1,000-yard run—Martin, Purdue 2:16.4.

1,500-meter run—Swartz, Western State Teachers, 4:00.1.

Pole vault—McDermont, Illinois, 13 feet 8¼ inches.

High jump—Burg, Chicago, 6 feet 5½ inches.

Shotput—Kuck, Kansas State Teachers, 50 feet 6¾ inches.

Broad jump—Hubbard, Michigan, 24 feet 7 inches.

All-Round—Barney Berlinger, Pennsylvania, 6,070 points.

Apostoli Beats Lee, Nebraskan In Close Contest

By JAMES P. DAWSON

N.Y. Times

NEW YORK, Feb. 5—The powerful fists of Fred Apostoli, the Pacific Coast's candidate for the middleweight title, claimed stout-hearted Glen Lee of Edison, Neb., as a victim last night in twelve rounds of savage fighting, but quite a few in the gathering of the 11,000 present left Madison Square Garden unconvinced of the superiority of the victor.

When a two-to-one decision was announced for Apostoli a roar of disapproval broke from the spectators. It came from all sections of the house.

Referee Arthur Donovan voted for Lee, six rounds to five, with one even. But he was out-voted, the ballots of Judges Billy (Kid) McPartland and Marty Monroe each giving Apostoli nine rounds. McPartland gave Lee only three, which was strange enough. Monroe gave the Nebraskan two and declared one even, which was astonishing.

This observer's score-sheet showed Apostoli winning six rounds, with Lee taking five and one even.

Onlookers Are Surprised

But it was a whale of a fight and a revealing one as well. Lee, only recently a welterweight, picked on the recognized uncrowned champion of the middleweight class—Apostoli recently knocked out Champion Freddie Steele—and proceeded to give the Nebraskan the fight of his life. It was a savage exhibition of the survival of the fittest. That both survived surprised the onlookers.

The result was forecast, but the great battle was not. Apostoli, entering the ring a 1-3 favorite, caught a tatar. He fought his hardest to bring Lee down and failed. In the fifth it seemed he would succeed, but Lee survived. Not only that, but the fearless Lee, shaking off the best punches of his rival, came on in his plodding, methodical way and almost toppled Apostoli in the tenth round. This particularly furious assault had the crowd yelling hoarse encouragement.

In the end, however, it was a two-round closing rally that won for Apostoli. He threw all his waning strength into the effort against a foe who had heroically withstood his best punches when Apostoli was stronger. And Apostoli had enough strength left to outfight the lion-hearted Lee in the eleventh and twelfth rounds to swing the battle by an eyelash.

A Savage Body Fire

Lightly regarded by the average fight follower, the Nebraskan emerged from the battle with most of the honors, albeit defeated. He withstood Apostoli's opening-round assault to come back and, pressing close in the second and third, hammered Apostoli with a savage body fire.

The Nebraskan was steadier in his fighting. He had a peculiar combination on the attack—a left hook driven to the face as a right swing went to the ribs. For this Apostoli had no defense.

Through the fight Lee sank his right to the ribs, making Apostoli's left side red and raw with bruises, and he drove his left to the face until Apostoli was nonplussed.

In the fourth Apostoli had the better of a toe-to-toe exhibition of unadulterated slugging, and this encouraged him to a furious outburst of fighting in the fifth in which he hammered Lee from pillar to post. It seemed Lee must drop, but he didn't.

Through the sixth and seventh Lee pounded the Coast fighter weary, but the eighth saw Apostoli in another recovery and Lee in another dangerous spot. Once again Lee survived the storm and came on to hold Apostoli even in the ninth.

Receipts Are $32,985

When Lee staggered his rival in the tenth the crowd yelled for a knockout. But the weary Apostoli took a grip on himself in the eleventh, punched harder and surer in the twelfth and managed to eke out a decision.

The paid attendance was 10,377. The gross receipts were $32,985.

Apostoli weighed 158¾ pounds and Lee 154½.

Pipgras Gets Kick Out Of Umpiring

Christian Science Monitor

ST. PETERSBURG, Fla., Feb. 8—George Pipgras, who wrote three World Series victories into the record books, gets just as big a kick out of umpiring as he did out of hurling his famous fireball for the New York Yankees.

His two seasons as an arbiter in the Eastern League, he says, were "as eventful as any of my 13 years in the majors."

"I've had my share of thrills during my years of service with the Yankees and the Boston Red Sox, but I get just as much kick out of baseball in the umpire ranks," declared the veteran pitcher whose ambition now is to break into the big leagues again—this time as an umpire.

"You don't get any newspaper headlines," he remarked, "but it's great work nevertheless."

As a pitcher, Pipgras recalled that he kicked plenty when he thought the umpire called one wrong, but he sees the errors of his former ways now.

"Bill Klem used to say that he never made a mistake in his life. I never believed him until I started umpiring, and then I realized what Bill meant.

"Bill was calling 'em from the heart every time—in his own mind he knew he was always right."

Keen knowledge of the game, a trigger-quick mind and good eyesight are chief attributes of a good umpire, Pipgras said.

For the past two years Pipgras has been umpiring spring exhibition games as part of his tune-up work for the regular season. He receives no compensation, just does it "for practice." Next month he starts calling them for the St. Louis Cardinals and the New York Yankees in the Grapefruit League.

Braddock Decides To Quit, Says He Owes It To Wife And Children To Retire

N.Y. Times

NEW YORK, Jan. 31—James J. Braddock, whose rise to the world's heavyweight boxing championship provided one of the most dramatic chapters in the history of boxing, announced his retirement as a fighter yesterday. The New Jersey longshoreman made his decision known after a lengthy consultation with his wife, Mrs. Mae Flox Braddock, and his manager, Joe Gould.

Braddock's retirement brings to a close a career of almost fifteen years of ring warfare. He will, however, continue to be connected with the boxing game in the role of manager. He and Gould have gathered together a stable of fighters, most notable of whom is Bob Tow, promising young Alexandria (Va.) heavyweight. And besides his managerial activities, Braddock plans to enter business with Gould.

Explains His Decision

Explaining his decision, Braddock issued the following statement:

"I am retiring from the ring.

"I won my last fight, and think that I can beat most of the heavyweights in the ring today. But I have spent fifteen years in the game and in fairness to every one, particularly to my wife and children, I believe it is time for me to withdraw.

"This decision was not easily reached, but in making it I have the advice and support of Joe Gould, my manager and friend.

"I take this opportunity to thank those who have been so thoughtful of me in my long career; the fight fans, without whose encouragement I could not have succeeded; the boxing commissions of New York and other States and the newspapers.

"My retirement from the ring does not mean an end to my professional association with Joe Gould. I will be as helpful to him as I can be in the management of other boxers and he and I also will be engaged in another business enterprise, the plans for which will be announced shortly.

"This is my farewell to active boxing, a sport which owes me nothing and to which I owe everything, the many friends I have made and the means with which I have been able to provide for my family."

Native of New York City

Braddock's feat in winning the highest prize in pugilism will be remembered as long as fans get together to reminisce over the mighty deeds of the ring's great. Born in New York City on Dec. 6, 1906, Braddock moved to West New York, N.J., as a child. There, at the age of 17, he engaged in his first amateur bout. Three years in the amateur ranks fitted him for a career as a professional, and he made his début as a paid performer in the middleweight ranks.

His punching prowess soon made him nationally famous, and when he grew to light-heavyweight proportions he was matched with Tommy Loughran in 1929. The latter, one of the cleverest of boxers, easily outpointed the Jersey fighter, and the future then seemed suddenly to hold little for Braddock. He subsequently lost decisions to fighters of little more than mediocre ability, and in 1933 his fighting career seemed definitely over.

Business reversals completely wiped out his ring earnings, and he was forced to seek odd jobs on the river front to feed himself, his wife and his three children. Things were so desperate at one stage that he was forced to apply for relief to provide sustenance for his poverty-stricken household.

Gould, however, was certain that Jersey Jim still had a few more good fights in him. He jumped at the chance to pit his man against Corn Griffin, then regarded as a comer, and virtually dragged Braddock off the docks for the fight. Thousands of fans who were on hand to see the main bout, in which Max Baer took the heavyweight championship from Primo Carnera, saw Braddock record an upset by stopping Griffin in three rounds.

Triumphed Over Lewis

After that fight Braddock defeated the able John Henry Lewis, who now holds the light heavyweight crown, and followed that performance by trouncing Art Lasky, whom he displaced as the outstanding contender for Baer's championship. Matched with Baer, Braddock was conceded little chance to win, and the odds were as high as 10 to 1 against him when he climbed into the ring against the Californian. The Jersey warrior confounded fans and critics alike by winning the decision and the title on June 13, 1935.

The championship brought financial security and Jim waxed prosperous on the proceeds of testimonials, exhibition bouts and the like. Two years went by before he climbed into a ring again for a real fight. His opponent was Joe Louis and as was the case in many of his previous bouts, Braddock was the short-ender in the betting. This time, however, his luck deserted him, and he was divested of his championship by the Detroit Negro by a knockout in the eighth round of their fight in Chicago, June 22, 1937.

The Jersey battler remained in training after losing to Louis, and on January 14, this year, he met Tommy Farr, the Welshman, who had traveled fifteen rounds with Louis last August. Once again the odds were all against Jim, but he showed his characteristic disregard for form by beating Farr, thus writing a glorious finis to a most amazing ring career.

Australia Names Davis Cup Team

SYDNEY, N. S. W., Feb. 2—Australia today named Jack Bromwich, Adrian Quist, A. L. Schwartz and Harry C. Hopman as its representatives in 1938 Davis Cup competition. Vivian McGrath and Jack Crawford, veterans of last year's squad, and Don Turnbull, doubles star, announced they would not be available.

Bromwich, brilliant international player who beat Don Budge twice in recent exhibitions, and Quist were on the 1937 team that lost to the United States in the North American zone final. Schwartz, a newcomer to international play, was ranked sixth in Australia last season.

Australia has filed its 1938 challenge in the North American zone and is expected to reach the interzone finals. Entered in the same zone are Japan, Canada and Mexico.

The Australian Lawn Tennis Association also announced that Nancy Wynne, Thelma Coyne, D. Stevenson and Mrs. H. C. Hopman would be sent to the Wimbledon championships. They will sail March 8.

Glenn Cunningham Started Running Far Back As 1931

By JOHN KIERAN

N.Y. Times

NEW YORK, Feb. 5—Glenn the Galloping Cunningham started running before San Romani did and the veteran warhorse from the wide open spaces is still leading his younger rival from the same sector.

How long can this go on? Glenn was running as far back as 1931. In 1932 he ran in the 1,500-meter race in the Los Angeles Olympic Games. But not fast enough. He was forced to be content with fourth place. In 1933 Glenn started to pick up speed and in 1934 he engaged in his famous five-set struggle with Bounding Bill Bonthron of Princeton.

Those were great days. Jack Lovelock, the medical man in a hurry, was in on it. The little Oxonian popped up now and then to win some remarkable victories, including his great triumph at Berlin. Bonthron has dropped out of competition. Lovelock, out of rigid training, is going out for longer distances when he resumes work on the track. But Galloping Glenn, after all these years, is still leading the pack at the mile mark.

Quam Diu, Catalina?

That can't go on, of course. Glenn is bound to slow up. Even if he doesn't slow up, either San Romani or Lash may come along fast enough to overtake him. Maybe that Wooderson (or Woodersen, the correct spelling seems to be a matter of academic debate) is ready to don the regal robes as monarch of the milers of the world.

But all this will have to be demonstrated before Galloping Glenn pulls over to the side of the road and lets faster traffic go past him. Sprinters may be, and in some cases have been, crack-brained kids with flying feet. Long distance runners may be little old gaffers carrying no weight for age. But the mile allows the great combination of speed, endurance and experience to count heavily.

Galloping Glenn has those three qualities in large lots. Younger fellows are bound to catch him and pass him some one of these days or nights. But, in the meanwhile, the old gentleman has been setting marvelous pace and adding more than a little to the thrilling moments in modern sport.

Just the Right Distance

The mile is just about the right distance for a drumming drama of hurrying footsteps on the banked boards of the indoor campaign or the packed cinderpath of the outdoor season, and this is cheerfully admitted by one who holds the firm conviction that our inherited Anglo-Saxon system of weights and measures should be junked as obsolete and unwieldy claptrap. Possibly 1,500 meters would do just as well as the set distance for the main event of a track spectacle, but the weight of tradition is all with the ancient mile, and traditions in sport are rigidly respected.

So the mile is still the great race. There is no time for the sway of fortunes or any build-up to a climax in the shorter-races. The sprinters take their marks. Bang! Zip! It's all over. The action in the longer races, two miles and over, sometimes drags a bit. But the four quarters of a mile race often serve as the four acts of a great melodrama. They may, and often do, contain the thrills akin to theatrical effects of the burning trestle with the hero bound to the tracks at midnight, the villain (dastardly miscreant!) threatening to foreclose the mortgage—in the early acts, of course.

But the fourth act—ah! The stretch run is as thrilling as the United States cavalry (Blow, bugles, blow!) galloping to the rescue just as the savages are about to put their victims to the torture.

A Superior Cast

It must be admitted that one important difference between the stage and track melodramas is that the contestants on the track are heroes all. At the same time it also must be stated that to the rapid rooters for one runner the other contestants in the race may take on the appearance of villains for the moment, even though they lack the traditional trapping of the waxed mustache and the nasty sneer.

U.S. Out To Keep Three Titles In Yacht Racing

By GEORGE M. R. HOLMES

Christian Science Monitor

Three of the world's great six-meter yachting trophies are now held in the United States, and the coming Summer will find Uncle Sam yachtmen trying to keep them on this side of the Atlantic Ocean. They are the Scandinavian Gold Cup, the Seawanhaka Cup, and the British-American Cup. While the racing for this trio of famous prizes does not attract anywhere near as much public attention as does that for the America's Cup, we doubt if those who engage in the last-named event get any more pleasure out of their competition than those who engage in the six-meter events. It certainly costs much less to build and sail the six-meter yachts than it does to indulge in Class J racing, and, what is still more to the point, fewer disputes have arisen among those handling the smaller boats than have occurred in the racing for the "Ould Mug."

Italy Enters the Picture

When the yachts line up for the starting gun in the next Scandinavian Gold Cup race, there will be more countries represented than has ever before been the case. This is an international competition, but never before have as many as six nations engaged in one of these races, and that is the number which promises to start in the 1938 series off Oyster Bay, August 27. While only two nations have actually filed entries for the coming event, it is confidently expected that Norway, Denmark, Sweden, and Finland will enter yachts. The two nations already in are Great Britain, which will be represented by the Royal Northern Yacht Club, Clyde, and Italy, with the Royal Italian Yacht Club of Genoa cabling the first challenge which a representative of that country has ever sent for this cup. Competition for the trophy has always been very keen, and, as a result, the cup has visited many yacht clubs during its career. Predictions are that the coming series will be one of the best. Only once in the history of the cup have the Americans succeeded in defending it, and that was last year, when Briggs S. Cunningham sailed his yacht Lulu to victory over Finland, Sweden, and Norway, the three countries which met the United States that year. The cup has been won by the United States only three times in all.

Britain to Send Four Yachts

The battles for the Seawanhaka and British-American cups will, this year, be between the United States and Great Britain, as the challenge of the Royal Northern Y. C. has been accepted by the Seawanhaka-Corinthian Yacht Club, which holds the Seawanhaka Trophy. This prize is a team trophy, in which two countries only can race. Last year Norway was the challenging country; but the cup was successfully defended by the United States with Paul Shield's Rebel. The race for the British-American Cup, as its name implies, is confined to yachts representing Great Britain and the United States. This event is held biennially, and it is to be conducted this year off Oyster Bay. And so, with these three international races in addition to the many other six-meter events which will be held by American clubs,

Brazil Invites Nambu To Act As Coach There

With a view to promoting sports relations with Japan, the Athletic Federation of Sao Paulo, Brazil, has sent a letter to Dr. Matsuzo Nagai, secretary-general of the Tokyo Olympic Organizing Committee, asking that Chuhei Nambu, champion of the 1932 Olympic Games in the hop-step-and-jump and former world record holder in the broad jump, and Kenzo Anyoji, a resident of Brazil for some years, be sent to that country for coaching as well as for propaganda for the Tokyo Olympiad, it was learned here Thursday.

It is understood that the Japanese O.O.C. is going to consider the matter and a reply will be sent to Brazil in the very near future.

Great Britain's Tennis Forces Face Struggle

NEW YORK, Feb. 4—Great Britain's tennis forces two years ago the all conquering holders of the Davis Cup, face a stern fight this year if they are to get into the challenge round against the United States.

Germany's strong team, the United States' most effective opponents last year, and France and Czechoslovakia, the latter two nations boasting young and eager players, are all in the European zone pairings with the British team.

The German team, which apparently again will be headed by Baron Gottfried von Cramm and Henner Henkel, drew a bye for the first round in the schedule drawn yesterday at Washington by Secretary of State Hull. The Germans will meet Norway in their first match, while Great Britain must beat Rumania to get into the second round.

The British, who may be minus the services of Bunny Austin, will then meet the winner of the Czechoslovakia-Yugoslavia first round match, in all probability the Czech team. This is no easy assignment. Cari Kozeluh, the Czech pro, is sure that his countrymen have the makings of a fine young team for this year's cup battle. It will be headed by the towering Roderick Menzel.

France, meeting the Netherlands in the first round and Monaco in the second, should get into the European zone semi-finals without much difficulty, Germany, facing Norway and the victor of the Hungary-New Zealand matches, is another probability, along with Austria, matched against India and the victor of the Greek-Belgian matches.

Thus Great Britain, if it gets by the Czech challenge, may be thrown into a semi-final with Austria, while Germany and France meet in the upper half semi-final. Many believe the British will need Fred Perry's coaching, if he offers it, and plenty of young blood to get into the European zone finals.

Keio Elects Captain

Kotaro Harima has been elected captain of the Keio soccer team for the 1938 season, according to announcement Thursday. Named as manager was Kichiro Watanabe.

Leading the Tokyo University eleven will be Hiroshi Kikuchi as captain and Yasuo Goto as manager.

Nagai Reiterates Intent To Seek Change In Dates

By The Domei Tsushin Sha

PARIS, March 2—Interviewed by the Intransigeant before leaving for Rome, whence he will take an air liner to Cairo, Dr. Matsuzo Nagai, secretary-general of the Japanese Olympic Organizing Committee, forcefully reiterated Japan's determination to ask the International Olympic Committee to defer the opening of the 1940 Olympic Games from August until September because of the intense Summer heat.

One Modification Asked

"We ask only one single modification to the original agenda which we are submitting to the International Olympic Committee and that is, that the games previously scheduled for August 25 to September 8 should be postponed to the last week in September and the first week in October, when the climate is much more favorable," he said.

The change is asked purely for the sake of the Olympic contests which might be hindered by the hot and damp August climate of Tokyo, he continued adding that every nation has everything to gain if its athletes are allowed to perform under the best possible conditions.

Whatever the decision of the I.O.C. may be, however, Dr. Nagai said, the athletes and their managers may be assured that Japanese hospitality will be as cordial and that conveniences will be as good as those previously given by Paris, Los Angeles and Berlin. The strictest reguarity will be ensured in all contests, he added.

Expresses Confidence

He admitted that the British, French and the American delegates to the International Amateur Athletic Federation session here yesterday had strongly objected to the Japanese proposal to defer the opening of the Games, which was brought up by Dr. Tosaku Kinoshita, in behalf of the Japanese Olympic Committee. Dr. Nagai, however, was confident that the I.O.C. meeting at Cairo would favor Japan.

Concluding his interview, Dr. Nagai expressed confidence in Japan's ability to retain the 1940 Games asserting that the I.O.C. will be fair to Japan.

Leaves for Italy

Dr. Nagai, one of Japan's two official delegates to the Cairo conference, left for Italy late this evening. He will leave Rome Friday by plane for Cairo to attend the opening session of the I.O.C. which will begin on March 10. Already at Cairo are Prof. Jigoro Kano, the other delegate, who is accompanied by several representatives from Tokyo City, the Japanese Olympic Committee, and the Japanese Olympic Organizing Committee.

World Boycott Feared

By The Domei Tsushin Sha

STOCKHOLM, March 2—Fearing the possibility of a general boycott of the 1940 Olympic Games at Tokyo and the transfer of the Games to some other nation, the heads of the International Boxing Federation are seriously considering plans for staging the world amateur championships elsewhere, it is reported here today.

The Federation, wishing to remain neutral, is reported to have informally decided that in the event Japan is forced to relinquish the contests to some other country or if an international boycott is clamped on the Tokyo Games, it will hold the boxing championships in some neutral city.

A final decision will be taken by the International Boxing Congress which is to meet at Berlin this Summer.

"BELIEVE IT OR NOT"---by Ripley

Movie Champion

A highly competitive situation in the theaters of Lincoln, Nebraska, makes it an unusual city in the movie industry, and for the last two years they have shown every picture released on the American market. Barney Oldfield moves almost as fast as his namesake, the great auto race driver, on his job of seeing and reviewing every picture. In 1936, he saw 427 movies, and in 1937 saw 517—spending a total of more than 840 hours watching the flickers.

The Thirsty Sea

The Mediterranean Sea not only receives a constant flow of water from the Atlantic Ocean through the Straits of Gibraltar, but also from the Black Sea through the Bosphorus and from the Nile, Rhone, Ebro and Po Rivers. Yet the sea level remains the same as the ocean at all times, because of the fact that the almost constant sunshine of that area causes greater evaporation than occurs in the area from which this tremendous flow of water comes.

Last Two Weeks In September Urged For Games

The Olympic Organizing Committee at its meeting Friday afternoon decided to cable its representatives at the International Olympic Committee's meeting scheduled to open at Cairo on March 10 to propose that the summer competition of the 1940 Olympic Games be held not later than September 30 if the matter of a change in the dates should be raised. Reason was that it was brought to the O.O.C.'s notice by the Japan Swimming Federation that after the middle of September, the temperature of the water is too cold for speed swimming events.

In this connection, it will be recalled that Dr. Matsuzo Nagai, secretary general of the O.O.C., recently made a statement at Paris that he was firmly determined to ask for postponement of the Games, scheduled by the I.O.C. last year from August 25 to September 8, to the last week in September and the first week in October because of the intense heat in Tokyo.

At the meeting of the International Track and Field Federation just ended at Paris, final decision as to the dates was deferred to sometime after the I. O. C. meeting at Cairo.

The United States and Britain are decidedly opposed to the postponement because it will make it difficult for student athletes to compete.

Decision was reached by the O. O. C. to stage the Fifth Winter Olympic Games even if the International Ski Federation declines to give approval.

Meeting In Uproar

Domei Tsushin

PARIS, March 3—An incident, in which the Norwegian delegate to the International Amateur Athletic Federation, recently held here, threw the conference into an uproar by declaring that he regretted that a country "in the state of war" had been entrusted with the organization of the 1940 Olympic Games, was revealed here today by the newspaper Paris Soir.

According to the journal, the incident took place during the last session of the I. A. A. F. After Dr. Matsuzo Nagai had asserted that the Olympic Games would be held in Tokyo even if the Sino-Japanese conflict was still in progress, Mr. Oppergaard, the Norwegian delegate, rose and asserted that he regretted that a country "in the state of war" had been entrusted with the organization of the games.

The open statement created a sensation especially when the Norwegian representative insisted that his words be included in the official minutes of the session. Mr. Oppergaard, however, refrained from indicating whether Norway would refuse to attend the Tokyo Games.

California Out To Retain Title

Christian Science Monitor

BERKELEY, Calif.—Determined to keep the pennant symbolizing the California intercollegiate baseball championship which they won last year, California's Golden Bears have already swung into action with Coach Clint Evans having some 60 varsity candidates out on Edwards Field.

With six lettermen returning, Evans will have a veteran to fill every position except second, short and third base. Of course, there is always the possibility that some youngster will beat a veteran out of a job.

The outer garden will be in the capable hands of a trio of speedy lettermen all of whom hit over .350 last season. With Dave McNeil in left field, "Hooks" Dovaurs at center, and all-America footballer Sam Chapman patrolling right field, the Bears will have one of the best outfield combinations in the history of the university.

Competition Heavy

Competition for the three vacant infield positions will be very heavy. Heldon Dunlap, who played some last year, Mel Duezabou, up from last year's frosh, and Bart Smythe, who dropped out of college after earning his letter in 1935, are the chief candidates for the second-base job. Smythe has also had experience at short and third base.

Leroy Rapp, who returned to the university this year from the farm at Davis, and Cliff Perry, another J. C. transfer, are battling it out for the shortstop position left open by the graduation of Len Porterfield, while Tony Firpo, from last year's squad, and Bob McNamara, who has been moved in from the outfield, are the chief competitors for the hot corner at third.

Stan McCaffrey, baseball-playing student body president, will be backed up at first base by Ed Yokey, a J. C. transfer from Long Beach, while the main contender for the job of understudy to Tony Lombardi, returning first-string catcher, is Verle Flieger.

Bill Priest, ace right hander, heads the list of varsity pitchers composed of Audie Daugherty, Wes Piper, Dick David, Kermit Cannon and Elwood Thodo.

Joe Gallison, Bear pitching star of 1934, has been named freshman coach to take the place of Harry Kingman, absent on leave. He will be assisted by Len Porterfield and Joe Koral, members of last season's championship nine.

Canadian Open Aug. 18, 19, 20

MONTREAL, Feb. 2—The Royal Canadian Golf Association has set August 18, 19 and 20 for the Canadian open tournament, to be played over the Toronto Mississauga course. Dates for the Canadian amateur and the Willington Cup matches—for the Provincial team championship—both to be played over the Hunt and Country Club course at London, Ont., were left tentative. The week of July 18 had been suggested; but the Association received protests that this was too early. The executive will choose later between the weeks of July 25 and Aug. 1.

Reich Merman Breaks 200-M. Breaststroke Record At Hamburg

Domei Tsushin

HAMBURG, March 3—Joachim Balke, German Olympic swimmer, today broke the existing European record for the 200-meter breaststroke in an aquatic meet here. He was clocked at 2 minutes 38.3 seconds.

Another For Miss Rawls

Domei Tsushin

CORAL GABLES, Fla., Feb. 14—Katherine Rawls did her weekly chore yesterday, bettering another United States women's swimming record.

Using a breaststroke, the Fort Lauderdale, Fla., girl did 100 yards in 1m. 16.9s. over a 20-yard course in the Miami Biltmore pool. She was timed by A. A. U. officials. The listed record is 1m. 20.8s., set by Agnes Geraghty of New York at Omaha, Neb., in 1926.

Miss Rawls, voted the country's outstanding woman athlete of 1937 in an Associated Press poll of sports writers, has lowered six national records in the Biltmore pool since January 1.

Florida Towns Derive Benefit From Baseball

ST. PETERSBURG, Fla., Feb. 10—Florida cities find the cost of providing training facilities for major league baseball clubs is far offset by the advertising and entertainment derived from the big leaguers. In the words of Al Lang, St. Peterburg's contact man, the resorts gain "inestimable thousands of dollars" in publicity, and provide tourists and hometolk with a major sports attraction.

Eight National and American League clubs will hold their spring workouts in Florida this year.

The clubs—looking for plenty of sunshine, a well groomed park and ample hotel accommodations—reach various agreements with the cities they choose for training sites.

All contracts provide the resorts must furnish playing fields which meet the major league specifications and offer no unusual hazards which might bring injury to high-priced stars.

The St. Louis Cardinals at St. Petersburg, the Cincinnati Reds at Tampa and the Boston Red Sox at Sarasota will take the receipts from home exhibition games without any guaranteed return.

Others rely on guarantees, ranging from $2,000 upward. The New York Yankees are reported to receive the highest guarantee of any club training in Florida, but Lang said St. Petersburg loses nothing.

Andy Slaughter, Chamber of Commerce secretary, said Orlando may "make a little money" by having the Washington Senators there. The Senators are give $3,500 and the city takes the home club's half of gate receipts.

The Detroit Tigers, at Lakeland for the fifth consecutive year, are paid $3,000 and the Chamber of Commerce gets the "take" from exhibitions. Officials said they usually break even.

Bradenton has guaranteed the Boston Bees $3,000. With 10 games there between major league opponents, the city expects to stay out of the red.

Proceeds from ticket sales and a pledge they will equal $2,000, were the inducements offered the Brooklyn Dodgers by Clearwater.

The clubs help pay hotel bills, traveling expenses and other costs attached to getting ready for the regular season with their share of receipts from games played on the road.

McKechnie Sees Little Change In New Baseball

CINCINNATI, Ohio, Feb. 7—Bill McKechnie, manager of the Cincinnati Reds, crooked the thumb and forefinger of his right hand to form a letter "U" roughly two inches across.

"No, sir," he declared, gesturing, "the National League's new rerabbited ball isn't going to make that much difference with the fellows who can hit. And those who can't hit, well, they couldn't do any better if the ball were India rubber."

The soft-spoken but dynamic former pilot of the Boston Bees gave his views at a dinner given by the Reds' management.

"We have tested the ball," he said, "and as long as it is hit 'on the fat' on between the seams I doubt if any one could tell the difference. The ball won't carry quite as far when hit on the seams, but then, there is much more 'fat' area and the chances of a direct hit on the seams are few."

Thus, McKechnie agreed, there will be just as many home runs, just as many extra-base blows as ever at Crosley Field and elsewhere around the circuit this year—possibly a few more here, some fans pointed out, considering a rearrangement of the diamond and an average 20-foot shortening of the field.

McKechnie continued his refusal to make predictions for the approaching season.

"Trade talk has been difficult," he said, denying, however, that the situation arose from the fact that Cincinnati finished at the bottom of the league in 1937.

"You've got to trade man for man in this game," he explained. "You've got to offer a good player to get one. We've got them, but so have the other clubs, and we won't trade unless we can better ourselves.

"Take Lombardi. He hit .334 last year despite his slowness of foot, but Lombardi at .334 is probably better than two men with a lower batting percentage. He is popular here and for that reason I think we'd really have to offer the fans something in trading him off."

All-Japan Soccer Team Selected To Meet Visitors

A standing All-Japan team to compete against visiting teams or to go abroad in case the occasion arises was selected by the Japan Soccer Association on Thursday and announcement made Friday.

The 21 regulars and four substitutes selected will go into training from March 23 to April 7 at the Koshien stadium near Osaka or at the Keio field at Hiyoshidai, Tokyo, to develop teamwork as well as to prepare for the Olympic Games in 1940.

Those selected follow:

Forwards:—Tadashi Kamo (Waseda), Ken Kamo (Waseda), Otani (Kobe Commercial graduate), Harima (Keio), Sasazaki (Keio), Ono (Kyoto Imperial), Hi (Fusei graduate), Ninomiya (Keio), Ukon (Keio graduate) and Ichibashi (Keio graduate).

Halfbacks and fullbacks:—Sekino (Waseda), Mori (Tokyo Imperial), Taneda (Tokyo Imperial), Kinoshita (Kobe Commercial), Kinyo Shoku (Fusei graduate), Ri Yoku-kei (Enki), Zoku (Tokyo Imperial), Kikuchi (Tokyo Imperial) and Inouye (Kyoto Imperial).

Goalies: Tsuda (Keio) and Sano (Waseda).

Substitutes: Yoshiye (Kobe Commercial), Ri Kei Kei (Fusei); Yoshida (Waseda) and Nakagaki (Bunrika University).

"This selection is the strongest team available in Japan today in the opinion of Chairman of the Selection Committee Takekoshi. At the forthcoming training, emphasis will be placed on the development of technique, which has been a weak point of Japanese teams, Mr. Takekoshi said Friday.

Baseball Group Quizzes Colleges On Pro Relations

COLUMBUS, Ohio, Feb. 12—The National Collegiate Athletic Association's "baeball committee" asked universities and colleges some pointed questions today on the relations between their diamond coaches and professional baseball clubs.

L. W. St. John, Ohio State University Athletic Director and chairman of the committee, sent questionnaires to about 600 athletic departments seeking information on which to negotiate an agreement with major and minor leagues on the so-called college baseball player problem.

Most of the questionnaire was devoted to financial aspects of the college sport, but it concluded by asking each institution whether any of its coaches had a working arrangement with professional clubs, signed college players to professional contracts, and received compensation.

The colleges were queried also on whether "organized baseball operated adversely" to their own diamond sport programs.

The college committee, composed of St. John, Frank McCormick, Minnesota University Athletic Director, and Phil O. Badger, New York University Graduate Manager, was named by the Association to confer with committees from major and minor leagues on a code to govern professional signing of college players.

George Trautman of Columbus, president of the American Association, is chairman of the joint committee representing professional clubs.

The professional clubs' committee was named after an unsuccessful attempt at the minor leagues convention in Milwaukee to bar college players from entering the professional game until after graduation or one year after the player left school if he were not graduated.

Action of the committees, which have not met jointly, was spurred by disclosures that the Cleveland Indians sent monthly checks to the mother of Louis Boudreau University of Illinois baseball star and basketball team captain. Boudreau subsequently was declared ineligible for college competition.

British Golfers Are Improving

OMAHA, Neb., Feb. 14—British golfers are going to be harder to beat this year than ever before, United States amateur golf champion Johnny Goodman said today—but the stocky Omaha shotmaker favors the Americans to win the Walker Cup and gives them an edge for the British amateur title.

"I think the British are getting more of the spirit of the 'will to win'" Goodman said. "I know they will be more difficult to beat this year than ever before. They were grooming youngers in 1936 that were really coming golfers."

Goodman, a member of the United States Walker Cup teams in 1934 and 1936; and unbeaten in cup singles and doubles play, termed the British golfers "sportsmen from the ground up."

This year's American cup team is the strongest that could be assembled, the amateur champion said.

"It's a very fine team, as good a team as could possibly be put together and as strong as any that has ever represented this country," Goodman said, as he clicked off the personnel on his fingers.

"There's John Fischer, Ray Villows, Reynolds Smith, Marvin Ward Charley Koesis, Freddy Haas, Charley Yates and myself, two alternates, Tommy Taylor and Don Moe, and Francis Ouimet, nonplaying captain.

"We are going to be a hard bunch to stop at the British amateur. We are all good golfers, but so are many of the British and with so many 18-hole matches, anyone is liable to 'get hot' and win," he continued.

Goodman will not compete in the American National open this year. He cannot get back from England in time.

After a winter of bowling—for the swing, and billiards, for the eye and touch, Johnny is waiting for more golf than Nebraska weather has allowed this winter.

"The worst thing for me to work out every year is the touch," Johnny said. He predicted about two months of golf would be necessary to get him in trim.

To start his 1938 campaign he may compete in the Houston, Texas, invitational tournament February 23, and possibly one or two others.

The Walker team sails May 10.

Glenn Cunningham Runs Fastest Mile Ever, Is Clocked In 4:04.4

Domei Tsushin

HANOVER, New Hampshire, March 3—Glenn Cunningham, the Kansas flash who has been running since 1931, today ran the fastest mile ever recorded when he covered the distance in 4 minutes 4.4 seconds. The record was set on an indoor wooden track.

The former mile mark was also held by Cunningham at 4 minutes 6.8 second.

Purdue Plans Gridiron Clinic For April 8-9

Christian Science Monitor

LAFAYETTE, Ind., Feb. 12—Purdue University's seventh annual football clinic will be held here on Friday and Saturday, April 8-9, when between 400 and 500 high school and college coaches from Indiana and neighboring states are expected to gather for a comprehensive practical two-day program of addresses, demonstrations, and round-table discussions, according to an announcement by Bob Woodworth, acting athletic director.

Under the direction of Mal Elward, acting head football coach, the whole program is being planned to present practical gridiron information that will be of immediate value to the visiting coaches and at the same time allow ample opportunity for round-table discussion and individualized instruction on particular problems. Elward has annouaced that in addition to the usual thorough coverage of the regular game, considerable attention will be devoted to various phases of the six-man football game that is rapidly gaining popularity among the smaller high schools of the Middle West.

In addition to members of the Purdue gridiron staff, other outstanding high school and college grid technicians will cooperate in conducting the two-day program of addresses and demonstrations. Members of the Purdue varsity football squad, which will be in the midst of spring drill, will serve as models for practical field demonstrations of fundamentals, and two picked Boilermaker elevens will stage a demonstration game as the closing feature of the clinic.

One of the big highlights of the week end will be the annual coaches' banquet on Friday night, April 8, which will be followed by roundtable discussions for both coaches and officials.

The gridiron clinic idea, originated by Noble Kizer in 1932, has grown in popularity by leaps and bounds, until today it is unofficially considered as the annual reunion of midwestern mentors.

Reich Occupies Strategic Post In Cup Matches

Christian Science Monitor

NEW YORK, Feb. 7—A further study of the results of the draw for the various rounds of the Davis Cup ties leading up to the interzone finals and the challenge round, makes it increasingly plain that Germany, Italy and Great Britain occupy the strategic positions in the various quarter of the European zone ties, with the remaining semifinal more or less in doubt.

Germany, with Gottfried Frhr. von Cramm and Henner Henkel available, should have little difficulty with its early opponents, Norway, and the winner between Hungary and New Zealand, which compose the first quarter, all having byes.

Italy, with A. Giogio de Stefani, also figures to be the favorite to oppose Germany in one of the semi-finals, though the path to that point is somewhat more difficult, right from the start, as it will meet Ireland, with the giant G. Lyttleton Rogers as its leader, in the first round, with France looming two rounds later.

Great Britain, with such stars as Bunny Austin, G. P. Hughes and Tuckey, has the easiest task of all, as its quarter contains only such minor nations, so far as Davis Cup play is concerned, as the three Balkan nations, Rumania, Czechoslovakia, with Sweden or Switzerland as its quarter-final opponent. Its team has also slight opposition in its semifinal match, as the final quarter, in the bye group, contains India, Austria, Belgium and Greece, who meet in that order.

Australia vs. Mexico

In the American zone, also, the results are more or less fixed. Australia, though lacking several of the stars which have carried it so powerfully in recent years, including Jack Crawford and Vivian McGrath, will have plenty of material in A. J. Quist, and Jack Bromwich to take care of both Canada and Japan, as well as its first-round opponent, Mexico.

So, according to the general consensus, Germany is figured to be the challenger of the United States, having defeated in turn Norway, Hungary or New Zealand, France or Italy, and Great Britain, then coming over here, Australia.

The places where preliminary ties will be played will be settled shortly, as soon as the preferences of the various nations listed are consulted. The United States, as the champion nation, has the right to designate in case of disagreement, but generally there is little difficulty, though in the case of the United States matches, the visiting teams will doubtless agree to the arrangements proposed by the United States Lawn Tennis Association officials. It will be remembered last year, that at the expressed wish of the Australian team, the zone final between Australia and the United States was shifted to the West Side Tennis Club at Forest Hills, after Philadelphia had been originally the selected place.

Final at Germantown

It has been definitely settled this year, however, by the officials of the U. S. L. T. A., that both the interzone and final and the challenge round will be played at the Germantown Cricket Club, while Boston has put in a bid for the American zone final, though its designation is as yet by no means certain. Naturally Australia, coming across the Pacific to California, will be likely to select some western point for its encounter with Mexico, and Japan and Canada may also decide to meet in that vicinity before coming east for the important grass tournaments and the final round.

Wise Couple

Among the crowd about to pass through the track gates at Grand Central were a sailor and a girl, kissing. Others were kissing, and no one paid any attention—except an idle meddler who noted that neither the girl nor the sailor got on that train. They simply walked over to another gate, joined the crowd, and kissed some more.

The Ancient Church Of St. Fursy

This ancient parochial church of Saint Fursy at Lagny, France, dating from the 11th century and contemporaneous with the famous Cathedral of Notre Dame in Paris, a priceless architectural gem, now houses a garage, a dance hall and a boarding house.

The attention of the Ministry of the Interior has recently been called to this church, and the appeal bears the inscription "What is happening to our riches?"

Awakening Of China Is Japan's Aim; Conflict A Disgrace, Says Kawai

China Should Join In Creating Asiatic Cultural Sphere And Hasten Dawn In East

Decrying the present China Incident as a disgrace for the Asiatic races, Tatsuo Kawai, director of the Information Bureau, of the Japanese Foreign Office, in his new book "The Objective of Rising Japan," describes in detail the underlying cause of the struggle and the aim for which this nation is struggling in its war with the Kuomintang. Just off the press, it is a 156-page book of ordinary pamphlet-size and contains "The Restoration of Sino-Japanese Relations" (Chapt. 1), "The Development of the Japanese Race" (Chapt. 2), "The Creation of Culture of New Japan" (Chapt. 3), "Japan And the Asiatic Continent" (Chapt. 4), "The World Significance of the Sino-Japanese Incident" (Chapt. 5), "The Basic Reasons for Sino-Japanese Collaboration" (Chapt. 6) and "Conclusion—The Dawn in Asia" (Chapt. 7). The book will be translated into several foreign languages for wide distribution abroad. Following is a brief translation by a staff member.

The conclusion reached as a result of six months' hostilities in China is clearly and plainly "Japan's cooperation with a new China." During the six months of fighting dating from the Lukouchiao Incident, Japan's stand has consistently been to cause the serious reflection of the Nationlist Government, by launching necessary military operations against the militant, anti-Japanese Kuomintang forces at the same time taking all possible diplomatic measures. But the situation has only been further aggravated.

The Nationalist Government, after the capture by Japanese of its capital, Nanking, has removed its base of military operations to Hankow, and possibly on account of its desperation, has bluntly manifested its attitude to cooperate with the Soviet and the Communists. She is plotting to bring confusion and chaos to the Far Eastern situation, by staging a drawn-out resistance. This has necessitated Japan to cast off her cloak of passivity which she had worn for the past six months, and this nation is now strongly determined to make a positive move to carry out a wholesale purge of the anti-Japanese destructive forces, in an endeavor thus to re-establish East Asia peace. Indeed the tenseness of the situation presented is such that it requires the whole of Japan's lion's strength to solve this problem. This is the reason why the Imperial Conference of January 11 was urgently held.

Non-Recognition Announced

On the 16th of the same month there was issued a statement by the Imperial Government, in which as a result of the conclusion reached at the Imperial Conference the Government indicated to the world its policy of ignoring completely the existence of the Kuomintang Government. But the Government, in the same statement, expressed its hope that there would materialize the establishment and the healthy growth of a new Chinese regime sufficiently capable of collaboration with Japan, in trying to readjust the diplomatic relations between the two nations and making constructive efforts to build up a new China. However, the Government also clearly indicated in the statement that Japan's policy to respect China's territorial sovereignty and the Powers' rights and interests in China would on that account undergo no change. Indeed Japan's responsibility today for trying to establish East Asian peace and security has been considerably increased.

History has now revolved. It has quickly shifted from that of a Sino-Japanese conflict to that of Sino-Japanese cooperation; from that of destruction to that of construction.

The conclusion thus reached as a result of six months' hostilities with China is to ignore completely the existence of the unrepentant anti-Japanese and pro-Communist Kuomintang Government, which is the disturber of East Asian peace and security, and to achieve a union and collaboration between the two great Asiatic races of Japan and China.

Looking over the world today, I feel that it can be roughly divided into three cultural areas, i.e. European, American and Asiatic. These cultural areas, we find, differ considerably from one another in their various aspects. It is also a point worth our special attention that these areas are each marked by their own historical and geographical backgrounds.

Three Cultural Areas

After the World War there was created the League of Nations at Geneva, and despite the fact that the so-called "international legal government" was established thereby, mankind's actual practice even since then has been a separate division of existence and activity on those three virtually separate great cultural areas. The activities of the three big world Powers, Britain, the United States and Soviet Russia, to strengthen their own national powers have been unceasing, and such is only natural in view of mankind's conservative inertia. And the distinguishing characteric of the 20th century world politics in its unceasing development is to be grasped in the "centripetal phenomena" of the respective races belonging to those three respective cultural areas.

To take the American continent for instance, the Monroe Doctrine, which enforcement has become possible in the main due to the two Americas' special geographical characteristics, has made a historic development along the line of Pan-Americanism. In this respect, the establishment of a peace machinery by the Pan-American Union as a result of the 8th Pan-American conference held at Buenos Aires on December 1, 1936, enlisting the cooperation of 21 American nations, in order to secure peace in the Western hemisphere, must be said to have marked a new epoch in world politics.

American Example

At this conference, U. S. Secretary of State Cordell Hull stated that there exists the necessity of making the American continent a good champion of the three worthy causes of peace, democracy and civilization in a most practical sense. While in all other parts of the globe there exist intense strife and great suspicions, Secretary of State Hull stated, all American nations by maintaining their peaceful and good neighborly relations must reject illegitimate discriminations and establish securely the principle of free trade and commerce by lowering tariff walls, in an attempt thus to enhance the happy position of the New Continent.

Indeed this policy indicated by Secretary of State Hull must be said to have shown the direction in which the world politics of tomorrow must move. In other words, the world politics of tomorrow demands that the world, as can be seen by an apt concrete example furnished by the Pan-American Union, take the form of individual regional control in each of the aforesaid three cultural areas.

In the European cultural area, therefore, by the European form of government of the European peoples, in the American cultural area by the individual control of the Pan-American Union, and in the Asiatic cultural area by the union and collaboration of Japan, Manchoukuo and China must there be brought peace and prosperity, I presume.

Japan's Aim

As is clarified by the statement issued by the Imperial Government indicating its policy to repudiate the Kuomintang Government, Japan's stand taken in the current China Incident is not to establish against China, as a result of Japan's victory, the relation of the conqueror and the conquered. Japan simply is trying, in her equal and reciprocal relations with China, by respecting each other's territorial sovereignty and aiming at true collaboration with a new Chinese regime, to materialize the enlightened age of an Asiatic union.

These three great regional divisions of world politics which can thus practically contribute to the promotion of human welfare and happiness will in the end prove to be only a prelude to the world's monistic evolution.

W. S. Thomson, an American, in 1929, seeing the state of increase of Japanese population, observed: "The question of Japanese population today is a serious problem. Whether or not the world can throw open its door for absorption of Japanese population will decide the question of provoking a war or averting it. In Sino-Japanese relations, for instance, Japan's economic interests in Manchuria is the determining factor. If China ignores Japan's vested rights and interests in Manchuria, it most probably will give rise to hostilities between the two naitons."

Further, Mr. Thomson said, "Japan in the future will have to seek her necessary raw materials and resources elsewhere abroad, and this is imperative in view of Japan's fast increasing population."

Growth Of Population

Indeed Japan's national expansion achieved has been in exact proportion to the increase of her population. In all fields, she has achieved speedy development. As Mr. Thomson predicted, China's ignoring of Japan's vital interests in Manchuria, which represents at least part of this great national expansion Power of Japan, caused the 1931 Manchurian Incident.

The population of Japan Proper which in 1872 was only 33,110,000, forty years later in 1913 increased to 61,320,000. Twenty years later, in 1935, her population witnessed an enormous increase to an amazing figure of 69,250,000. If to this is added the total number of inhabitants in her overseas dominions, its gross total indeed would cover one twentieth of the total of world population and one eleventh of the total of population in all Asia.

This great increase of Japanese population is rightly reflected in the Empire's economic and industrial activities. The Government's budget which indicates one phase of the nation's consumption power amounted to only ¥33,000,000 in 1868 or the year of birth of modern Japan. But seventy years later, in 1936, the Government's budget increased seventy times as much, to ¥2,300,000,000.

Again, the development of Japan's foreign trade during the last forty years is a marvelous record. The total of Japan's export and import trade in 1897 which was only ¥332,000,000 was increased to ¥5,700,000,000 or fourteen times as much.

National income has proportionally increased. Whereas the national income in 1901, at the time of the Russo-Japanese War, was put at only ¥1,148,000,000, it increased to ¥10,600,000,000 some twenty years later in 1930, just previous to the outbreak of the Manchurian Incident. Six years after the Incident in 1936, it further soared to a striking figure of ¥16,500,000,000.

Industrial Achievement

The total of Japan's industrial output which in 1930 was only ¥5,954,000,000 in 1935 increased to ¥10,800,000,000. The gains from the cotton spinning and cotton textile industry, to cite but a single instance, has increased from the ¥2,000,000,000 of 1930 to ¥3,300,000,000 in 1935.

Another important factor that has contributed to Japan's present growth and development is the progress of her national education. According to investigations in 1935, the total of educational institutions in Japan, including all kinds of schools from primary schools up to universities, is 46,138, and the students and pupils enrolled at those institutions aggregate upward of 14,035,800. The number of schools per 100 kilometers of territorial area in Japan is 11, while the percentage of students and pupils against the country's entire population is 20 per 100.

In elementary education the system is compulsory, and the percentage of children of school age enrolled is 99.58. Thus this side of national education may well be said to have been completely universalized.

The cultural and scientific side of development in Japan also is simply astounding. Japan has fully assimilated the Occidental civilization in this respect. Proofs are eloquently evident by her actual achievements in cultural and scientific fields. Many a scientific discovery and invention of international value has already been made by Japanese, much to the admiration of the peoples in the Occident.

China's Mistake

In her historic necessity, in her historic characteristic, and in her cultural mission, Japan is destined to make continental development. China tried to reject this tendency of Japan by recourse to armed force. The Kuomintang Government, overconfident of its own power and slighting Japan's actual strength, tried unwisely to reject Japan's influence on the Asiatic continent. This 20th century anachronism and miscalculation on the part of the Kuominiang Government is the cause of the present Sino-Japanese conflict. The Japanese nation is not so cowardly as to hesitate to accept China's challenge to a fight, particularly when their national existence is jeopardized.

That the Sino-Japanese relations have been thrown into an armed conflict is the greatest regret of the Asiatic races and their greatest disgrace as well. However, if the current China Incident means a dark night for Asia, the coming of daw is now believed to be not so far distant. Already a glimmer of light is seen in North China and also in Central China where have been erected the Sun Flag and the Five-Colored Banner.

The "European toxin" continuously present ever since the Opium War was fought already show signs of neutralization, with the holding last year of the Brussels parley under the Washington Nine-Power Pact serving as the opportunity. In this sense, the spirit of this Nine-Power Pact today requires close re-examination.

Light In The East

Marco Polo's envisaged "Mysterious World, Jepangu" served as an impetus to the discovery of the American Continent, and the United States who achieved development on this new continent was good enough to rouse Japan from her deep slumber. Japan in her turn is now mercifully trying to awaken her close continental neighbor, China, from the latter's greatest illusion. Indeed history makes a wonderful development. Light comes from the East, they say, and Japan must be the hope of the whole world.

Likes Chess--And Cake

This young girl, Elaine Saunders, nearly sent the crown of Dr. Alekhine, world chess champion, tumbling at a match recently held. Chese is her favorite form of amusement, work and study.

Wee Girl Nearly Gets Best Of World Champion Chess Player

LONDON—At the age of 12, Miss Elaine Saunders is famous.

She has made her name because, except that she is extraordinary, she is really such an ordinary litle girl, says the Christian Science Monitor. She enjoys everything an ordinary schoolgirl ought to enjoy, in the way of games and recreations and candy. But in each field of activity she adds that little something the others ignore.

She likes chocolate cake—and chess.

She adores playing hockey and net-ball—and chess.

Her favorite recreations are riding and flying—and chess.

She is not very enthusiastic about lessons—except, of course, her chess lesson.

All of which maybe explains why Mimi—for she answers to that name more spontaneously than Elaine—gave Dr. Alexander Alekhine, world chess champion, a great deal to think about when they met in a chess match in London recently.

Dr. Alekhine had come from Paris to play 30 opponents, representing the County of Kent, simultaneously. Mimi was the only representative of her sex at the table. And she represented the ladies to such outstanding effect that the world champion declared her to be a "genius."

Dr. Alekhine took on his 30 opponents with every appearance of finding the match unequal. It seemed that there were too few players on the other side of the table. He paced from one end of the line to the other, taking his moves and his opponents' chessmen in his stride.

But there was one point where he always stopped and did some stationary thinking for a while. It was opposite the little lady with bobbed brown hair and serious brown eyes.

Mimi kept the master player guessing until past midnight, when all good girls ought to have been in bed for three hours. Most of the other players had been finished off some time previously, and only the fact that Dr. Alekhine was still playing his diminutive opponent kept them all from going off to bed themselves.

Chess, however, is the only excuse Mimi can give her father—whom, by the way, she now plays blind-folded to give him a chance—for staying up late. As a rule she goes upstairs at 9 o'clock sharp.

Sometimes, she puts in a little time gazing at the stars through her telescope. For star-gazing, next to chess, is one of her favorite occupations.

Star-gazing and horse riding. And playing hockey and net-ball. And watching football matches with her father. And flying in an airplane.

And, naturally, eating chocolate cake.

But then, that is one of the few things one can do at the same time as one plans how to trap one's opponent's King.

long war, we must prepare for the worst, but that it is not necessary to think of the exposition now because it is still far off. "But if the situation becomes worse in the future, we shall cancel the Exposition," said the Premier.

Mr. Kono voiced the view that the main part of the China Incident is over, and that there must be some other situation to necessitate the presentation of the Mobilization Bill. Foreign Minister Hirota replied that the Government is not slighting the China Incident, that China is preparing for a long resistance, and that Japan must also prepare. When Mr. Kono asked why Japan does not give a death blow to Chiang Kai-shek, Mr. Hirota retorted that as soon as the whereabouts of Chiang is known, the final blow will be given.

The session rose at 5:24 p.m.

Kanebo Planning New Enterprises For Manchoukuo

Seeking Self-Sufficiency In Supply Of Raw Materials

Domei Tsushin

HSINKING, March 4—Adding to its industrial enterprises in the rising Empire, the Kanegafuchi Spinning Company, a leading Japanese firm, is planning to build two new plants in Manchuria, it was revealed here today.

The company has applied to the Manchoukuo Government for permission to construct the projected factories, which will be the Oriental Leather Manufacturing Company and the Kangteh Industrial Company. The former will be capitalized at 2,000,000 yuan and have factories at Chinchow, Suicauing and Mukden.

The Kangteh Industrial Company will have a capital of 500,000 yuan, and factories in Haicheng and Mukden.

The Kanegafuchi Company already owns three manufacturing plants in Manchoukuo, including the Manchuria and Kangteh Pulp Manufacturing Companies and the Kangteh Dyeing Company. The projected companies are understood to be designed to secure self-sufficiency in the supply of materials and resources for the various industries being undertaken by the corporation.

Government Aid To Those Who Wed

French Deputy Takes Example From Germany

PARIS, Feb. (INS)—Young French couples who want to get married and lack the ready cash may be given the opportunity to borrow the necessary money from the government if the proposal of a deputy from the north of France meets with the approval of the French Parliament.

Alarmed by the declining birth rate which many believe to be the most serious problem facing the Third Republic today this deputy, Francois de Saint-Just, has taken his cue from similar laws passed by Germany and Italy.

Saint-Just has succeeded in having his proposal placed on the parliamentary calendar as it will be debated at this session. There are 50,000 young people of modest circumstances in France today who want to get married but are afraid to take the step because they have been unable to put any money aside, according to the deputy.

Unemployment, the decrease in purchasing power in spite of higher wages, the increasing number of essentials in modern life, and the difficulty of estimating expenses because of price fluctuations have all accentuated the seriousness of this problem, Saint-Just recently wrote in a stirring appeal for government aid.

If his plan is accepted the government will advance 5,000 francs (about $150) in credit to men between twenty-three and twenty-seven and to women between eighteen and twenty-seven. For each child resulting from the union, twenty-five per cent of the loan will be cancelled. Thus, if four children are born, none of the money will have to be repaid.

Saint-Just credits a similar law passed in Germany for many beneficial results in that country. Marriages and births have increased twenty-five per cent, manufacturing of home supplies has revived, treasury receipts have been augmented and 150,000 workers have been reemployed, thus reducing the rolls of the unemployed, according to Saint-Just.

Similar beneficial results have been obtained in Italy and Sweden, the legislator argues, and he believes young French couples, particularly those in the rural districts who hope to own a farm and some stock should be given government help and at the same time stimulate the birth rate.

In spite of many social laws passed by the government of former Premier Leon Blum during the past year, this problem has not been tackled by the French government, but indication are that it will meet with favor when it comes before the legislators for debate.

ganization plotted against his life and also undertook the destruction of livestock, railways and the light industry there.

Faisullah Khodjaev, former president of the executive committee of Uzbek, testifying next admitted that he had plotted with British residence in that area to establish an independent Uzbek, which later might have been brought under British protection.

Asked by State Prosecutor Andrei Vyshinsky whether Uzbek's withdrawal from the Soviet Union involved necessarily Uzbek's falling under British dependence, the defendant replied: "yes." Mr. Vyshinsky recalled that under the Soviet Constitution, the republics are free to withdraw from the Union but were not expected to become "vassals" of a bourgeois State.

Following a three-hour recess the military collegium tonight heard Nicolai Krestinsky, thus far the chief figure in the treason trial, who admitted that he had connections with the late Marshall Mikhail Tukchavesky for the setting up of a military dictatorship of pro-Reichswehr Red Army men.

Japanese Ski Party On Way To Prague

Domei Tsushin

BERLIN, March 4—Masatsugu Iguro and Tomizo Kikuchi, leading Japanese skiers, left for Prague today en route to Toharakusdorf, Czechoslovakia, where they will take part in a two-day competition, opening tomorrow. They arrived here recently after competing in the International Ski Federation meet at Lahti, Finland.

The Japanese skiers are scheduled to leave Toharakusdorf for Marseilles Monday night, from where they will sail for Japan.

The Chinese forces which have been driven into the southernmost sector of Shansi will either take the route leading through Fenglingtao toward Tungkuang, or southward toward Pingliu and enter Honan Province across the Yellow River. The Japanese will launch their final crushing attack on the remnants of enemy forces in the southwestern districts in the next three or four days.

The Japanese forces moving into the southeastern sector of Shantung Province, have already taken most of the enemy positions in the locality and are expected to clash soon with the enemy forces including General Pang Ping-yun's Army which are still lingering around Ichow.

Many Marks Bettered As 14 Countries Compete At Sydney

SYDNEY, Australia, Feb. 14—The third renewal of the British Empire Games passed into history Saturday with colorful ceremony closing the athletic meet that opened last Saturday.

With the athletes of 14 empire countries drawn smartly to attention, flag bearers and standard bearers marched to the front of the victory dais. There they were presented with the flags and standards of the nations they represented.

In his closing address, chairman Leighwood of the British Empire Games Federation referred to competitors in the next games scheduled for Canada in 1942 and said:

"May they display cheerfulness and concord so that the spirit of the British Empire may be carried on with even greater eagerness, courage and honor for the good of humanity and the peace of the world."

Three guns roared out a salute.

Bands played while the athletes and spectators joined in singing "Rule Britannia" and "Auld Lang Syne," then the national anthem, and the third games were over.

Australia piled up 100 points in the last day of the track and field events to end the games with a clear lead of 74 points over Canada, its nearest competitor.

Canada won eight first places during the week of games, compared with six for Australia, five for South Africa and four for England; but Australia built up its total of points with second, third, fourth, fifth and sixth place wins. The total points were: Australia 235, Canada 161, England 86, South Africa 81, New Zealand 71, Wales 13, Southern Rhodesia 11, Scotland 8, Ceylon 1, Ulster 1.

Twenty-one brand new track and field marks are ready for listing in the record books, smashing conclusion to the third renewal of the meet, staged on Sydney Cricket Grounds last week.

Fifteen records were claimed by the male contingent with five unbroken. The women toppled six marks, equalled one and left two intact.

No competition was held in the men's two-mile run or the women's quarter-mile.

Canada headed the record snipers with six new marks for future gamers to shoot at. South Africa was second with five, Australia next with four, and New Zealand had three. Of the 28 champions crowned only two were repeaters. J. P. Metcalfe of Australia retained the hop, step and jump title he won in 1934, and Edwin Thacker of South Africa again captured the high jump. All others stepped into empire title roles for the first time.

A complete set of 13 new swimming records went into books, inscribed there by stars of three countries at the empire gala just closed.

The new marks—11 of them for new distances—were established in swimming events on the games program as England, Australia and Canada divided the championships exclusively.

South African Ties Record

SYDNEY, Australia, Feb. 12—Tom Lavery, South African Olympic timber-topper, twice cracked the British Empire Games mark for the 120-yard hurdles today, and wound up with a world-record-equaling performance as he won the title in his specialty at the 1938 Empire Games.

After lowering the Empire mark to 14.4s., in his trial heat, Lavery chopped four tenths of a second more off the mark with a 14-second-flat performance in the finals, equaling the international standard set by Bob Osgood of the University of Michigan in the United States Big Ten Conference championships last May.

He whipped a fast field, including Larry O'Connor of Toronto, who was sixth in the 1936 Olympic finals. O'Connor won his trial heat in 14.6s.

Decima Norman, standout woman athlete of the games, captured her third title with a victory in the women's 220-yard dash. Previous winner of the shorter sprint and the broad jump, Miss Norman ran the 220 in 24.7s. today, just twotenths of a second off the Empire record she set in her qualifying heat Thursday.

Four of the finalists in the men's 440-yard dash were competitors in the Berlin Olympic Games two years ago. The title went to Bill Roberts of England, in 46.4s. Roberts was fourth in the finals of the 400 meters at the 1936 international games. Bill Fritz of Toronto, sixth in the Olympic 400, was a close second.

Another Empire record was eclipsed when Barbara Burke, South African teammate of Lavery, won the women's 80-meter hurdle final in 11.7s., a tenth of a second better than the previous low time set in 1934. She finished in front of Isobel Grant of Australia and R. Tong of New Zealand.

England swept two of the last three swimming championships last night with Australia capturing the third. Robert Leivers won the 1,650-yard freestyle, in 19m. 46.2s., for a new Empire Games record. Bob Pirie of Toronto, was second, 13 seconds behind with Norman Wainwright, England, third.

The English relay team won easily in the women's 330-yard medley in a new games record time of 3m. 57.7s. South Africa was second, Australia third. Percy Oliver gave Australia the other title by winning the 110-yard backstroke with another new mark at 1m. 7.9s. Gordon Kerr, Windsor, Ont., was second, Michael Taylor, England, third.

11 Marks Recorded

SYDNEY, Australia, Feb. 7—Eric Coy of Winnipeg wrote Canada's name into the British Empire athletic championship list today with a record-breaking discus throw, one of the six marks toppled by track and field stars on the second day program.

The Canadian, who cracked the Australian mark and later lowered the existing Empire record in pregame performances, hurled the discus 146ft. 10½in., to better by nearly 11 feet the eight-year-old record of 135ft. 11in., set by Harry Hart of South Africa.

Cyril Holmes of England, winner of the 100-yard dash Saturday, qualified for the finals of the 220-yard run with a record-smashing performance of 21.3s. Larry O'Connor, University of Toronto, also qualified for the final on Thursday.

Decima Norman of Australia, chalked up 19ft. ¼in., in the women's broad jump to better the empire record of 17ft. 11¼in., set by Phyllis Bartholomew of England in 1934.

V. P. Root of New Zealand, clipped a full second off Tom Hampson's eight-year-old mark in winning the 880-yard run in 1m. 51.4s.

Johannes Coleman, South African distance-star, was clocked in 2h. 30m 49.8s., in winning the marathon. The old mark of 2h. 40m. 36s., was set by Harold Webster of Canada, in 1934.

The Australia women's relay team accounted for the other record, speeding 440 yards in 49.1s., three-tenths of a second better than the mark set by England in 1934.

Although winning only one of six titles decided, Australia's track and field forces took a commanding lead in the first day's competition of the British Empire Games.

Five meet records were set, among them a 52.9s. performance for the 440-yard hurdles by Johnny Loaring of Windsor, Ont., and an 11.1s. time for Decima Norman of Australia in the women's 110-yard dash, just one-tenth of a second off the world record.

On a basis of 10-5-4-3-2-1 points for the first six places, Australia's forces held a lead of 63 points to 33 for Canada for the first day's track and field competition, with South Africa showing 19 points, England 18 and New Zealand 17.

Star of the Australian squad was Miss Norman, whose 11.1s. meet mark for the dash came within a shade of equalling the world mark set three years ago. She was the lone Australian championship winner, but the Island contingent gained valuable points with four seconds and four thirds, while Canada, although winning two titles, was blanked for second places and took only three thirds.

Loaring's mark in the hurdles, only three-tenths of a second away from the 1927 world record set by J. A. Gibson of the United States, placed the Canadian performances. Canada's other winner was Jimmy Courtright, with 206ft. ¾in. in the javelin throw.

Nikko Team Captures Ice Hockey Pennant

The ice hockey team from the Furukawa Electric Works of Nikko captured the industrial clubs championship by defeating the Railways Bureau sextet by five goals to one Saturday night at the Shibaura rink.

The Nikko stick wielders took the lead in the first period by three goals to one and registered two more in the second while they held their opponents scoreless.

Toshiichi Katayama and Etsuko Inada, men's and women's figure skating champions of the country, delighted the spectators with their superb exhibition of free skating before the match.

Revolta Captures Sacramento Open

SACRAMENTO, Calif., Feb. 6—After playing the same consistent brand of golf that has earned him an international reputation, Johnny Revolta of Evanston, Ill., won the $3,000 Sacramento open tournament today with a 72-hole total of 290.

Revolta capped his final round with a 72, even par for the municipal course, to pass up earlier leaders. In the morning he had shot a 73, while he put together first and second rounds of 72 and 73.

The victory netted Revolta $750 and put him well in the lead as the top money winner of the Winter tournament swing.

The former Professional Golfers Associations champion and twice member of the Ryder Cup team opened the present tour with a victory in the $10,000 Miami-Biltmore tournament last December.

Two Strokes Over Par

Revolta's total score was two strokes over par for the seventy-two holes and considerably higher than the remarkable record for the distance set here last year by Ed Dudley, who toured the course in 273 strokes.

Drenching rains the first two days of the tournament and intermittent showers today caused the games of most of the entrants to break during some stage of the play, but Revolta plugged along in steady fashion.

One stroke behind the leader came Vic Ghezzi of Deal, N. J., whose last two rounds of 69 and 73 brought him a total of 291. Ghezzi lost a chance to tie by carding a 5 on the par-4 final hole. On the 430-yard hole he used a brassie on his second shot and pulled it to the edge of the clubhouse. He pitched to the green and missed a 20-foot putt by inches for the fourth that would have put him into a play-off for first money.

Nelson Cards 294

Ben Hogan, Fort Worth, Texas, took third with 292. Horton Smith, Chicago; Earl Fry, Alameda, Calif.; John Bulla, Chicago, and Tony Penna, Dayton, Oh'o, tied for fourth with 293s. Byron Nelson of Reading, Pa., shared the 294 bracket with Frank Toronto, Sacramento, low scoring amateur of the tournament.

Although Ghezzi failed to catch Revolta by a stroke, he set one record. One of his shots hit a woman spectator on the nose and another hit a man in the back. Jimmy Hines, Garden City, N. Y., playing in the same threesome with Ghezzi, also hit a woman in the gallery.

Young Frenchman Wins Downhill Ski Championship

Domei Tsushin

ENGELBERT, Switzerland, March 5—Two comparatively new enthusiasts to the skiing competitions, a young Frenchman and a young German girl, today walked off with first places respectively in the men's and women's downhill ski event which set off the world championship matches held under the auspices of the International Ski Federation.

Beating the veteran Emile Allais, of France, who had dominated the French competitions for a dozen years, James Couttet, Allais' up and coming understudy, won the 900-meter downhill event in 3 minutes 17.8 seconds. Alla's was second and Hullmuth Lantschner, of Germany, third, while Rodolf Rominner, of Switzerland, placed fourth.

Young Lisa Resch, of Germany, won the major honors of the day by easily trimming a victory from the recently-crowned world champion, Christel Cranz, Germany's leading woman skier, in the women's downhill event. Her time was 3 minutes 32.1 seconds. She was followed by Miss Cranz.

France also took first place in the men's team contests taking the event in 10 minutes 13.7 seconds. Germany was second with the time of 10 minutes 27.7 seconds.

The three-day meet was threatened with cancellation today when the French contestants, angered by a last-minute change in the program and the course of the races, threatened to withdraw from the competitions. After haranguing for an hour, the meet finally got under way at 10 a.m.

Forty two men and 22 women, representing most of the European nations, took part in today's opening event.

"I'm A Changed Man," Says Baer On Trip To N.Y.

N.Y. Times

NEW YORK, Feb. 8—Max Baer bounced into town yesterday a different man from the fighter on whom were showered so many play-boy titles, and bounced right out again. Arriving from California with his manager, Ancil Hoffman, Baer remained in the city less than two hours before repairing to Lakewood, N. J., where he will join his younger brother, Buddy, in training.

Baer came here for a return bout against Tommy Farr in Madison Square Garden March 11. He hasn't fought in the Garden in seven years. He hasn't had a major fight since his match last May in England with Ben Foord, whom he knocked out in nine rounds. But he appeared determined and convinced he can regain the heavyweight title held by Joe Louis.

"I'm different now, a changed man," said Baer, showing a picture of his baby, Max Jr. "I promised the baby I'd win back the heavyweight title, and I'll knock out Farr by way of starting the climb back. I'm young yet. I'll be 29 Feb. 16. I've only lost eight fights in nine years and I beat every one of my conquerors in return matches."

Weight Now 217 Pounds

"And I've got a different slant on things now. I'm taking things more seriously. I weigh 217 now, five pounds heavier than I should be, but I've been working in Oakland, golfing and keeping myself in shape for the come-back.

"I think I'll knock out Farr. I would have beaten him in our last fight but for a cut over my eye, sustained in the second round. At that, if the fight had been scheduled for fifteen rounds I would have knocked him out. He doesn't hit hard enough to hurt you. All he does is keep you busy in there.

"I think Schmeling's failure to knock out Foord is a testimonial to my own ability. I take no stock in the theory that Schmeling refused to extend himself because he needed a twelve-round workout. The place to go under wraps is the gymnasium, not the ring. Furthermore, I think Louis will outpoint Schmeling when they next meet."

Baer has had several engagements as wrestling referee and exhibited a bruise on his nose as a memento of a grappling carnival in Tulsa, Okla., in which he became entangled with the wrestlers.

Bobby Riggs Wins In Tennis Final

MIAMI BEACH, Fla., Feb. 7—Bobby Riggs of Chicago faltered momentarily but regained his stride and defeated Frank Kovacs of Oakland, Calif., 2—6, 6—3, 6—4, 6—2 in the Surf Club tennis tournament final yesterday.

Kovacs, 18-year-old youngster, astonished spectators time and again by slashing back at Riggs and staging spectacular shots that held the national No. 2 player at a standstill.

In the long run it was a victory of experience over youth. The gallery speculated on Kovac's possible effect on national rankings when his youth is tempered by more experience.

Riggs was erratic in the first set and the Californian had him completely in hand. But the Chicago player came into his own in the second. Playing with precision, he gained the upper hand and kept the lead throughout the match.

It was no child's play. Kovacs snapped a return in the third game that caught Riggs off guard and sent him sprawling on the ground in an effort to salvage it. The set was deuced five times.

The next also was deuced five times, but Riggs kept up a steady fire that had the sparkling Kovacs on the run.

Kovacs also lost to Riggs in the Miami Biltmore tournament several weeks ago. He was an upset quarter-final victor over Bitsy Grant of Atlanta in the contest ended yesterday.

Konoye's Statement Encourages O.O.C.

The 12th Olympic Games are to be held in 1940 and this is no time to talk passively of the probability of its abandonment because of the Sino-Japanese hostilities.

Thus said Premier Fumimaro Konoye in reply to an interpellation by Ichiro Kono of the Minseito during Saturday's session of the House of Representatives' Committee on the National Mobilization Bill.

If the situation in China becomes too bad, then the Government has only to cancel the Games, Premier Konoye said. But there is no basis at present on which to believe that the conditions in 1940 would be at the worst to preclude the Games, he added.

The Premier's statement is reported to have given the Tokyo Olympic Organizing Committee considerable encouragement especially in view of the near opening of the meeting of the International Olympic Committee at Cairo.

Fists Fly As Bears Beat Redskins

MIAMI, Fla., Feb. 6—The Chicago Bears, underdogs in several contests with the world-champion Redskins, finally beat the Washington team, 16 to 10, today in a professional football game enlivened by several fist fights.

Four players from each side were banished from the field for mixing knuckles and scrimmages. Once the entire bench of Chicago substitutes charged to the gridiron to offer battle.

The fistic matches that brought the participants' expulsion were Russell Thompson, Chicago tackle, vs. Les Olsson, Washington guard; Bob McChesney, Washington end, vs. George Wilson, Chicago end; Bill Karr, Chicago end, vs. George Smith, Washington center, and Don Irwin, Washington fullback, vs. Edgar Manske, Chicago end.

Game in Orange Bowl

Nine thousand spectators in the Orange Bowl Stadium watched the game, played in 75-degree temperature.

Washington scored first in the second quarter with a 30-yard field goal by Riley Smith.

Jack Manders returned the kick-off 58 yards to the Washington 32-yard line, and several plays later Keith Molesworth went over from the 1-yard stripe. Manders kicked the point.

In the third Manders led a Chicago drive to the Washington 10-yard line, where he kicked a field goal. Early in the fourth Sam Francis of Chicago intercepted a pass flipped by Ray Peterson and ran 33 yards to score. Joe Saydahar's place-kick was blocked.

Pass Brings Rivals' Score

With only two plays remaining in the game, Wayne Millner of Washington intercepted a pass by John Doering and galloped 10 yards for the Washington touchdown. Riley Smith booted the point.

Sammy Baugh, star of the Washington squad, played only about 15 minutes. He limped while on the field. Cliff Battles of the Redskins was not in uniform.

Meiji and Keio were victorious in the O. B. rugger tilts Sunday afternoon at the Meiji Shrine stadium. The former took the measure of the Peers School graduates by 26 to 19 while the latter bumped off the Rikkyo club by a 25 to 3 score.

Swim Title Taken By Miss Rains, 13 In N.Y. Meet

By KINGSLEY CHILDS

N.Y. Times

NEW YORK, Feb. 7—Unchallenged at any stage of the race, Miss Helene Rains, little 13-year-old star of the Women's Swimming Association of New York, triumphed easily in the women's metropolitan junior 500-yard freestyle championship race in the Hotel Shelton pool yesterday.

In turning in one of the best performances of her aquatic career, Miss Rains won by more than a pool length against Miss Lillian McArdle of the St. George Dragon Club and three other rivals. The Young W. S. A. ace was clocked in 6:42.6, which is regarded as wonderful time for a girl of her age.

Throughout the event Miss Rains set a fast pace. She was off to the lead at the start and systematically increased her advantage by several feet every time she thrashed her way up and down the twenty-five-yard pool. Her unofficial times at various points were 1:08.4 for 100 yards, 2.28.2 for 200, 3:52.6 for 300, 5:18.4 for 400 and 5:52 for 440.

Miss Daly Is Third

In adding an individual freestyle crown to her collection, which includes three medley titles, Miss Rains finished approximately thirty yards ahead of Miss McArdle. Third place went to Miss Claire Daly, unattached. Two of Miss Rains' clubmates, Miss Mildred Fetterer and Miss Virginia Dayton, were fourth and fifth, respectively.

Representatives of the W. S. A. also led all the way in the women's metropolitan junior 200-yard freestyle relay championship, another feature of the meet. The organization's first team, composed of Misses Geraldine Larkin, Mildred Safarik, Marguerite Hoole and Mildred O'Donnel, scored by eight yards over the Shelton Dolphins in 2:02.2. The St. George Dragon Club was third and the W. S. A. second quartet fourth.

Meyers Trails Neilson

Ed Neilson of the Brooklyn Central Branch defeated Edwin Meyers of the Grand Central Branch by inches to capture the metropolitan junior Y. M. C. A. 100-yard freestyle title.

Miss Suzanne Hernstorf of the Shelton Dolphins prevailed by four feet in the women's 150-yard backstroke handicap event for members of the Associated Swimming Clubs of New York.

Eight St. George Dragon Club girls staged a colorful water ballet to conclude the program.

The Summaries

500-Yard Freestyle (Women's Metropolitan Junior Championship)—Won by Miss Helene Rains, W. S. A.; Miss Lillian McArdle, St. George Dragon Club, second; Miss Claire Daly, unattached, third; Miss Mildred Fetterer, W. S. A., fourth. Time—6:42.6.

A. first team (Misses Geraldine Larkin, Mildred Safarik, Marguerite Hoole, Mildred O'Donnell); Shelton Dolphins (Misses Ferne Bramhall, Barbara Anderson, Ann Nadzerka, Alice Short), second; St. George Dragon Club (Misses Peggy Malone, Ailene Daley, Jean Laupheimer, Evelyn Spaner), third; W. S. A. second team (Misses Betty Menzel, Patricia Gerard, Rozanne Hamilton, Frances Schrader), fourth. Time—2:02.2.

100-Yard Freestyle (Metropolitan Junior Y. M. C. A. Championship)—Won by Ed Neilson, Brooklyn Central Y. M. C. A.; Edwin Meyers, Grand Central Y. M. C. A., second; Louis Waldo, Queens Central Y. M. C. A., third. Time—1:00.9.

Women's 150-Yard Backstroke Handicap (closed to Associated Swimming Clubs of New York)—Won by Miss Suzanne Hernstorf, Shelton Dolphine (11 seconds), Miss Jean Wesolowski, St. George Dragon Club, (11 seconds), second; Miss June Sterling, Bayville Aquatic Club (37 seconds), third. Time—2:11.2.

Sleet And Glaze

LEXINGTON, Ky., Jan—(INS)—The slick coating which covered the middlewest a few weeks ago, paralyzing business and causing many painful injuries to less surefooted citizens, is glaze, not sleet, says David M. Young, geology instructor at the University of Kentucky.

Young, who did not deny it was slick, said technically that true sleet falls from above as rain turned to ice, but that glaze is made by rain, falling as true rain, which freezes as it strikes objects with below-freezing temperatures.

17,000 See Cunningham Take Wanamaker Mile, Tying His Millrose Mark

By J. ABRAMSON

N.Y. Times

NEW YORK, Feb. 6—While a Millrose Games throng of 17,000 enthusiasts, standing three deep in the overflow sections of Madison Square Garden, was still roaring with acclaim for the world-record sprint and hurdles achievements of Ben Johnson and Spec Towns, the ineffable Glenn Cunningham raced majestically to his fifth Wanamaker Mile triumph last night, tying his own Millrose record of 4 minutes 11 seconds.

The master miler pulled something new in his old, old pastime of winning super-mile races. He went to the front at 560 yards, in the middle of the fourth lap, and was never headed thereafter. More powerful than ever at twenty-eight, a picture runner in every rippling stride, Cunningham set the pace for the remainder of America's "Big Five" and blasted them with his terrific lift and finish.

He won by ten yards, going away, accompanied by the ear-splitting roar of the crowd, as Archie San Romani, his Curb Exchange A. A. teammate, placed second in 4:12, three yards ahead of Charles Fenske, Wisconsin's N. C. A. A. champion; Gene Venzke, N. Y. A. C. veteran, was fourth and last. Don Lash, of Indiana, leading on the second and third laps, faded to last, then retired from the race on the tenth lap as the rest swept on to the driving finish.

Kansan's Fifth Victory

It was Cunningham's fifth victory in six starts in the Wanamaker Mile. Having won two trophies outright, he won the first leg on the new cup that went into competition last night. His 4:11 tied his 1935 mark, which Joe Mangan equaled when he stopped Cunningham in 1936.

There was little to the race once Cunningham decided to take command. In most previous races he has rated himself off the pace and kicked in a furlong from the end. But the champion has more than one ace in his deck. Sam Romani went out in front, then yielded to Lash on the second lap. Cunningham rated himself third. On the fourth of eleven laps he moved to the head of the procession and it was all over as his rivals, one after the other, alternated in hot pursuit.

Lash stepped the first quarter in 63 seconds. Cunningham, led at the half in 2:07, at three-quarters in 3:12, slamming the last quarter in 59 seconds.

On his running this season Glenn is beyond compare.

The world's fastest human made his bow before his adopted New York home folks when Ben Johnson, Columbia's inspired track captain, broke all records for sixty yards, eclipsing the fastest performance of Jesse Owens, Ralph Metcalfe, Loren Murchison and a long line of America's greatest speed men.

Three times John fled down the gray boards of the Garden arena. The first time he tied the world indoor mark of 6.2 seconds. In the semi-final he sliced a tenth second from the record with :06.1. And in the final the amazing Columbian flew the distance in 6 seconds flat, eclipsing not only the board-floor record, but also Jesse Owens' dirt-floor mark of :06.1 and Metcalf's :06.1 mark that had been made with starting blocks.

Thompson Runs Second

The like of Johnson's sprinting had never been seen before. Winged feet indeed were his last night as the crowd went wild with excitement. He beat Herbert Thompson, surprising Pioneer Club sprinter, by two yards in the final. Herbert Weast, Columbia junior, was a close third.

Spec Towns, Georgia's Olympic champion, cracked the world indoor hurdles mark for sixty yards over five hurdles, returning 7.4 seconds in the final, beating Allan Tolmich, of Wayne University, Detroit. It's only conqueror last year, by a yard. In the semi-finals Towns also returned :07.4, and Tolmich first broke the record with :07.4; in his heat, matching the listed mark of :07.5 in his semi-final.

In a bristling finish, North Carolina's dark horse foursome came from way back to beat N. Y. U. by one foot in the two-mile intercollegiate relay in the fast time of 7:52.4. The Violet had a thirty-yard lead and lost it on Curtis Giddings' third leg. Yale was third. Colgate fourth.

John Quigley, Louis Collado, George Tucknott and Eddie Rogers, a super collection of high school graduates, running for De La Salle Institute, broke all mile relay records for the Millrose Games, colleges and clubs included, when they won the interscholastic race in the almost unbelievable time of 3 minutes 22.3 seconds.

Relay Record Falls Again

Spurred by this feat, Manhattan's varsity foursome of Dick Lundell, Joseph Zeitler, Lou Burns and Howard Borck returned 3:20.4, the fastest mile relay ever run on the Garden track in any meet. The Jaspers made a runaway of it, beating Pitt, anchored by John Woodruff, by twenty-five yards, with North Texas State third.

And in the closing event of the meet, N. Y. U.'s varsity foursome of Martin Witte, Curtis Giddings, Edgar Stripling and James Herbert ripped off their mile in 3:20.2, surpassing Manhattan's five-minute-old track record. The Violet led throughout in a fierce fight with Ohio State, and Herbert, coming back from his Millrose 600 victory, reeled off his quarter in 48.4 seconds—best of the night—and faster than the world indoor record, to beat Harley Howells, Ohio State's brilliant anchor, by five yards. Holy Cross was disqualified for fouling Fordham, which fell out of the race.

Von Cramm Said Held By Police On Return On A Morals Charge

Domei Tsushin

BERLIN, March 7—Baron Gottfried von Cramm, world ranking tennis ace and Germany's leading star, has been arrested by the police reportedly upon a morals charge, the local bureau of the Havas News Agency learns today. Von Cramm returned last Friday from a lengthy tour of the United States, Japan and Australia.

Members of his club, the Rot Weiss, denied that he was being detained by the police asserting that the German champion had suffered a slight attack of the heart upon returning home and was confined in a hospital.

No confirmation of his arrest could be obtained here today, although it is certain that he visited his family estate near Hannover immediately upon his arrival in Germany.

Kentucky Sees Derby Drawing Entry List Of 100

LOUISVILLE, Ky., Feb. 5—Although last year's class of three-year-olds has "graduated," Colonel Matt J. Winn promises folk he will have another array of stars on hand for the sixty-fourth running of the Kentucky Derby on May 7.

Such performers as War Admiral, Pompoon and Reaping Reward will be difficult to replace, but Colonel Winn, who has seen every Derby since the inaugural in 1875, is counting on such as Menow, two-year-old champion last year; Tiger, Teddy's Comet, Can't Wait, Bull Lea, Pit Bull and Fighting Fox to carry on.

This was disclosed today by Churchill Downs officials in an announcement which predicted more than 100 thoroughbreds would be named for the $50,000 added, mile and a quarter race this year. Nominations will close February 15. The list will be made public early next month.

The officials said Hal Price Headley would star Menow (it spells women in reverse) barring accident. Reports from Hialeah, Fla., are that Menow is being galloped, but his trainer is not yet satisfied that an old leg injury had entirely mended.

As for Milky Way Farm's Tiger, Menow's chief rival last year, Tom Young, track superintendent, said he had been advised the Bill Dog colt can step it off for "two miles all day if necessary."

Menow and Tiger have been installed as first and second choices, respectively, in the Derby Winter books. Strong support has been reported for Vadina Farm's Teddy's Comet, Myron Selznick's Can't Wait—both conditioning at Santa Anita—Warren Wright's Bull Lea, Alfred G. Vanderbilt's Pit Bull and Belair Stud's Fighting Fox. The latter is a full brother of Gallant Fox, 1930 Derby winner, and is attracting considerable attention.

Mrs. Vare Returns To Competitive Golf This Season

BELLEAIR, Fla., Feb. 3—Six National titles have failed to take the glamor out of golf for Glenna Collett Vare and she will be back this year trying for number seven.

Other sports have taken some of her interest during the 16 years since she won her first United States championship, but golf still is the Philadelphia player's first game. She is an expert marksman in skeet and trap shooting, though.

Mrs. Vare plans to spend the winter here perfecting her game. She said she would play in the Curtis Cup matches next Fall if invited to be a member of the American team.

Right now, she believes her shots fall short of the ability she had during her most active competitive days, principally because she has not played so much.

"I am not as steady now," Mrs. Vare said; but indicated she believed she could regain the old touch after more practice.

Asked to list the outstanding active players of today, she named Estelle Lawson Page, the present champion; Marion Miley, Patty Berg and Kathryn Hemphill. Several others, she said, are of almost equal caliber.

Mrs. Vare ranks Joyce Wethered, the English player, as the outstanding woman golfer of the twentieth century.

She said women's golf has improved in recent years, and advocates competitive play for youngsters because it stimulates their interest in the game.

Every Winter morning finds Mrs. Vare on the skeet field and the afternoon on the links. She also spends many hours with her children, Glenna, 5, and Edwin, Jr. She is the wife of Edwin H. Vare of Merion, Penna.

Mrs. Vare won the National championship in 1922, 1925, 1928, 1929, 1930, and 1935, being the only woman ever to capture it more than three times.

Iguro Places 3rd In Ski Jumping In Czechoslovakia

Domei Tsushin

PRAGUE, March 6—Masatsugu Iguro, Japan's leading ski jumper, captured third place in the ski jump at the opening of the Czech Winter ski carnival at Harrachov today. Bradel of Austria was first place winner.

Showing excellent form, Iguro took the first jump with a distance of 53 meters, while the second jump was 52 meters, amassing a total of 218.3 points. Bradel amassed 229.1 points. Tomizo Kikuchi, Japan's best jump and slalom artist, took 11th place with jumps of 45 and 40 meters.

Iguro placed seventh in the last Olympic Games at Garmisch-Partenkirchen.

Allais, Cranz Retain Titles

Domei Tsushin

ENGELBERT, Switzerland, March 6—Emile Allais, of France, and Miss Christel Cranz, of Germany, the meet's favorites, today retained their international titles in the men's and women's combined downhill-slalom events run on the second day of the International Ski competitions here. Both champions won their difficult events with comparative ease.

Although coming in second in the men's slalom, Allais won the combined downhill-slalom easily from a field of 18 strong competitors. Rudolf Hominger, who took first in the slalom, was second. The latter hails from Switzerland, while third place went to Hullmuth Lantschner, of Germany.

Miss Cranz, the young German female star who has captured virtually all the ski cup in Europe, was easily the star of the day. Although she was able to place only second in the downhill race yesterday she came back strong this afternoon to take first place in both the slalom and combined downhill-slalom races.

In the team competitions, German teams won first place in both the men's and women's divisions. Switzerland took second in both the men's and women's divisions, while third place in the men's divisions went to France and third place in the women's division to Norway. The United States placed only fourth in the women's team competitions while Britain was fifth.

25 Players Named As Candidates For Olympic Quintet

With the view to preparing for the 12th Olympic Games, the Japan Basketball Association Monday afternoon announced the selection of 10 additional players to the 15 who had been recently named as the outstanding players for 1937 as first candidates for the Japanese Olympic team. For 15 days beginning March 25, they will be quartered at the Nippon Seinenkaikan at Aoyama, and will train daily either at the Meiji Shrine Outer Gardens' court or at the National Gymnasium at Suidobashi.

Tentative plans of the Association call for further addition of promising players and elimination of those showing no improvement.

Selected as members of the coaching staff are Shinzo Ashida, Yasuzo Omura, Makoto Mihashi and Hidejiro Tanaka.

Eleven forwards, five centers and nine guards have been selected, including six players who competed at the last Olympic Games at Berlin in 1936.

O.O.C. Determined To Organize Games, Despite China War

The Olympic Organizing Committee will continue its determined efforts to organize the 12th Olympic Games in 1940, it was indicated this morning, notwithstanding the statement by War Minister General Sugiyama at the Diet Monday that the Games should be abandoned unless the hostilities in China are brought to a settlement before 1940.

Some uneasiness, however, has been felt because General Sugiyama's remarks have come at a time when the meeting of the International Olympic Committee is to be held at Cairo in the next few days. For at this meeting, there is nothing to prevent the delegates from transferring the venue of the Games away from Tokyo.

The O. O. C. has interpreted General Sugiyama's statement as a tacit approval of preparation for the facilities so long as the situation in China is not worsened. And in this respect, it is hoped that the hostilities will have been brought to an end before 1940.

Meanwhile the O. O. C. is rushing plans for the construction of the facilities.

The O. O. C. at a special meeting Monday afternoon formally decided to construct the Olympic pool, seating 30,000, outside of the Meiji Shrine Outer Gardens at a cost of ¥1,200,000, including cost of land.

Reich Merman Breaks European Record For 500 M. Breaststroke

Domei Tsushin

BERLIN, March 6—Clipping four full seconds from the mark held by the Danish swimmer F. Jensen, the German Olympic swimmer, Joachim Balke, today broke the European record for the 500-meter breaststroke. Balke's time was 7 minutes 26.7 seconds while the former record was 7 minutes 30.7 seconds. The world record is held by R. Kaye of the United States at 7 minutes 23.8 seconds.

The German relay team also established a new European mark for the 400-meter relay by covering the ditsance in 4 minutes 3.6 seconds. The mark was previously held by the Hungarian team at 4 minutes 6.6 seconds.

McGill Routs Queens By 10-1

MONTREAL, Feb. 5—Sparked by Russ McConnell, who scored five goals, unbeaten McGill University swamped Queens University, 10 to 1, in an International Intercollegiate Hockey League game today, taking undisputed possession of first place and dropping Queens into second position.

McConnell scored once each in the first and second periods and then went on a spree with three goals in the third session, during which McGill tallied six times.

Pidcock and Crutchfield, McConnell's mates on the McGill front line, scored twice each.

The line-up:

Pos.	McGill (10)	Queens (1)
G.	Tennant	McEwen
R.D.	Dickson	McInnis
L.W.	Dunn	Miller
C.	Crutchfield	Munro

Castle Of Emptiness

Overlooking the swanky Malibu Beach colony, on the seaward side of the Santa Monica mountains of Southern California, stands a beautiful mansion of 70 spacious rooms, reputed to have cost more than a million dollars, yet no one has ever lived in it. No one knows a great deal about this castle, as it is called locally, but it is known to have been built by a devoted widow as a monument of sentiment to her departed husband, who, in life, expressed a desire for a beautiful home on this particular eminence. Financial difficulties prevented completion of the mansion in every detail, but rather than suffer it to be occupied by strangers, she has left it alone—a dream castle of emptiness.

Court Clerk Never Saw A Trial

Miss Estelle Folk's desk is on the second floor of the criminal courts building in Houston, Texas, not 20 paces from the two criminal district courts. She has handled thousands of legal documents dealing with every crime in the calendar, and the voices of attorneys, pleading their cases before judges and juries, beat against her eardrums day in and day out. Yet in all those 20 years Miss Folk has never witnessed a trial.

Sugiyama's Statement On Olympics Causes Sensation In America

Domei Tsushin

NEW YORK, March 7—Reports of announcement by General Gen Sugiyama, Japanese War Minister, before the Diet that Japan may renounce the right to stage the next Olympic Games unless the current Far Eastern conflict is completely settled by that time, were received with obvious disappointment in pro-Japanese sporting circles here today.

It was opined in the same circles that the Japanese War Minister's declaration may discourage America's preparations for organization of an athletic expedition to be sent to Tokyo in 1940.

Some quarters said that they are unable to understand why the Japanese themselves should pronounce the possibility of abandoning an excellent chance to restore international friendly sentiment. Other observers declared that affairs in the sportsdom should be decided autonomously within the sporting circles, pointing out that too many commitment by government leaders tend to give the impression that the Japanese Government is sponsoring the Olympic Games which should be outside politics.

Delegates With Open Minds

Domei Tsushin

LONDON, March 7—Most of the European delegates who will attend the forthcoming meeting of the International Olympic Committee scheduled to open next Thursday at Cairo will go with "open minds," a Europe-wide survey revealed today.

Lord Aberdare, British delegate, left for Cairo today. Before leaving, he expressed his intention of opposing the Tokyo Games if the occasion arose. He however said, "The fact that Japan herself is wondering whether she is able to hold the games makes the position of the I.O.C. difficult.

"Just the same," Lord Aberdare added, "it is Japan's privilege to keep the games if she wants them."

Japanese sources here, meanwhile, revealed that Japan is waiting to see developments at the Cairo meeting before issuing invitations. They added that if opposition is not too great, the invitations, which are already printed, will be mailed.

Well-informed sports circles in Rome, meanwhile, revealed that Italy will send a neutral delegation to Cairo. They said that suggestions that Japan might voluntarily relinquish the 1940 Games to Italy won't be welcomed here since Italy wants full time to prepare for the Games.

These circles added morever, that if Japan freely relinquishes the Games, Italy would be pleased to see the Games go to some smaller nation somewhere in Europe.

Reports from Berlin disclosed that the German delegation opined that the fate of the 1940 Games is "up to Japan." They are reported to have added that they intend to go to Cairo with "open minds."

From Lisbon, reports indicated that the Portuguese Olympic Committeemen have announced that they are in favor of holding the 1940 Games in Tokyo. However, they declared that they were prepared to accept any decisions reached at Cairo.

Kano Declares Japan Determined To Hold 1940 Olympic Games

Domei Tsushin

ALEXANDRIA, March 7—Japan's determination to organize the 1940 Olympics despite reports from Tokyo that some ministers of the Japanese Government declared she may renounce the right to stage the Games, was strongly emphasized by Jigoro Kano, Japanese member of the International Olympic Committee, who arrived here today en route to Cairo to attend the plenary session of the I.O.C. opening Thursday as chief Japanese delegate.

Interviewed by newspaper reporters immediately after his arrival here, Mr. Kano refused to give credence to reports that some members of the Japanese Cabinet told the Diet Japan may abandon the 1940 Olympics.

"I don't see any reason for anyone to say anything about abandoning the games," he said. "War in China is nothing to do with sports."

The Japanese Diet, he added, approved the appropriations for the organization of the Tokyo Olympiad a long time ago.

Columbia Loses Swimming To Yale, 48 To 27

N.Y. Herald Tribune

NEW YORK, Feb. 26—Yale's swimming team defeated Columbia, 48 to 27, last night after the Lions had remained within reach of the Blue until the last two races. Yale, runners-up in the Eastern Intercollegiate League last year, scored its fifth successive victory in the Lion's pool.

Led by Captain John Macionis, outstanding Olympic free style swimmer, Yale won six of the nine meets. Columbia broke two university records, scoring decisively in the 300-yard medley relay and the 200-yard breast stroke. Alston Jennings swam the 50-yard sprint in twenty-five seconds for the Lion's third victory.

Macionis, with individual triumphs in the 100-yard and 220-yard free style events, was the most spectacular performer, while Justin Calahan led the Lions with a record-breaking victory in the 200-yard breast stroke. Macionis was pressed in both of his victories, in the 220 by his teammate, Peter Brueckel, and in the 100 by John Vergeichik, Lion star who recently became eligible for intercollegiate competition.

Macionis was particularly impressive in the 400-yard relay, in which he sprinted a brilliant anchor leg and won the race by a yard over Vergeichik.

Callahan easily outdistanced his opponents in the breast stroke and finished almost a lap ahead of Barry Anthony, his most serious contender. He also was instrumental in the Lion's 300-yard relay victory. Starting with a two-yard deficiency on the second leg, Callahan overtook Newt Steers and gave Columbia a good lead, paving the way for a record-breaking 3:03.8 performance.

Danny Endweiss, Yale diver won handily over Jack Keating, Columbia sophomore. Endweiss's total, 116.87 points, was enhanced substantially by his optional dives.

The summaries:

300-yard medley relay—Won by Columbia (Tom Finnerty, Justin Callahan, Reville Fox); Yale, Joe Burns, Newton Steers, Russell Duncan), second. Time, 3:03.8 (new Columbia record; old record, 3:07.3, set by Finnerty, Callahan and Fox in 1937).

220-yard free style—Won by John Macionis, Yale; Brueckel, Yale, second; Stephen Stavers, Columbia, third. Time, 2:24.4.

Fancy dive—Won by Daniel Endeiss, Yale, 116.87 points; Jack Keating, Columbia, 90.57, second; Tom [illegible], Yale, 88.40, third.

100-yard free style—Won by John Macionis, Yale; John Vergeichik, Columbia, second; John Good, Yale, third. Time, 0:53.2.

150-yard back stroke—Won by Joe Burns, Yale; John Brueckel, Yale, second; Tom Finnerty, Columbia, third. Time, 1:41.4.

200-yard breast stroke—Won by Justin Callahan, Columbia; Barry Anthony, Yale, second; Harvey Vansardt, Yale, third. Time, 2:29 (new Columbia record; old record, 2:31.2, set by Callahan in 1937).

440-yard free style—Won by John Brueckel, Yale; Howard Spendelow, Yale, second; Maurice Peltras, Columbia, third. Time, 5:16.2.

Yale's Swimmers Beat Army, 58-17

N.Y. Times

NEW HAVEN, Conn., Feb. 12—Yale's 58-to-17 victory over the Army swimming team today was featured by the creation of two new Yale records, both by Joe Burns of the Eli squad.

In the 100-yard back-stroke leg of the 300-yard medley race, Burns covered the distance in 60.1 seconds. He captured the 150-yard backstroke event in 1:38.2, clipping his own mark of 1:38.6.

Captain Bill Fite of the Army took the 200-yard breast-stroke race in 2:38.5. Johnny Good of Yale was individual high scorer, annexing the 50-yard free style in 0:24.6 and the 100-yard event in 0:59.2

In defeating Lawrenceville Academy, 41 to 25, the Yale freshmen natators set a new class record in the 150-yard team medley event of 1:24.1. The previous mark was 1:24.6.

Shea, Metcalfe and Cooke easily beat Woods, Harris and Murdock in lowering the figures. The visiting swimmers took the 200-yard relay in which Burton, Doyle, Pilling and Rosenberg made the fast time of 1:40.9. In the 50-yard sprint Gillette Burton of Lawrenceville scored in 0:25.1.

The Army boxers defeated Yale by 5 to 3. Cadet Lavendusky won from Fasanella, Yale 115-pounder, on a technical knockout. Captain Deering Danielson of Yale outpointed Sternberg in the 175-pound bout. Israel of the Army won as the referee stopped his bout with Bob Smith in the unlimited weight event. Smith weakened in the third round.

O.O.C. Reiterates Intent To Stage Games In Tokyo

A number of foreign correspondents were requested by the Olympic Organizing Committee to a conference Tuesday night at the Sanno Hotel at Akasaka to hear its explanation on statements made Monday afternoon by War Minister Sugiyama and Home Minister Suyetsugu that the 12th Olympic Games should be abandoned unless the China Incident is settled before 1940. It was called by the O.O.C. to correct obvious misundersatnding abroad of the two statements. The O.O.C. itself had considered them optimistic.

Dr. Hiroshi Shimomura, a vice-chairman of the O. O. C., reiterated the committee's firm determination to hold the Games. He pointed out that the appropriation for the Games had been passed by the Diet and that the Tokyo Municipality was scheduled to approve its portion of the expenditures today. Preparations are actually being pushed steadily and there is no reason to believe that the public and governmental circles are opposed to the organization of the Games, he said.

Dr. Itsutaro Suchiro, president of the Japan Swimming Federation and a member of the O. O. C., declared that the opinion of Ichiro Kono, Seiyukai member, who posed the question at the Diet, is his own and is not subscribed to by all members of the Seiyukai. He cited the growth of late of an anti-internationalistic ideology in Japan and it was on the wave of such thoughts that Mr. Kono's question was asked if it would not be better to abandon the Games because of the China Incident. He declared that the greater part of the masses is keenly desirous of staging the 12th Olympic Games in Tokyo.

Mr. Kono is chairman of the Kanagawa Track and Field Federation which created a furore several months ago by adopting a resolution for abandonment of the 1940 Games, shortly after the Imperial Army's decision not to compete in the Olympic equestrian events. The resolution was presented to the Japan Amateur Track and Field Federation but rejected.

Penn Subdues Dartmouth On Court; 40 To 38

PHILADELPHIA, Feb. 5—An in-and-out Pennsylvania quintet rose to the heights tonight to defeat Dartmouth, 40 to 38, after two extra periods in an Easern Collegiate Basketball League game. It was Dartmouth's first league defeat

A near-sighted sophomore from Pottstown, Pa., Jerry Seeders, won the game for Penn in the last minute of the second overtime period. Seeders, who says he can only see the basket as a "blur," rimmed a sidecourt shot to break a 38-to-38 tie.

Dartmouth, trailing by six points, came from behind in the last five minutes of the regulation game to deadlock the score at 34-to-34.

In the first extra period Batchelder put Dartmouth ahead, but Penn tied the score again on Roy Menzel's one-handed heave.

Bob Dougherty sank a long shot to put Penn ahead in the second extra period, but Batchelder came back with one for Dartmouth to set the stage for Seeders's winning basket

Next Plant Planned

OSAKA, March 8—In view of the steadily increasing demand for domestic-made machine tools, the Ishii Machine Works will organize a ¥2,000,000 machine tool manufacturing plant here shortly.

Upon receiving formal permission from authorities for erection of the plant, Ishii interests will rush completion. Products of the proposed plant will be sold through the Ishii Shoji-Kaisha.

The principal product of the plant, as planned so far, will be planomillers, the demand for which is becoming more and more pronounced.

Olympic Pool, Village To Be Constructed In Komazawa District

The decision of the Tokyo Olympic Organizing Committee to construct the Olympic swimming pool and village at Komazawa, in the suburbs to the west of Tokyo center, was to be presented formally to the Olympic Committee of the Municipality today so that work can be started as soon as possible.

According to plans approved by the O.O.C., the pool site is at the southeastern side of the golf links and would cost ¥1,300,000, including cost of land. It would be 50 meters long 20 meters wide for the speed events, with a diving pit of 20 meters square. Seating capacity would be 30,000.

The Olympic village would be constructed at premises of 50,000 tsubo about 400 meters away from the pool, at a total cost of ¥1,500,000.

Boudreau Case Brings Protest From Griffith

CHICAGO, Feb. 3—Revelation that Louis Boudreau, University of Illinois basketball captain, had been suspended from athletics for verbally agreeing to sign with the Cleveland baseball club and for permitting the club to send $100 monthly checks to his mother, struck Western Conference athletic officials like a bombshell today.

The suspension prompted John L. Griffith, commissioner of athletics of the Conference, to make a sharply worded protest against major league clubs "enticing" college players before their graduation, and led other Big Ten officials to speculate as to the existence of similar cases.

Reinstatement Possible

Boudreau's ineligibility ruling by the Western Conference faculty committee stunned the Illinois campus at Champaign. The ruling, however, provided that he might be reinstated next Fall provided he severs connection with professional athletics. Boudreau was reported to have directed the Cleveland club to stop remitting money to his mother, who lives in Harvey, Ill. Being a junior, he has another year of competition.

The young athlete professed not knowing he was violating any Conference rule and declared the committee's ruling was a shock to him. As a forward, Boudreau played a stellar role in helping Illini gain a tie with Minnesota for the Conference championship last year. He scored 44 points this year to be tied for ninth place among Big Ten sharpshooters. In his first year on the team, he was chosen on numerous all-Conference squads.

In baseball, Boudreau was rated as a sparkling third baseman, a natural hitter, and a strong factor in Illinois' drive to the Big Ten championship.

Big League Practice

Commissioner Griffith deplored attempts by major league clubs to get college stars before their graduation. He said the major leaguers do not enter into signed agreements with collegians, but negotiate with their parents, even to the extent of offering money as "loans."

"I wish the major leagues would invoke legislation to prohibit the tampering with college players until their college careers are finished," Commissioner Griffith said. "The National Professional Football League has such an agreement in regard to football stars. It costs the colleges of America $250,000 a year to support baseball as a losing intercollegiate sport. It is a shame to have our players enticed. They should be left alone and given an opportunity to participate in their favorite athletics while in school. After all, they are just boys and are easily led."

Neither Kenesaw Mountain Landis, commissioner of baseball, nor William Harridge, president of the American League, had any comment to make. Landis said he had no official record of the transaction. Harridge declared that any comment from American League sources would be restricted to that which officials of the Cleveland club might choose to make.

Harvard Clips Relay Record In Swim Meet

Herald Tribune

CAMBRIDGE, Mass., Feb. 12—Breaking its own 440-yard relay record and winning eight out of nine first places, Harvard's varsity team captured its second Eastern Intercollegiate Swimming League meet of the season by defeating Columbia, 54 to 21, in the Crimson pool tonight. The Harvard quartet shaved two-tenths of a second off its 400-yard relay mark in winning the final event on the program by eight lengths in 3:36.5. George Cummin, ace backstroker, broke his own and the Harvard record for the 150-yard backstroke. Winning as he pleased, Cummin was clocked in 1:37.3, three-tenths of a second faster than his former mark.

The triumph was the eighteenth in a row for a Harvard varsity. Harvard's freshmen beat Exeter, 41 to 25, in a preliminary meeting.

Robert G. Allman, blind University of Pennsylvania wrestler, led the Penn varsity wrestlers to victory over Harvard, 19 to 9, in the afternoon. Allman threw Ross, of Harvard, in 7:25. In a preliminary meeting Harvard's freshman team scored a 16-to-14 victory over Andover.

Andover won in basketball from the Harvard freshman five, 20 to 16. Andover didn't register a floor goal until the last minute of the first half.

The summaries:

20 Countries Represented At I.O.C. Meet At Cairo; 'We're Ready,' Says Kano

A total of 27 delegates representing 20 countries will participate in the congress of the International Olympic Committee beginning today at Cairo, when the fate of the 12th Olympic Games and the Fifth Winter Olympic Games, both in 1940, will be decided so far as Tokyo and Sapporo are concerned.

Dr. Matsuzo Nagai, secretary-general of the Tokyo Olympic Organizing Committee, and his party or a total of 10 persons, have been allowed to sit at the general sessions, according to a Domei dispatch received from Cairo.

Delegates of the various countries are accompanied by their wives, daughters and sons, and there is a brilliant social atmosphere in connection with the congress, the Domei dispatch said.

In a press interview at Cairo, Prof. Jigoro Kano, head of the Japanese delegation, declared that he and his colleagues were fully prepared to present and defend Japan's case. To the apprehension voiced of slow work toward preparation of facilities, he referred to the reconstruction work of Tokyo after the great earthquake and fire of 1923 and said there should be no trouble at all in completing the necessary arrangements. He scoffed at reports that the China Incident might be cause for the abandonment of the Games.

The countries represented at the I. O. C. meeting follow:

Austria, Belgium, Bulgaria, Czechoslovakia, Egypt, Finland, France, England, Germany, Greece, Hungary, Ireland, Italy, Japan, New Zealand, Norway, Peru, Poland, Sweden and the United States.

Mayor Sends Message

Ichita Kobashi, Mayor of Tokyo, Wednesday sent the following message to Count Henri Baillet-Latour, chairman of the International Olympic Committee, at Cairo.

"I am much honored in extending my highest esteem to the president and members of the I. O. C. on the auspicious occasion at the opening of the splendid I. O. C. congress.

"It is great happiness and pleasure that we have the 12th Olympiad in 1940 which falls on the 2600th anniversary of the foundation of Japanese Empire and we are striving in every possible way to make this grand occasion a wonderful success.

"I earnestly hope and in fact I firmly believe that through your sympathy and cooperation, the XIIth Olympiad will be a glorious success."

Kano Reaches Cairo

Domei Tsushin

CAIRO, March 8—In order to attend the 35th plenary session of the International Olympic Committee opening here Thursday, Professor Jigoro Kano, member of the I.O.C. and chief of the Japanese delegation, arrived from Alexandria at 3:05 p.m. today. He was greeted by Dr. Matsuzo Nagai, another Japanese delegate and general-secretary of the Japanese Olympic Organizing Committee, and other members of the Japanese delegation.

Sawada Explains Japan's Stand

Domei Tsushin

NEW YORK, March 8—Anxious to dispel any misunderstandings which may have been created by the reported announcement by General Gen Sugiyama, Japanese War Minister, that Japan may renounce the right to stage the 1940 Olympiad, Ichiro Sawada, representative in New York of the Japanese Amateur Athletic Association, today sent a letter to Frederick Rubien, secretary of the American Olympic Association, clarifying Japan's stand vis-a-vi the question.

The Japanese Olympic Organizing Committee, Mr. Sawada wrote, is doing its utmost to make preparations for the 1940 Games. He emphasized that his knowledge of Japanese sportsdom tends to minimize the apprehensions created abroad by General Sugiyama's statement.

Calling up Daniel Ferris, honorary secretary of the American Olympic Association, on the telephone for similar purposes, Mr. Sawada reassured the latter that Japan will stage the Olympics despite misleading reports from Tokyo.

In a previous interview with the press, Mr. Ferris declared that American support of the Tokyo Olympic Games might be weakened unless suspicions abroad are quickly and thoroughly wiped out.

Arsenal Defeated In Cup Upset, 1-0

LONDON, Feb. 12 (Canadian Press),—Arsenal and Middlesbrough, famous cup-fighting teams, will not be among the eight teams that go into the sixth round of the English Cup soccer competition. In smashing upsets today, Preston North End scored a 1-0 victory over the Gunners at Highbury and York City, plucky third division squad, playing before a record home crowd, eliminated Middlesbrough, also by 1—0.

The contests provided the only surprises of the round which produced two drawn games and left five first-division teams in the running. Charlton Athletic and Aston Villa drew, 1-1, in London, while the Tottenham Hotspurs were held to a 2-2 deadlock at Chesterfield.

Manchester City Victor

In other cup ties, Manchester City triumphed, 2—1, at Luton; Huddersfield Town, also away from home, downed Liverpool, 1—0, and Sundnerland, cup holder, passed into the sixth round with a 1-0 victory over Bradford. Brentford, league leader, overcame Manchester United 2—0.

The eight matches attracted 368,827 spectators who paid £28,883 ($144,415) at the turnstiles. Ground records were created at Charlton and York.

League schedules were abbreviated owing to cup activities, but Leeds United's 1-0 success over West Bromwich Albion sent the Yorkshiremen into third place in the first division, behind Brentford and the Wolverhampton Wanderers.

McDougal Beats Old Team

Ironically enough it was McDougal, a former gunner, who gave Preston its victory over the Londoners, 9-2 favorites to capture the trophy this season.

Hanada To Take On Kongo Over 10 Rds. In Bout On Mar. 15

One of the best fights in months is in store for boxing fans with Yoichiro Hanada, flyweight champion of Japan, matched to fight Iwao Kongo, ace pupil of Kintaro Usuda, one of the country's first boxers to win fame at the Olympic Games, next Tuesday night at the Hibiya Public Hall auditorium over 10 rounds. The title will not be at stake.

The crux of the situation will be whether Hanada with his clever footwork and fast counter punches will be able to turn the trick over the rushing Kongo, who never back pedals in a fight.

Takashi Sasazaki of the Nippon Boxing Club will mix gloves with Kotaro Suzuki of the Teikoku Boxing Club in the other 10 rounder of the double main event.

There will be five four round preliminaries on the card.

Johnson Runs 60-Yd. Event In 6 Secs. Flat

By ARTHUR J. DALEY

N.Y. Times

NEW YORK, Feb. 7—American sprinters always have been the fastest in the world and sprint records have been hammered down so far by constant pounding that only a superman can break one of them these days—tie them, yes, but break them, never. Never? Well, hardly ever.

Yet the impossible happened at the magnificent Millrose carnival in Madison Square Garden on Saturday. For some fifteen years the world's best have been sniping away at the 60-yard indoor record of 0:06.2. Pause for a moment, if you will, and take a look at the cyclone brigade that has done the sniping—Jesse Owens, Eddie Tolan, Percy Williams (all three Olympic champions), Ralph Metcalfe, Eulace Peacock, Loren Murchison, Emmett Toppino, Jack Elder, Chet Bowman and all the rest.

None of them ever beat those 6.2 figures. That makes the feat of little Ben Johnson at the Garden all the more astounding. The Columbia Comet slammed down the straightaway to touch 6.2 in his first heat. Then he flashed over the boards in 6.1 in the semi-final and topped it all with 6 seconds flat in the final.

Writers Also Impressed

The capacity crowd of more than 16,000 went wild at these exploits. Equally impressed, apparently, was the jury of eight sportswriters who had been named to pick the winner of the Rodman Wanamaker International Trophy that goes to the outstanding performer of the meet.

For little Ben was the winner with 29½ points, while both Jim Herbert, victor in the Millrose 600 and anchor man on the fast N. Y. U. relay team, and Glenn Cunningham, triumphant once again in a 4:11 mile, tied for second at 18 points. Forrest (Spec) Towns, Georgia's Olympic champion and a record-breaker himself Saturday night, was fourth with 6½ points.

The tabulation was made on a 5—3—1 basis and Johnson had five first places while Herbert received the other three. This writer picked the Lion Negro without any hesitation. That 6 seconds alone was sufficient, a bit of running that is as close to perfection as any one can attain.

Joins a Select Group

And so Johnson moves into the select company of Paavo Nurmi, Charlie Hoff, Paul Harrington, Dr. Otto Peltzer, Ray Conger, Miss Stella Walsh, George Spitz, Gene Venzke, Cunningham, Chuck Hornbostel, Hornbostel again, Joe Mangan and Sueo Ohe of Japan.

The award is meritel. Man never ran faster than Johnson did on Saturday. Owens once unreeled 6.1 on a dirt runway. Metcalfe duplicated that with the use of starting blocks. Yet the Columbia Comet, without artificial aids, was a tenth of a second faster. Hail to the newest "world's fastest human."

The Millrose carnival, as a whole, was one of the best track meets ever staged anywhere. Director Fred Schmertz deserves a polite bow and a vote of thanks for the series of thrilling races he lined up. The meet's lone paradox was that the featured Wanamaker Mile was the dullest test on the program. That man Cunningham is just too good.

Board floor splinters: The first quarter in the two-mile run was covered in sixty-two seconds. . . . The first quarter in the mile run was covered in sixty-three seconds . . . The first was too fast and the second too slow, so that the Cunningham victory was achieved in 4:11 and the Don Lash triumph in 9:06. . . . . Each could have been several seconds speedier had the contestants wanted to make it that way. . . . What looks like a profitable parlay would be to bet that Galloping Glenn will win every mile race this season.

In the handicap club relay race Archie San Romani, essaying to run a quarter, was badly spiked in the right ankle, and probably is out of the Seventh Regiment meet on Friday and the Boston A. A. games on Saturday. . . . San Romani ran his quarter in spite of his injury, and handed the baton to Cunningham before toppling over on the track, his shoe filled with blood. . . . The way Cunningham traveled on his 440-yard leg showed why he is kind of the milers. . . . He has too much speed in a short dash.

Great Job by Herbert

The relay performances were amazing. . . . The North Texas "twin team" of Delmer and Elmer Brown and Wayne and Blaine Rideout set a new world medley record of 7:27.5. . . . Four schoolboys from De La Salle ripped off 3:22.8 for the mile while eyes of track fans popped in amazement. . . . . Then a Manhattan foursome ran the fastest mile ever turned in in the Garden, 3:20.4, only to have an N. Y. U. combination beat it with 3:20.2 a few minutes later. . . . . Herbert anchored the Violet quartet with an 0:48.4 job, more than a second under the world indoor 440-yard record.

Towns and Allan Tolmich did some record-cracking of their own in the 60-yard high hurdles. . . . Each equaled the universal mark of 0.07.5 and each broke it with 0:07.4, Towns twice and Tolmich once. . . . Two sons of Olympic champions anchored relay teams, Ted Meredith Jr. for Mercersburg and Jim Lightbody Jr. for Harvard. . . . Fordham's crack two-mile and one-mile relay teams met with disaster. . . . The lead-off two-miler fell and the second one-miler was pushed off the track.

Tokyo Has Pushed Figure Skating More Than U.S.

By JAMES A. RABBITT

President, The International Skating Club of Tokyo and Yokohama

A figure skating craze was spread over America during the past two years like roller skating did in the gay nineties, but the "figures" are higher. According to "Sports Illustrated," a million people pay $2,000,000 to see Henie, Vinson and Brunner, and 30,000 pairs of skates are now sold annually for $500,000.

There are 50 affiliated member clubs in the National Figure Skating Association and one outstanding woman professional may earn $50,000 in one season.

Tokyo Ahead of U. S.

Tokyo has been ahead of the United States in popularizing this glorious sport during the past thirteen years.

In 1925, Viscount Katano, Mr. A. Elked, and several others, started the Tokyo Skating Club, devoted solely to figure skating, which has developed some of the finest skaters in the country including Mr. Kaneko, Miss Hirooka and Miss Mizoguchi in the older days, and later Miss Togo and, more recently, Miss Tezuka, Miss Suzuki and Miss Elked. This club was the trunk from which the various university clubs branched from figure skating into speed skating and hockey.

Later, in 1930, Mr. Elked organized a skating club in Yokohama for the foreigners which met at Tsurumi but which was more or less superseded by the International Skating Club organized in Tokyo in 1932.

This club is rather unique insofar as it includes members of all nationalities and has no permanent set-up, but is revived yearly by any public-spirited person who is willing to underwrite the rink at Shibaura for 20 nights.

The International Skating Club has been very successful, averaging 200 members yearly who pay ¥200 a night for the rink plus incidental expenses. During the last two years, children have been admitted as junior members, skating from 8 to 10 and this has formed practically the only recreation in Tokyo where parents and their children have been able to join in a common sport.

The song of the man on the flying trapeze—flying through the air with the greatest of ease—is more than typical of the fair figure skater. There is an exhilaration similar to flying for the skater and a feeling of participation to the onlooker which is fascinating. The fact that one never knows the next move or complicated but rhythmic gyration that a figure skater will make is one of the numerous thrills for the observer.

Thrill From Ease Seen

There is also the thrill from the ease with which the performer seems to accomplish the most complex figures—an ease which makes the spectator think he might really learn to imitate such revolutions.

On Friday of this week there is to be a Sports' Night at the Shibaura Rink, sponsored by the International Skating Club of Tokyo and Yokohama and it will be a treat to those who have followed this exhilarating pastime.

Davis Cuppers To Play In Farewell Matches Sunday At Denyenchofu

Davis Cuppers Jiro Yamagishi, Fumiteru Nakano and Tamio Abe will appear in a farewell exhibition Sunday afternoon at the Denyen courts, beginning at 1 o'clock. The affair will also serve as a welcome to Takeo Matsumoto of Hosei University and Yasuo Tsuruta of Keio, who returned recently after winning the singles and doubles titles at the Philippines All-Comers tournament at Manila.

The other member of this year's Davis Cup team, Yasumine Kuramitsu of Kansai University, will be unable to make an appearance because of examinations.

Following the matches, a farewell reception will be held at the Marunouchi Kaikan at 6 p.m. The public is invited. The fee will be 3 yen each. Students will be charged ¥1.50.

In the singles, Nakano and Yamagishi will take on Tsuruta and Matsumoto respectively. In the doubles, Yamagishi and Reizo Murakami of Keio will meet Abe and Kawachi of the Tomon Club, while Yamagishi and Nakano, Davis Cup team, will take on Matsumoto and Tsuruta.

Iowa Is Again Strong In Four Track Events

Christian Science Monitor

IOWA CITY, Iowa, Feb. 1—The words "team championship" are not in the 1938 vocabulary of track experts who speak of the University of Iowa's prospects in Big Ten title competition.

"We will have another strong dual-meet team and one which is a possibility for a first-division Big Ten ranking, but prospects now are just fair," said Coach George Bresnahan as he prepares the squad for the heaviest indoor schedule in years.

The veteran Hawkeye coach, starting his eighteenth year, has developed two Olympic champions, nineteen Big Ten titlists, and five National Collegiate winners. Two conference indoor team titles, high places in NCAA meets, and state honors have been won by Iowans of the past.

Strong in Usual Events

It's axiomatic for Iowa to be strong in the sprints hurdles, middle-distance races, and relays. And for 1938 there is strength in these events.

But it likewise is customary in recent years for the Hawks to be mediocre or downright weak in the high jump and pole vault and with only ordinary strength in the mile, two-mile, broad jump, and shotput.

Thirteen lettermen whose events are on the curtailed indoor program have more competition remaining, there are six minor lettermen with experience; but the sophomore class contains no potential champions and only a few likely average point-winners.

Co-Capt. Bush Lamb of Newton will handle the high hurdles and shows promise of near-title form. He can high jump, too, and in the Spring will try to win another Big Ten javelin title. His partner in leadership, James Lyle of Des Moines, is a 1m. 54.5s. half-miler, good for 4m. 28s. in the mile, and can run a fast quarter in the mile relay if necessary.

Distance Men Return

That tradition of speed in the quarter and half will be carried on by such veterans as Milton Billig of Brooklyn, N. Y., holder of the state record of 48.3s., Fred and Carl Teufel, Davenport twins who can hurdle and sprint as well as run quarters; Eliot Waples of Cedar Rapids, a star relay lead-off man; John Graves, state record-holder at 1m. 54.1s. in the half-mile; and Orval Matteson, senior quarter-miler.

Points in the distance runs will be sought after by Robert Nelson of Oskaloosa, who has run 9m. 47s. in the two-mile; Cameron Campbell of Iowa City, state outdoor two-mile champion; and John Schmidt of Ottumwa.

Other major "I" men are Floyd DeHeer of Oskaloosa, who has put the shot over 48 feet; and Homer Harris of Seattle, Wash., a 44-ft. shotputter and 5ft. 10in. high jumper.

The minor letter men include Vincent Finazzo of St. Louis, Mo., jumps; Dale Roberts of Villisca, pole vault, Fred Lindenmeyer of West Chester, high jump; Howard Ely of Guthrie Center, pole vault; Donald Purvis of Grundy Center, mile; and Ed Wiggins, Omaha, Neb., sprints.

In the ranks of the recruits are such men as John Collinge of Chicago, Ill., hurdler; James Barron of Iowa City, half and mile; Robert Cowan of Waterloo, sprints; Edward Elliott of Ft. Madison, mile; Dean Dort of Davenport, low hurdles and broad jump; Arthur Moeller of Ft. Dodge, quarter; and Paul Rapoport of Cedar Rapids, sprints.

Mickey Cochrane Predicts Rookies To Decide Winner

LAKELAND, Fla., Feb. 5—Manager Mickey Cochrane said recently his Detroit Tigers and the New York Yankees had corralled the best rookies coming up into the American League this year. A close pennant fight may be decided, he predicted, by the way the new men turn out.

"New York got two or three promising pitchers from Newark," Cochrane declared, "and also this boy Flash Gordon, who is slated to take Tony Lazzeri's place at second base. The Yanks also are counting heavily on Tom Henrich, the outfielder who was one of the best rookie finds in 1937.

"We're digging for rookie gold, too, and have several fine prospects. If they come through as we hope, our club will be considerably stronger than it was last year."

Cochrane, his wife, and their two children, Gordon Stanley, Jr., and Joan, came here from Detroit and plan to stay until the Tigers break their training camp about April 10.

The erstwhile catcher lists two pitchers with previous major league experience among Detroit's "A-1 prospects."

"They are Al Benton, who used to be with the Athletics, and Harry Eisenstat, former Brooklyn Dodger," he said. "Benton, who lost out with the A's because of an arm injury, came back strong with Memphis last year and had a swell earned run average.

"Eisenstat comes up from Louisville. He showed more stuff there than his record of eight wins and nine losses would indicate."

Cochrane, who broke up his infield that won the World Series in 1935 when he sent Marvin Owen to Chicago along with Gerald Walker in a trade for Pitcher Vernon Kennedy and Outfielder Dixie Walker, has high hopes a 21-year-old youngster, Mark Christman of Beaumont, will fill the third base gap.

"Christman has the highest recommendations of the Tiger scouts, and his record is very impressive," the manager said. "He hit well and ran the catchers of the Texas League ragged stealing bases. Why, he had a record of 47 stolen bases in 50 tries.

"If he can make good, it looks as if the infield will be set with Hank Greenberg on first, Charley Gehringer on second and Bill Rogell at short.

"Frank Croucher of Toledo will be up trying to edge out Rogell, but of course, Bill will have the inside track until the rookie shows plenty of stuff."

Cochrane gives only one new player any kind of chance to crash the outfield. He is Roy Cullenbine, who played with Toledo last year and can handle either left or center field.

The chances are he will battle Jo Jo White and Chet Laabs for a place in the outer garden alongside Pete Fox and Dixie Walker.

Sophomore Rudy York will get first call behind the plate because of his heavy hitting, Cochrane said, but Tebbetts, another second-year man, and the veteran Ray Hayworth will be on hand to lend assistance.

"BELIEVE IT OR NOT" --by Ripley

The Father Of 25 Colonels

Jacques de Thiers (1630-1747) of Puy-de-Dome, France, was the father of 25 sons and one daughter. Each son became a colonel in the French Army. The 25 Colonels Thiers each commanded a French regiment at the battle of Fleurus, Belgium, on July 1, 1690, when 35,000 Frenchmen defeated 70,000 Dutch-Germans. After the battle, the French Commander, the Duke of Luxembourg, addressed a letter to King Louis XIV of France, in which he commented warmly on "the bravery of the French army, a large part of which was led by the 25 Thiers brothers, sons of the gentleman Jacques de Thiers." The sturdy father of 25 colonels lived to the age of 117.

Kano Warns I.O.C. Against Shifting Venue Of Games

Domei Tsushin

CAIRO, March 9—The belief that any motion to shift the 1940 Olympic Games from Tokyo elsewhere will eventually be defeated was expressed by qualified observers here tonight on the eve of the opening of the 35th session of the International Olympic Committee.

Even the I.O.C., they pointed out, is not entitled to transfer the venue of the 1940 Olympiad without Tokyo's consent. The chances of a transfer have been made doubly difficult by Japan's absolute unwillingness to renounce the right to organize the Games.

Kano Stresses Agreement

In an interview with the press tonight, Jigoro Kano, chief Japanese delegate, stressed that at least the Summer Games must be held in Tokyo at all costs.

"The I.O.C.," he said, "would be committing suicide if it decided to remove the Games from Tokyo. Nobody would trust it in future if it breaks the promise it has publicly given."

It was also generally believed, however, that the Chinese delegate is certain to bring up the question at the forthcoming I.O.C. session. If the Chinese should refrain from doing so, informed quarters believed that delegates of some nations where there has been anti-Japanese agitation would not fail to move on that subject.

London Suggested

Dr. A. C. Porritt, delegate of New Zealand, it is reported, has already suggested London as an alternative in the event Japan should decline to organize the 1940 Games.

The proposal for elimination of women from future Olympics, which is also likely to be laid before the I.O.C. session, is also expected to be rejected.

Meanwhile, Lord Aberdare, British delegate, declared to the press upon his arrival today that Japan may be given the right to stage the Olympics in 1944 instead of 1940 because of some technical difficulties.

"I don't doubt that the Olympiad will be held in Tokyo," he said, "but it may be delayed until 1944, since Japan is finding difficulty to align her internal sports regulations with Olympic rules by 1940, particularly with regard to skiing and skating."

Brundage Pledges Support

Interviewed by the press, Avery Brundage, American delegate, reiterated America's intention to support Tokyo's right to retain the Games.

Twenty seven delegates representing twenty nations will attend the I.O.C. session opening tomorrow. They will be received by King Farouk and Queen Farida on Thursday.

Penn Five Downs Cornell By 51-45

N.Y. Times

ITHACA, N. Y., Feb. 12—Pennsylvania's fast-improving basketball team pulled another surprise today by defeating Cornell, 51-45, in an Eastern League game before a junior week crowd of more than 3,000 persons. Penn fought its way out of a 42-42 tie in the last six minutes to win.

The victory gave the Red and Blue an even break in the Cornell series for the season, Cornell having won at Philadelphia two weeks ago, 36-30.

Penn led most of the way and broke four ties, three in the first half. The fourth and final deadlock at 42-all had the crowd on its feet, then Anton Mischo, substitute forward, who had pulled the Quakers out of a 17-17 tie in the first half, repeated the trick with an easy goal from under the basket.

3 Points For Diven

With 3 points scored by Charles Diven, smallest player for Penn, the goal by Mischo decided the game. Captain Bob Dougherty added 3 points and Harlan Gustafson 2 in the final drive.

Cornell could score only 3 on Leonard's long goal and a free throw by Co-captain Carl Wilson, who shared scoring honors with Mischo at 11 points apiece.

Dougherty opened the scoring with a 2-pointer, Cornell tying on free throws. Stanley added a Penn goal that was matched by McDonald's long shot. Then Penn swept to leads of 7-4 and 13-5, with Roy Menzel, Gustafson, Dougherty and Seeders scoring. Co-Captain Tom Rich, Vaughan and Wilson cut Penn's advantage and finally Cornell gained the 17-17 tie on McDonald's long shot.

Tie Quickly Broken

Mischo replaced Gustafson and promptly broke the tie. Before he finished his spurt he scored 7 points. Two more points by Dougherty gave Penn a 26-21 margin.

Cornell held on closely at the start of the second half, cutting Penn's margin to 4 points before the Quakers rallied again. Dougherty and Stanley led the Penn drive, which stretched the visitors' lead to 38-30. Wilson and Vaughan cut the margin to 4 again. In a barrage of long shooting by Cornell, the Ithacans pulled up to 42—38. Polzer and Vaughan dropped shots from far out to make the score 42-42.

Mischo, taking a pass under the net, scored easily and Penn's final rally, coupled with close man-to-man guarding on Cornell's sallies, held off the Ithacans.

Olympic Yacht Harbor To Be Started Soon By City Of Yokohama

The Olympic yacht harbor for the 1940 Games will be constructed by the City of Yokohama with a total budget of ¥650,000 and the Olympic Organizing Committee has agreed to subsidize ¥200,000. Part of this subsidy has already been forwarded to the city of Yokohama.

General plans of the harbor have already been completed and the commencement ceremony will be held in the latter part of March, immediately after the last discussion of the Yokohama Municipal Assembly.

Since the beginning of the year, the Home Ministry has carried on the necessary foundation work of the breakwater in connection with the yacht harbor.

Unknown Youth, Ronchetti, Takes Skating Laurels

N.Y. Times

SARANAC LAKE, N. Y., Feb. 13—Vic Ronchetti, an unheralded Chicago youth, and 18-year-old Miss Janet Milne of Saranac Lake captured the senior North American amateur speed skating championships today.

Ronchetti clinched the men's title when he placed third in the half-mile final, the opening event on today's card, and established his right to the crown beyond all doubt when he won the gruelling five-mile race, finale of the three-day program.

Ronchetti finished with a total of 150 points, 30 more than his nearest competitor, Eddie Schroeder of Chicago, the defending champion.

Bernie Cannata, also of Chicago, Tommy Smith of Utica, N. Y., and Don Johnson of Minneapolis, ended in a third-place deadlock with 40 points each.

Mrs. Dyer Home First

Miss Milne clinched her women's championship when she finished third in the mile, more than thirty yards behind the winner, Mrs. Eleanor Thiel Dyer of Chicago. Miss Edna Hanley of Staten Island, N. Y., finished in the runner-up spot with 80 points, while Mrs. Dyer was third with 70.

Other champions in the various divisions were: Intermediate, Joe Kuezeck, Fort Johnson, N. Y.; junior boys, Clayton Whitney Jr., Troy, N. Y.; juvenile boys, Arthur Bulrice, Saranac Lake; boys under 12, Tommy Stanton, Newburgh, N. Y.; girls under 16, Miss Geraldine Nuhfer, Cleveland; boys under 10, Jimmy Lamy, Saranac Lake, and Glen Davignon, Lake Placid, tied.

Ronchetti supplied the greatest thrill of the meet when he took the five-mile event in a close finish. His margin of victory over Schroeder was a matter of inches. Laying well back in the pack for the greater portion of the race, Ronchetti, on the bell lap, answered Schroeder's challenge with an electrifying burst of speed that carried him to the tape first.

Swept Saturday Events

Ronchetti's triumph was all the more remarkable considering that he finished Friday's card with a mere 20 points. He swept Saturday's three races, however, a feat that virtually assured him of the championship.

Tommy Smith, the Utica schoolboy who ranked with Schroeder as one of the pre-meet favorites, faded after his opening day victory in the 220. His third in Saturday's two-mile was his only other place.

Miss Milne, in winning the women's title, annexed her sixth successive championship of the season. Previously, she had gained women's senior honors in the Middle Atlantic, Eastern States, Capital District, Northville and Mohawk Valley meets.

Princeton Five Beaten, 44-38, By Dartmouth

Herald Tribune

HANOVER, N. H., Feb. 12—Playing listlessly before an uncommonly quiet Dartmouth carnival crowd, the Indian basketball team defeated Princeton tonight, 44 to 38, and firmly intrenched itself in the Eastern Intercollegiate Basketball League lead. With a record of six victories and one defeat the Indians moved out in front of Cornell by virtue of tonight's victory and the Ithacans' defeat in Pennsylvania this afternoon.

The Indian second team played for the first ten minutes and it handed the varsity a 9-to-6 lead which was immediately increased by a long field goal by Joe Cottone, high scorer of the game with fifteen points, 11 to 6. Princeton tied the score three times during the first half and trailed the Indians, 26 to 25, at the intermission

Meyerholz put the Tigers out in front at the start of the second half with two field goals and a foul, but goals by Cottone and Moose Dudis brought the Green up to a 30-to-30 tie with ten minutes to go. Wee Willie Thomas, the Green's high-scoring forward, was closely guarded during the entire contest and was restricted to eight points. But while the Tigers were watching Thomas Cottone and Dudis boosted the Indian total.

Captain Dick Lewis led the Dartmouth hockey team to a surprise 3-to-2 victory over Harvard's sextet in a morning game, ringing up the winning goal at the eighteen-second triumph gave the Green first place in the American division of the International Intercollegiate Hockey League.

The game started at a fast pace and both teams launched furious attacks that found neither side vulnerable until the middle of the first period when Ralph Pope, of the Crimson, slipped one through Wes Goding.

In the scoreless second period Dartmouth missed several chances because of Howard Johnson's miraculous work in the Crimson goal.

In the third period the Green finally found the scoring punch, and Walsh slipped in the tying goal after three minutes, converting Rog Conant's rebound. Seven minutes later Danny Sullivan gave Dartmouth the lead as he raced through the entire Crimson aggregation alone and beat Johnson.

With eight minutes left to play Harvard rallied and at 13:35 Joe Patrick scored on a short pass from Ed Cutter, tying the score.

As the overtime period started at a furious pace Lewis weaved his way unaided through the Crimson defensemen and fired the clinching tally. Harvard removed its goalies for an extra forward in a final, futile attempt to rally.

Meiji Ball Stadium To Open On Mar. 20; 2 Games Scheduled

The Meiji Shrine baseball Stadium will be opened for the 1938 season on Sunday, March 20, instead of the next day, Shunki-koreisai and a holiday.

After formal rites beginning at noon, there will be the annual baseball game between the Tokyo Sports Writers Club and the Tokyo Middle School Baseball Federation's officials. Slated on the program also is an exhibition game between two teams of graduates of the member team of the Tokyo Six University league.

England Conquers Ireland, 36 To 14 In Rugby Match

DUBLIN, Feb. 12—In the highest-scoring game ever played between the two countries, England defeated Ireland, 36-14, in a weird international Rugby match today. The victors showed tremendous dash throughout and prevailed by six goals, a penalty goal and a try to Ireland's goal and three tries.

The English forwards and backs joined in fierce rushes and were rewarded with a series of scores that gave them a 23-0 lead at half-time. Ireland's defense was thrown off its game completely, but this was not surprising in view of the fact that the forwards were beaten for possession in almost every scrum.

Playing against the wind in the second half, England appeared quite an ordinary side but, collectively and individually, was superior to Erin's representation.

G. W. Parker, Blackheath full-back who replaced H. D. Freaks, Oxford University, made a remarkable showing in his first international match. He converted six of his team's tries and kicked a penalty goal from near the halfway mark.

After J. L. Giles had given the visitors the lead soon after the game opened further tries were scored by E. J. Unwin, F. J. Raynolds, R. M. Marshall, R. Bolton, R. E. Prescott and B. E. Nicholson. A. H. Bailey crossed twice for Ireland, G. E. Cromey and R. B. Mayne being the other point-scorers. G. J. Morgan converted one of Bailey's tries

It was England's thirty-seventh triumph over Ireland since the international games began in 1875. Ireland has seventeen victories and three games ended in draws. Last year at Twickenham, England annexed an exceptionally close match by 9-8.

In the current quadrangular tournament England, Scotland and Wales are now even with one victory each. Today's match was the first of the series for Ireland. Wales defeated England, but lost to the Scots at Edinburgh a week ago.

The teams:

IRELAND—Fullback, P. Crowe (Blackrock College); three-quarters, M. J. Daly (Harlequins), A. H. Bailey (University College, Dublin), L. B. McMahon (Blackrock College), V. J. Lyttle (Collegians); halfbacks, G. E. Cromey (Queen's University, Belfast), G. J. Morgan (Old Belvedere); forwards, R. Alexander (North of Ireland), C. R. Graves (Wanderers), J. W. S. Irvin (North of Ireland), R. B. Mayne (Queen's University, Belfast), J. E. Megaw (Instonians), D. O'Loughlin (University College, Cork), E. Ryan (Dolphin), S. N. Walker (Instonians).

ENGLAND—Fullback, G. W. Parker (Blackheath); three-quarters, E. J. Unwin (Rosslyn Park), B. E. Nicholson (Harlequins), P. Cranmer (Moseley), M. S. Sever (Sale); halfbacks, F. J. Raynolds (Army), J. L. Giles (Coventry); forwards, R. J. Longland (Northampton), H. B. Toft (Waterloo), R. E. Prescott (Harlequins), T. F. Huskisson (Old Merchant Taylors), R. M. Marshall (Oxford University), R. Bolton (Harlequins), D. L. K. Milman (Bedford), W. H. Weston (Northampton).

"BELIEVE IT OR NOT" --by Ripley

The Round House Of Lake Wales

This is the house the Jones Built—the Round House constructed by Mr. and Mrs. Morris Jones of Lake Wales, Florida. They didn't intend to build an entirely round house, but Mrs Jones insisted on a round dining-room in which to have a round dining table which she prized highly. Hence the dining-room was the first room drawn in the plan. On the plans, five other rooms just seemed to radiate naturally from a round dining-room in the center, and so the whole house was made round. They say it has many advantages and no disadvantages. Roundness gives better views from the windows—the outer walls are cheaper because they have no corner posts, and also because a circle embraces more area than straight lines—the route to any room in the house is more direct—there are fewer corners to gather dirt—and in many other ways the round house is superior to the conventional square type.

British Swimmers Keen On Competing In Games In Tokyo, Says Maj. Milne

English sportsmen are as a body looking forward to competing in the 12th Olympic Games in Tokyo, such being particularly the case with swimmers, Major D. B. Milne, a director of the British Swimming Federation and who acted as a timekeeper during the swimming races at the Olympic Games at Berlin in 1936, declared at the luncheon of the Pan-Pacific Club Friday at the Imperial Hotel.

Major Milne expressed satisfaction with the facilities lined up for the acquatic competition of the Games in 1940.

Here on a pleasure trip with his wife, it is expected that Major Milne will make an inspection of other preparations for the Olympics and his report upon returning to England will be of considerable importance with regard to the size of the British delegation to Tokyo.

Whether or not the 12th Olympic Games are to take place in Tokyo depends entirely on Japan, Major Milne asserted in connection with some uncertainty abroad.

Major Milne's speech follows in part:

"I think that perhaps at this time one thought is uppermost in your minds and that is whether the XIIth Olympiad is or is not to take place in Tokyo in 1940. The decision on this matter is, of course, one for Japan and Japan only to decide. Before, however, in any way venturing to express any opinion or put forward any suggestion, I wish to make it perfectly clear that although a member of the Amateur Swimming Association Council of England I am not visiting Japan in any official capacity whatsoever, neither have I any authority from our Olympic Games Management Committee or any other body to make arrangements of any kind and therefore, any statements or suggestions which I may make are solely a personal expression of opinion.

"As I have been in contact with swimmers and officials of the British Empire during my present world tour, and at the moment am in close contact with the Japanese Swimming Federation represented here today by Mr. Matsuzawa, I have perhaps a little more personal knowledge of the conditions and difficulties confronting the various bodies than can be conveyed by correspondence.

Divergence of Opinion

"Today there appears to be a divergence of opinion in this country as to the desirability or otherwise of holding the Games of 1940 in Japan and this uncertainty will without the slightest doubt influence the decisions of competing nations as to their attitude in committing themselves to an agreement to participate and I am sure we all hope that the final decision on this matter will not be long deferred.

"Speaking for myself and my wife, I would unhesitatingly say that since we have landed in Japan we have had a most enjoyable visit in every sense of the word, far beyond our expectations and it is a matter of considerable regret that other members of the F.I.N.A. other than Dr. Donath have not been able to make a visit to this country in order to see for themselves what facilities Japan has to offer for the Olympic Games: newspaper reports are not always strictly accurate as at times the sub-editor puts his blue pencil through sundry words in the original report in order to secure extra space for some item which he considers of greater news value, and the whole meaning of the report as originally prepared may possibly be lost and I am afraid, to some extent, this has been happening in regard to the reports which have been forwarded to the English papers, though I do not for one moment wish to convey that this is done in any way purposely, but the fact remains that the general public at home in England are at the moment in a state of confusion as to the actual conditions prevailing in this country in regard to arrangements for the Games.

"Through the courtesy of Mr. Matsuzawa, the coach of the Japanese Olympic Team, I have been able to see for myself the facilities that already exist for the conduct of the swimming contests in which, of course I am chiefly interested and I can unhesitatingly say that from the swimmers' point of view they are adequate, though perhaps they are rather a long distance away from the contemplated new Olympic villages and also perhaps the bath at present built is a little large for requirements. There is no doubt that the new bath intended at Komazawa would be most advantageous, but I want to emphasize that in my opinion and it is an opinion I am prepared to put forward most strongly in England, whether a new bath is constructed or not, there should be no deterrent to England's accepting Japan's invitation, should same be issued.

Swimmers Interested

"Economic conditions through the world today are in a state of upheaval; this condition exists among the nations of the world, but there is one common bond that will always exist, and that is the bond of healthy competition in sport, and I sincerely hope that irrespective of outside conditions we who are sportsmen and interested in athletic contests may find a common meeting ground, and I know that English sportsmen, particularly the swimmers, are as a body already looking forward to the opportunity of testing their prowess against other nations, particularly Japan, who will be the hosts of the sporting world for 1940. I know that we all unite in the sportsmen's toast—may the best man win—irrespective of whatever nation he may have the honor to be a member of.

"On behalf of my wife and myself I will conclude by thanking you most sincerely for your friendly welcome and hospitality and I hope that I have implanted in the minds of all assembled here the impression that I am returning home to England firmly resolved to do all that lies in my power, small though it may be, to make the Olympic Games of 1940 so far as the swimming section is concerned, the successful function that Japan desires."

30 Sen Seats Voted For Pro Ball Games Scheduled In Osaka

Baseball fans in Osaka and Kobe will be able to see the crack professional baseball teams in action beginning with the Spring season, to open soon by paying 30 sen for the bleacher seats in the outfield.

The inclusion of the 30 sen seats was decided by the Japan Professional Baseball Federation at a meeting of its directors Friday afternoon at its headquarters in Tokyo. Hitherto, only prices ranging for the games at the Koshien and Nishinomiya stadiums have been one yen for the reserved seats and 50 sen for the infield.

3 Davis Cuppers Leaving March 18

Three of the four Japanese tennis players competing in this year's Davis Cup matches Tamio Abe, coach-captain, Fumiteru Nakano and Yasumine Kuramitsu, will sail from Kobe en route to Europe aboard the N.Y.K. liner Terukuni Maru on March 18, it was definitely announced Friday. Jiro Yamagishi, No. 1 man of the team, will leave in June as he has to finish his course at Keio University.

Arriving at Naples on April 18, the trio will stay there until the end of April to compete in a series of games with Italian tennis players. Early in May, they will go to Germany where a Japanese-German match is arranged to take place around May 10. The Japanese players will later participate in various tennis matches including the French National Tennis Championship Games starting on June 2 and the Wimbledon matches on June 20.

They will cross over to the United States from England and arriving in New York on July 11 will undergo a period of training at the Westside Club, Forest Hills.

Yamagishi will leave Yokohama on June 15 for the United States by the N.Y.K. liner Taiyo Maru and is due to arrive in San Francisco on July 1. He will join his comrades in New York on July 11. The Japanese delegation will leave New York for Montreal on July 21 and will cross rackets with the Canadian team in the first round of the American Zone for three days from July 28.

If the team wins as is expected from Canada, it will take on the Australian contingent, considered a certain winner over Mexico in the first round, at the Germantown Club courts at Philadelphia for the three days beginning August 1, under tentative arrangements.

The Japanese players will enter the American national championships at Forest Hills, which start on September 8, and the West Pacific Coast championships at San Francisco in the middle of September.

The delegation will leave San Francisco en route back to Japan aboard the N.Y.K. liner Suwa Maru on September 30, returning to Yokohama on October 14.

McGill Defeats Toronto In League Hockey, 4-2

TORONTO, Feb. 12—McGill University tied Queens for first place in the International Intercollegiate Hockey League race by defeating the University of Toronto 4-to-2, in a rugged game today.

The Montreal collegians took a 2-to-0 lead in the first period on goals by Perowne and Anton, the latter getting an assist on Perowne's counter.

Anton, who played a sterling and rugged game on defense for the visitors, in the third period came to blows with McLaughlin of the Toronto team. Anton drew a ten-minute penalty and McLaughlin was banished for five minutes.

The line-up:

Mayor Wires To Delegate At Cairo Of Approval Of Y6,000,000 Fund

An outright donation to the Municipality of 8,000 tsubo of land at the southeast corner of the Komazawa links for the site of the Olympic swimming pool was announced by the Toyoko Electric Railway Company on Friday.

Mayor Itta Kobashi of Tokyo City Friday afternoon sent a wire to Eijiro Nakatsuka, Tokyo city representative at the Cairo session of the International Olympic Committee, informing him of Tokyo's definite attitude to stage the 1940 Olympic Games following the City's Olympic Committee's approval of the ¥6,000,000 budget for the XIIth Olympiad.

The budget was forwarded Friday to the Municipal Assembly, which is expected to approve the committee-passed budget before March 20.

Although the Tokyo Municipal Olympic Committee has approved the ¥6,000,000 budget, the total expenditure to be borne by the Tokyo Municipality is actually ¥5,000,000 inasmuch as the Olympic Organizing Committee will provide the other ¥1,000,000 from its own fund.

Tokyo City will provide the following facilities for the 1940 Olympic Games:

Olympic village: to be built at a cost of ¥1,132,075 at the present golf links at Komazawa, Setagaya Ward, to accommodate 1,500 Olympic contestants.

Subsidiary indoor stadium: to be constructed at a cost of 1,836,812 yen at Surugadai, Kanda Ward. (Baron Iwasaki's former residence).

Hockey ground: to be built at a cost of 566,038 yen at Shiba Park. The accommodating capacity is 15,000 spectators.

Cycling track: to be constructed at a cost of 800,000 yen at the Shibaura reclaimed ground.

Swimming pool: to be built at a cost of 1,135,075 yen at the eastern corner of the Komazawa golf links. The accommodating capacity is 28,000 spectators.

Tokyo To Retain Venue Of Games, Observers Think

Domei Tsushin

CAIRO, March 10—The 35th plenary session of the International Olympic Committee got under way for ten days this morning in an elaborate opening ceremony at the Royal Opera House here in the presence of King Farouk I.

Opening at 11 a.m., the ceremony was attended by 27 delegates representing 20 nations, their families, members of their suites, and high Egyptian Government officials.

King Welcomes Delegates

King Farouk personally delivered an address of welcome, to which Count de Baillet-Latour, chairman of the I.O.C., responded. The function was brought to a close at 11:25 a.m.

In his address before the ceremony, Count de Baillet-Latour, besides thanking King Farouk and the Egyptian Government for their kind efforts, expressed satisfaction at the fact that the spirit of International Olympics is gradually spreading all over the world. It is significant, he declared, that preparations are now in progress to hold the next Olympiad in Asia for the first time in history. He added that he hopes to see the Games held in Africa sometime in future.

With regard to amateurism, which is in the agenda of the session, Count de Baillet-Latour said that the principles of the Olympic rules are immutable in this respect. He stressed, however, that this does not necessarily mean that the I.O.C. is incapable of adapting itself to changing needs of the times.

Compromise Likely

Observers saw in this statement by Count de Baillet-Latour chances of a compromise between the I. O. C. and the International Ski Federation, enabling the latter to compete at Olympic Winter Games.

Havas meanwhile claimed to have learned from authorized quarters that the current I.O.C. session will refrain from discussing the problem of the site of 1940 Olympics because British delegates have given up the intention to oppose the staging of the Games at Tokyo.

Some other quarters, however, reported that the Swedish, Norwegian, Finnish and Czechoslovakian delegates are expected to make reservations against Tokyo as the venue of the 1940 Games, but added that preliminary talks among delegates of various countries indicated that such motions are likely to be overruled.

Apart from Politics

The majority of delegates, according to these quarters, believe that political affairs should not be mixed up with sports and admit that nobody can dispute Tokyo's right to organize the Olympiad so long as Japan desires to retain it.

The delegates are scheduled to leave for High Egypt tomorrow for a cruise on the Nile organized by the Egyptian National Olympic Committee and to visit various archeological centers along the river. The business session will begin on Sunday aboard the boat.

"BELIEVE IT OR NOT" --by Ripley

The White Horse of Kilburn

This gigantic figure of a horse was carved out of the steep slope of Hambleton Hill near Kilburn, through the initiative of Thomas Taylor, who was a native of Kilburn and had grown wealthy in London. The idea came to him when he saw the famous White Horse of Berkshire. The whiteness of the horse is due to 6 tons of white-washing which was applied to it. Originally the white horse was an emblem of sun worship reminiscent of the days of pagan England.

Dartmouth Wins Annual Hanover Ski Carnival For 4th Straight Year

By FRED HAWTHORNE

HANOVER, N. H., Feb. 12—For the fourth consecutive year the flower of American intercollegiate skiers, the boys of Dartmouth, won the annual Dartmouth College ski carnival title this afternoon, beating out the strong University of Munich team.

The Germans, winners of the world's intercollegiate team championship, were regarded as the most dangerous threat to the Green's supremacy of the snow trails and the jump, and they did threaten to the bitter end, but the long, flashing blades of the stocky little Richard Durrance, of Dartmouth, accounted for two first places, the downhill race yesterday and the slalom race this morning. In addition, Howard Chivers, of Dartmouth, took first place in the langlauf, or cross-country race yesterday afternoon.

The Green placed second, also, in all these three events, Ted Hunter finishing close behind Durrance in the downhill and slalom, and Dave Bradley, captain of the Dartmouth squad, was next over the finish line behind Chivers, the winner.

Eie Wins Jump

Nils Eie, of the University of Oslo, Norway, finished first in the jump, with 36.76 points, followed by Franz Machler, of the University of Munich. John Litchfield and Warren Chivers, of Dartmouth, were third and fourth, respectively.

The figures showed the Dartmouth team had made a perfect score of 500 points, the first time this has ever been accomplished in the history of the Dartmouth Carnival. Although Eie was first in the jump and Machler second, Dartmouth came through with the team honors. Eie was the only representative of Oslo University, and the only member of the German to score was Fritz Dehmel, who finished tenth.

The scene at the ski-jump tower was a stirring one, with a crowd of about 4,500 massed in the valley below the end of the tower runway. The surface of the sides on this natural amphitheater was little more than a sheet of ice, but Dartmouth students had cut terraces into the sides before the meet began and these shelves afforded a footing.

But in getting down from the top rim of the valley, there were many falls, as co-eds and their student escorts, losing their footing, sat down scooting down, sometimes to the bottom of the valley. Everybody took these mishaps good-naturedly.

Ropes Across Railings

The surface of the ski-tower runway was so fast and hard that it was deemed too hazardous to ask the contestants to start from the top platform, where ordinarily they begin their descent. Instead, ropes were strung across between the railings, some fifty feet below the platform, and the jumpers, clinging to this rope, took off from there.

This cut down the distance covered in each jump. John Litchfield, of Dartmouth, actually covered the most ditsance for one jump, clearing 40.5 meters, but was beaten by Eie and Machler for ditsance covered in the two oficial jumps allowed each man.

In the combined langlauf and jump event, with the points compiled on the totals made in both events, Dartmouth came through with a perfect score of 100 points, placing men one, two, three and four. Howard Chivers, Dave Bradley, Warren Chivers and Litchfield finished in that order. McGill University, of Montreal, finished in second place in both the jump and combined events, with the Germans third in each case.

There was still no fall of snow today, although the skies were overcast and the weather was almost twenty degrees warmer than yesterday, when the temperature hovered around the zero mark.

Durrance Wins Slalom

Little Durrance, who had come hurtling down the side of Moose Mountain to win the downhill race yesterday, was equally impressive this morning as he streaked across the line in the fastest time made in the tricky slalom race. This is a test of ski control more than anything else, for the contestants are required to make their descent between narrow lanes, marked out by flags, with a dozen sharp turns between the start and finish.

Durrance showed his superiority not only in the masterly manner in which he manipulated his blades but also in the matter of speed. It seemed impossible, on various occasions, that he could avoid a spill as he swept around the corners, but he came through unscathed, and Ted Hunter was only a second and a fraction behind him in time consumed. Xavier Kraisy was the first of the Germans to finish taking third place.

Following are the positions in which the first ten teams finished:

Dartmouth, 500 points; University of Munich, 451.8; McGill, 430.5; New Hampshire, 386.1; Harvard, 356.5; Yale, 310.8; Middlebury, 294.8; Williams, 274.7; Amherst, 267.6; Maine, 246.1.

The summaries:

International Tennis Tournament Planned During 1940 Olympics

An international tennis tournament in Tokyo during the 12th Olympic Games will be staged if the Japan Lawn Tennis Association can put the arrangements over.

Announcement of President Katsuta of the Association at its sponsored farewell dinner Sunday night at the Marunouchi Kaikan for members of the Davis Cup team to depart soon to the effect that the Association is ready to organize the tournament of international scale came as a surprise, particularly because it had been felt that tennis was not contributing to the support of the Games.

Two plans are under consideration—whether to invite the top ranking star each from the United States, England, Australia, France, Germany and Italy or to stage a tournament of an international scale.

Negotiations will be left entirely in the hands of Tamio Abe, who is leaving soon as manager-coach of the Japanese Davis Cup team to Europe.

Daro Of Maridor, An English Setter, Best In Dog Show

By HENRY R. ILSLEY
N.Y. Times

NEW YORK, Feb. 13—Daro of Maridor, an orange belton heavily-ticked English setter, last night was awarded the best-inshow title of the sixty-second annual all-breed exhibition of the Westminster Kennel Club in Madison Square Garden.

Bred and owned by the Maridor Kennels of Dwight W. Ellis of East Longmeadow, Mass., and shown in the ring by Charles Palmer, this grand specimen of an English setter was acclaimed by a gathering of 15,000 canine enthusiasts who crowded into every available viewpoint in the vast enclosure.

The final spectacle of the show was one of the most thrilling competitions that has been seen in the Garden for many years. It came at the conclusion of a series of group competitions that had been unparalleled in the history of Westminster shows. Five groups had produced American-bred winners. The terrier group judging brought forward the sole foreign representative. In the great multitude surrounding the ring there was unquestionably an overwhelming sentiment in favor of the American dogs.

Bates Makes Final Decision

John G. Bates of Morristown, N. J., and New York City was the appointed judge to make the final verdict. He gave every dog in the ring the fullest opportunity to show his paces and to exhibit to the onlookers all those qualities attributable to a thoroughbred dog.

Hopes went up and down. The longer Mr. Bates lingered over one dog, the greater the applause that came from the galleries. At first it seemed that he was intrigued by the wonderful black poodle. Then he came down the line to linger a long time over the magnificent little English-bred wire foxterrier.

Once more Mr. Bates came down the line. This time it was to go over in every last detail the English setter. Teeth, forequarters, back, hind quarters, legs, feet, each one he inspected in the minutest detail and then went back to the middle of the ring, hesitated a moment and waved Palmer and his charge to the center of the ring.

Only Foxterrier Remains

It was a grand climax of a day which had been filled with thrills for all American breeders and exhibitors. Most of all it was a victory for an American-bred dog. It came after the five triumphs in the variety groups, leaving only the foxterrier remaining as the sole representative of all the imported dogs of more than 3,000 in the exhibition.

Never in the history of Westminster's notable exhibitions has there been such a sweep of home-bred dogs dominating all the importations up and down the line.

Daro of Maridor has never been shown before this week. He was born on March 18, 1937, so he is only 11 months old. To breeders and exhibitors it is unnecessary to state that he is a son of the great Ch. Sturdy Max, his dam having been Ch. Lakeland Dawn. Mr. Ellis is one of our best sportsmen who breeds for shooting, for field trials and for bench shows.

There was no second. Mr. Bates gave no indication in any way that he had any dog in mind for reserve. As far as the spectators were concerned, they felt that the poodle, the foxterrier and the dachshund were very close contenders. Certainly from the reaction of the spectators there was no dissent.

Triumph for Young Dog

It was a splendid triumph for a young dog which had fought his way up through the most severe contention in his breed, defeated some of the most noted dogs in America today in his group and had come through triumphantly to gain the highest award in this most colorful of all indoor shows in America. For the first time in more than a decade an American-bred dog went best-in-show at Westminster.

Davis Cuppers Are Too Good

Temple Conquers N.Y.U. Five, 42-34; St. John's Wins

By FRANCIS J. O'RILEY
N.Y. Times

PHILADELPHIA, Feb. 12—Temple's basketball team tossed in eleven points in a row at the start of the second half to break a 19-all deadlock and then went on to defeat N. Y. U. by 42-34 at Convention Hall before a crowd of 9,000 tonight.

In the second game of the twin bill, St. John's of Brooklyn staged a brilliant rally in the second half to defeat St. Joseph's of Philadelphia, 38 to 30.

The first half of the N. Y. U.-Temple contest was a nip-and-tuck affair, with first one team and then the other gaining the advantage. The score was tied on five occasions and the lead changed hands twelve times during the initial half.

Temple was the first to score when Bloom dropped one in from under, but Boardman balanced the count on a similar shot. Dowd gave N. Y. U. the advantage with a foul shot, but Shields put the Owls in the van with a toss down the side and Bloom increased the margin with a penalty shot. Boardman balanced the count, but Dowd put the Violets in the lead again with a free throw, then Shields came through for the Owls with a long one to give them a 7-6 lead.

Carnevale And Black Click

Carnevale and Black each connected twice, and Dowd and Lewis then tossed in long shots to give N. Y. U. a three-point margin. The Owls again regained the advantage on shots by Boyle and Black, only to have Carnevale balance the count with a single pointer.

Boyle put Temple in the lead again with a shot from the side, but Carnevale again deadlocked the issue with a similar basket. The same player gave N. Y. U. the lead when he counted on a pass from Witty, but just before the half ended Black evened the count at 19—all with a one-hander from the side.

The second half was all Temple. Bloom dropped in three baskets, Shields two and Boyle a foul before N. Y. U. was able to break through on a one-handed toss by Boardman, and the Owls led, 30-21. Boardman dropped in another and Lewis heaved one through the hoop, but Bloom got set near the center line and popped one in to make the score 32-25 in favor of the home team.

After Witty scored for N. Y. U. Black, Boyle, Bloom and Frieberg then put in two pointers for the Owls and it was just a question of what the final score would be.

St. John's Starts Reserves

St. John's, in opposing St. Joseph's, started its second team and the reserves rang up a 3-0 lead. Kohut dropped in a basket and then was successful on a free throw before Goukas made a penalty shot for St. Joseph's.

For the next seven minutes neither team was able to score. Finally St. Joseph's evened the count on a basket by Goukas and then went into the lead on McMenamin's shot. Small dropped in a two-pointer, McMenamin a foul and Goukas a floor shot for the tenth straight point for the Hawks and they led, 10-3, five minutes before the end of the half. Palmer finally came through with a foul for St. John's, but this was matched by Goukas.

McKeever threw in a St. John field goal and Bush added a foul, but Dan Kenney netted a basket and Small added a foul and field goal and St. Joseph's led 16-7. Just before the half ended McKeever put in a shot from under and St. John's trailed, 16-9, at the intermission.

Withdrawal From Olympic Games Advocated By British Athlete

Domei Tsushin

LONDON, March 11—Complete withdrawal of British athletic organizations from the International Olympic Games was advocated by E. A. Montague, British athlete who competed at the 1924 Olympiaid, in a signed article in the Manchester Guardian today, on the ground that the original spirit of the Games have been entirely lost.

Referring to the question of 1940 Olympics, Mr. Montague asserted that Article 1 of the statute of the Olympics absolutely forbids holding of the Games in any country at war. The only problem for the International Olympic Committee, therefore, he wrote, is to decide how long the final decision can be postponed in the hope that the war in the Far East will be over before 1940.

He added, however, that whatever decision may be taken will inevitably be of a political nature, because it is bound to represent either approval or disapproval of Japan's conduct in China.

In any case, Mr. Montague continued, original threefold purposes established by Baron de Coubertin when he revived the Olympics have been completely lost, because politics have come to play a part in them. Deploring the "political bias dominating the Olympiad," he wrote that the "climax was reached at Berlin when the privilege of holding the Games was used as a means to advertise a particular political party."

"In order to keep British athletic sanity," he concluded, "there is no solution except withdrawal for the good of all."

"BELIEVE IT OR NOT" --by Ripley

The Little Champion

The family of little Margaret Villar-Kelly, residing in Vedado, Havana, Cuba, is mighty proud of her, and they have good reason to be. She is a dandy little gymnast for her age. Margaret is only 3, weighs 40 pounds, and every day in their home gym, she vies with her brother, aged 7, for acrobatic honors. At her tender age, she comes down 15 steps on the inside of a ladder one hand at a time—holds her body horizontal, grasping one ladder rung with the back of her head against the next rung above—presses 20 pounds—and performs all the regular gym stunts. The best, though, is grasping a 5-inch circumference rope that she cannot reach without jumping, and climbing up the rope hand over hand 10 feet without using her legs at all. Try it sometime!

Cunningham Thrills 13,000 Winning Mile With A 4:10

By ARTHUR J. DALEY

N.Y. Times

BOSTON, Feb. 12—With the pressure lifted from his shoulders, Glenn Cunningham put the pressure on his flying feet tonight and matched the fourth fastest indoor mile ever run. The master craftsman, with neither Archie San Romani nor Don Lash around to bid him pause, unfurled a beautiful 4:10 effort before 13,000 in the Hunter mile at the forty-ninth annual carnival of the Boston A. A.

To all intents and purposes this was a duel between the rugged Kansan and his old time foeman, Gene Venzke. The two other starters did not matter and apparently Gallonling Glenn worried not a whit about the Winged Footer.

So he calmly stepped along behind a sixty-second first quarter and a 2:04.6 half before personally taking control of the race. Then it was all his the rest of the way. Venzke made one serious threat two laps from the end but Cunningham fought him off and coasted in the winner by eight yards.

Best Mile of Season

The Jayhawker himself is the only man ever to run a faster mile indoors, with 4:08.4, 4:08.7 and 4:09.8, although Venzke had posted 4:10 as a world record in the distant past—1932. It was the best mile Boston ever saw indoors or out and the best of the reason to boot, a second under his Millrose effort.

For a change Cunningham turned apologist before the race. Since his mile twin, San Romani, was unable to compete because of a spike wound, the Curb flier pledged the Boston officials that he would seek to make amends for that by breaking the meet record of 4:12.3. How well he did it need not be repeated.

This race in the Boston Garden was another of the mechanically perfect Cunningham miles. He let Ray Mahannah lead for 880 yards and glided through a three-quarters in 3:08. The handwriting was on the wall at this point that this was going to be a pretty swift race. And so it was as the transplanted Kansan finished with plenty to spare.

Seven in a Row

Jim Herbert of N. Y. U. scored his seventh straight victory of the season by unreeling the fastest 600-yard race that this Athens of America has seen, a dazzling 1:12.3 performance, the swiftest of the campaign.

While the home-town gathering went into ecstacies of delight at the superlative challenge that Doug Raymond of Boston University cast at him on the last lap, Herbert came zooming up with an invincible sprint to chop him down twenty yards from the tape to achieve a great one-yard victory in the classic Hollis 600.

It had looked like another easy triumph for the New Yorker as the field loped into the final lap. But suddenly the red jersey of Raymond popped past him as the B. U. youngster fired away with all he had. He jumped it up to three yards in the backstretch and the Herbert goose seemed cooked, fried to a crisp brown turn.

But just as the crowd began to grow frantic with joy, Herbert let go. He was at Raymond's shoulder around the final turn and then put on the pressure in a hammer-and-tongs duel down the homestretch, barely nailing the Bostonian for a well-deserved one-stride victory.

His time of 1:12.3 was three-tenths of a second faster than his clocking in the Millrose 600 a week ago and indicated that the N. Y. U. athlete is moving nicely toward an unbeaten season, with the Bluemerver 500 at the New York A. C. games on Saturday the next stop in his headlong flight. His time was one and a tenth seconds faster than his meet record of a year ago and gave him permanent possession of the Hollis Trophy.

Lash Does His Bit

In keeping with the brilliant performances of Cunningham and Herbert, the mighty Don Lash was nothing remiss in unfolding the best two-mile job of the campaign, a grand 9:03.6, eight-tenths of a second better than his winning figures here a fortnight ago.

But in one respect this was an entirely different race from its two predecessors. This time it was not Joe McCluskey who chased him to the tape but Norman Bright of the Olympic Club of San Francisco.

An indifferent runner to date, Bright let go with the best sixteen-furlong achievement of his career, 9:03.8, as he finished half a stride in back of the Hoosier Iron Man. McCluskey, tired from his flat-floor effort of last night, was never a contender and finally was some sixty yards back at the wire.

Not until the last half lap did Bright make a move. Then he climbed right up Lash's back. The Californian's greatest gesture came around the ultimate turn. He moved half a foot in front of the Indianan, cut in a bit and was pushed out by a brawny Lash arm. That settled it as the Hoosier charged down the final straight-away under full power.

Olympic Champion Bows

Beaten by Allan Tolmich of Wayne last night at Philadelphia, Forrest (Spec) Towns of Georgia, Olympic champion, was handed another setback by his arch-rival as the so-called "one-man track team" equaled the world record for the forty-five-yard high hurdles with a sizzling 0:05.7 performance.

It was a particularly unexpected defeat for Towns, because he was absolutely confident that he would turn the tables tonight. In fact his confidence was so great that he hauled out a wad of bills this afternoon and drawled: "Here's $120 that I beat him tonight."

The Georgian was pretty lucky that no one took up that wager. He was left sitting on his heels, gazing at the ceiling, when the gun cracked. Tolmich was almost at the first barrier when Towns started to move.

The Olympic champion chopped that down to half a foot at the wire, a tremendous effort, but he had no room to get up steam in the short 45-yard distance. So Tolmich won in time that equaled Sammy Allen's world record and Towns was the most disgusted young man in the arena when it was over.

Makes a Slow Start

Not in this same category was little Ben Johnson of Columbia, heir apparent to the title of world's fastest human. The Columbia comet won the 50-yard dash in 0:05.5, three-tenths off the record.

Little Ben triumphed by two feet over Perrin Walker of the New York A. C. after a very bad start. Johnson usually is a streak off his marks, but he could do no better than fourth in the get-away. Larry Scanlon of Holy Cross had the early edge on him, but the Lion ace overhauled him in the last 15 yards, pulling Walker past Scanlon with him.

The oddity in this test was that Herb Thompson and Herb Weast, second and third in the Millrose Games, were shut out of places, while the giant Walker, eliminated in the semi-finals a week ago, beat them both. Johnson, in winning, remained undefeated for the season in both heats and finals.

Chuck Hornbostel of Indiana, one of the greatest of them all in his day, acted as an official during the running of the Lapham 1,000-yard test and watched Charlie Beetham and Lou Burns loaf through a race that gave him permanent possession of the trophy.

Hornbostel and Burns each had a leg on the cup and the Manhattan ace had to repeat his victory to win it outright. But he lagged behind the slow pace of Don Fleet and was outsprinted in the last half lap by Beetham, who took the third leg on the award. But since Hornbostel had the fastest time, 1:13.8, the trophy went to him, as the ex-Ohio State star was caught in 2:17.6, the identical figures that Burns turned in a year ago.

N. Y. U. Four Leads Way

The relay races were productive of some fine running as the George V. Brown Memorial Trophy for the fastest mile effort of the evening went to the fleet N. Y. U. quartet of Martin Witte, Curtis Giddings, Edgar Striping and Herbert, who duplicated their trophy achievement of the week before.

They turned back a semi-regular Manhattan team of George Nix, Red Reilly, Dick Lundell and Joe Zeitler by ten yards in 3:24.8. That was just enough to edge out the time of 3:24.9 that a Fordham foursome of George Gallico, Arthur Kneen, Frank Slater and Wesley Wallace turned in earlier in the evening.

Slater and Wallace teamed with George Leary and Joe Fay to win a two mile test in 8:02.8. From Holy Cross and Harvard and a Manhattan combination of Joe Moclair, Jim McCartney, Howard Borck and Lou Burns breezed home in 7:55 over N. Y. U. and Yale.

City Assembly To Act On Olympics Budget At Session, March 19

A supplementary budget appropriating ¥16,000,000 in preparation for the 1940 Olympic Games will be submitted to the Tokyo Municipal Assembly on March 19, with official approval already given by the Finance and Home Ministries.

Details of the budget include ¥6,000,000 for the construction of a swimming stadium at Komazawa, a gymnastic hall at Ochanomizu and commemoration buildings, and ¥10,000,000 for other construction works connected with the games.

I.O.C. Modifies Olympic Chart On Winter Games

Domei Tsushin

LUXOR, Upper Egypt, March 13—Removal of the 1940 Winter Olympics from Japan was believed foreshadowed today as the current annual session of the International Olympic Committee in its first business sittings adopted a resolution to modify the Olympic Chart so as to permit the Winter Games to take place in different countries from those where the Summer Games are held. The sittings were held aboard the steamer Victoria cruising down the Nile.

The Committee also approved the appointment of General von Reichenau, Mr. Moaenco, and Antonio Prado as the German, Cuban and Brazilian members respectively. Appointment of a second Chinese member was also authorized and entrusted to Dr. C. T. Wang, present Chinese member.

After discussing the ski question and approving the modification of the Olympic Chart with regard to the Winter Games, the Committee proceedd to take up the German proposal to include glider contests in the Olympics. It was agreed, however, to postpone decision until the next annual session of the I.O.C. in Belgrade next year.

In a communique issued following the close of the session, the Committee, besides revealing the appointments and the decision to modify the Olympic Chart, emphasized that it was astounded to learn that the president of the International Ski Federation, at the recent meeting held at Helsingfors, sent a menacing letter to the national federations of various countries threatening resignation if members of the I.S.F. accepted the Olympic law of qualification.

Today's session got under way at 10 a.m. aboard the Victoria and, with a recess for lunch, was continued until 5 p.m. The boat arrived here at 6:30 p.m.

Rickey To Drill Cardinal Hurlers

ST. LOUIS, Mo.—(INS)—Branch Rickey, vice-president of the St. Louis Cardinals, is returning to baseball's front trenches and he is bringing with him his "strike zone" method of drilling control into the arms and heads of erratic young pitchers.

Rickey will divorce himself for a month from the front office duties of running the Cardinals' extensive farm system and serving as general manager of the St. Louis club, to take active charge of the Cardinal School of Baseball Instruction at Winter Haven, Fla., Feb. 21 to March 19. The school is being held primarily to correct the playing faults of approximately 100 outstanding young prospects in the Cardinal organization.

Those who attend the Cardinal school will find the "strike zone" one of Rickey's most interesting experiments. There's nothing very complicated about it. Two "one by six" standards are placed on either side of home plate and two strings stretched between the standards, one at the batter's shoulder height, the other at knee height. Two more strings are dropped vertically over the horizontal lines, the vertical strings being 17 inches apart, the width of home plate. Thus a rectangle is formed and the pitcher to gain control must learn to throw the ball into this rectangle. Otherwise, conditions are the same as in a game, with a batter in the box and a catcher behind the plate.

The "strike zone" is old training camp equipment to Rickey. He made use of it when he was managing the St. Louis Browns in 1913-14-15 and later when he piloted the Cardinals from 1919 to 1925. It paid him dividends as early as 1914 when the Browns sold Bill James to Detroit for a considerable sum of cash. James had appeared too wild to become a major league pitcher until he mastered control by pitching to the "strike zone." "Wee Willie" Sherdel a slab hero in the first two Cardinal pennant years, 1926 and 1928, learned to control his tantalizing slow ball with the help of the "strike zone."

Kentucky Derby 3rd Oldest Race In U.S.

LOUISVILLE, Ky.—(INS)—Churchill Downs, where the $50,000 added 64th Kentucky Derby will be run on May 7, is the third oldest race course in the United States, but it is the oldest in the point of continuous operation.

The idea for building the new historic track in Louisville crystalized in June 1874, with the founding of the Louisville Jockey Club, headed by Col. M. Lewis Clark. Land was purchased from the Churchill brothers—John and Henry—and construction of the plant immediately was inaugurated.

The track opened in May 1875 and in all the years since then Churchill Downs never has lapsed a meeting. When Churchill Downs came into existence, there were only a half dozen race courses of prominence in the nation—Jerome Park and Saratoga, in New York state, Monmouth, in New Jersey, the Fair Grounds in New Orleans, a track in Memphis and the famous Lexington course, which was built in 1828 and not abadoned until Jan. 3, 1936.

Iida, Noted Swimming Authority, Succumbs After Short Illness

Japan's swimming world lost one of its most valuable figures Monday with the death of Kotaro Iida, whose tabulation of swimming records and efficiency as a timekeeper received international praise, after a short illness. He was 48 years old. He is survived by Mrs. Iida and eight daughters, the eldest of whom is a first year student in high school.

From the days before the crawl was introduced in Japan Mr. Iida was Johnny-on-the-spot whenever swimming races were held. He organized the Students Swimming Federation in 1922 and served as first chief, and when the Japan Swimming Federation was founded in 1923, he was elected as the first chief. He was head coach of the Japanese swimming team to the Olympic Games at Berlin in 1923, and also contributed greatly to Japan's winning of the world championship at Los Angeles in 1932.

While a student at Tokyo Imperial University, he was a member of the rowing and swimming teams. He majored in physical science. He was a native of Tokyo.

Brown Shatters All Records For 2-Man Bobsled

LAKE PLACID, N. Y., Feb. 12—Ivan Brown, Keene Valley, N. Y., machinist, cracked all existing records for two-man bobsleds at Mt. Van Hoevenberg today in winning the fifth running of the national A. A. U. senior championships.

Brown drove the four-and-a-half-mile heats in a total time of 4 minutes 52.63 seconds, cutting nearly eighteen seconds off the old mark. He clipped the course record of 1:16.51, held by himself, in each heat, setting a new mark of 1:12.97. Riding with him was A. M. Washbond, his partner in winning the 1936 Olympic two-man title in Germany.

Brown and Washbond have been undefeated in competition since 1935. The run was lightning fast and old speed marks went by the boards ten time during the running of the title event.

Spectators hung over the rails at shady and zig-zag curves to watch the duel between the Keene Valley A. C. pair and J. Hubert Stevens, eldest of the famed quartet of bobsledding brothers, who drove the Lake Placid Club's Sno-Bird entry into second place.

Miss Marion Clark, Baltimore pilot, upset in zig-zag in a practice run yesterday, came back again today and finished fifth.

The big four-man bobs will swing into action tomorrow. Favored is the veteran team piloted by Aubrey (Bucky) Wells, of Keene Valley, North American titleholder, which won the championship last year.

Wells' crew was expected, however, to receive keen competition from the team led by Curtis Stevens, three-time winner of the event.

Other outstanding pilots include Francis Tyler, United States driver in the 1936 Olympic; Bob Linney, the Lyon Mountain, N. Y., engineer; J. Hubert Stevens, brother of Curtis, who at various times has held every major bobsledding title, and Burke Wylie, up-and-coming youngster.

Hustler From Coast Seeks Outfield Post With Cincinnati

CINCINNATI.—(INS)—Nino Bongy, christened Anthoninio Bongiovanni, is a very serious minded young Italian whose present goal is a regular outfield job with the 1938 Cincinnati Reds.

Very few people give him serious consideration when they analyze the Reds' setup, but that matters not to the hard working youngster. He has confidence in his ability to produce, and he feels that Bill McKechnie, Redleg skipper, will assume the same confidence when he sees him in action.

McKechnie has never seen Bongy. Neither has any official of the Cincinnati club. He was drafted from Portland of the Pacific Coast League on the recommendation of Professor Charles E. Chapman, who doubles as a teacher of history at the University of California and as coast scout for the Reds.

The Reds had their eyes on several other coast boys when the draft period came up. Each time General Manager Warren Giles inquired about another player, Chapman returned with, "Bongy at Portland is the man we want."

Program Out For Annual Kansas Relay Carnival

Christian Science Monitor

LAWRENCE, Kan., Feb. 1—Announcement of the complete program for the Sixteenth Annual Kansas Relays, to be run at the University of Kansas April 23, was coupled with another statement from Gwin Henry, director of athletics and of the Relays, that more attention than heretofore will be paid to eligibility of contestants.

Director Henry has been in communication with other Relays authorities, and finds that similar action is contemplated elsewhere.

No change in rules is being made, Henry explained; simply that steps are being taken to insure proper matching of contestants. Competition in the University class relays, and the special events, is open to institutions observing the three-year rule, with no competition by freshmen.

College competition will be open to institutions under the eligibility of their own conferences, but for college entrants desiring to compete in the university classes it will be necessary to submit academic and participation records to establish eligibility. In other words, freshmen may not compete in special events, or university class relays; neither may four-year men if they had any athletic competition in their freshman year.

The decathlon will again be a feature of the Relays, with five events Friday afternoon and the other five Saturday morning, preceding the Relays proper. Eligibility will be under the A. A. U. rules for the decathlon.

Preliminary announcements will go to athletic directors and track coaches within a week or 10 days, and entry planks will be out early in April. The Relays program will include:

University Class Relays—Quarter-mile, half-mile, mile, two miles, four-man mile team race; distance medley sprint medley, and 480-yard shuttle hurdle relay.

College Class Relays—Half-mile, mile, two miles, distance medley.

Junior College Relays—Mile, spring medley.

Kansas City (Mo.) High Schools—Sprint medley.

Special Events—100-yard, 120-yard high hurdles, 1500-meter run, 3000-meter steeplechase; shotput, discus throw, javelin throw, high jump, broad jump, and pole vault.

California Boxer Here On Way To Philippines

Joseph Rosenberg, young pugilist from California, arrived in Yokohama Monday on board the Dollar liner President Cleveland, en route to Manila where he will fight the best Manila has to offer in the way of competition.

"BELIEVE IT OR NOT" --by Ripley

The Devil's Bridge

This acqueduct in Segovia, Spain, is so-called because of a legend that the Devil built it for a young woman to spare her the trouble of going a long distance for water. In truth, the acqueduct was built by Emperor Trajan of Rome, more than 1800 years ago. It consists of 170 arches, rising to a maximum height of 92 feet. Its length is more than ½ mile. Although this great structure was built without cement, mortar or rivets, it has endured for 18 centuries and still serves the original purpose of bringing water to the city from Rio Frio.

No. 1844, Saturday, June 5, 1937

....this new manual is practical and useful, and what Count Kabayama in his prefactory note calls its "human method" will make it acceptable to the growing number of English students of Japanese. When the student has mastered its sixty lessons he will have completed the equivalent of an ordinary Japanese school education and will be at home in the language and able to proceed to higher things.

A feature of the book is its transliteration with Chinese characters of every Japanese example rendered in English spelling so that the student is gradually familiarized with the appearance of the language as well as with its sound.

Studying Japanese with this Grammar Becomes a Real Pleasure

EXTRACTS FROM THE PREFACE

Written by Count Ayské Kabayama, chairman of the Kokusai Bunka Shinkokai (The Society for International Cultural Relations of Tokyo).

"Mr. and Mrs. Vaccari have brought out what I would like to regard as the most complete book to date for the study of Japanese, and have, thereby, provided an effective and practical guide toward a basic study of the Japanese nation and people ....The method introduced by the authors is not only scientific, but human....the particular of the language, fully treated with practical examples, have been regulated in each lesson according to the measure of a partial effort of the mind....The Japanese taught in the book has struck me as of the best commonly accepted diction today....The authors have introduced a new system of giving all the sentences in the book in Japanese characters and Roman transliteration with their respective English translation, an innovation most likely to prove very helpful....Mr. and Mrs. Vaccari have published a book of high merit and may be regarded as the initiators of a new system for teaching Japanese.

Kansai Gridders Out To Defeat Kanto On Monday

The Kansai team for the first East versus West American football game to be played in Japan, scheduled for next Monday afternoon at the Meiji Shrine stadium, is going through strenuous workout all this week. It will invade Tokyo by the 9:30 a.m. train on Sunday.

Head Coach Ray Uyeshima, who himself will see action in the backfield, and Line Coach Frank Hayashi, who too will play, taking care of the pivot position and possibly in the role of a ball carrier as well, are both confident that the squad will give the Kanto representatives a battle royal.

Mostly of Nisei

The team is composed mainly of American born Japanese and players of the Kansai University team, plus a few members of the Kobe Rowing and Athletic Club.

The Kanto team will be composed of players from the five members of the Tokyo Intercollegiate American Football league, namely, Meiji, Waseda, Rikkyo, Hosei and Keio. The kickoff is slated for 2:30 p.m. A curtain-raiser at 1 p.m. will see a picked team from the freshmen of the Tokyo league tackle another from the "old boys," graduates of the league.

Dope on some of the Kansai team players, as furnished by a member, follows:

A new find in the line is Hamamoto, captain-elect of the 1938 Kandai team. At right guard, he has been showing promise in practice. He is expected to be used at this position the greater part of the game.

A man to be watched is Zolotareff, playing right half. He his shifty and fast. It was through him that the K.R.A.C. rugby team has shown such good record this year.

The line will depend upon Frank Hayashi, former Blair Academy star, who has shown great improvement in the last several practices at center. He may be used in the backfield too.

Dave Kimura, a nisei, who played the game before and is well versed in line positions, will be at running guard position. He is a very hard running man, and hardly fails to get his man. He is a very tricky football player.

10 Flat Man

Jackie Tarr, former Cambridge University rugger star, will be playing at halfback. He is new at this game, with only one game under his belt, having played running guard against Meiji. He is showing much promise at his new position. He weighs 193 pounds and is a 10 flat man on track.

Namba, former Kansai University star, will be playing end, though a backfield man. He seems to show natural football technique. He may also play in the backfield, if so, at quarter. He is one of the best of the Kandai O.B.'s.

Iwai, another Kandai O.B., captain of the 1936 team, is practising at left halfback, and is one of the hardest hitting backs on the team, and a good blocker. He will not carry the ball often, but is the man to be watched on the defense.

"Lefty" Nakamura, a tough figure in any football game, is from Los Angeles, saw service while in high school at San Pedro, and also played for the San Pedro Japanese team. He will be playing at left end.

There will be at least six Kansai university stalwarts playing in the regular line-up.

The team's main offensive will be relied mostly on this stocky boy from Cambridge, Tarr, and Zolotareff. Fujii of Kansai will also be a figure to be watched. He is very shifty and a hard man to catch when he is on his way.

Kitamura, a Kansai "U" man, will be at the guard position doing his bit.

Reason Why Terry Wanted Craft

CINCINNATI,—(INS)—The reported anxiousness of Manager Bill Terry of the New York Giants to have outfielder Harry Craft included in a deal he had in mind with the Cincinnati Reds, immediately caused some of the seasoned baseball bugs to ask, "What makes this Craft guy so desirable?"

It surprised many to learn of the esteem in which the hustling young Texan is held by the manager of the National League's pennant winning team. A natural reaction has been the realization by the fans that in Craft the Reds must have a prospect who is worthy of some real consideration for the future.

Scouts who have combed the Western and International League territory claim he is definite major league stuff. The time element enters into it, for there exists some doubt, even among his most enthusiastic boosters, whether he is ready for the big time this season. A lack of sufficient experience may cause him to require more minor league competition, but the boy doesn't think so.

Only since 1935 has Craft been playing professional baseball. He started with Monessen in the Penn State League that year, batted .317, then moved to El Dorado in the Cotton States League for 1936. There he batted only .286, but indicated such possibilities that he was elevated from Class C to the Class A Waterloo team of the Western League.

At the start of the 1937 training period there was some concern in the Waterloo camp about the offensive ability of Mr. Craft. His background at El Dorado was cited, whereupon Bobby Wallace, chief of the Cincinnati scouts, went on record as saying that Harry would be one of the best ball players in the Western League, regardless of what he hit in the Cotton States Circuit.

Wallace's judgment proved itself. Craft was away like a million dollars. At the halfway mark he was the league's batting leader with an impressive .358 figure. His contract was then purchased by the Cincinnati Club and optioned to Syracuse in the International League, which was in need of a righthand hitting outfielder.

Craft reported to Manager Mike Kelly of the Chiefs and was placed in centerfield. Midway in the first game, Kelly kept yelling for him to back up. He moved back a little, but not enough to suit the manager. Just about that time, crack! A tremendous drive went to deep left center and the skipper was afraid to look. Why hadn't he stopped the ball game and forced Craft to play deeper?

So what happened? Craft turned and ran, wheeled again, and caught the ball easily. After that, Kelly allowed Craft to play a short centerfield because he was convinced of the boy's ability to go back on fly balls. He can do that better than he can go forward for them.

Craft's batting at Syracuse was impressive enough, for he slammed for a .311 average in 84 games, including 14 doubles, four triples and 10 homers in his 97 hit total. This showing caused the Reds to take him up to Cincinnati for a late season peek. He showed them plenty. He appeared in 10 games before an injury, sustained when he dove for a fly ball, put him on the shelf for the remaining few days of the season.

During that period he compiled a .310 average, gained on 13 hits in 42 times at bat. He showed his mettle in a pinch right away, for in a game with the Phillies, with the Reds leading 2 to 1 in the sixth, runners on second and third and two out, Jimmy Wilson ordered Ival Goodman passed to get at Craft. Bucky Walters was pitching. Smash! He sent a terrific liner up against the left-field wall, cleaning the bases, and convincing everybody that he doesn't choke up in a jam.

Craft will be 23 years old on opening day, April 19. He is 6 feet, 1 inch tall, weighs 180 pounds and bats and throws righthanded. He is very fast. He attended Mississippi College, where he played baseball, football and basketball. He captained the grid team in 1934.

Working Hard For The "Big" Game

Kongo Gets Draw With Champion

Iwao Kongo, up and coming protege of Kintaro Usuda, fought to a draw over 10 rounds with Yoichiro Hanada of the Teikoku Boxing Club, recognized flyweight champion of Japan, Tuesday night at the Hibiya Public Hall auditorium.

By far the cleverer boxer, Hanada took an early lead in the scoring with his effective counter-punches as he sidestepped out of the virtually blindly rushing Kongo. Had he unleashed a little more punch toward the end of the bout, he might have won the decision.

Kongo's two-fisted attack at the body, which he kept up continuously, often times found their marks and it cannot be denied that Hanada suffered. But if Kongo fails to develop a straight right, he will continue to have difficulty against a clever boxer of Hanada's type.

Kongo weighed in at 110 1-4 pounds and Hanada at 113 1-4 pounds.

In the other 10-round bout of the double main event, Takashi Sasazaki, hard hitting fighter of the Nippon Boxing Club, won by a technical knockout from Kotaro Suzuki, former lightweight champion of the country, after one minute 45 seconds of action in the seventh round. It was a battle royal for five rounds with Suzuki appearing in great physical shape. But the tide changed when he began to show signs of weariness in the sixth round. An avalanche of straight rights by Sasazaki sent Suzuki, leaning against the ropes, for a knockdown. Came a second knockdown and he was on the verge of being put to sleep. The fourth came before the gong. Suzuki kissed the canvas twice in the seventh and his seconds tossed in the towel.

Sasazaki weighed in at 129 pounds and Suzuki at 134 1-4 pounds.

Kiefer And Flanagan Going To South Africa

Adolf Kiefer, world's champion backstroker who showed his prowess here last Summer, accompanied by his coach, Stanley Brauinger, and Ralph Flanagan, America's best long ditsance star today, who competed at the recent Empire Games in Australia, are expected to go to South Africa for competition before returning to the United States, according to a special dispatch to the Yomiuri.

Flanagan competed in the national championships at the Meiji Shrine pool in 1935 but failed to place both in the 1,500 and 800 meter swims.

Town Model

The supervisor of art in the schools of Paterson, N.J., decided to have students model the town the way they would like to have it. The pupils made studies of zoning laws and airplane maps of well planned cities. Then they visited Paterson's railroad yards, a riverside dump that they wanted to transform into a boulevard, and an undeveloped acre that might still be well planned. They modeled in plasteline their proposed improvements including a boat club, sandy beaches, parking facilities, pedestrian passages underneath the boulevard, four lane highways, bridle paths, and model house groupings. Exhibits of the projects were made before civic organizations and later before the Housing Commission and attracted such wide attention that when the Women's Club got permission to develop a plot near the public library, Paterson pupils were asked to design models for it.—The American City

Schedule Is Out For Tokyo League

The schedule for the Spring season of the Tokyo Six University Baseball league was announced by the directors Tuesday night after their annual meeting at the league headquarters in the Marunouchi Building.

The traditional series between Keio and Waseda will be staged on Saturday and Sunday, June 4 and 5, the season coming to an end on the latter day.

Starting time of the first game of the doubleheaders will be 12:30 p.m. with the nightcap to be started 30 minutes after the close of the curtain-raiser.

The schedule follows:

Saturday, April 16: Meiji vs. Teidai (Tokyo Imperial University); Waseda vs. Rikkyo.
Sunday, April 17: Waseda vs. Rikkyo; Meiji vs. Teidai.
Saturday, April 23: Hosei vs. Rikkyo; Meiji vs. Keio.
Sunday, April 24: Meiji vs. Keio; Hosei vs. Rikkyo.
Saturday, April 30: Waseda vs. Teidai; Hosei vs. Keio.
Sunday, May 1: Hosei vs. Keio; Waseda vs. Teidai.
Saturday, May 7: Meiji vs. Rikkyo; Hosei vs. Teidai.
Sunday, May 8: Hosei vs. Teidai; Meiji vs. Rikkyo.
Saturday, May 14: Meiji vs. Waseda; Keio vs. Teidai.
Sunday, May 15: Keio vs. Teidai; Meiji vs. Waseda.
Saturday, May 21: Waseda vs. Hosei; Rikkyo vs. Keio.
Sunday, May 22: Rikkyo vs. Keio, Waseda vs. Hosei.
Saturday, May 28: Meiji vs. Hosei; Rikkyo vs. Teidai.
Sunday, May 29: Rikkyo vs. Teidai; Meiji vs. Hosei.
Saturday, June 4: Waseda vs. Keio, at 1 p.m.
Sunday, June 5: Waseda vs. Keio, at 1 p.m.

The admission prices will remain the same with the exception of the season reserved seats, to which the (China Incident) admission price tax will be added. The tax for the other seats, infield and outfield, will be assumed by the league.

The reserved seats will go on sale as follows: for those affiliated with the member colleges, March 28 to April 2; general public, on April 4.

Crisler Resigns AtPrinceton, Takes Post At Michigan

By ALLISON DANZIG
N.Y. Times

PRINCETON, N. J., Feb. 9—Herbert Orrin (Fritz) Crisler resigned tonight as head football coach at Princeton. He will assume the same post at Michigan and in the near future fill the chair of Fielding H. (Hurry Up) Yost as director of athletics.

As a climax to weeks of suspense and conflicting rumors, Crisler, following a final session with Michigan representatives Monday night in New York, asked to be released from his contract, which called for his services here through the 1939 season. The university council of athletics, in regular session tonight at the Nassau Club, with Crisler present, granted his request "with regret."

So, six years after he left Minnesota to lift Princeton football out of the doldrums of its drabbest period in history, the tall, darkhaired University of Chicago graduate heads back to the Big Ten. He returns with his future entrenched in the security which no football job alone can guarantee.

Statement by Professor Dell

Professor Burnham N. Dell, '12, chairman, issued the following statement tonight at the conclusion of a meeting of the university council on athletics:

"Herbert O. Crisler submitted his resignation as head coach of the football team of Princeton University at a meeting of the university council on athletics held Wednesday evening, Feb. 9. The council accepted his resignation with regret and released Mr. Crisler from his contract. No action will be taken in regard to a successor to Mr. Crisler."

No statement was made by Crisler or Professor Dell on terms of the offer which lured the former from his post at Princeton, one of the most prized of all football berths. Crisler refers to "additional duties in athletic administration" in his formal statement to the press, but it can be said more explicitly that he not only will succeed Harry Kipke as head coach but that he will relieve Yost within a year, or two at most, as the administrator of all athletic activities at Ann Arbor. It is understood that he will be given faculty ranking as a full professor.

Yost, a Michigan institution since the start of the century, when he was turning out "wonder teams," and the man responsible for the unsurpassed athletic plant at Ann Arbor, is eligible for retirement in 1941. It is unlikely, however, that he will continue in harness until then. His health has been failing and Crisler is expected to shoulder the burden as soon as details have been completed.

More Than Just a Coach

Michigan's problem was to find not only a successor to Kipke as football coach but a man of the character, leadership and executive ability to administer its entire athletic set-up and make whatever changes are necessary in the coaching personnel all along the line to bring about a revival of the Wolverines' high athletic fortunes. It was a long-range proposition, and that was the only kind of deal in which Crisler was interested.

Manifestly, it would have taken a stronger inducement than another coaching job, even at so influential a university of Michigan's prestige and traditions, to have persuaded Crisler to sever his cordial relations with Princeton. It is not likely that even the temptation of a larger salary would have requited to lure him away, despite the fact that Princeton, along with Harvard and Yale, is limited by agreement in its football coaching budget and does not pay the fancy sums that do some of the other colleges. Crisler is understood to have been paid in the neighborhood of $7,000 annually.

Crisler said tonight: "No coach ever had happier relations than I have enjoyed at Princeton. I don't need to say that it would take more than another coaching job to make me give up such enjoyable associations."

"BELIEVE IT OR NOT" --by Ripley

The Moving Bullet

Four years ago, when Robert Burnett was living with his family in Greenville, Alabama, a playmate accidentally shot him in the left temple with a rifle. A physician could not find the shot, but told the parents he knew it did not enter the boy's skull. In the course of time, the Burnetts almost forgot the matter until the last week of September, 1937, when the boy discovered the bullet under the skin of his left hand. Doctors say the bullet moved through the boy's body without doing any harm whatever.

"Nix's Mate"

In Boston Harbor between Long Island and Gallop's Island, is the strange black-and-white monument, about 32 feet high, known as "Nix's Mate," marking the spot where an island disappeared.

More than 200 years ago it was an island of tragedy and terror; bodies of pirates were hung up in chains and their bones exposed on gibbets as a spectacle of warning to others.

The familiar history of the island, as told down the Harbor, relates that a Captain Nix was hanged there for the murder of his master. The mate insisted that he was innocent, and told the executioner that as proof of his innocence, the island would be washed away. It was. And today, at low tide, all that remains of an island of 12 acres is a gravelly shoal on which the sinister monument rests.

I.O.C. RETAINS SAPPORO AS WINTER GAMES SITE

12th Olympics To Be Held In Tokyo, Sept. 21-Oct. 6, Is Decision Made At Cairo

Domei Tsushin

CAIRO, March 16—Marking the second victory gained by Japan today, the plenary session of the International Olympic Committee, which is now in session here, this afternoon decided that the Fifth Winter Olympic Games would be held in Sapporo in February, 1940.

Japan Upheld

Domei Tsushin

CAIRO, March 16—Japan's right to stage the 1940 Olympic Games at Tokyo was firmly upheld by the plenary session of the International Olympic Committee here today when the body flatly rejected the Chinese delegate's request that the Games be held elsewhere. The Games will be held from September 21 to October 6 instead of in August because of the Japanese climate.

The Committee in flatly rejecting the request by the Chinese delegate Dr. C. T. Wang, this morning published an official communique accepting the Japanese report. The communique is as follows:

"The Japanese representative, Mr. Kano having assured the committee that Tokyo is ready to carry on the 1940 Games, the Committee, keeping with the terms of the Olympic charter which does not give it the right to modify the decision already taken regarding the attribution of the Games, does not believe that it is able to uphold Mr. Wang's request for designating another town for the Games."

The Committee after accepting the Japanese report on the Games passed a resolution stipulating that the International Exhibition which is also to be held in 1940 must be closed at least one month before the opening of the athletic contests, otherwise, Tokyo would not be allowed to organize the Games.

The Committee suggested to members of the Japanese Organizing Committee certain alterations with a view to making the first Olympic Games held in Asia a complete success. The body also decided that the rules governing the Art Exhibition would be based entirely upon experience obtained during the last Olympics in Berlin in 1936 and previous exhibitions.

Burghley Is Silent

Domei Tsushin

LONDON, March 16—Apparently flabbergasted by the comparative easy victory gained by Japan at the Cairo meeting, Lord Burghley, British member of the International Olympic Committee, today declined to comment upon the I. O. C.'s decision upholding Japan until he was able to consult with his colleagues, including Lord Aberdare.

H. F. Pash, member of the general committee of the British A. A. U., however, declared that there would be no support from British athletes for the 1940 Games at Tokyo.

Outlining the reasons why the A.A.U. here is opposed to the Games, Mr. Pash asserted that in view of the recent international events many clubs consider that the Games have ceased to fulfil its original purpose, and therefore, should be discontinued altogether.

The British athletic organizations, he concluded, are beginning to regard the Olympiad as a kind of a gigantic advertisement for promoting the sponsoring country. Athletes of some countries, he charged, are being trained at public expense.

Appreciating the services rendered by the Japanese delegates to the I.O.C. plenary session which confirmed Japan's right to stage the Olympic Games in 1940, Takashi Goh, chairman of the Contest Committee of the Olympic Organizing Committee, pointed out Wednesday afternoon that the question remains unsolved as yet regarding the time to open the Games.

That the committee approved the proposal to hold the Games in the second half of September must be admitted as a proper measure from the viewpoint of sports although it may be unsatisfactory to the American and British delegates who wanted the Games in August to meet the convenience of student athletes. Whether the opening ceremony will be held on September 16 or on September 22 is a matter of great concern in view of the Japan Swimming Federation's opposition to the meet in October, Mr. Goh added.

The Japanese delegates have been fully informed of these circumstances previously and they will make their utmost to persuade the other delegates, he said.

After receiving a telegram from Cairo, Prince Iyesato Tokugawa, chairman of the O.O.C. issued Wednesday the following statement: "The Tokyo Games is a fact that was already decided but it is further joy to learn the certainty and the clearness of the Games. Therefore all preparations will be carried on at top speed. And it is my hope that the future preparations will be carried out with the close cooperation of the Government and the people to make this great undertaking a success."

O.O.C. Asks Swimming Be Held At The Outset Of '40 Olympic Games

A request that the swimming championships of the 1940 Olympic Games be started on September 22, the day after the opening of the Games, was sent by Takashi Goh, chairman of the contest committee of the Olympic Organizing Committee, Wednesday night to the Japanese delegation at Cairo.

As the result of an emergency meeting of the Japan Swimming Federation Wednesday afternoon, Ikkaku Matsuzawa, who led the Japanese men's team to victory at Los Angeles in 1932 and at Berlin in 1936, called on Mr. Goh and said that the swimming events should be held at the outset of the meet, else the temperature of the water would be too cold for the contestants. Ordinarily, the swimming competition is held during the last week of the Games.

For the training of foreign swimmers, the Federation decided to construct two or three pools equipped with heating systems.

Cornell Defeats Yale, 59 To 54, In Track Meet

ITHACA, N.Y., Feb. 19—Cornell's Big Red track and field forces won the annual indoor dual meet with Yale, 59 to 54, tonight by taking the mile relay, final event on the program, after the Elis swept the pole vault, came from way behind and tied the count.

Doubles by Lester Murdock in the broad jump and high jump—the former with a meet record leap of 23 feet 2½ inches—paced the Big Red athletes as they took a commanding lead in the early events, only to see it wiped out when Ted Day and Jay Shields ran one-two for Yale in both hurdles and Bill Harding led a trio of Yale vaulters to places in their specialty.

Day and Shields, in winning both the high and low hurdles, twice bested the intercollegiate outdoor champion, Ham Hucker, Cornell captain.

John Nevius was Murdock's cohero for Cornell. He won the 440-yard run in 50.6 seconds and then anchored the relay team whose victory put the meet on ice.

In addition to Murdock's record broad jump leap, outstanding performances were by Yale's John Congdor, with a meet record of 1:56.3 in the 880, and Nick Kerr, another Blue, equaled the meet record of 7.6 in the 75-yard dash.

Robert Campbell, Yale pole vaulter, was on the sidelines, having suffered a slight injury when he was accidentally struck by a weight.

The summaries:

35-pound weight throw—Won by William McKeever, Cornell, 51 feet 2¼ inches; John Castle, Yale, 50 feet 1¼ inches, second; Malcolm Finlayson, Yale, 46 feet 3 inches, third.

Broad jump—Won by Lester Murdock, Cornell, 23 feet 2½ inches (meet record); Hunt Ethridge, Yale, 22 feet 2¼ inches, second; John Ferguson, Yale, 22 feet 1¾ inches, third.

One mile run—Won by Ed Mezitt, Cornell; Gus Bentley, Cornell, second; Ben Holderness, Yale, third. Time, 4:27.2.

440-yard run—Won by John Nevius, Cornell; Frank W. Curtis, Yale, second; Ben Levy, Cornell, third. Time—0:50.6.

75-yard dash—Won by Nicholas Kerr, Yale; Walter Tatum, Cornell, second; James Pender, third. Time—0:07.6 (equals meet record).

16-pound shot-put—Won by Alfred Van-Ranst, Cornell, 45 feet 10¼ inches; Ralph Vreland, Cornell, 43 feet ⅝ of an inch, second; Anthony Walker, Yale, 41 feet 8¼ inches, third.

75-yard high hurdles—Won by Theo. Day, Yale; Jay Shields, Yale, second; J. Hamilton Hucker, Cornell; third. Time—0:09.4.

Two-mile run—Won by Howard Welch, Cornell; Joseph Fox, Yale, second; Emory Wingerter, Cornell, third. Time—9:35.8.

Running high jump—Won by Lester Murdock, Cornell, 5 feet 10 inches, Eugene Bliss, Yale, 5 feet 3 inches, second; Louis Mathis, Cornell, 5 feet 8 inches, third. (Bliss awarded second place for fewer misses).

880-yard run—Won by John R. Congdon, Yale; Ben Levy, Cornell, second; Harold Shepard, Cornell, third. Time—1:56.3 (new meet and drill-hall record).

75-yard low hurdles—Won by Theodore Day, Yale; Jay Shields, Yale, second; J. Hamilton Hucker, Cornell, third. Time—0:08.2 (equals meet and drill-hall record).

Pole vault—Won by William H. Harding, Yale, 13 feet 6 inches; Thomas A. Lussen, Yale, 13 feet, second; Eugene Bliss, Yale, 12 feet 6 inches, third.

One-mile relay—Won by Cornell (Walter Zittel, Max Breitenbach, J. Hamilton Hucker, John Nevius); Yale, second. Time—3:28.

World Skating Title Won By Miss Horn In Oslo

OSLO, Norway, Feb. 19 — Miss Maddy Horn, of Beaver Dam, Wis., 1937 United States women's speed-skating champion, won the world's 500-meter women's title today, skating the distance in 51.7 seconds.

Leo Freisinger, of Chicago, won a men's 500-meter race in 42.9 seconds, with Hans Engnestangen, of Norway, second, in 43.1, and Marvin Swanson, of Minneapolis, third, in 43.5.

All Set For Grid Clash Next Monday

Here are members of the Kanto all-star team which will take on the Kansai all-stars next Monday afternoon at 2:30 at the Meiji Shrine stadium in the first East versus West American football game. They are:

Kanto Eleven Favored To Beat Kansai In U.S. Football Game

Its line composed in the main of stalwarts from the championship Waseda team and the backfield of able ball toters from Meiji, runner-up of the Tokyo Intercollegiate American Football league last season, the Kanto All-star team is a favorite to down the Kansai All-Stars next Monday afternoon at the Meiji Shrine stadium in the forerunner of annual East versus West contests on the gridiron.

Under Coach "Kats" Nakamoto, the boys are going through strenuous workouts daily at the Meiji University athletic grounds at Daitabashi.

Masa Shimoda, one of the greatest football players of Japanese ancestry ever in Honolulu, where interscholastic football of high caliber is played, and who coached Waseda to the championship over Meiji in the 1937 season, will take one of the wing positions. There is no better receiver of passers in Tokyo. Then he is fast, and he is going to cause the Kansai safety man plenty of trouble. Paired with him on the other flank will be Nomura, rugged Waseda player who was one of the outstanding players of the Tokyo league.

Ogura of Rikkyo and Shimamura of Waseda are likely to receive the assignment at tackles when the whistle blows to open this epochal game. Nishioka of Waseda and Watanabe of Meiji will be ready to go in at any time.

Ando of Rikkyo and Uyeno of Waseda are slated to open the game at guards, with Fujioka of Waseda and Kurokawa of Meiji, ready to take their places.

At center will be Fukuda, former McKinley high school star of Honolulu, who in the championship clash against Meiji at the Korakuen stadium snared a pass and romped 65 yards for a touchdown late in the game.

Captain Hiromu Hata of Meiji will do most of the signal calling. He is also one of the best ball carriers in the league. Noguchi of Waseda, shifty player, will alternate with him.

There is a wealth of material in the halfbacks. There is Kunishige of Meiji, perhaps the fastest man in the Tokyo circuit, who with any sort of interference given him, is likely to get away for a touchdown. Nakamura of Rikkyo is considered the best triple threat man in Tokyo. Undoubtedly, he is the best punter. Yasuda and Ebesu of Meiji too are players of the first water.

Naito of Waseda and Fujioka of Meiji will take care of the fullback position. Both are hard plunging backs.

Rutgers Routs Springfield In Swimming, 57 To 13

NEW BRUNSWICK, N. J., Feb. 19—Rutgers crushed Springfield's swimmers, 57 to 13, before a Junior Prom week-end crowd of 1,000 today. Jimmy Rawstrom, the only winner for Springfield, took the 400-yard race in 5:14.3.

The summaries:

300-yard medley relay—Won by Rutgers (Paret, van Nostrand and Campbell); Springfield (Praynes, Polindorf and Robinson), second. Time, 3:23.2.

220-yard free style—Won by Reilly, Rutgers; Rawstrom, Springfield, second; Kirk, Rutgers, third. Time, 2:18.7.

50-yard dash—Won by Lakamp, Rutgers; McWhinney, Rutgers, second; Hatch, Springfield, third. Time, 0:24.7.

100-yard dash—Won by Rose, Rutgers; Barnes, Rutgers, second; Page, Springfield, third. Time, 0:55.3.

Fancy Diving—Won by Dejta, Rutgers (96.87 points), Noonan, Springfield (90.23), second; Steadman, Rutgers (71.20), third.

150-yard back stroke—Won by Parret, Rutgers; Hatch, Springfield, second; Winter, Rutgers, third Time. 1:47.2.

200-yard breast stroke—Won by Zimko, Rutgers; Christensen, Rutgers, second; Murphy, Springfield, third. Time, 2:34.4.

440-yard swim—Won by Rawstrom, Springfield; Kirk, Rutgers, second; Rauft, Springfield, third. Time, 5:14.3.

400-yard free-style relay—Won by Rutgers (Darby, McWhinney, Lakamp and Reilly); Springfield (Page, Blanchard, Hartman and Hatch), second. Time, 3:45.4.

Oxford Crew Sets New Course Record Of 11 Mins. 31 Secs.

Domei Tsushin

LONDON, March 15—Training hard to get into top form before the historic Oxford-Cambridge regatta, the Oxford crew today set a new course record in a practice race when it stroked from Putney Bridge to Chiswick Steps in 11 minutes 31 seconds. The previous record, also held by Oxford, was 11 minutes 55 seconds.

Both the Oxford and Cambridge crews today started training in earnest as they rowed up and down the full course.

Yale's Boxing Squad Defeats Rutgers, 5 To 3

Herald Tribune

NEW HAVEN, Conn., Feb. 19—Yale boxers defeated Rutgers, 5 to 3 tonight. The visitors scored a single knockout, Gutzmiller compelling Jones to retire in the 145-pound event. The summaries:

Unlimited weight class—Smith, Yale, defeated Kutlikoff, referee's decision.

"BELIEVE IT OR NOT" --by Ripley

The Sweating Image

This sacred image of the Lord in the Church of El Prado in Lima, Peru, is believed by the natives to shed drops of perspiration whenever the tax burden of the Peruvians becomes too great. This serves as a powerful check on the tax rapacity of the authorities, who fear nothing as much as the reaction of the sweating image.

Anti-Freeze Lake

Fickle Dame Nature manifests one of her oddest pranks on the farm of Sidney Davies, Cassville, New York, in the form of a small lake fed by two springs, which remains at an even temperature of 40 degrees F. the year around. Wintry blasts that send the mercury down below zero, do not affect the lake in the least. Watercress grows all year, trout and frogs are found there in Winter when all other waters of Central New York are frozen solid, and wild ducks migrate there to feed on the cress. In Summer the pond is also a boon, for while other bodies of water warm up, the pond remains at 40 degrees, and farmers immerse their milk, butter and eggs in it to keep them cool.

American College Athletes Able To Attend Olympics In Late Sept., Says Hoyt

Domei Tsushin

CHICAGO, March 16—Despite the inconveniences which will be caused by the postponement of the opening of the 1940 Olympic Games from August to late September to avoid summer heat, American college athletes will manage to take part in the Games if they succeed in qualifying to do so, Samuel Hoyt, president of the Amateur Athletic Union, said in an interview with the press here today.

Mr. Hoyt admitted that the International Olympic Committee's decision yesterday to shift the dates of the 1940 Games may prove greatly disadvantageous to Americans. He predicted, however, that most of the college students, if elected to represent Japan at the Games, will arrange somehow to go to Japan.

Blow To American Athletes

Domei Tsushin

NEW YORK, March 16—The International Olympic Committee's decision to defer the opening of the 1940 Tokyo Olympics from August until the latter part of September will prove a serious blow to American athletes, Daniel Ferris, secretary of the American Amateur Athletic Association, declared to the press here today.

The decision, declared Mr. Ferris, will particularly affect the track and field athletes, who have always been drafted more from college students than those taking part in other parts of the Olympic program. These student athletes, he said, will be unable to participate if the competitions continued into October.

"Many athletes qualified to take part in the 1940 Olympics will probably be undergraduates," he declared. "Though better ones will be given leaves of absence by college officials, they still would be risking the loss of a half year or even a full year in school."

The I.O.C., now in annual session aboard a steamer cruising down the Nile towards Cairo, yesterday approved the proposal for postponement of the opening of the 1940 Olympics, ruling out strong opposition from Avery Brundage, chairman of the American Olympic Committee, and some other delegates, who insisted that the Games should be opened in August as previously scheduled.

British Rediscussing Boycott

Domei Tsushin

LONDON, March 17—In view of the International Olympic Committee's failure to take the 1940 Games away from Tokyo, the British Amateur Athletic Union will rediscuss the question of whether it should boycott the Games at its annual general meeting on Saturday, it was reported here this morning. Authoritative sources said that the issue will be taken up despite the fact that it is not on the agenda of the meeting.

Tamio Abe Requested To Publicize Games While On Tour Abroad

Tamio Abe, manager and captain of the Davis Cup team, who left Tokyo Thursday with Fumiteru Nakano to board the Terukuni Maru today from Kobe for Naples, has been requested by the Tokyo Olympic Organizing Committee to do all that he can toward publicizing the 12th Olympic Games in Tokyo, while on his visit to various countries in Europe and in Canada and the United States.

A former Davis Cup player and a resident for sometime in London, there is no better person for the task because of his wide acquaintance of sports figures.

Scientists Start Test Of Baseballs

N.Y. Times

WASHINGTON, Feb. 19 — The National Bureau of Standards has started perhaps the most sporting scientific research of its history, the Department of Commerce announced today. It is trying to find out scientifically whether the baseballs to be used next season by the American and International Leagues are livelier than those of the National League.

The project was undertaken at the request of Clark Griffith, president of the Washington Nationals, and because of the considerable public interest in the matter, the task proved more difficult than expected.

Ordinarily, it was explained, the resilience or "liveliness" of a body would be determined by allowing it to rebound from a hard surface, but this method will not work with baseballs because "the pitcher bounces the baseball off the bat in a home-run hit with relative speeds far greater than can be obtained by dropping from any reasonable height" even the Washington Monument, the announcement said.

While the speed of a falling object has not been accurately determined, the bureau stated, it is believed that air resistance retards the object's progress so that it soon reaches a constant speed of around 120 feet per second.

So the bureau, under the direction of Dr. H. L. Dryden, chief of the mechanics and sound division, built its own scientific baseball bat to make the tests. The machine consists of an air gun which shoots a one-pound hardwood projectile, representing the bat, at speeds up to 200 feet per second against the ball.

After impact the projectile and ball are caught in ballistic pendulums, by means of which thir speeds can be determined. The resilience or "liveliness" will be measured by the ratio of the relative speed after impact to the relative speed before impact.

Kaspar, Austria, Wins In World Figure Skating

BERLIN, Feb. 19—Felix Kaspar, of Austria, won the world men's figure skating championship today.

Graham Sharp, of England, was second trailed by Herbert Alward, of Austria; Horst Faber, of Germany, and F. W. E. Tomlins, of England, in that order. No Americans participated.

Melton Of Giants Accepts Contract

By JOHN DREBINGER

N.Y. Times

HOT SPRINGS, Ark., Feb. 19—With the squad augmented by the presence of Hank Leiber and spurred into action by a wintry blast, the Giants' expeditionary forces received their first taste of air-conditioning in the Ozarks today as Colonel Bill Terry led his squad on a five-mile hike through the mountains.

Picking out a convenient peak, of which there is no end in these parts, the old colonel marched his athletes up to the top, then let them come down as well as they knew how.

As might be expected, the lean and long-striding Cliff Melton and Carl Hubbell, closely followed by the remarkably trim Freddy Lindstrom, were first to cover the course, although the leaders had a narrow escape from being run down at the bottom when Walter Brown's brake linings gave way.

A Rapid Descent

Going up had been a slow and laborious business for the 250-pound pitcher, but once he started on the down grade he gathered momentum so rapidly that in the final furlong he practically swept the countryside.

Melton, of course, enjoyed the hike tremendously. In fact, the towering Cliff of North Carolina, being right at home when it comes to stepping over mountain peaks, returned in such fine spirits that without further ado he signed his 1938 contract.

Reducing Process to Start

The big blond barged in from Arizona during the night and looks robust enough to pick up any one of these mountain peaks. The task of streamlining Hank is to begin at once, and Terry estimates that by Monday or Tuesday the big fellow should be sufficiently reduced to sign a contract.

The same program of hiking and bathing is to be followed tomorrow with Gus Mancuso in charge. Terry, with two of his children ill in Memphis, left immediately after today's workout to spend the week-end at home and will not return until Monday morning.

Off For Honors In Tennis

Leaving on the Terukuni Maru from Kobe at 3 p.m. today are Fumiteru Nakano, Yasumine Kuramitsu and Tamio Abe, members of the Davis Cup team for this year, for Naples to appear in goodwill matches in Italy and Germany; then to compete in the French and British championships at Paris and Wimbledon respectively, and off to the United States for competition in the American zone of the Davis Cup play. Photo shows Nakano (left) and Abe as they left Tokyo Station Thursday. Bidding them farewell is Jiro Yamagishi, No. 1 player, who will leave in June and join his colleagues in New York.

Yale Conquers Cornell, 45-30, In Swim Meet

NEW HAVEN, Conn., Feb. 19—Yale swimmers won another match today when Cornell, appearing in the Payne Whitney pool for the first time, went down to defeat, 45 to 30. Bob Cloyes, Cornel captain, won both dashes and anchored a winning Cornell relay quartet in which the visitor's leader came from behind to win by a touch.

In a preliminary match the Yale freshmen defeated the Montclair Y. M. C. A., 50 to 16. The freshmen also won in basketball, turning back an hitherto undefeated Bridgeton Academy five from Maine, 41 to 28. In fencing they outpointed the Dartmouth freshmen, 16 to 11.

The Yale junior varsity fencers defeated Dartmouth fencers, 15 to 12.

The summaries:

300-yard medley relay—Won by Yale (Mackey, Van Sant, Higgins); second, Cornell (Turner, Robinson, Luke). Time, 3:13.1.

220-yard free style—Won by Burrows, Yale; second, Gene Thorpe, Cornell; third, Bryan, Yale. Time, 2:22.1.

Princeton Wins Over Penn In Swim, 45 To 30

Herald Tribune

PRINCETON, N.J., Feb. 19—The Princeton swimming team registered its seventh straight victory and its third in Eastern League competition, 45 to 30, over Pennsylvania this afternoon.

Paced by Hank Van Oss, who won the 100-yard free style and took second in the 50, the Tigers won six firsts, five seconds and three thirds. It was the first meet this year in which they have not broken a pool, Princeton, or national intercollegiate record.

The best race was the 50-yard free style, in which Captain Paul Williams, of Pennsylvania, maintained his undefeated status at that distance by defeating Van Oss and Bill Shand, of Princeton, in a three-way blanket finish in the indifferent time of 0:24.7.

Al Vande Weghe, Princeton backstroker, was unofficially clocked in 1:35.6 in the 150-yard back stroke, below all existing intercollegiate marks, but the 1:36.2 awarded him by two of the three official timers deprived him of a record. The lanky sophomore was eighteen yards ahead of Ken Torrington, a team-mate, at the finish.

The summaries:

300-yard medley relay—Won by Princeton (Torrington, Hough, Harper); Pennsylvania (Tolan, Weeks, Jack), second. Time, 3:09.3.

Barth Is Stopped By Steele In 7th In Cleveland Bout

CLEVELAND, Feb. 19—Freddie Steele of Tacoma, Wash., retained his middleweight championship tonight by stopping Carmen Barth after 2:19 of the seventh round of their scheduled fifteen-round bout. Barth's followers tossed in the towel after he had been knocked down four times. James J. Braddock, former heavyweight champion, was the referee.

Steele weighed 159 and Barth 159¼.

From the second through the fifth round they fought a close battle, with Barth, who was Olympic middleweight champion in 1932, showing a surprisingly effective left-hand attack.

But Steele's incessant right and left pounding was too much for the Clevelander in the sixth and seventh.

Braddock essayed the third man's job without fee to help along the charity for which the bout was staged.

The Associated Press score card gave Steele the last three rounds, with Barth taking the second and third, and with the first and fourth even.

Barth's early aggressiveness told the story, for by the time the action was half through he was a wobbly match for the West Coast fighter's tremendously effective one-two to the body. Barth's left was a good weapon while it lasted. With it he held off the champion, and time after time slammed telling blows to Steele's head.

In the second Barth landed all over the titleholder, but the blows hardly upset Steele. Barth made a half dozen lefts count a little earlier as Steele was getting in barely one. Steele started a stunning body attack in the third, but Barth readily uncovered and slammed lefts and rights to Steele's head a dozen times and then to his body a dozen more.

Barth got his own one-two working in the fourth, but Steele held him most of the way. The former Olympic winner found the going tough in the fifth, with the fast pace of the earlier rounds showing their effect.

Steele started his uppercut going in the sixth and Barth went down for the count of eight, then for a count of two, the latter on Steele's haymaking right. Barth came back for a second of gameness, but fell for an eight-count on the rebound of his own right. Steele was within an ace of a knockout at the bell.

Barth still was able to put over one good right and a left in the seventh, but Steele was following up to his body. The champion's right sent Barth down to eight, then Steele slammed his body viciously and went at his head. Finally, with Barth wobbling floorward, the towel came floating in.

The attendance was 5,142 and the receipts approximately $11,000.

In a semi-final bout following the main event Eddie Morgan, 160, Cleveland, gained the decision over Leonard Bennett, 160, Detroit.

Glider Contests Officially Added To Olympics List

Domei Tsushin

CAIRO, March 17—The German proposal to include glider contests in the Olympic program was approved by the International Olympic Committee, now in its annual session aboard a steamer cruising down the Nile, today.

Proceeding to take up the question of where the 1944 Olympics should be held, the I. O. C. considered Budapest, Lausanne, Helsingfors, Athens and London as possible candidates. Saint Moritz and Oslo were mentioned as possible sites for 1944 Winter Games.

The I. O. C. also decided to hold its next annual session at London in June, 1939, accepting the invitation forwarded by Lord Aberdare, British delegate.

U.S.C. Coach Raps

Domei Tsushin

BERKELEY, Calif., March 17—Charging that professionalism is entering the Olympic Games, Brutus Hamilton, a coach of the University of Southern California, in an interview with the press here today, strongly assailed the International Olympic Committee's decision to defer the opening of the 1940 Tokyo Olympiad from August to late September.

The postponement, he predicted, will ultimately result in America's abandonment of participation in the Games. Trojan athletes, he said, will lose at least two months from the fall term if they participate in the Tokyo Olympiad, while students of schools opening later than Californian universities will lose one month's studies.

Italy Not Bidding

Domei Tsushin

CAIRO, March 17—Italy, which in 1937 was loudly clamoring for the bid to hold the 1940 Olympic Games, failed to bid for the 1944 Games, the International Olympic Committee revealed here today. Italian delegates today could not be reached for comment.

Five other nations—Britain, Finland, Greece, Hungary and Switzerland—have thrown in their candidacy for the 1944 contests, while bidders for the Sixth Winter Games included St. Moritz and Oslo.

Rome's failure to bid surprised sports circles here since it is known that Italy virtually gave Japan the 1940 Contests.

Meanwhile, reports from Rome indicate that the failure of the Italian delegates to put in their bid have surprised Italian sports circles. Sources close to the Italian Olympic Committee, it is learned, could not explain the reason. They indicated, however, that Italy had been expecting to have the Games.

Cambridge's Hopes Mount For Victory Over Oxford Crew

Domei Tsushin

LONDON, March 17—Cambridge University's hopes of winning the historic regatta with Oxford for a second consecutive year, soared today when the crew stroked down the Thames in magnificent style in 18 minutes 49 seconds.

Today's practice race was over a complete course from Putney to Mortlake and according to available records, only five crews have made this time in the actual lake and only two during practice. Cambridge holds the course record of 18 minutes 3 seconds made in 1934.

Oxford, meanwhile, after a beautiful practice race last Tuesday when it rowed from Putney Bridge to Chiswick Steps in 11 minutes 31 seconds, continued to train hard to retain the Thames title she won last year.

Since the turn of the century, Oxford has won only six of the 29 races and never two in a row. Last year, after 13 consecutive Cambridge victories, Oxford came through to win.

Striking one of the best Spring times this year the Cambridge crew today began stroking at 35½ to the minute, but after Hammersmith Bridge, with the wind dead against them, lowered the pitch to 31. At the end of the course, however, the pitch was again raised to 37 per minute.

Judo Meet Planned For Italian Mission At Kodokan, Mar. 23

Members of the Italian goodwill mission scheduled to arrive this afternoon from Nagasaki will be special guests at judo exhibition matches to be given at the Kodokan at Suidobashi on March 23, next Wednesday, between 4 and 5 in the afternoon.

On Saturday, March 26, they will see mass training of young men at the Meiji Shrine stadium between 3 and 4:30 in the afternoon.

Then between 4:30 and 5 p.m. the same day, they will look over the facilities at the Outer Gardens of the Meiji Shrine for the 12th Olympic Games.

From 5:30 p.m. Sunday, they will be guests at a welcome reception given by the Tokyo Olympic Organizing Committee at the New Grand Restaurant.

Yokohama To See New Interport Series Tonight

(Special To The Japan Times)

YOKOHAMA, March 19—Today will inaugurate the first interport series between the Yokohama Sport Club and the Kobe C. Y. M. A. at 7:30 o'clock tonight, the invaders from Kobe will meet the All Black ping pong team in a series of singles and doubles matches at the St. Joseph's gymnasium. Tomorrow at 2:30 p.m. the soccer teams of both clubs will meet on St. Joseph's grounds.

The Kobe soccer team is reported to have been practicing earnestly for the matches and it is believed that they have a strong outfit. However dopesters think that unless the unexpected happens, the home team should come out the victor. The All Black ping pong team should clean up the tournament, judging from the past performances of both teams.

Pennants and trophies will be exchanged by the two clubs to mark the beginning of athletic relations between them. Tomorrow night at 8 o'clock, a dinner will be held in honor of the visiting team and their friends at the Restaurant Hungary. A large turnout is expected since most of the visitors are longtime residents here and have many friends in this city.

The line-ups follow:

Dartmouth Keeps Ski Union Crown, Sweeping 4 Tests

By FRANK ELKINS

N.Y. Times

MIDDLEBURY, Vt., Feb. 19—Dartmouth's athletes gave another remarkable demonstration of all-around skiing technique in successfully defending their Intercollegiate Ski Union team championship as the annual two-day competition ended today in ideal weather.

The Indians from Hanover, whose exploits on steel edges and wooden runners have gained them worldwide fame, rolled up the high score of 499.6 points to spread-eagle the remainder of the field.

Far behind them came the skiers of McGill University, who finished as expected in second place with 445.1, while the University of New Hampshire was third with 398.5. The University of Vermont, Amherst and Williams, the only other outfits to score more than 300 markers, followed in that order.

Perfect Score Last Year

As brilliant as Dartmouth's team victory was, it did not quite equal that of last year, when the Hanoverians made a perfect score of 500 at Ste. Marguerites. However, the winners were called upon to prove their vaunted skill in snow conditions that probably have never before obtained in the history of the I. S. U.

A remarkable comeback by the red-shirted squad from McGill, long a powerful figure in amateur and intercollegiate circles across the border, in the final event, the jump, prevented Coach Walter Pragers's team from making a grand slam. Even in the jump only a slim fourtenths of a point separated Dartmouth from McGill.

In addition to annexing team honors, Dartmouth captured all five individual titles. Ted Hunter, Warren Chivers and the latter's younger brother Howard gained the slalom, jumping and combined langlauf and jumping championships today. Yesterday Dick Durance annexed the downhill and Captain Dave Bardley the cross-country laurels for Dartmouth.

Giving a performance that left little to be desired in ski technique, the 160-pound Hunter led the Indians to another decisive victory this morning as team-mates carried off the next two places in the slalom.

Wells Beats Durrance

By the margin of almost three seconds—a big advantage in this type of race—the Eastern amateur kingpin conquered his team-mate, Ed Wells, who in turn beat the famous Durrance, thereby giving the Green the third perfect score in a row. In yesterday's downhill and cross-country, Dartmouth, whose accomplishments include victories in South America, Europe and Australia, also placed three men before any other unit to gain 100 points in each.

In the ski jump, which ended in darkness, Warren Chivers timed his flights superbly from the hardpaced take-off to soar the longest distances of the day, 94 and 97 feet.

Despite the use of a shortened in-run, made necessary by the icy condition of the old snow, Chivers displayed absolute mastery of his skis both in the air and upon landing. He scored 33.4 points to win. Two McGill athletes, Christen Mamen and Bob Johannsen, followed with 32.6 and 32.

After many hours of working over figures, the judges finally emerged from a huddle tonight and reported that Howard Chivers had won the combined langlauf and ski jumping title, and that Warren Chivers and Dave Bradley were next, thus giving the powerful Green squad another clean sweep of 100 points.

After last night's rain storm it was doubious whether today's slalom and jump would be held as scheduled. An air of gloom had settled over this village, which was entertaining a record influx for the outstanding college meet of the year, being held in conjunction with Middlebury College's annual carnival. When the elements relented today and presented ideal conditions, real carnival spirit prevailed.

Canadian Natator Sets Two Marks

N.Y. Times

SYDNEY, Australia, Feb. 9—Bob Pirie, lanky Canadian Olympic swimmer, gained major honors today in the swimming competition of the 1938 British Empire games. Pirie, 6-foot-4 Toronto athlete, cracked Empire records in the 110-yard and 440-yard free-style events.

In addition to Pirie's pair of new marks another record was lowered by Miss Dorothy Green of Australia, who chopped 5.7 seconds off the old mark in winning the 440-yard women's free-style race in 5:39.7.

Pirie clipped 1.2 seconds from his own record as he swam the 110-yards in 0:59.6, and then splashed the quarter-mile in 4:54.6, taking 5.2 seconds off the record set in 1930.

Anchor on Relay Team

In between his record-shattering performances, he anchored Canada's 880-yard relay team, swimming his 220-yard leg in 2:13, but he was unable to overhaul Norman Wainwright, who stayed in front to bring England victory in the event.

Walter Spence, one-time Rutgers University ace, now competing for British Guiana, finished second behind John Davies of England in the 220-yard breast-stroke final.

Australians took most of the individual honors during the day. In addition to Miss Green's record performance, Miss Irene Donnett won the springboard diving title; R. Master took the men's springboard event; Miss Evelyn de Lacy won the women's 110-yard free style title in 1:10.1, and Miss Pat Norton captured the women's 110-yard backstroke crown in 1:19.5.

Douglas Tomalin of England won the men's tower dive laurels.

Australia's four-oared shell with coxswain defeated New Zealand boatload in that order in their competition.

Famed Austrian Skier Is Arrested By Nazis

Domei Tsushin

GENEVA, March 17—The Kandahar downhill-slalom ski race, an annual event held at the birthplace in Austrian Tyrol of Hannes Schneider, famed Austrian skier, will be cancelled this year because of his arrest on Tuesday upon the suspicion of anti-Nazi activities, it was reported here today.

New Ball Aids Pitchers, Belief Of Carl Hubbell

By JOHN DREBINGER

N.Y. Times

HOT SPRINGS, Ark., Feb. 21—The National League ball of 1938, designed to differ slightly from that used by the American League, will travel just as far this year when hit right as the ball used jointly by the two leagues last season.

This was the opinion ventured today by no less an authority on the subject than Carl Owen Hubbell, following the Giants' first workout of the year outdoors.

"From what I have heard of certain scientific tests they have made of the two balls," said the lean, left-handed maestro who still rates as baseball's premier hurler, "and what little personal observations I have been able to make, it doesn't look as though the hitters will have to do any worrying about hitting a sponge. This new National League ball will travel just as far as the old one, and perhaps even farther, when smacked right.

Help for Pitchers

"However, by this I don't mean to throw the pitchers in our league into a panic. The more prominent stitching and slightly thicker cover should give us a better grip. Which means that on days when we have our stuff the hitters still will have plenty to worry about."

The workout today was scarcely more than perfunctory. For the weather is still unseasonable, if not downright cold, and the sky continues overcast, with rain falling intermittently.

However, Manager Bill Terry, on his return from his week-end trip to Memphis, felt something had to be done to give the athletes a little more work than they had been getting in their mountain strolls, and so all hands donned uniforms for the first time.

There was a light warm-up, then Terry took it upon himself to do batting practice. Giving added weight to Hubbell's authoritative opinion, Sambo Leslie smashed a home run over the right-field barrier, and later Jimmy Sheehan, the promising young catcher, slammed another.

After that came the inevitable reducing baths and the Old Colonel called it a day.

Danning Still in Camp

In the afternoon Terry went into his business huddle with Harry Danning, who arrived yesterday breathing brimstone and fire. Whether any definite salary agreement has been reached was not revealed, but the fact that Harry the Horse did not pack up and move on, as he threatened to do yesterday, seemed to indicate that a settlement is not far off.

The local baseball colony was augmented today with the arrival of Manager Burleigh Grimes and five of his Dodgers, who immediately established themselves in a hotel about a half mile from the Giants' headquarters. Those accompanying Grimes were Waite, Hoyt, Freed Frankhouse, Kiki Cuyler, George Jeffcoat and Van Mungo.

Terry said the Dodgers would be welcome to share the local ball park with the Giants if they cared to do so. In fact, Terry has extended a similar invitation to all the other ball players here. They include Pat Malone, Lon Gutteridge, Roxy Lawson, Lon Warneke and Wills Hudlin.

Smallest Parcel of Land

During the years from 1890 to about 1898, tax certificates were issued in Denver County, Colorado, on real estate sold for delinquent taxes for fractions of the propery as small as one vigitillionth, giving the tax buyer a lien on one vigitillionth of the piece. This was quite an advantage to the taxpayer living on the land, yet the tax certificate existed as a cloud on the title, and still does today. W. T. Lambert, who, with two partners, conceived the "vigi" fraction idea, holds many such liens which are still worth their face value.

Italy To Dispatch Giant Delegation To Olympic Games

Italy will send a giant delegation to the 12th Olympic Games in Tokyo in 1940.

This was the message given to Prince Iyesato Tokugawa, chairman, and members of the Tokyo Olympic Organizing Committee by Marquis Giacomo Paulucci Di Calboli Barone, leader of the Fascist Goodwill Mission Sunday afternoon. The occasion was the reception given by the O. O. C. for the distinguished visiting party at the New Grand Restaurant at Sukiyabashi.

Responding to the welcome expressed by Prince Tokugawa, Marquis Giacomo Paulucci declared that Italy's withdrawal of her claim for the 12th Olympic Games in favor of Japan was due to respect given to the Japanese Empire's celebration of its 2,600th anniversary in 1940. He expressed the hope that Japan will overcome the obstacles in connection with the current situation and stage the Olympic Games on a gigantic scale.

"It is needless for me to say," said Marquis Giacomo Paulucci, "that Italy will send a giant delegation over to participate in her friendly nation's celebration."

Italy will compete in the Fifth Winter Olympic Games at Sapporo, even if the International Ski Federation boycotts it, was the statement made by Dr. Puccio Pucci, executive of the Italian Amateur Athletic Federation.

Dr. Pucci said that all Italian athletes are enthusiastically looking forward to the trip to Japan in 1940.

Besides Prince Tokugawa, other members of the O. O. C. receiving the Fascist Mission included Count Michimasa Soyejima, a member of the Internatiinal Olympic Committee, Dr. Hiroshi Shimomura, president of the Japan Amateur Athletic Federation, and Ryozo Hiranuma, vice-president of the latter Federation.

The hope that the Tokyo Olympic Organizing Committee will fulfil the confidence of the International Olympic Committee and complete plans for the organization of the 12th Olympic Games in Tokyo in 1940, was expressed by Count Henri Baillet-Latour, chairman of the I.O.C., in a special international radio broadcast from Cairo Sunday evening.

Count Baillet-Latour declared that the question of taking the Games away from Tokyo had not occurred in the session of the I.O.C. for the reason that under the Olympic charter, the I.O.C. could not revoke its decision in 1936 when the Games were formally awarded to Tokyo—this so long as Tokyo did not abandon its efforts.

Prof. Jigoro Kano, chief of the Japanese delegation, faced the microphone before Count Baillet-Latour. He told the Japanese public here that the congress just closed was a difficult one because of the large number of complex problems. "But through the cooperation and support of the delegates, the Japanese delegation was able on the whole to get what it was after, confirmation of the right to organize both the Summer and Winter games in 1940.

Professor Kano praised the good sportsmanship of the American delegates, whose fair arguments turned to naught the objection voiced by certain delegates against the organization of the Olympic Games of 1940 in Japan because of the Sino-Japanese hostilities. He also expressed deep appreciation for the fairness of treatment given by Count Baillet-Latour as presiding officer, especially his explanation from time to time of the true situation in Japan.

Professor Kano said it is incumbent on the Japanese nation to make it clear to the world that absolute peace and order are prevailing in Japan to eradicate misgivings among foreign peoples.

Members of the Japanese delegation to Cairo will leave Egypt by today, according to a dispatch to Domei. Professor Kano will return to Japan alone from London via the United States. Dr. Matsuzo Nagai, secretary-general of the O. O. C., will return direct to Japan from Vancouver via the Empress of Russia.

Waseda, Keio And Teidai Elect Rowing Captains

This year's captains of the Waseda, Keio and Tokyo Imperial universities' rowing teams were announced Sunday as follows:

Takashi Hatakeyama of Waseda; Ichiro Saito of Keio; and Kiichi Asaoka of Tokyo Imperial.

Basketball Called Newest Sport But Most Crowd-Appealing Of All

By ARTHUR J. DALEY

N.Y. Times

Red jerseys and white flash back and forth across the gleaming hardwood floor in an ever-changing pattern of color. An inflated leather ball flicks to and fro with stabbing rapidity. It whirls to one man and he passes it to another. Then it shuttles over to a third before it arches through the air toward a little steel hoop with a net skirt that hangs overhead. It misses. A dozen arms reach up for it as it falls. A redshirt captures it in a wild scramble under the basket while the held breaths of the spectators are released into a roar of applause. The ball is spun backward and another red-shirt stands poised, ready for a clear shot.

Frantically a defensive white-shirt rushes toward him and a deathly silence cuts across the cheering. Arms move and the ball twirls in its eager flight, closer to the backboard and the beckoning hoop.

There is a swish as the ball hits the cords of the dangling net and then an all-engulfing bedlam of noise. A basket has been made. A white-shirt grasps the spheroid and quickly that same process is re-enacted at the other end of the court.

The scene may be the steel-girdered hall of Madison Square Garden. It may be a chill arena of sub-zero Saskatchewan. It may be in the oppressive heat of Brazil or Madagascar. It may be in Czechoslovakia or Arabia. Or it may be even in war-torn China.

One Of Most Popular

But no matter where, the game is basketball, one of the youngest sports of all—and the most popular. More persons either play or watch it than any other form of athletic activity on the globe. Some statistician once figured that 80,000,000 in a year either shoot baskets or gaze on others who do.

That is a figure to make one pause and wonder. Billiards dates back to Cleopatra and polo to Genghis Khan, but basketball, without any such ancient or romantic antecedents, is the top sport of them all. A college boy invents a game to fill up the exercising slack between football and baseball seasons. Forty-six years later this random brainchild of a sport is played by sixty nations and some 20,000,000 athletes. It seems utterly fantastic.

Yet the more one sees basketball played the more one understands why such a situation should endure. It is probably the fastest and certainly the most crowd-appealing of all forms of athletic endeavor.

Hockey, it must be admitted, has the reputation of being the fastest sport of them all. But that proposition is open to debate. The hockey players are moving faster when they are in full flight but a man with his feet planted on a less slick surface can make a quicker getaway than a stick-swinger on ice. He can pivot and twist more artfully, dodge in and out better and control his body to greater effect.

As to the fast getaway, one has only to recall Jesse Owens, the Olympic sprint champion, outracing a horse in a short dash. The parallel is not far-fetched, since the principle is the same. Give them both flying starts and the horse would win easily, but from a standing position the man on the ground has the advantage.

Each of these sports that vie for the "fastest-of-them-all" diadem has its hot defenders of the claim. A year ago this writer took an impartial observer to see both sports and an interesting experiment developed.

The observer in this case was a famous correspondent returning to the United States after a period in Europe. He asked to be taken to a hockey game. The writer consented but urged him also to go to a basketball double-header at Madison Square Garden the night before.

The correspondent went reluctantly. He never had watched basketball. Cautiously he asked if he would hurt any one's feelings if he left in the middle of the first game. Assured that he wouldn't, he went to the Garden.

He sat tensely through both the games, a matter of three hours. The next night he went to the Garden again for a hockey match. We left with one period still unplayed.

"I like your basketball much better," he said.

This parallel between basketball and hockey is not drawn in a captious sense but is inevitable. In fact, hockey is greatly responsible for making the court sport the fast, driving game it has become in the last few years. But more of that later.

For the benefit of the uninitiate a few facts about the game of basketball are pertinent here. The sport is played on a court that can vary from the maximum of 94 by 50 feet to the minimum of 60 by 35, with the Garden layout about the average of 85 by 50.

At each end of the court is a backboard of either plate glass or wood. This is six feet wide and four feet high, the bottom edge being nine feet above the floor. Secured firmly to this backboard is the basket, its metal ring or hoop, eighteen inches in diameter, hanging ten feet above the court.

Object of Game

Each team's object is to throw the ball through its designated ring as many times as possible. Every time a player does so from scrimmage a field goal is scored, for two points; and when he does so on a "foul throw"—a free throw from a point fifteen feet from the basket after an opponent has committed a foul—one point is tallied.

Five men compose each team: two forwards, a center and two guards. At the start of the game they take positions on the floor that might be described as resembling the letter X, with the forwards at the two top extremities, the guards at the two bottom ones and the center in the middle where the two lines cross. If one superimposes another X on this for the other team, the picture is complete, for the left forward of one quintet pairs off with the rival right guard, right forward with left guard and center with center.

One of the two officials stands between the two centers and tosses the ball up in the air. The centers jump simultaneously, each trying to tap it to a team-mate, and the mad whirl is on. Then position and nomenclature lose all significance. Five men on one team try to advance the ball against the five on the other in an ever-changing pattern of criss-crossing, weaving and dodging; all five are "forwards" by now, struggling to shake a man loose from the five "guards" of the other side.

The advancing is done either by passing the ball from one to the other or by dribbling—that is, bouncing the ball with every step, whether walking or running. Meantime the men on the defense keep firmly in mind the cardinal principle laid down in the very first set of rules that "a defensive player should stick to his man like glue."

When the offensive team loses possession of the ball on an intercepted pass, a missed basket or through some other mishap, it immediately switches to defense. A completed field goal or foul throw also brings about a switch from defense to offense; the center jump, which once used to follow a score of either kind, now is used only at the start of each of the twenty-minute halves.

Theoretically, basketball is a non-contact sport: there is a ban on holding, tackling, pushing, tripping or blocking. But that precept frequently is ignored. The players take as many liberties and the game becomes as rough as the officials will permit.

There was once a theory that the sport had to borrow hockey's knock-'em-down-and-drag-'em-out system, but that generally has been exploded. The followers of basketball are so keen in their knowledge of the game's finer points that clean basketball is far more popular than the hurly-burly style. The spectators revel in the quick flash of play, in the speed afoot, in the darting through openings for a clear shot at the basket, in the acrobatic gyrations of a fast-flying player in a curling close toss or in the uncanny accuracy of a long heave from mid-court.

Scoring Constant

Scoring is constant, thus piling thrill on thrill. In the Minnesota-Long Island University game at the Garden this season there were three field goals tallied in the space of thirty-eight seconds. The final count in basketball rarely is less than sixty points a game and frequently is over a hundred. Basketball's record score, according to the keen statistician, Frank Menke, is 234 to 2. In hockey, by contrast, twenty points would be as startling as the sudden appearance of a dodo bird on the ice; scoreless ties are numerous.

This constant comparison between hockey and basketball is made because the court fathers came to the realization a few years back that the ice sport was taking away all the basketball customers.

"We must do something to save our game," they said. "Hockey is killing it."

So new rule changes came into being, reducing almost by half the former interruptions to the smooth flow of play. Now the movement of the game is almost unimpeded. It is faster than it ever was and more appealing. It is a fierce, relentless drive for forty minutes.

If the sport has mushroomed phenomenally in the past, its future possibilities stagger the imagination. The game is almost a religion in the Midwest. One Indiana tournament, for instance, drew almost 800 teams (about 8,000 players and reserves) and one Indiana town with a population of 5,000 has a basketball arena seating 5,000.

Basketball's record crowd, according to Statistician Menke, was an average of 23,000 spectators a game for one tournament. This was staged, not in the Middle West, but in Peiping, China!

It was not until Ned Irish, a former sports writer, convinced Madison Square Garden authorities that basketball might be a paying sport that the boom in these parts really started. The Garden authorities were reluctant to gamble on the proposition. They refused to take a percentage of the gate receipts; demanded, instead, their full rental fee in cash.

Mr. Irish arranged six college court double-headers the first season and then promptly appropriated two vacant boxing dates in this temple of boxing for two more. In the first three years he drew 400,000 spectators to twenty-eight double-headers. And the demand continues. His second double-header this season sold out eight hours before the first game was to be played, and his third one forced the shut-down of the ticket windows thirty-two hours in advance.

These double-headers have helped send basketball rocketing to hitherto untouched heights not only in New York but elsewhere in the United States. The Garden has become a court "Rose Bowl" for teams in the hinterlands; they all want to show their wares here, and as a result the sport has picked up throughout the country.

There is hardly a section of America that has been untouched by this new fever for intersectional play. Teams have been in the Garden from Stanford, California, Washington and Utah State in the West; from Notre Dame, Indiana, Purdue Minnesota and Ohio State in the Midwest; from North Carolina, Kentucky and Tennessee in the South; from Arkansas, Rice and Southern Methodist in the Southwest.

The United States is two or three years ahead of the rest of the world in basketball, as was proved with America's virtual walkover in the first Olympic basketball competition at Berlin in 1936. Twenty-three nations competed there in a tournament that, oddly enough, brought together China and Japan in a first-round match.

This extraordinary development of the sport was far from the mind of Dr. James A. Naismith, who while a student at Springfield (Mass). College founded the game on Jan. 20, 1892. Young Naismith merely wanted a game that would supply proper exercise to athletes in the Winter without the drudgery of ordinary gymnasium sessions.

He borrowed some rules from Rugby, lacrosse and hockey. It was a loose game in its original conception, with sometimes as many as forty players on a side, although the founder preferred nine.

Naismith experimented with a circle on the floor for his "basket," but the goal tender parked himself in the circle and no one scored. The originator tried a hockey net, but too many points were tallied. Finally the balcony around the gymnasium caught his eye and inspiration hit him: he would place his goal out of reach of the combatants.

Asked For 2 Boxes

The Springfield undergraduate sent for the janitor and asked for two boxes to nail on the balcony. The janitor returned with peach baskets instead. He didn't have any boxes. Because of that insignificant trifle we have basketball instead of boxball.

Backboards came into being because the nails supporting the baskets started ripping out plaster on the balcony. Steel rings replaced the peach baskets when the latter began to disintegrate under the pounding of the ball.

So one can see that the sport is fundamentally the same as it was in Dr. Naismith's day. As soon as it settled down the original thirteen rules were revised to meet the needs of the time. Few real changes have been made since. And any alterations have been mere perfections, designed to eliminate loopholes in the code or to abolish styles of play not in accord with the spirit of the sport.

All this has taken place in one man's lifetime. Dr. Naismith, hale and hearty in his late seventies, still is active in the Physical Education Department at the University of Kansas. It was he who looked with misty eyes at the start of the Olympic basketball tournament at Berlin and said in all earnestness, "This is the happiest moment of my life."

Kido Reveals Govt.'s Intention To Support 1940 Olympic Games

The Government's intention to support the 12th Olympic Games in 1940 was made clear by Education Minister Marquis Koichi Kido in the course of a reply to an interpellation by Kazuno Nakai, of the Seiyukai, at the budgetary committee's session of the House of Representatives Saturday afternoon.

Not satisfied with Marquis Kido's reply of Government cooperation to a question by Jiro Hoshijima, of the Seiyukai, Mr. Nakai virtually attacked the seemingly indefinite attitude of the Government respecting the 12th Olympic Games. He said it is a matter to be greatly regretted that the Government should show such lack of confidence over the Sino-Japanese hostilities, when it is certain that the Chiang Kai-shek regime will be given a knock-out blow within the next two years. He said it is not the time to express doubt as to whether it will be possible to hold the Games or not. Why doesn't the Government say definitely that there is no necessity to doubt the staging of the Games?, Mr. Nakai asked.

Marquis Kido said he agreed with Mr. Nakai that Chiang would be crushed within the next two years and the 12th Olympic Games will be held.

U.S. To Campaign For Restoration Of Olympics Date

Domei Tsushin

CAIRO, March 19—Contrary to a previous statement credited to him, Avery Brundage, chairman of the American Olympic Committee and delegate to the 35th session of the I.O.C., today declared to the press that the United States will start a campaign to have the 1940 Tokyo Olympiad returned to the original dates.

America, he said, will take up the subject at the next annual session of the I.O.C. in London next year, though, he admitted, "it may be too late for Japan to make the change."

A protest against the I. O. C.'s decision to retain Tokyo as the site of the 1940 Olympiad was filed with the I. O. C. here today by Dr. Cheou Kang-sie, counselor of the Chinese Embassy at Brussels, who has been here to "watch China's interests" on behalf of Dr. C. T. Wang, Chinese member of the I. O. C. who is now reportedly in Europe. Simultaneously with the protests, he issued a statement to the press announcing China's intention not to take part in the Games.

Competent observers meanwhile voiced conviction that the I.O.C. will make no concession with regard to the request that the international exposition scheduled for 1940 in Tokyo should be closed at least one month before the opening of the Olympics. This, they point out, was one of the conditions when the I.O.C. originally decided to hold the 1940 Games in Tokyo.

Interviewed by newspaper reporters following his arrival here this morning, Matsuzo Nagai, one of the Japanese delegates, revealed that he promised to submit Japan's reply on the above question to I.O.C. after consulting Japanese athletic organizations and other quarters concerned in Japan after he returns home.

Burghley Bans Discussion

Domei Tsushin

LONDON, March 19—Presiding over the annual plenary session of the British Amateur Athletic Union meeting here, Lord Burghley, head of the body, today flatly refused to allow the discussion of the resolution which the general committee of the B. A. A. U. passed last month with regard to the venue of the 1940 Olympics.

The general committee's resolution, which has not been published yet, was previously reported opposed to Britain's participation in the 1940 Olympics in the event they are held in Tokyo.

Kanto Downs Kansai, 21-0 In First Intersectional American Football Game

By LESLIE NAKASHIMA

Sorely lacking any offensive to speak of, the Kansai All-Stars went down to a 21-0 defeat at the hands of the Kanto All-Stars Monday afternoon at the Meiji Shrine stadium in the first East versus West American football game in Japan before a holiday crowd of 10,000 fans.

The Kanto contingent, comprised of leading players of the three-year-old Tokyo Inter-collegiate American Football league and a member of the Yokohama Country and Athletic Club—who virtually stole the show with his scintillating open field running—was easily the better team. It packed a more effective offensive, registering 13 first downs as against three by the opponents, and then on the defensive, spilled the other's plays throughout the afternoon.

As a matter of fact, the Kansai representatives never came within striking distance to score on their own merits. What seemed like their only chance to register a touchdown—a 50 yard dash by Captain Morio Uyejima of Kobe Rowing and Athletic Club to the Kanto 5 yard line—was only momentary as the play was called back. Yoshio Tsuboi of Kansai University was charged with hurling the forward pass without being five yards behind the line of scrimmage.

Fumbles Mar Game

The game, played so late in the season, was marred with numerous fumbles on both sides. The Kansai backs were the worse of the two, unable to hold the ball snapped from center and the failure to master this fundamental slowed up the attack enough to have the fast charging Kanto linemen tackle the ball toters for big losses again and again. It is said that this intersectional game from the coming year will be played immediately after the close of the regular Tokyo collegiate season. This naturally should reduce the number of fumbles to the minimum as well as other glaring fault of the fundamentals.

The Kansai team, it must be pointed out, also suffered from lack of substitutes. On the bench were seven as compared with another full squad on the part of the Kanto All-Stars.

As pointed out in the foregoing, the Kansai gridders never really threatened and this probably was the factor for the rather listless showing on the part of the Kanto team. It certainly would have piled up more touchdowns had it been given stiffer competition.

Kanto's first touchdown came early in the first quarter as the result of the second critical fumble by the Kansai squad. Lineman Hiroshi Oguro of Rikkyo University recovered a Kansai fumble on the Kansai 32 yard line. And on the first play, Right Halfback Naito of Waseda caught a pass thrown by Jiro Ebesu of Meiji toward the right flank and then romped the remaining 15 yards for a touchdown on as beautiful an exhibition of open field running ever seen in Tokyo since the innovation of this sport in Japan. He cleverly eluded two Kansai would be tacklers close to the goal line to score standing up. Hiromu Hata then hit the center of the line and scored the extra point.

Uyejima Stops Ebesu

Shortly afterward, Ebesu got off into the clear on a sweep around left end and seemed on the way to another touchdown for Kanto but Uyejima, who was virtually a one-man team for Kansai on the offense, brought him down on the Kansai 19 yard line. Kanto took to the air for scoring but three passes failed and Kansai took the ball over on downs.

Kansai's only first down in the first quarter came on a fake punt formation when Quarterback Iwai lateralled to Uyejima, who dashed to his own 32 yard line to make the required 10 yards.

Coach Katsumi Nakamoto of the Kanto squad put in an entire new backfield in the second quarter, composed of Kenichi Nakamura, that triple threat man of Rikkyo, at quarterback, Susumu Yasuda of Meiji and Hisashi Noguchi of Waseda, at halves and Hajime Fujika of Meiji at fullback. With Nakamura bearing the brunt of the attack, the team carried the ball from the Kansai 35 yard line (Kansai suffered kicking against a brisk headwind) deep into scoring zone but Noguchi fumbled on the 1 yard line and it was Kansai's ball.

But this new Kanto backfield was not to be stopped. For later in the same quarter after the ball had exchanged hands on two occasions, Kanto recovered a Kansai fumble on the latter's 15 yard line. Nakamura plunged through a big hole opened by his teammates for a 9 yard gain. Given the ball two more times, he made it first down. Then he was held twice by the hard fighting Kansai team on the 1 yard stripe, but on the third play he hit left guard and crossed the goal line standing up. His dropkick sailed through the middle of the goalposts over the bar for the extra point. Score, Kanto 14, Kansai 0.

Ross Stars

It was in the second quarter that Richard Ross of the Y.C. and A.C., who was the only player afield wearing a white helmet, was put into the fray and started to grab the spotlight with his speed in ball toting. He just about offset the effective gains made by Kansai on quickkicks by Uyejima and Tsuboi. The very first time he was given the ball, Ross reeled off a 27 yard gain to midfield. Then a moment later, after a quickkick by Tsuboi had failed, and it was a mistake to resort to it because it was third down and the ball was fairly deep in his own territory, the same Ross took a lateral toward the right flank on the Kansai 40 yard line, then executed a spinner, cut back to the left and sidestepping his way through the amazed Kansai players, got into the clear for touchdown. Given the chance to register the extra point, he rammed through center to put the score 21-0 in Kanto's favor.

At this stage of the game, the Kansai players looked weary and without much fight. But Uyejima gave the fans a thrill early in the fourth quarter when he took a pass from Tsuboi and romped to the Kanto 1 yard line for a 45 yard gain. The play, as related in the foregoing, was called back on the charge that the pass was illegal, Tsuboi having thrown it without being five yards behind the line of scrimmage, according to Referee Fowler.

Kanto Threatens

Kanto threatened again after carrying the ball to the Kansai 12 yard line but a forward pass was grounded in the end zone. Zolotareff of the Kansai team furnished a thrill when he dashed 28 yards on a lateral from Uyejima to the Kanto 49 yard line. He was stopped by Nakamura, else he might have gotten off for a touchdown.

A large number of the fans, those not too familiar with the rules, thought it most interesting to see the Kanto team penalized 15 yards late in the fourth quarter when Ross, who had just been sent into the game, was charged with talking.

In the curtain-raiser starting at 1 o'clock, the Kanto O. B. eleven, composed of former players of the Tokyo rugby and football circuits, triumphed over a picked freshmen team by 6-0, the touchdown coming in the fourth quarter.

The starting line-ups follow:

	Kansai	Kanto
L.E.	Nakamura	Toyama
L.T.	C. Zolotareff	Oguro
L.G.	Okamoto	Fujioka
C.	Hayashi	Sakamoto
R.G.	Kimura	Kurokawa
R.T.	Hamamoto	Watanabe
R.E.	Nanba	Fukushima
Q.B.	Yamauchi	Hata
L.H.	V. Zolotareff	Kunishige
R.H.	Fujii	Naito
F.B.	Uyejima	Ebesu

Substitutes: Kansai: Tsuboi, Iwai, Amram, Hamamoto, Yoshida, Akimoto and Tamba: Kanto: Ando, Fukuda, Uyeno, Shimamura, Shimoda, Noguchi, Nakamura, Fujika, Ross, Murayama, Nishioka, Yasuda, Takeshita and Mie.

Italy May Apply For 1944 Games, Klingeberg Says

Domei Tsushin

CAIRO, March 21—Though she did not make a bid for the 1944 Olympics during the recent meeting of the International Olympic Committee, Italy may apply to the I.O.C. at any time before its next annual session for the right to stage the Games, Walter Klingeberg, German technical adviser to the Tokyo Olympic Organizing Committee, told the press here today.

The next annual session of the I.O.C., scheduled to be held in London in June, 1939, is expected formally to decide the venue of the 1944 Olympiad. Five countries, including Britain, Finland, Greece, Hungary and Switzerland, already applied for the Games during the recent I.O.C. session, while bidders for the Sixth Winter Games, 1944, include St. Moritz and Oslo.

A.A.U. President Unworried About Change In Dates

Domei Tsushin

DENVER, Colorado, March 20—Though unfortunate, the international Olympic Committee's decision to defer the 1940 Games at Tokyo until late in September is "nothing to worry about greatly," Samuel E. Hoyt, national president of the American Amateur Athletic Union, told pressmen here today.

Questioned regarding the change, Mr. Hoyt admitted that it will probably interfere with the participation of some collegiate athletes, but he predicted that the United States will nevertheless be able to recruit just as large a delegation as for previous Olympic meetings.

As for whether or not it is feasible or desirable to hold the games in a country which is at war, Mr. Hoyt declared that "it is too early to discuss the question."

War Admiral Wins First Race

N.Y. Herald Tribune

HIALEAH, Fla., Feb. 19—With a record crowd of approximately 27,000 shouting in admiration, War Admiral made his bow as a four-year-old today and served notice to the turf world that he still retains the bristling speed that made him the recognized champion racehorse of 1937. Samuel D. Riddle's doughty son of Man o'War—Brushup—won the seven-furlong Heather Purse, an allowances affair, by a length and a half, with Charlie Kurtsinger easing up in the final strides. Under 122 pounds, the Admiral finished the trip in 1:23 b-5.

The brown colt was a prohibitive favorite in the field of six, paying $2.60 for a $2 straight ticket, $2.20 place and $2.20 show. The sum of $81,786 was wagered on the race.

Sir Oracle Second

Second money went to Norman W. Church's Sir Oracle, while Mrs. E. D. Jacobs's Cabalero 2d was a poor third, six lengths farther back. Mansco, Proph and Stubbs brought up the rear. The Philadelphia-owned king of thoroughbreds picked up $775 in winning today's event, boosting his all-time earnings to $182,075.

Riddle, who viewed the race from a box, preferred starting the horse in the easier Heather Purse, rather than subjecting the champion to a stiffer Winter debut in the mile and a furlong, $7,500 added McLennan Memorial Handicap, in which his weight would have been 130 pounds.

The colorful, bulging throng was far bigger than that of Widener Day last year, when 20,468 jammed through the turnstiles. The day's handle was $707,938, best figure of this season but approximately $25,000 short of last Widener Cup day.

War Admiral Placed Outside

War Admiral received an ovation from the crowd after winning. When he first appeared on the track, heading the post parade although his position was number four, the crowd gave out a loud welcome. The Admiral kicked up his hind legs playfully. At the post, he lunged through the stalls as he has done before and finally was placed on the outside by George Cassidy, starter, who shortly afterward sent the small field away to a good start.

Kurtsinger swung his charge away top and for three furlongs the famous thoroughbred was lapped with and slightly behind the speedy but stopping Stubbs and Sir Oracle. As they began the turn out of the backstretch the Riddle colt bounded to the front. Before entering the home lane he had opened up a lead to several lengths. Sir Oracle made a game stretch try as he left the corners far behind. Kurtsinger did not begin easing until the last twenty or thirty yards.

Italy Invited To Send Wrestling Team Here

An amateur wrestling team from Italy will perform in Japan this year, if negotiations presently being made by the Japan Amateur Wrestling Association materalize, it was revealed Monday.

Competition against an Italian team, resorting to European science of the sport, is the No. 1 project of the Association for this year. The Association last year invited an All-Pacific coast squad from the United States. And early this year, sent a Japanese team to the Philippines where it won all five matches.

The Association also believes that the project will contribute to promotion of Italo-Japanese relations.

Harvard Rally Beats Columbia Quintet, 36-31

Herald Tribune

CAMBRIDGE, Mass., Feb. 19—The Harvard varsity basketball team, fresh from a triumph over the Cornell five last night, defeated the Columbia quintet tonight, 36 to 31, to take over undisputed possession of second place in the Eastern Intercollegiate League.

Trailing on the short end of a 25-to-22 score at the end of the first half, the Crimson five came back in the second half, completely bottled up the Columbia scoring machine and went ahead to take a lead and hold it throughout the game. The Lions had the better of the play in the first half. Led by Eddy Anderson, the Columbians maintained a lead for all but a few seconds in the opening half. Wes Fesler, coach, pepped up his charges between halves and in the first fifteen minutes of play in the second session the Columbia five scored two points, both on foul shots.

Arnold Litman, Harvard forward, was outstanding on the Crimson defense in the second half. He stole the ball from Columbia players almost at will. At one time early in the second session the Columbia players did not have a shot at the basket for a period of six minutes, so tight was the Harvard defense.

Eddie Anderson, of Columbia, was the leading scorer with eight points, all registered in the first half, while John Herrick, Harvard center, was close behind with seven points.

The line-up:

Kobe Soccerites Beat All Blacks In First Meeting

Special to The Japan Times

YOKOHAMA, March 20—The unexpected happened today when the Kobe C.Y.M.A. soccer team triumphed over the All Blacks by scoring two goals to the latter's one in the last half of the game which inaugurated the first interport series to be held between the two clubs at the St. Joseph College grounds here.

The Yokohama club won the toss and chose to defend the west goal. Kobe kicked off and advanced the ball well down into the All Black's territory. H. Papendieck, who bore the brunt of the defense work, broke up the advance.

Yokohama On Offensive

From then on, the home town boys took the offensive and kept the ball most of the time down in the visitor's territory. Time and time again, Captain Ishikawa and G. Nishigori brought the ball within scoring distance, but the erratic playing of H. Fernandes who did not settle down until the second half, kept the All Blacks from scoring. The first half ended 0-0.

Five minutes after the second half began, the All Blacks began an attack which the visitors could not stop. G. Nishigori received a perfect pass and kicked the first goal, making the score 1-0 in Yokohama's favor.

The home town boys became over confident and Kobe took the ball away from them and scored when S. Dresser registered a beauty equalizing.

Yokohama then took the ball down into Kobe territory. It seemed as if they would score when time out was called by the visitors.

Freak Goal

Kobe then threw the ball in from out of bounds and brought it down into Yokohama's territory. A freak kick by H. Guterres, aided by the wind was caught by R. Blamey the goal-keeper and was called a goal by Referee Matsumoto making the score 2-1 in the visitor's favor.

From then on the game see-sawed back and forth Yokohama made a desperate attempt to tie the score but they could not get through the air-tight defense of the Kobe team.

The line-ups follow:

All Blacks	C. Y. M. A.
Goal R. Blamey	S. Maher
R.F. H. Luther	J. R. Da Silva
L.F. W. Papendieck	S. Bernie
R.H. M. Kikuchi	L. Farias

Goals: All Blacks, G. Nishigori, 1; C. Y. M. A., S. Dresser, 1 and H. Guterres, 1.

Referee and time keeper, Matsumoto of the Kanto Football Union. Linesmen: Thorpe and C. Fernandes.

"BELIEVE IT OR NOT" --by Ripley

Royal Romance

Royal romance came very late in life to King William I of Holland (1772-1843). He came to the throne in 1815 and ruled his country for 25 years. Then at the age of 68 (1840), he fell in love with a commoner, Henriette d'Outremont, who was 48 years old. For the love of this 48 year-old woman, the 68 year-old King gave up his throne and country to go to live as an exile in Prussia with the "woman he loved." He only survived his abdication for 3 years, but he never regretted this step, which deeply affected his Dutch subjects and caused as big a furore as the abdication of Edward VIII in our own time.

Escobar Regains Bantamweight Fighting Crown

N.Y. Times

SAN JUAN, P. R., Feb. 20—Sixto Escobar of Puerto Rico regained the world bantamweight title tonight with a fifteen-round triumph over Harry Jeffra of Baltimore. The bout was hard fought throughout, although Escobar won by a wide margin and scored three knockdowns, two in the eleventh and one in the fourteenth.

Jeffra, game till the last, had both eyes battered and almost closed. Not until the fourteenth did Jeffra land a damaging blow and then he opened an old wound over Escobar's left eye.

Jeffra's loss ended his fighting as a bantamweight, according to a statement by Trainer Heine Blaustein immediately after the bout. A crowd exceeding 12,000 saw the battle, which commenced at 10 p.m. with the ringside seats filled. Governor Winship and many other officials attended.

Third Ascension to Title

SAN JUAN, P. R., Feb. 20—Sixto Escobar's victory over Harry Jeffra at the Escambron Baseball Park tonight marked his third ascent to the world bantamweight title. He gained recognition as National Boxing Association champion in 1934, lost it the same year and then regained the crown by outpointing Lou Salica at New York in 1935. Jeffra had wrested the title from him last September at the "Carnival of Champions" in New York.

Tonight Escobar was in front all the way. Referee Johnny McAvoy of New York, as well as both judges, Nat Fleischer, editor of Ring Magazine, and Edgar Thompson of Puerto Rico, voted for him. McAvoy said it was Escobar's fight by a wide margin. Fleischer gave him ten rounds.

The decision was highly popular with the crowd, which was sentimentally strong for the home boy to regain the title, and paid gross receipts of approximately $20,000. Immediately after the fight, many spectators climbed into the ring and surrounded the jubilant victor.

The rivals scaled exactly the same, 117¾ pounds. Jeffra, who had been reported a pound or two over the class limit of 118, created a sensation when his weight was announced.

Clever Fight by Sixto

It was Escobar's first triumph over the Baltimore boxer in four tries. Sixto fought a clever fight throughout, scoring heavily with jabs to face and head.

Despite Jeffra's longer reach and greater height, Escobar ducked and dodged away from his heavy artillery. He held a distinct edge at infighting, where he piled up his big point margin.

Both knockdowns in the eleventh came from sharp blows to Jeffra's head. After the second, he held and clinched until the bell. In the tenth Escobar had Jeffra on the ropes, swinging both fists, and in the twelfth Harry covered up and backed away as Sixto punished him about the head and body.

At the opening of the thirteenth Jeffra's manager urged him to "pull it out of the fire, Harry," but his gameness was not enough to halt Escobar's effective blows. In the fourteenth Escobar opened with sharp jabs to the head, then suddenly switched his attack to the body and dropped his opponent to the floor with a hook to the midsection.

Pro Football League Bans Post-Season Tours

PHILADELPHIA, Feb. 19—The National Professional Football League voted today to prohibit any post-season tours such as was conducted after last season by the Chicago Bears and the champion Washington Redskins. The league also rejected a guarantee of $40,000 from a group of Miami, Fla., businessmen to hold the annual championship play-off game in Miami. The present system of alternating games on the home fields of the winners of the Eastern and Western divisions will be continued.

Starting next Fall, the championship team will be permitted to play only one post-season exhibit game and that not against a league team.

Carl Storck, of Dayton, Ohio secretary of the league, ho presided at the closed meeting in the absence of Joe Carr, president, also said an eleven-game schedule will be played this year. The report of the rules committee and discussion of possible revision of the player limit will be made at sessions to be held later. The meeting ends tomorrow.

Japan To Compete In World's Gymnastics Tournament At Prague

To the world gymnastics championship to be held at Prague during the latter part of June will be sent contestants from Japan, it was decided by the All-Japan Gymnastics Federation at a meeting held at the National Gymnasium at Hitotsubashi last Saturday, it was revealed this morning.

It was also decided to send Shigeo Honma, secretary of the Federation, to the meeting of the International Gymnastics Federation at Prague on June 30 and July 1.

Cornell Bows To Columbia In Wrestling

N.Y. Herald Tribune

NEW YORK, Feb. 20—The Columbia wrestling team defeated Cornell, 15½ to 14½, yesterday afternoon in a series of closely contested bouts at the Morningside gymnasium.

Winning four of the matches and reaching a draw in another, the Lions were certain to win after Joe Bartolf threw Dick Hunt in the 175-pound class. Jeanoupoulas, Cornell heavyweight, threw Lloyd Snavely in the final bout.

Bartolf's victory was the most impressive. The Columbia sophomore established his superiority at the outset and was on the verge of throwing Hunt several times before he finally pinned the Ithacan with a bar, arm and crotch hold.

Bob Taylor, Lion captain, won a decisive victory in the 165-pound class over Frank Kiehle, while Trousdale, Cornell 155-pounder, defeated Waldon Booth in a hardfought contest.

Before the varsity bouts, the Columbia freshmen wrestled Mamaroneck to a 16-to-16 draw. Most impressive for the Lions was Carl German, who threw Joe Margliano in 3:01. Bill Kurz and Gene Worrington scored falls for Mamareneck.

The summaries:

118-pound class—Bucci, Columbia, defeated Latham on referee's decision.

126-pound class—Mathers, Cornell, threw Zaret in 5:45 with a bar arm and half-nelson.

135-pound class—Frost, Columbia, defeated Gregg on referee's decision.

145-pound class—Jochum, Columbia, drew with Oaks.

155-pound class—Trousdale, Cornell, defeated Booth on referee's decision.

165-pound class—Taylor Columbia defeated Kiehle on referee's decision.

175-pound class—Bartolf, Columbia, threw Hunt in 5:50 with a bar arm and crotch.

Heavyweight class—Jeanoupoilas, Cornell, threw Snavely in 6:58 with a headlock.

Harman Named Rutgers' Coach; Succeeds Tasker

NEW BRUNSWICK, N. J., Feb. 19—Named head football coach at Rutgers University to succeed J. Wilder Tasker, Harvey Harman, former Pennsylvania mentor, came to his new stamping ground today and explained some of his hopes and plans for the future of Scarlet elevens. (Appointment of Harman and the resignation of Tasker were announced in the New York Herald Tribune of Saturday.—Ed.

Informally he talked of his ideas about football itself, of his firm belief in the value of Spring practice, of his theory that offensive football should be stressed over the defensive side of the game.

Dr. Clothier Reveals Appointmnet

Announcement of the appointment of the husky, thirty-eight-year-old former Pittsburgh tackle, who resigned as head coach of Penn a few weeks ago, was made official today by Dr. Robert C. Clothier, Rutgers president, who also disclosed the resignation of Tasker and declared emphatically the change meant no "big-time football" for the university.

Terms of Harman's agreement were not stated, but Harman said his informal contract carried no specific tenure. Among the terms of the "gentlemen's agreement" was the promise of a free hand for Harman in choosing assistants, but both he and the director of athletics, George E. Little, said none had as yet been selected.

Harman declared he believed in keeping the men now on the staff who fitted into the picture and would talk with all of them before making any decisions. The present staff includes Art Matsu and Al Sabo, varsity assistants to Tasker; Harry Rockafeller, assistant director and coach of the 150-pound team, and Tom Kenneally, junior varsity coach who came here with Tasker.

Harman will take over his new job officially in March, in time to open Spring practice in the middle of the month. Spring training, he emphasized, was essential for success in the Fall.

After graduating from Pitt in 1922 Harman coached at Haverford and Sewance before going to Penn in 1931. His seven-year term at the Quaker institution brought thirty-two victories, twenty-three defeats and two ties. His best season was 1936, when Penn lost only to Yale. His worst year was last Fall, when his team won only two games, lost five and tied one.

Tasker came to Rutgers the same year Harman began at Penn. In his seven years at New Brunswick the Scarlet won thirty-one games, lost twenty-seven and tied five. Last Fall the record was five victories and four defeats.

"Knock-'Em-Down" Game Preferred

Offensively, Harman said, he would use the single wing back and modified punt formations, always with an unbalanced line. He believed the "knock-'em-down" type of football brought best results: he added, but felt some "razzle-dazzle" should be mixed in to please the fans. He also described himself as a great believer in kicking, using it as an offensive as well as defensive play. Classing himself as an "offensive coach," Harman asserted he believed in defensive football only to the extent of regaining the ball.

In his announcement, Dr. Clothier stated that Harman was "eminently qualified by experience, personality and attitude to promote the interests, athletic and otherwise, of the university."

Referring to the building of a $1,000,000 athletic plant, including a stadium, he said Rutgers would continue "to lay emphasis upon athletics for all," and would adhere to a policy of scheduling games with institutions of comparable size and strength which hold fast to the letter and spirit of amateurism.

"We propose to play to win," he added, "but to allay any unfounded hopes or fears, let me add that there is no 'big time football' in the Rutgers athletic picture.

British Eleven To Play Kanto All-Star Soccer Squad In Tokyo April 7

En route to the United States on its round-the-world tour, the Islington Corinthians Club, a powerful soccer eleven in London, will make a brief stay in Tokyo to play a game against an All-Kanto squad on April 7 at the Meiji Shrine stadium.

The invaders, the first British football team to make a world tour, left London last October and have visited various parts of Europe, Egypt, India, Malaya, Penang, Strait Settlements and Hongkong. During the tour, the Corinthians established a brilliant record, winning 50 games and losing only three out of 62 played so far up to Hongkong, the remaining nine games being drawn.

Now in Manila

The British eleven is now in Manila where it is scheduled to play eight matches by March 27. The first three games of their engagement in Manila resulted in two wins and one draw in their favor.

The Corinthians accepted an invitation from the Japan Football Association and are expected to arrive in Kobe from Manila on April 6 aboard the Empress of Japan, coming up to Tokyo by train on that night. They will make an overnight stay in Tokyo (Sanno Hotel), and will sail for Vancouver on the same boat at midnight April 7, after making one appearance at the Meiji Shrine grounds.

The team is composed of 20 players selected from various amateur football clubs in London with Corinthians Club members in majority, and is expected to show soccer as it should be played against the Japanese eleven. Thus their appearance on April 7 is keenly looked forward to by local soccer fans and sports enthusiasts at large as this will be the first real British football team playing in Japan.

Members of the Corinthians team are:

Goal: E. Wingfield and C. Longman; Backs: P. B. Clark, G. Sargeant and A. J. Martin; Half Backs: Cpy. S. Eastman, J. K. Wright, R. E. Wright, G. W. Dance, G. Howlett and W. Whittaker (Captain). Forwards: J. C. Braithwaite, L. C. Thornton, L. Bradbury, L. Stone, J. Sherwood, G. W. E. Pearce, R. Tarrant, H. E. R. Barns and C. Lungen.

H. Lowe is coach-trainer and Thomas Smith is manager.

The team's record on the tour follows:

	Games played	Won	Drew	Lost
Europe	5	3	2	0
Egypt	4	2	1	1
India	32	27	4	1
Penang	2	1	0	1
Strait St.	15	13	2	0
Hongkong	4	4	0	0
	62	50	9	3

Defeats Corinthians sustained were by Port Said 4-1, by Dacca Association (Bengal, India) 1-0 and by Burma (Rangoon) 1-0.

The team's performances during the last two years at home follow: Won over: Arsenal 2-1, drew 1-1; Chelsea 4-0; West Ham 2-0 and 3-1; Guilford City 3-1; Clapton Orient 1-0; London University 1-0; Chinese Olympic team 3-2; Crystal Palace 3-1 and 1-0; Tottenham Hotspur 3-0 and 4-1; Fulham 3-1, drew 2-2.

Matches in Holland

Won over: Ajax (Champions of Holland) 3-1; The Hague 6-2; Sparta (Rotterdam) 1-0; Blauwit 1-0; Ado 6-2.

Hubbell Shows Cy Young How Screwball Acts

By AL LANEY

HOT SPRINGS, Ark., Feb. 26—The preliminary Spring training period for New York Giant pitchers and catchers came to a close today with everybody happy and the party of twenty will move on tomorrow to the main training base at Baton Rouge, where they will be joined by fifteen infielders and outfielders. The Giants, with eleven pitchers ready to cut loose at a time when those of other clubs are only beginning to arrive in camp, will thus have a jump on both leagues.

Two of the players who will report to Baton Rouge are not on the Giant roster. They are Les Powers, first baseman with Baltimore last year, and Mickey Haslin, utility infielder, both of whom where returned to the Giants by the Jersey City farm club today. Both were out on option and both were ordered to report for training.

The recall of Haslin, who was with the club for a while last year, is a mere formality, for he will go out again soon, but Terry thinks highly of Powers and does not want to lose him.

Good Trading Material

Powers has a job as assistant football coach at Loyola University, at Los Angeles, and thought he should play ball on the Coast this year, but the prospect of a Giant contract will probably bring him in. He can be used in Jersey City or he would make valuable trading material.

The final workout was the most successful and the most pleasant the Giants have had here. At the end of it Carl Hubbell's arm felt so strong he called for a catcher and stepped to the mount for a real warm up.

Cy Young, the old pitcher who has become something of an idol here, came visiting from the Doan Baseball School across the road about this time. Seeing Hubbell in the box, he strolled out and was inducted into the mysteries of the screwball by its master.

Immediately the crowd, which had begun to wander off after two hours of watching the inevitable ball game between pitchers, scurried back. They crowded in close and formed a circle behind the plate and stretching beyond first and third bases like a gallery at a golf tournament when a favorite tees off.

Hemmed In by Crowd

Still unable to see the great man in action, they closed in and soon Hubbell and Young, the oldtimer and the present king of the left-handers, were the center of an enclosing band of admirers that left only room enough for the ball to travel back and forth.

A few judicious trades with the enemy and shifts in his line-up enabled Hal Schumacher's team to score its first victory over Hubbell's, with the total number of runs about seventy-five.

Somebody stepped on Sam Leslie's foot, so Hank Leiber consented to take his place. It was the first time Hank had touched a ball. He turned his back on the game most of the time to play "pepper" with Leslie back of first base, coming to only when some one shouted at him.

Leiber also pitched to one batter, Walter Brown, the mastodonic relief pitcher, and bet Brown a dollar he couldn't knock the ball out of the infield.

Leiber won by moving his infield back twenty-five yards and Lindstrom, playing third, took Brown's line drive in left field. Brown roared, but he was ruled outsmarted and had to pay.

Cunningham Does 3:48.4, A World Record 1,500 Meters At N.Y. Garden

By JESSE ABRAMSON

N.Y. Herald Tribune

NEW YORK, Feb. 27—Glenn Cunningham voices his distain for world records.

"They are all right, but they don't last long," he says.

They don't last long because Cunningham himself can't help breaking them. Before 14,000 last night in Madison Square Garden in the annual National A. A. U. championships, King Glenn raced to a new world indoor record of 3 minutes 48.4 seconds in regaining the 1,500 meter crown.

Setting his own pace all the way after the first lap, on which Princeton's Peter Bradley showed the way, Cunningham smashed through the tape with a twenty-eight-yard margin over his shadow, Gene Venzke, N. Y. A. C. veteran, with Ernie Federoff, of the Millrose A. A., beating Archie San Romani, the defending champion, for third place. Bradley, leading the pursuit for seven laps, faded out of the picture in the fast finish.

Cunningham is in such marvelous racing condition in this, his seventh year of top-flight competition, that he just can't help running to records. His time last night wiped out Venzke's only remaining record, 3:49.9, established in these nationals in victory over Cunningham two years ago.

Only One Mark Better

Furthermore, Cunningham's 1,500—comparable in merit to a 4:07 mile or better—beat all 1,500-meter performances, indoors and outdoors, except one, the world record of 3:47.8 that Jack Lovelock, the New Zealander, established in the 1936 Olympic final. Strangely, Cunningham's winning time last night equaled his second-place clocking at Berlin.

James B. Herbert, N. Y. U. sophomore sensation, came back from Waterloo to win his first National A. A. U. championship and bag his first world indoor record.

His nine-race winning streak snapped only last Monday, the smooth-striding Negro raced to a smashing triumph in the 600-meter test, defeating Charley Beetham, former Ohio State runner of the Curb Exchange A. A., by three yards in 1 minute 20.3 seconds. The performance sliced seven-tenths of a second from the figures hung up by Eddie O'Brien, of Syracuse, whom Herbert succeeded as champion.

Herbert Far From Stale

Far from stale, as some critics had alleged after his set-back by Wesley Wallace in the Newark Armory, Herbert produced his finest effort of the winter. Drawing an outside position in the six-man final, the former Stuyvesant star got off in fourth place as Douglas Raymonds, of Boston University, led the way.

In less than a lap, Herbert, running the overland trail, worked his way to the front. It was his race thereafter. Ray Malott, Stanford University's national 400-meter champion, led the pursuit on the second and third laps. The pace took its toll of Malott, making his first indoor start here. On the last lap, with Herbert moving powerfully all the way, Beetham closed fast to get runner-up honors. Raymond also nailed Malott in the stretch to get third ahead of the tall Coast runner. Wallace, running third for two laps, faded out of the picture before the rush of the others.

Cunningham's Masterpiece

Cunningham's 1,500-meter masterpiece was cut out of the same cloth as his mile successes this winter. If his heart, as he says, is not in record-breaking, his legs are. The superb judge of pace knew he had the record in his hip pocket and ran that way. When he bolted to the front at the end of the first lap, he set out on a record race. He passed the quarter in 61.6 seconds, the half in 2:04.8, the three-quarters in 3:05.2. Write your own ticket on what he would have done if he were running the full mile with a 60, 61 or 62-second quarter on the end of it.

At the end of the seven laps, Cunningham led Bradley by five yards with Venzke and San Romani next. On the eighth lap Venzke moved into second place, with Glenn six yards ahead of him. Completing the ninth lap, fifteen yards in front, Cunningham nearly doubled that margin in his head-long rush through the final whirl. Venzke beat the fast-finishing Federoff by ten yards. Only for an instant in the race did disaster face Cunningham. He hugs the pole so closely that he missed a stride and took one step off the track. His spikes, however, did not skid on the floor and he stepped back on the track with his next stride.

Cunningham, with his tenth straight victory, and Herbert, with his tenth in eleven starts, led a rousing assault on world, American and championship records during the thrill-producing program. Seven assorted records were battered and another tied.

Allan Tolmich, of Wayne clipped one-tenth of a second from the indoor sixty-five-meter high hurdles figure of 8.6, which he also tied, before falling in the final, which went to Spec Towns, of Georgia, in his farewell to racing. Ben Johnson, of Columbia, tied the world indoor sixty-meter figures of 6.6 seconds retaining his sprint crown. Don Lash, winning a fierce 5,000-meter battle from Norman Bright, returned 14:39 for an American native and championship record and hung up an American native mark of 14:14.8 en route at three miles.

Herbert came back to do his part in producing another championship record when his 48.4 for 400 meters on the anchor leg gave N. Y. U. the 1,600-meter relay in 3:19.4, one-tenth of a second under the meet standard. And Francis Ryan, Columbia stalwart, put up another championship record with a toss of 52 feet 8¾ inches in the 16-pound shotput.

Only Ben Johnson, Irving Folwartshny, Rhode Island State tosser of the 35-pound hardware, and the New York Curb Exchange 2,900-meter medley, anchored by the irrepressible Cunningham, retained their titles, as champions were toppled in the high hurdles, walk, shotput, 1,500 meters, 5,000 meters and 1,000-meter medley relay.

The New York A. C., winning only the steeplechase with Joe McCluskey, carried off the team title for the seventh straight year, compiling 23 points. The New York Curb Exchange was second with 18, followed by N. Y. U. and Columbia in a third-place tie at 17.

Lash Defeats Bright

Don Lash, beating Norman Bright by three yards in a wild and wooly sprint finish, cracked the American native and championship record for 5,000 meters and shattered a twenty-eight-year-old American native record for three miles en route.

The Hoosier set the pace virtually throughout, yielding the lead to the defending champion with two and a quarter laps to go. Bright's sprint held Lash off until the last eighty yards. And when he hurtled past the Californian the latter held on doggedly and conceded defeat only in the last few strides.

Lash's 5,000-meter time of 14:39 wiped out Bright's mark of 14:45.8. At three miles Lash was clocked in 14:14.8, eclipsing Gentleman George Bonhag's American native figures of 14:29.4, set at Buffalo in 1910.

Continuing his all-winning streak of the winter, Columbia's Ben Johnson retained his 60-meter championship and equaled the world and championship record of 6.6 seconds that he and Jesse Owens hold jointly. Johnson, away in beautiful style in the final, led throughout and beat Herbert Thompson, of the Pioneer Club, by a full yard. Perrin Walker, lanky N. Y. A. C. sprinter from Georgia, and Columbia's Herbert Weast ran third and fourth.

Johnson, who remained out of the broad jump to concentrate on the sprint, won his first heat in 6.8, his semi-final in 6.7 and saved his finest effort for the title race. It was his sixth straight sprint victory of the season.

Tolmich Misses Stride

Racing misfortune cost Allan Tolmich, of Wayne University, probable victory in the 65-meter high hurdles, after he had broken and tied the world indoor mark of 8.6 seconds in his heat and semi-final. Leading his noted foe, Spec Towns, Olympic champion, by a foot in the final, Tolmich missed his stride and catapulted off the track coming to the fourth of five hurdles in the race. Towns, running the last race of his memorable career, went on to win the title, dethroning Sammy Allen by a yard margin, as Walter Hall, Boston College freshman find, placed third. Towns' time in the final was 8.7 seconds.

Tolmich was masterful in his trials. He set a world indoor mark of 8.5 seconds in his heat, clipping one-tenth of a second from Percy Beard's five-year-old record. In his semi-final the Detroit one-man team tied Beard's record of 8.6. Meantime Towns ran his heat and semi-final in 8.8. He wanted to win this last race before he assumes his coaching duties at Georgia tomorrow afternoon, but Tolmich's fall took the zest out of his final triumph.

Joe McCluskey, New York A. C., veteran, raced to his sixth title in the 3,000-meter steeplechase, regaining his crown and beating Floyd Lochner, of St. Louis, by eighty yards in 8:54.4. But the Winged Foot star, one of the most popular racers on the track, heard a blast of boos when his name was announced as the winner. Three laps from home, when Lochner was running him neck and neck, McCluskey elbowed the Westerner vigorously as the latter crowded him perhaps a shade too closely.

New York University, with its four runners doubling, carried off the relay honors by winning the 1,000-meter medley and the 1,600-meter relay, shattering one record.

Curtis Giddings, Nathan Buchstein, Martin Witte and Edgar Stripling, running the 400, 100, 200 and 300-meter legs, won the medley by three yards over the Curb Exchange in a fast 2:00.5. Pennsylvania, leading on the first leg is a close fit, was put out of contention when the baton was dropped on the first exchange. Robert Rodenkirchen, N. Y. A. C. sprinter, running the last leg high, wide and handsome, bolted to the front on the last stage but ran too wide on the turns and faded into third place.

Witte, Giddings and Strpling, returning in the 1,600-meter relay, with Herbert as anchor scored a smashing triumph in 3:19.4, a tenth under the meet figures. Witte, pinched in a tight jam and almost knocked down, came in two yards back of Dick Lundell, Manhattan lead-off. Giddings presented the Violet with an eight-yard lead Stripling widened the gap to ten and Herbert made it twelve yards over Howie Borck, of Manhattan. Fordham, beaten thirty-five yards by N. Y. U., was third.

The 2,900-meter medley was a romp for the Curb Exchange when Lumpy Lamb, Ed O'Sullivan and Bill Ray, running the 400, 200 and 800 meters, presented Cunningham with a two-yard lead. The master, coasting the 1,500 in 3:59.2, won by fifteen yards, as the Curb's team clocking of 7:09.1 missed Princeton's championship record by a tenth of a second. North Texas State's celebrated twin combination was second, beating the New York A. C. and Manhattan.

Francis Slater, willowy Fordham junior, got up in the last stride to win the 1,000-meter title by inches from Ross Bush, Southern California ace, in the good time of 2 minutes 29.3 seconds. Wayne (Twin) Rideout, of North Texas State, placed third, five yards back, with Stanley Holt, of Rhode Island State, getting fourth place.

Slater, former P. S. A. L. half-mile champion from Abraham Lincoln High, climaxed a winter of steady improvement to win Fordham's first national title since Joe McCluskey left Rose Hill. The Ram youngster rated himself cleverly.

Richard V. Ganslen, Columbia junior, making a surprise debut in the pole vault (he has been out of competition all winter with a succession of pulled muscles), won the title from George Varoff, Oregon's indoor record-holder, both clearing 13 feet 6 inches. Ganslen won with fewer misses.

The high jump produced a four-way deadlock at 6 feet 6 inches among Lloyd Thompson, of Xavier University, New Orleans; Cornelius Johnson and Mel Walker, of the Grand Street Boys, and Lester Steers, Palo Alto, Calif., schoolboy. In the ensuing jump-offs Thompson cleared 6 feet 7¼ inches to win his first national senior title, Johnson placed second, Steers third and Walker fourth.

Miss Berg Wins South Atlantic Golf Crown

ORMOND BEACH, Fla., Feb. 26—Miss Patty Berg, of Minneapolis, overcame the jinx of other years and won the thirteenth annual South Atlantic women's golf championship today. The Minneapolis girl played an uphill game in defeating Mrs. William Hockenjos, of Lake Hopatcong, N. J., 1 up, on the eighteenth hole.

Mrs. Hockenjos, former New Jersey champion and dark horse of the Grapefruit Circuit, won the first hole. Playing slowly and deliberately, the New Jersey woman halved the second, third and fourth, going 2 up on the fifth when Miss Berg missed a three-foot putt. Miss Berg won the sixth when her opponent missed a two-foot putt, and they halved the next four. Mrs. Hockenjos went 2 up on the eleventh, but Miss Berg came back and won the twelfth. The Minneapolis miss lost the thirteenth when she missed a short putt.

At that point Miss Berg put on the pressure. She was down in 4 on the 417-yard fourteenth, while Mrs. Hockenjos took a 6. A beautiful recovery from a hollow gave Miss Berg the next hold when Mrs. Hockenjos missed her putt.

With the match all square they halved the next two holes, Miss Berg losing a chance to win the 17th when her putt hung on the lip of the cup, forcing her to take a 4. Mrs. Hockenjos's steady green game failed on the 18th and she took a 6, while Patty was down in 5 to clinch the match.

An erratic wind swept the ocean front course and forced the scores up. Miss Berg was out in 42 and returned with a 39 for 81, three under women's par. Mrs. Hockenjos went out in 41 and came home in 43 for an 84.

Miss Marion McDougall, of Portland, Ore., won the championship flight consolation over Mrs. Laddie Irwin of Montclair, N. J.

O.O.C. Will Send Out Bids To 1940 Olympics Either In May Or June

Formal invitations to compete in the 12th Olympic Games here in 1940 will be dispatched to countries of the world either in May or June by the Tokyo Olympic Organizing Committee, it was learned today.

The invitations will be sent, bearing the signature of Prince Iyesato Tokugawa, chairman of the O.O.C., to members of the International Olympic Committee of the various countries, and will be in French.

Invitations will also be sent to the I.O.C. members in 61 countries to participate in the Fifth Winter Olympic Games at Sapporo in 1940.

Athletic Competition Of Germans, Japanese, Italians Likely Here

Italy is in favor of an athletic meet with champion athletes of Italy, Germany and Japan competing in Japan next year as a prelude to the 12th Olympic Games in 1940, according to Dr. Puccio Pucci, executive officer of the Italian Amateur Athletic Federation, who is here as a member of the Fascist Goodwill Mission.

So far as track and field competition is concerned, Dr. Pucci expects that Luigi Beccali, famed Italian who placed third in the 1,500 meter run at the 11th Olympic Games at Berlin in 1936, and some ten others will make the trip to Japan.

Plans for a German, Japan, Italian athletic meet are being worked out by the Japan Amateur Track and Field Federation.

'Home-Run Hitter' Starts Clouting 'Em 'Over Fence'

WASHINGTON, Feb. 23—Government scientists have produced the greatest home-run hitter in the history of baseball and started it on a two-week slugging spree.

"Ah," sighed Edward B. Eynon, secretary of the Washington Senators, while he gazed at the machine designed to test the liveliness of league balls, "If we could only use him on our team."

As a ball player, this federal fence buster's got everything

Every hit is a homer.

The machine never misses a ball.

It never talks back.

"The only thing he can't do," explained Dr. H. I. Dryden who made the mechanical ball mauler, "is run the bases."

"A hitter like that doesn't have to," exclaimed Eynon. "Every sock is over the fence."

The fence buster looks like a miniature cannon. The scientists feed it baseballs and then turn a switch. A blast of air releases a hunk of wood the size of a bat and it flies against the ball.

The ball sails into a socket in an all-steel pendulum. The scientists then read how far the ball has swung the pendulum and compute the spheroid's liveliness.

Every ball—and there are dozens of them—is being hit from three angles.

1—Across two seams.

2—Across one seam.

3—Across the horsehide between seams.

This indoor home-run hitting will continue for two weeks and then the Bureau of Standards will announce what is called the first comprehensive information on the baseball.

"We realize," explained Dr. Dryden, "that even these tests have limitations. For instance, a pitcher spins the ball when he throws it. We're hitting the ball when it's not in motion."

The official American, National and International League ball are being used, as well as some sample balls the manufacturers have sent in

Eynon said the tests would probably carry great weight when it comes to deciding what designs the leagues will adopt for the 1939 season.

Lee And Miss Tozzer Capture U.S. Figure-Skating Titles

By HARRY CROSS

ARDMORE, Pa., Feb. 26—In a remarkable performance at the national figure skating championships at the new Ardmore Arena, Robin Lee won the men's senior championship tonight for the fourth time. It was a new Robin Lee that gave an impressive display of graceful free skating. He has grown not only in stature but also in smooth, effortless skating execution.

He had a remarkable change of pace, at times skating with fast tempo and then softening the pace to slow langourous spins. Lee interpolated many new and attractive dance steps with his jumps and spins.

Miss Tozzer Triumphs

The new women's senior champion is the young Boston girl, Miss Joan Tozzer, who led Miss Audrey Peppe by a slight margin. There was simplicity to both Miss Tozzer's program and her performance which caught the fancy of the judge. Miss Peppe received the greatest reception of the championships when she finished her program of free skating which was skated with a delightful verve and smooth muscle rhythm.

Because of the large field of skaters in this year's championships sponsored by the Philadelphia Skating Club and Humane Society the tabulators were late in arriving at the close decisions. Miss Tozzer's margin over Miss Peppe was slight and Miss Polly Blodgett, of Boston, was third; Miss Jane Vaughn, of Philadelphia, fourth; and Miss Katherine Durbrow, of New York, fifth.

Erle Reiter, of St. Paul, was runnerup to Lee and Oliver Haupt jr., whose free skating was loudly applauded by the crowded arena, was third, and William J. Nagle, fourth.

Miss Tozzer not only won the women's title for Boston, but also with Bernard Fox won the pairs championships. The pair skated with a delightful coordination and their many movements and formations were executed with an impressive unity.

Miss Tozzer won another national title later when she and her partner, M. Bernard Fox, a Harvard student, were awarded the senior pairs championship. The Boston pair of Miss Grace E. Madden and James L. Madden, former champions in the event, was second, and Miss Ardelle Kloss Sanderson and Roland Janson, of New York, were third.

California entered the national figure-skating scene when Eugene Turner, 17-year-old Los Angeles High School boy, won the national junior championship. A year ago Bob Scott, from Oakland, won the national novice and Turner's victory takes the junior title to the coast for the first time.

Scores Easy Victory

Formerly winner of the Pacific Coast and California State titles, Turner has in six years developed into a promising performer. With his big lead in the figures yesterday, his free skating easily brought him victory.

New York skaters made a clean sweep of the national dance eliminations today and four pairs survived the test which included the best ice dancers from coast to coast. The present titleholders, Miss Nettie Prantel and Harold Hartshorne, who have won so many honors in skating terpsichore that they have lost count of their championships, once again threaten to lead the field. The three other couples left for the finals are Miss Marjorie Parker and George Boltres, Mrs. Louisé Atwill and Otto Dallmayr and Miss Katherine Durbrow and Joseph K. Savage.

Vaughn Takes Title

The free skating performances in the men's novice event were so excellently good that the judges worked for hours before awarding the title to Arthur R. Vaughn jr., of Philadelphia, who held the lead yesterday in school figures. Both Floyd Baxter, of Oakland, and Bobby Specht, of Superior, Wis., gave free skating displays which so impressed the officials that the high marks for these young men practically brought about a triple tie. It was young Vaughn's slight edge in figures which gave him the decision.

To Miss Charlotte Walther, of the Skating Club, of New York, went the women's junior title, both her school figures and free skating carrying her to the championship in one of the best fields of juniors that has ever competed in this event. Miss Walther's performance was all the more remarkable because she won impressively despite the handicap of the pain of a strained back tendon. Miss Dorothy Snell, of St. Paul, was second and Miss Mary Taylor, of Los Angeles, third.

Miss Gretchen Merrill a twelve-year-old Boston schoolgirl, carried off the women's novice title in a big field of twenty-one skaters which was the most representative group of young skaters ever attracted by this event. In winning second place, Miss Dorothy Lee, of the Manhattan Figure Skating Club, came from behind with her excellent free skating performance to beat out another promising young skater from the coast, Miss Barbara Ann Gingg, of the St. Moritz Skating Club of San Francisco. Miss Lee presented her program of jumps, spins and spirals at a fast tempo with poise and confidence. The New York girl is only twelve years old.

Amateur Baseball Selects Pittsburgh

BALTIMORE, Feb. 21—The National Amateur Baseball Federation has re-elected O. L. Fawley of Fort Wayne, Ind., president and awarded the 1938 championship tournament to Pittsburgh.

James A. Downey, Birmingham, Ala., and Virgil E. Zetterind, Detroit, Mich., were re-elected first and second vice-president; and S. J. Cox of Pittsburgh was named third vice-president.

Other officers chosen were T. P. Navario, Cleveland, secretary-treasurer; and Directors William T. Duggan, Cleveland; P. E. Geider, Indianapolis; George J. Moran, Detroit; F. W. Howell, Dayton, Ohio; and James F. Enright, Baltimore.

No definite date was set for the Pittsburgh tourney which will be held sometime in July.

The Federation adopted a resolution recommending to Judge K. M. Landis, baseball commissioner, to eliminate the signing of amateurs by major league clubs without permission of his local organization, to request such players be given duplicate contracts.

East Vs. West Figure Skating Meet Slated Here, April 2 And 3

The sixth annual East versus West figure skating championships will be held at the Sanno rink at Akasaka on Saturday and Sunday, April 2 and 3.

Miss Etsuko Inada, national women's champion who placed tenth in the Fourth Winter Olympic Games at Garmisch-Partenkirchen in 1936, is expected to compete for the Kansai squad.

California Notes Athletic Profit For Fall Of 1937

Christian Science Monitor

BERKELEY, Calif., Feb. 23—Net profits for the fall of 1937 of $212,698.71 are shown in the semiannual report of the Associated Students of the University of California.

Figures in the report made public by Kenneth Priestley, general manager of the Associated Students, show that profitable activities of the association amounted to $249,101.28, with unprofitable activities amounting to $36,402.57, making the net gain for the first half of the 1937-38 fiscal year $212,698.71. This compares with a net gain of $162,850.09 for a similar period in the fall of 1936.

Net profits did not consist entirely of actual cash, since, $53,426.50 of the total represents stadium scrip redeemed during the past football season. Priestly also pointed out that the fall of the year is the one profitable period for the association and that accrued surplus will help to carry out a varied program of spring activities, including five major sports and a number of minor sports. The general manager noted that there is an indebtedness of approximately $235,000 remaining on the Stephens Union building and the Edwards Athletic Field developments. Surplus at the end of the Spring semester will be used to help reduce this indebtedness.

Athletic net profit amounted to $206,431.68, as compared to $158,655.19 for the preceding year. This increase in athletic revenue was due to increased attendance at football games and a decrease in football expenses. Non-profitable activities, operated at a loss of $36,402.57, included the Women's Athletic Association.

Football receipts, after guarantees had been paid to visiting teams, were $345,692.88, as compared to $312,795.10 for the Fall of 1936. From these receipts, direct expenses of $49,658.85 and ticket department expense of $8,470.43 were deducted, resulting in a net profit of $287,563.70.

Football profit "carries" the balance of the athletic program. During the Fall major sports, including baseball, basketball, tennis, crew and track, and minor sports including boxing, fencing, gymnastics, handball, ice hockey, intramural soccer, rugby, skiing, swimming, waterpolo and wrestling cost a total of $32,707.56.

The general overhead charges against athletics, including administration expenses, stadium expense, and expenses of Edwards field and Edwards stadium and oval total $48,424.46. These deductions reduce the profit for athletics to $206,431.68. The comparable profit in 1936 was $158,655.19.

World Title Goes To Canadian Six

N.Y. Times

PRAGUE, Feb. 20—Canada tonight won the world amateur hockey championship by defeating a strong British team, 3—1, in the final match.

Czechoslovakia defeated Germany, 3—0, to take third place in the tournament, behind the two Empire teams. Germany was fourth, Sweden fifth and Switzerland sixth, Sweden winning by 2—0 from the Swiss skaters today.

The final round was played on the "knockout" system. Canada and Britain qualified for their eagerly awaited tussle by defeating, respectively, Germany and Czechoslovakia on Saturday. These four teams made up the final round.

Sudbury Canada's Representative

The honors won for Canada by the Ontario team known as the Sudbury Wolves went to the Dominion for the second straight year. In 1937, when the tournament was held at London, the Kimberley Dynamiters won for Canada.

More than 11,000 enthusiasts saw Canada establish a two-goal lead in the first period, when all the scoring took place. Pearcey Allan of Toronto shone for the Canadians in the early stages. In the fifth minute Johnny Godfrey, Copper Cliff defenseman, carried the puck down the rink and passed to Red Chipman of Kirkland Lake for Canada's first goal.

Pat McReavy, Copper Cliff forward, put the Candians 2 up two minutes later on a brilliant solo dash. Immediately after the next face-off, Gery Davey, a former Port Arthur player, scored for Britain. He was aided by Alex Archer of Winnipeg. Godfrey then scored unassisted.

Late Attacks Fruitless

The second period was unspectacular. In the third Davey unsuccessfully attacked the Canadian goal alone and in combination with Jimmy Kelly, a former Winnipeg and Montreal player. Allan Heximer and Gordon Bruce of Ottawa displayed clever team-work for the Ontario squad. Toward the end the Wolves adopted time-saving tactics. They were decidedly superior throughout.

Columbia Tops Dartmouth On Court, 48 To 37

By IRVING T. MARSH

N.Y. Herald Tribune

NEW YORK, Feb. 27—Columbia's driving basketball team, running and running the full forty minutes, drove potent Dartmouth right off the court and abruptly checked the steady march of the Hanover Indians toward the Eastern League title last night in the Morningside Heights gymnasium, handing the visitors a 48-to-37 walloping and complicating considerably the standing in the pennant race.

Victorious in eight of its previous nine league games and in eighteen of twenty games in and out of the league, Dartmouth never could keep race with the roaring Lions once they got started. The Indians went off on a seven-point surge in the first two minutes and then took a lead of 15 to 8 with eight minutes gone. But then Columbia began to race up and down the court at a terrific tempo. More imoprtant, its shots began to drop. The Light Blue basketeers poured ten points in a row through the hoop, took an 18-to-15 lead and stayed out in front the rest of the way.

Green Still Leads League

The Green, however, lost no ground in the pennant chase. Its defeat made its record eight victories in ten games, while Harvard's unexpected set-back by Penn in Philadelphia was the third defeat in eight games for the Cantabs and left them still a full game behind the Indians.

For the presentation of a wild exhibition of racehorse basketball Columbia and Dartmouth undoubtedly took all honors of the local season. Each team kept running all evening and shooting as soon as it had its hands on the ball. But in the final analysis, it was Columbia's superior condition and its greater drive that gave it the victory, its fourth in eight league games.

Columbia took 104 shots at the hoop, which must be something of a record and made good twenty-two of them. Dartmouth was comparatively conservative with its seventy heaves, although the Indians didn't have any reluctance at taking pot shots at the hoop, either.

With each team setting such a scorching pace, the scoring came so rapidly that even the managerial staffs found it difficult to keep up with the play. For ten minutes after the game, the boys were still in a huddle trying to figure out who made which basket.

O'Brien, Naylor Lead Lions

The scoring for each team was confined to five men apiece, with Columbia's Johnny O'Brien, who has the best average in league play, and John Naylor making twelve points each. Tom Macioce, the sot-shot specialist, made ten for the Lions, as did Ed Anderson. For Dartmouth, little George Hanna, who played "standing forward" for the first few minutes last night and got away with two sleeper baskets, scored twelve points, while Bob MacLeod threw in eleven and Willie Thomas, the league's pace setter, dropped in ten.

The sort of game the boys were going to play was evident right from the start. Columbia scored the first basket but then Dartmouth, capitalizing on three sleeper plays, came through with its seven-point surge. Columbia came back with its ten-point sortie and just before the half closed put through nine points in a row that gave it a 29-to-22 advantage at intermission.

They picked up right where they left off after the rest period.

Mrs. Moody To Return To Wightman Cup Play

Domei Tsushin

NEW YORK, March 23—Mrs. Helen Wills Moody, world-famous queen of the tennis courts, will return to the 1938 Wightman Cup Competitions ending a retirement of six years, the United States Lawn Tennis Association announced here today. Others on the American team include Miss Alice Marble, Miss Helen Jacobs, Miss D. M. Bundy, Miss Dorothy Wheeler, and Mrs. S. P. Fabyan.

The United States last year won the cup taking six matches out of seven. The 1937 team was made up of Miss Marble, Miss Jacobs, Miss Bundy, and Mrs. S. P. Fabyan. Miss Wheeler, of California, is a newcomer in the women's tennis championships.

Jacobs Upsets Strafaci, 1 Up, On 39th Hole

Herald Tribune

ST. AUGUSTINE, Fla., Feb. 19—Playing in his first major tournament, eighteen-year-old Burleigh E. Jacobs, of Wauwatosa, Wis., defeated the metropolitan star, Franks Strafaci, of Great Neck, L. I., 1 up, at the thirty-ninth hole on St. Augustine links today for the national championship of golf club champions. The victory gave him a leg on the Walter J. Travis Memorial Trophy, the principal prize in the competition for eleven years.

Strafaci, who is twenty-one, is a former national public links champion, and he played as a representative, of the Lakeville Country Club. The Long Island ace was a pre-tournament favorite. Jacobs played for the Westmoor Country Club, of Wauwatosa, near Milwaukee.

Jacobs listed among his match-play victims two of the early favorites—Carl M. Dann jr., of Orlando, Fla., medalist and twice winner of the tournament, and Richard Chapman, amateur star of the Greenwich, Conn., Country Club.

The Wisconsin youngster putted his way into the championship. On the morning eighteen he had seven one-putt greens, and an under-par round of 35—36—71, against Strafaci's pair of 36s. Jacobs gained a lead of 1 up on the opening nine holes, and still maintained that margin coming off the eighteenth green.

Jacobs increased his margin to 2 up by taking the first hole in the afternoon, but birdies on the second and fourth squared it for Strafaci. They were still all even at the end of the twenty, Jacobs going out in 38 and Strafaci in par 37. Strafaci took the thirtieth hole of the match, but young Jacobs insured extra holes by winning the thirty-fourth with a birdie deuce.

On the third extra hole, Strafaci was over the green with his second, and then missed a five-foot putt for a half.

Premier's Second Son Places Second In Golf Tourney Here

Shooting a net 149, Michitaka Konoye, 18-year-old son of Prince Fumimaro Konoye, the Premier, placed second in the fourth annual Kanto students invitational golf tournament over 36 holes Thursday at the Komazawa course. He sported a 10 handicap.

First place went to Shingo Sumida of Keio, who registered a 132 gross for a net 148.

Young Konoye's scores were 41 and 44 going out and 43 and 41 coming in, for a 169 gross. His elder brother, Fumitaka, is this year's captain of the Princeton golf team. The Premier himself is a golf enthusiast.

Italian Grapplers To Compete Here In National Meet

In preparation for the 12th Olympic Games, the Japan Amateur Wrestling Association has adopted a most ambitious program for this year. Teams from the Philippines and Italy will be invited for competition here while next Winter, a Japanese contingent will be sent once again to the Philippines and to the Pacific coast of the United States.

The national championship scheduled for Tokyo in August will be a virtual three nation affair featuring Japan, Italy and the United States. The Italian team will arrive here during the latter part of July and will appear in a series of Japan-Italy matches, after which they will compete in the national championships during the middle part of August. Competing in the latter also will be Emilio Bruno, welterweight champion of the United States last year and who was here the same year with the Pacific coast all-star squad brought by Coach Roy Moore. Negotiations were recently completed between Bruno and the Association for his visit here.

The Italian team is considered one of the strongest in Europe, and it is expected that its matches with the Japanese here will be as hard fought and interesting as the Japan versus American meets last year.

The Philippine team, including four contestants and one coach, will arrive here in May for a return engagement.

The first tryouts for the Japanese Olympic team will be held at the Y.M.C.A. at Kanda on April 17. Those considered promising will be selected for group training at the Y.M.C.A. for 10 days beginning April 19.

Yale Captures Quadrangular Meet At Boston

BOSTON, Feb. 26—Five meet records were set and another mark was equalled while Yale's well balanced track and field forces, taking advantage of every scoring chance, gained a surprising quadrangular victory with a total of 44¾ points tonight at the Boston Garden.

The Blue finished the thirteen-event competition with a 12¼ point margin over the favored Cornell team, which, after a disappointing showing in the early weight events, was forced to take the runners-up honors with a 32¼ total. Harvard was third with 31 points and Dartmouth, last year's winner, trailed its three "Ivy" rivals with 27¼ points

While building up its victory, Yale gained five first places and captured four seconds. One Blue performer, Jay Shields, set off the barrage against the meet's records by winning the 45-yard high hurdles in 5 seconds, which matched the world indoor mark set by Sam Allen of Oklahoma Baptist.

Yale's two-mile relay team wiped out the meet's record for that event with a 7:58.6 performance, and Nick Kerr, Yale's premier sprinter, equaled the meet's 5.7 seconds mark with his winning effort in the 50-yard dash final.

Cornell's Jim Pender and Howie (Wrecker) Welch supplied new meet marks for the "300" and two-mile races, the former breaking the tape in 32.6 seconds and the latter in 9:32.4.

Another outstanding performance was turned in by Harvard's Jim Lightbody, namesake son of the famous old Olympic champion, in the 600-yard run, which he won in 1:13.8.

"BELIEVE IT OR NOT" --by Ripley

The Man Who Made Himself God

Juan Manuel Rosas (1793-1877) Argentine dictator for 23 years (1829-1852), was the prototype of the modern dictators. He abolished a free press and parliament, and ruled by terror, espionage, prison, concentration camps, torture, poison, assassinations and phony plebiscites. He organized an army of cut-throats whom he dressed in brown shirts and who were his henchmen. He forbade the wearing or display of black, blue and green under pain of death. Every one was compelled to say and write at least once a day "Viva el restaurador de los leyes" (Long live the restorer of laws) in allusion to himself. He ordered that the name of the third month (Marzo or March) be changed to Rosas in his honor.

In only one respect did he go further than his modern imitators. He removed the picture of the Saviour from the high altar of all churches and replaced them with his own likeness, forcing the clergy and citizenry to worship him like a god.

He was finally deposed and fled to England where he lived in retirement for 25 years.

Running After You Are 40 Is Silly, U.S. Trainer Says

For twenty-seven years Artie McGovern has been the America's foremost physical director and instructor. Among the famous athletes he has trained are Babe Ruth, Jack Dempsey, Vinnie Richards, Johnny Farrell, Lou Gehrig, and Gene Sarazen, besides thousands of prominent men and women.

By ARTIE M'GOVERN

NEW YORK.—(INS)—Dr. Graeme M. Hammond certainly started something when he decided to take a four mile run on his eightieth birthday. It made good newspaper copy, but I hope that men past forty don't attempt to emulate the Doctor. If John Doe were to run four miles on his eightieth birthday it would mean very little, but the fact that a doctor of medicine does is liable to create the impression that "the doctor knows."

Because this physician has reached the age of eighty in good enough physical condition to allow him to run, even in his own feeble way is due not so much to his habits of living and exercise as it is to the wonderful body that his ancestors passed on to him. It might be possible that the doctor would be in better physical and organic condition than he is today if he had been more conservative with his vitality and energy.

All men are not created equal, with due respect to the Declaration of Independence. None of us starts out in life on a basis of equality with all others. Tom Brown differs from Bill Jones. Bill Jones differs from Jim Smith. Heredity plays an important part in determining whether you are physically fit or unfit. One child is born with a body that may carry him through only ten years of life. Another has physical qualities which will see him through fifty. A third may have a potential life span of one hundred years. Unlike whiskey, your body does not improve with age. The older a person becomes, the more conservative he should be with his exercise and diet.

The general reaction to the octogenarian running four miles has been "I'd like to be able to do that when I'm sixty," which is like the man on the street saying "I wish I had a million dollars." Of course, the man with a million dollars can keep spending a long time before he is broke while the man with $100,000 can only keep up his spending one-tenth as long. The same thing applies to health. You can either keep your million or spend it.

Exercise is just as necessary to good health as eating. I want to emphasize, however, that it is just as important for one to exercise moderately as to eat moderately. Exercise, in all its forms, is in reality work. Work involves an expenditure of energy. Passive exercise conserves energy. Vigorous exercise spends it prodigiously. There are, of course, thousands of different exercises and each has its own devotees—or lack of them. It is not my purpose to condemn any of them, because they all have something in their favor when taken rationally. It probably wouldn't kill a man to exercise incorrectly, but when it takes less energy to do it intelligently, is it not reasonable to suppose that greater good will come of it? The simplest rule I know for good exercise is to take that which gives the maximum result with the minimum expenditure of energy.

"How much exercise is good for me?" To inquiries of this sort my repeated answer is, "That depends entirely upon you." It is a question that involves the type of work you do and whether your work is of a sedentary or active nature.

It depends upon your physical make up, upon whether you are high strung and nervous or of a more phlegmatic disposition. One cannot make a general statement to fit every case. In exercise as in every health rule, there must be a balance. We moderns have become so addicted to health fads and fancies that many of us are not well largely because we think too much about health. We follow fads that more often than not do greater harm than good. We have a firm faith in fallacies which may be one man's good and another's poison. We have been led to believe that the business of keeping well is a complicated process.

Good health and with it success and happiness belong to you by every natural right. Anything else is unnatural. Sanity, common sense, and no running after forty are the only markers on the highway.

Komazawa Site Found Unfitted For Olympic Pool By City Group

The tentatively selected site at Komazawa, where the Olympic Village will be constructed, for the Olympic swimming pool was found to be objectionable by the Tokyo Municipal Olympic Committee on an inspection trip Friday. In its place, a training pool for the Olympic athletes will be built.

The Municipal Committee hopes to have the Olympic swimming stadium constructed somewheres in the city proper.

Entire satisfaction, however, was voiced with the layout for the Olympic village.

Lawson Puzzles Chicago Manager

NEW YORK—If Jimmy Dykes, manager of the Chicago White Sox, never sees Roxie Lawson, Detroit's righthander again it will be all right with him.

Lawson is Dykes' favorite nightmare. Says Jimmy: "That fellow Lawson is wild. He weakens in the late innings. We knock him out of the box and still we can't beat him. Last year he took us nine times before we finally beat him late in the season.

"His fast ball is a joke. His curve is only a wrinkle. He gives a flock of passes and yet he beats us. I don't know whether it's because he lives right or is just plain smart as well as lucky. Anyhow, he beats us and he beats the other club, so what's the difference."

Yes, Lawson did beat the other clubs. He finished the season with eighteen victories and only seven defeats. Lefty Gomez and Charley Ruffing were the only American League pitchers who won any more games than he did. Yet, he ranked fiftieth in effectiveness among the league hurlers. He walked 115 batsmen and struck out only sixty-eight.

Roxie did pitch one four-hit game and three six-hitters but he also won games in which he allowed ten, eleven and twelve hits. Perhaps, he is a "Springer." At any rate, he registered eight of his victories before June 1 while, during the month of June, he was knocked from the box five times. But, when that happened, there generally was a competent relief pitcher hanging around to save the Tigers and allow Lawson to be credited with another victory.

Lawson, probably, never would have had the chance to win eighteen games but for the mishaps that befell Schoolboy Rowe and Tommy Bridges. Neither one of these aces was ready when the season opened and Lawson, who had been a relief pitcher in '36 and was counted upon for a similar role in '37, was, practically overnight, elevated to a starting berth. Won four straight, dropped one, won five in a row, lost one, grabbed three straight, lost two and then won five in a row.

Baer Is More Sinned Against Than Sinning

By DAVIS J. WALSH
International News Service Sports Editor

NEW YORK.—Probably the most misunderstood of our sterling young men of the prize ring is Maxwell Adelhead Baer, who is currently in our midst for the purpose of resuming a career that was mercifully deterred by the most sensible match the man ever made, namely, matrimony. The best that can be said for him, professionally, is that he went as far as, and, indeed, a good deal further than might be expected with his rather limited equipment.

The worst—also the least enlightening and accurate version—is what they're saying now, shortly before his meeting with Tommy Farr, the Welshman, at Madison Square Garden. He beat the Englishman. They're saying that he never was meant to be a fighter; that he hasn't the stomach for it and that his brother Buddy, has all the stuff that Max so obviously lacks. And they're wrong, both ways.

Buddy is a nice, engaging soul. But he can't fight at all. As for Max—

He can lick anybody he can hit with the only punch he has, a blinding right hand, and that went for Carnera, the late Ernie Schaaf and Levinsky. It still goes for Max Schmeling, supposed to be the greatest fighter in the world.

In addition, Baer probably can take a punch better than anybody now in the ring and there's only one reason he isn't as tough, mentally, as he is in a physical sense. Underneath all his bluster, he's as friendly as a stray airdale. He wants everybody to like him—and you just can't feel that way and work up a first rate snarl for the benefit of the gent in the other corner. So much for Baer's complicated personality.

For the rest, he had a beautiful right hand discus-thrower's punch that came like a flash of light out of nowhere and carried him all the way to the heavyweight championship of the world. He'd still be belting guys with it if his hands had stayed whole. But they cracked up and so, in later years, he went into the ring minus the only thing that had ever made him significant.

Against Schmeling, Carnera, Levinsky and Schaaf he had looked unbeatable. Why? Because in the case of Schmeling and Carnera, they did the very thing that made his right hand punch most effective. Carnera instinctively pulled back into it. Schmeling, with his crouch, leaned well to the right and was nailed by the descending arc of the blow. Each was knocked very thoroughly out.

In the case of Levinsky and Schaaf, he simply was tougher than a couple of blokes who at the time were very tough in their own right—and so he knocked them out, too. In other words, Baer thrived because his opposition knew no way of escaping a good resounding punch on the profile.

A lot has been said about this being a "sucker punch;" that everybody saw it coming. If they did, they saw more than Schmeling and the others. As a matter of fact, they didn't. The punch is a "sneaker" and practically explodes all over your countenance without warning. But it's all that Baer has and he knows it. So he shuffles and capers and smirks and clowns with the idea of distracting your attention and getting you set for it at the proper distance, which is approximately one yard and a half.

He could hardly hope to do that with a shifting target like Joe Louis; yet he just flicked Joseph's chin in the first round with an overhand right which, knowing Joseph as we now do, would have closed the incident right there. That was Baer's one chance with Louis and he knew it wouldn't come again. He had barely missed with a 1,000 to 1 shot and, having missed, he might as well have never thrown the punch at all.

The rest was needless agony. Louis was pole-axeing him with the toughest punches I've seen since Dempsey and finally I found myself saying, "Man, oh, man. You're not going to take any more of those, are you?" Almost as though he'd heard me, Baer collapsed to his knees and stayed there, causing some of our critics, who are always utterly fearless in a case like that, to speak slightingly of the man's courage.

It has always been this writer's idea that one more punch like that might, indeed, have knocked Baer out—but permanently. It has also been an idea of mine that, though he may be as curious a human document as we've had before us in many years, this Maxwell Adelbert Baer is not a quitter, rated off his behavior in the Louis shambles.

Or, if he is, then Goliath certainly chucked it that time with young David.

40-To-1 Shot Captures Grand National Classic

LONDON, March 25—Battleship, Mrs. Marion Scott's American-bred entry, today won the Grand National Steeplechase at Aintree, Liverpool. A 40-to-1 shot, Battleship ran the gruelling four-and-half mile course in beautiful style to beat one of the top-notchers, Royal Danielli. Workman, a 28-to-1 shot placed third. Thirty-six ran.

N.Y. World's Fair To Stage Record Sports Program

By PAT ROBINSON
International News Service Sports Writer

NEW YORK.—An all-star international polo match; that long-awaited open tennis tournament; and an outstanding football game are among the tempting sports bits suggested for the New York World's Fair.

Christie Walsh, who is directing the sports program for the fair, has just completed a 7,000-mile tour in the interest of his program.

Everywhere he went he found interest so great in the sports program that he is now worried because he fears sports may supersede everything else at the Fair in the public mind.

Christy started out with the idea of drumming up a ballyhoo for sports but he quickly discovered that the sports writers of the country, the sports loving public and the athletes in all branches of sports were already one jump ahead of him.

It seemed that everybody has his own ideas about what the Fair should offer in the way of sports and now Christy's main job is to apply the brakes rather than step on the gas.

Out in Los Angeles, Eric Pedley, one of the world's best polo players, suggested the all-star polo match. This would be a sports natural no matter where held. With the world to choose from, it would be possible to put two 36-goal teams on the field.

Offhand, one could suggest six sure starters among the eight to be selected for those two teams. The world's three 10-goal men—Hitchcock, Iglehart and Smith, would be named as a matter of course. Cavanagh and Andrada from the Argentine probably would be named and Capt. Roark, the Irish ace, also might be chosen.

Ellsworth Vines urged Walsh to include an open tennis tournament in his program. One has only to suggest a few names to indicate how well such a tournament would be received. Imagine a tournament with Vines and Fred Perry and Bill Tilden and other pros playing against Don Budge, Baron von Cramm and other amateur stars. Why, the fans would tear down the walls in their efforts to get in.

So vast are the possibilities Walsh is now predicting that next year everybody will be saying what the late Tex Rickard once said: "I ain't never seed anything like it."

New Port Side Is Needed For Crew At Penn

Christian Science Monitor

PHILADELPHIA, Feb. 21—Russell S. Callow, in his 12 years of coaching rowing at the University of Pennsylvania, has had many difficult problems to solve but the one that confronts him this year is perhaps the most trying of all.

The loss of the entire port side of last year's varsity eight and of one member of the starboard side, makes Callow's task a heavy one. Only three of the 10 varsity oarsmen who received letters last year are available for this year's combination.

Frederick Ballard, Jr., number 6; J. Hamilton Wilcox, number 4, and W. Chattin Wetherill, Jr., stroke, are the only veterans who will don rowing togs next Monday when the Red and Blue starts its sixty-first season of rowing on the Schuylkill River.

Lee for Number 3

Gordon Lee, a junior, who rowed number 3 on the varsity in the Childs and Adams Cup regattas, but who did not receive his varsity award, is expected to win a regular position this year.

Dick Marshall, Henry Callahan, George Eddy, Louis Krumboldt, Charles Wheadon, Ben Norton and Matthew McLoughlin, are junior varsity oarsmen of a season ago who are available for places on the varsity eight.

Of the large number of freshmen who rowed last year three are regarded as having varsity possibilities. They include James Burk, brother of Joe, former Pennsylvania oarsman and now National and Canadian single sculls champion; George Dahm, who rowed in a four-oared shell in the 1936 Olympic Games, and George W. Pepper 3d. The last-named is a grandson of former United States Senator Pepper and the son of George Wharton Pepper Jr., both of whom rowed at Pennsylvania as undergraduates.

Over 200 Candidates

More than 200 candidates for the varsity, junior varsity, 150-pound and freshman crews have been working out for the past six weeks on the indoor machines under the north stand of Franklin Field. With the exception of about a score who will need practice in the barge, the entire group will be boated in shells next week.

With nine of the 16 lettermen from the 1937 team among the candidates, Pennsylvania will add baseball to the active list of sports next Wednesday afternoon when Dr. Walter Carlisle, veteran coach, will hold his first workout of the season.

Starting his eighteenth season as coach of the Red and Blue, Carlisle will start the season with three experienced pitchers, two catchers, three infielders and only one outfielder.

This year's team will play a schedule of 20 games, 12 with league teams and the other eight with Villanova, Swarthmore, Drexel, West Chester, Penn State, Rutgers, Navy and Penn A. C.

Cambridge Crew Makes Fast Time In Practice

Domei Tsushin

LONDON, March 24—With the 90th Oxford-Cambridge regatta only nine days away, the Cambridge crew today stroked its second practice race over the full course from Putney to Mortlake up the Thames in 20 minutes 36 seconds.

In the first practice race over the same course last Thursday, the crew rowed up the Thames in 18 minutes 49 seconds. The Oxford crew stroked a similar race in difficult weather conditions last Friday in 19 minutes 44 seconds.

"BELIEVE IT OR NOT" --by Ripley

Price of a Single Word

Ismail I, Khedive of Egypt (1830-1895), came to the throne in 1863 and four years later paid $300,000 for a single word. He paid Fuad Pasha, Grand Vizier of Turkey, this sum as a bribe, so that Fuad might influence the Sultan to permit Ismail to assume the title of Khedive, a Persian word meaning Prince or Ruler. In the 16 years that Ismail ruled Egypt, he squandered $35,000,000 a year on entertainment, a total of more than ½ billion dollars, before he was finally deposed and forced to leave the country in 1879.

25 New Breeds Gain Recognition By U.S. Kennel Club

NEW YORK.—(INS)—To the so-called "new" breeds that have appeared among America's pure-bred dog population goes some of the credit for making the nation increasingly conscious of pedigreed specimens of "man's best friend."

A survey of registration figures for the past 60 years reveals some interesting facts. In the ten years from 1928 to 1937, inclusive, The American Kennel Club recognized as pure-bred and admitted to its Stud Book some 25 breeds never before seen on this continent. And in this same period, the A. K. C. registered a total of 596,300 dogs of all breeds.

While the new breeds did not leap to prominence immediately, the majority progressed at a steady pace. But their importation to the United States served to focus attention on pure-bred dogs in general. Prior to 1928, the A. K. C. had admitted to its Stud Book very few of the breeds then known for centuries in Europe and other parts of the world. From 1867 to 1928, there had been admitted only 26 breeds. But registrations in those years were very small in comparison with the past decade.

From 1918 to 1927, the A. K. C. registered 330,795 dogs—and the greater number were in the latter years of that decade. From 1908 to 1917, registrations were 125,242; from 1898 to 1907, 67,138; from 1888 to 1897, 38,727; and from 1878 to 1887, 7,599. From the beginning up to the end of 1937, the A. K. C. has registered 1,215,801 dogs. Of these almost half have been placed on the books during the past ten years.

Strangely, although the A. K. C. has recognized more breeds during the past decade than at any time in its history, it is more difficult to gain recognition now than it was in the early days of the governing body. Today, months of research precede the recognition of a new breed.

Penn Invites 940 Teams To Relays

PHILADELPHIA, Feb. — (INS) — Invitations to the 44th annually University of Pennsylvania Relay Carnival to be held on Franklin Field on April 29 and 30, have been extended to 940 colleges and high and preparatory schools, H. Jamison Swarts, Director of Athletic at Pennsylvania, and manager of the carnival has announced.

The total exceeds by 24 the number issued a year ago. The list includes 252 colleges, 146 preparatory schools and 542 high schools in 41 states, the District of Columbia and Canada.

Sixteen more high schools and twelve more colleges have been added to the list while four less preparatory schools have been invited.

Of the total number of invitations more than 500 are expected to be accepted for the two days of relay racing and field events.

All Blacks Beat St. Joseph's Five By 54 To 24 Score

Special To The Japan Times

YOKOHAMA, March 26—The Yokohama "All Blacks" Sports Club started its basketball season by beating the St. Joseph College quintet 54-24 this evening at the latter's gymnasium by taking the offensive at the beginning of the game and keeping the pace up until the final whistle blew.

A whirlwind attack led by Captain Sakagami of the All Blacks who scored 31 of the 54 points dampened the over-confidence of the St. Joseph boys and threw them on the defensive. And except for short spurts they were unable to stem the All Black advance.

The all Blacks were weak on the defense except for the brilliant playing of Ishikawa and Sakagami, guards and Planas at center. Time and time again Tarasenko got the ball and carried it down the floor unstopped to score.

The St. Joseph team which was expected to win got off with a bad start and in spite of the fact that it had the stronger combination and was in better condition it lacked coordination and teamplay. The offensive was ragged.

On the defensive, the college boys failed to cover their men. Wandering around in circles, they bunched together and concentrated on one or two men allowing the All Blacks fo score at will.

The line-ups follow:

Lake Placid Test Captured By Ruud

By FRANK ELKINS

N.Y. Times

LAKE PLACID, N. Y., Feb. 22—Returning to the scene where he first gained world-wide fame in 1932 by capturing the Olympic championship, the dynamic Birger Ruud gave another masterful ski jumping performance today at the Intervales 6-meter hill. The occasion was the seventeenth annual invitation event under the auspices of the Lake Placid Club Sno Birds.

A holiday throng of 2,000 was held spell-bound as the European ace, known as Norway's ambassador on skis, easily conquered an international field. On his first effort, the 23-year-old star came dashing down the icy incline for a flight of 184 feet, which distance was either equaled or surpassed by seven others.

But with the incline faster on the second round and with the pressure on him, the two-time Olympic and world titleholder showed just how flying through the air should be done on a pair of hickory wings.

A Faultless Landing

This time he cleared 217 feet, making the longest and by far the most graceful leap of the day. The hill was lightning-fast, but he came down the treacherous inrun in an easy manner, gave a vigorous spring at the take-off and landed faultlessly. The two jumps earned him 230 points.

Once again second place went to the transplanted Norwegian, Sigurd Ulland of the Lake Tahoe Ski Club in California, who provided Birger with a real battle in the Nationals Sunday. Ulland scored 224.8 points today. With flights of 189 and 212 feet, Ulland equaled the aggregate of Ruud's distance but lacked the assurance and steadiness of his countryman.

The older Ruud, Sigmund, whose past exploits are well known, came in third with leaps of 184 and 204 feet for 203.7 points. Like his younger brother, Sigmund won the position on his form, for Alf Engen of the Sun Valley Ski Club beat him in both rounds, jumping 189 and 209 feet. Shakiness on landing cost Engen some points.

The Wisconsin junior, Walter Bietila, American Olympian, and the Eastern veteran, Harold Sorensen of Norfolk, followed.

Tower a Sheet of Ice

All roads in this Adirondack Winter resort led to towering Olympic slide today. The greatest array of ski riders here since 1932 was scheduled to participate in an event made possible only through the ceaseless toil of the Lake Placid Club officials and the skiers themselves, who spent most of yesterday and this morning breaking up the icy terrain on the hill.

But despite their heroic efforts, the tower still was a sheet of ice and provided many hazards. To take off from the scaffold was a tribute to the competitors' nerve. The crowd was appreciative of the fact and cheered lustily.

Notwithstanding the difficult conditions, the entrants gave excellent accounts of themselves. Spills were few, only five in some seventy flights in Class A.

In Class B, however, 18-year-old Harvey Decker of Salisbury, Conn., missed the shortened take-off and hit the icy slope head-on. He was rushed to the Lake Placid Hospital. Several hours later Dr. J. A. Geis revealed that he had suffered only a fractured right radius and contusions of the face.

Laramie Sets Pace

One of the West's foremost juniors, 18-year-old Roy Laramie of the Itasca S. C. of Coleraine, Minn., performed with the skill and courage of a veteran campaigner in winning the Class B laurels. He had length and grace in his leaps of 184 and 186 feet for 21 points.

The bob-sledders continued their record-smashing accomplishments on the Mount Van Hoevenberg run from the one-mile mark. Aubrey (Bucky) Wells, who has won five of the six major races this season, gained his second championship in two days by piloting the Keene Valley crew to victory in the North American four-man run.

He shattered the one-heat mark of 1:07 on each of his four runs and eclipsed the four-heat standard of 4:29.71. His crew was clocked at 1:06.06, 1:06.50, 1:05.83 and 1:06.51 for a total time of 4:24.90.

Getting Ready For 1940 Games

Under international rules for the first time was held a marksman ship tournament Sunday morning at the Japan Rifle Shooting Club in way of preparation for the 12th Olympic Games. Photo shows three candidates receiving coaching by military expert.

Kono To Be Asked To Quit J.T.F.F.

Ichiro Kono, member of the House of Representatives who caused a sensation in world sports circles when he interpellated the Government during the recent session of the Diet whether or not the 12th Olympic Games should be held in Tokyo (and War Minister General Gen Sugiyama replied that the Games should be abandoned if the China Incident did not come to a close before 1940), will be asked to resign on his own initiative as councilor of the Japan Track and Field Federation.

This was the decision reached by the Kanto Track and Field Association at a general meeting of its directors Sunday afternoon at the council room of the Tokyo Nichi Nichi. Mr. Kono is a vice-president of the association.

Kono was the first to start opposition against the holding of the 12th Olympic Games. He did this in his capacity as president of the Kanagawa Track and Field Federation last Summer shortly after the Army had decided not to have its officers compete in the equestrian events of the Games because of the China Incident.

Dartmouth Beats Harvard Six, 7 To 6

N.Y. Times

BOSTON, Feb. 23—In a torrid game in which the lead shifted frequently, Dartmouth scored a 7-to-6 overtime victory over Harvard in their International Intercollegiate Hockey League contest at the Boston Garden tonight before 2,500 spectators.

It was also a Quadrangular League battle, and the result clinched this title for the Indians, no matter how they fare in their two remaining games with Princeton. With the crown goes the Hobey Baker Memorial Trophy.

Eleven different players scored goals, and in a wild second period there were seven tallies. Forest Mather, right winger, had the honor of opening the scoring and then making the winning marker with his second goal.

Cross Assists Mather

Jack Cross also had a hand in the final tally. He carried inside the blue line and fed a short forward pass to Mather, who drove an angled shot past Goalie Howard Johnson at 4:04 of the extra period. Then the Indians concentrated on repulsing threats by the Crimson, who removed the goalie in the last minute to use six forwards.

Following Mather's first goal at 1:35 of the opening period, Ned Cutter tied the score at 12:02 assisted by Johnny Mechem and George Roberts and with Bob Egelhoff in the penalty box. Thereafter, although they evened the count on several occasions, the Indians were unable to take the lead until midway through the third session.

At 7:40 of the third, Egelhoff received a penalty try called against the Crimson goalie for throwing the disk forward. He converted to create a 5—all deadlock, and two minutes later Dan Sullivan fired Captain Dick Lewis's pass-out into the Harvard cage.

Captain Hicks Ties Score

Less than two minutes of the period remained when Captain Traft Hicks equalized for Harvard. He pounced on a rebound of Austin Harding's hard shot and beat Goalie Wes Goding.

The line-up:

	Harvard (6)	Dartmouth (7)
Goal	Johnson	Goding
Defense	Emerson	Feeley
Defense	Hicks	Egelhoff
Center	Roberts	Walsh
Wing	Mechem	Mather
Wing	Cutter	Cross

Nemoto, Former Waseda Star, Named Manager Of Nagoya Pro Team

Appointment of Yukito Nemoto, 37, former star infielder of Waseda, as manager of the Nagoya professional baseball team, was announced Sunday.

Following his graduation from Waseda in 1926, he was for a time employed in the business world before his appointment as coach of the Chuo University. For his efficient handling of the players, he won a name for himself.

Of late, he had been coach of the Yokohama Higher Commercial School nine.

Apostoli Beaten By Young Corbett

SAN FRANCISCO, Feb. 22—Young Corbett, 33-year-old former welterweight boxing champion, won a slashing ten-round decision from Freddie Apostoli, nine years his junior, today.

The Fresno (Calif.) veteran piled up a substantial lead in early rounds and went on to weather Apostoli's barrage late in the fight and emerge on top with five rounds on the plus side.

Apostoli, a former San Francisco bellhop who recently won from Marcel Thil of France and middleweight champion Freddie Steele, took two. Three were even. Corbett weighed 160 pounds and Apostoli 159½. They traded punches in the Seals' baseball stadium before approximately 15,000 persons. The gate receipts were around $25,000.

Apostoli, termed the uncrowned middleweight king by virtue of his victory over Steele, went into today's battle a 2½-to-1 favorite. Corbett, attempting a comeback, recently won from Dale Sparr, former navy champion, and Young Dick Foster, Berkeley, Calif.

Both men fought furiously and the crowd was in an uproar up to the time Referee Toby Irwin raised Corbett's hand as the winner.

Kanto Tops Kansai In O.B. Rugby Tilt

In the last rugby game of the season, Kanto defeated Kansai, 26-12, in the 16th annual East versus West O. B. (older boys) clash at the Meiji Shrine grounds Sunday afternoon. It was Kanto's fourth straight victory.

Kansai put up keener fight than expected and it was a seesaw game, the outcome of which was uncertain until the last five minutes of play. Despite its wide and random selection of players to make teamwork difficult, the Kansai contingent showed a smoothness of attack that had the Kanto squad on the defensive for the greater part of the first half. As a matter of fact, the visitors were first to break the ice in the scoring column when Okada registered a try in the right corner in 11 minutes.

But at this stage of the game, the Kanto representatives started to go places, the forwards especially beginning to press on the visitors. Shimizu registered a try in 13 minutes and when the whistle for the interval came, Kanto was leading by 8 to 6.

The game developed into a nip and tuck contest after resumption of play and at 20 minutes Kanto was leading only by a point margin, 13-12. Shimizu dribbled from the right flank on the Kansai 25 yard line and crossed the line to score a try for Kanto in 25 minutes. Kitano put the game on ice for Kanto by registering tries in 28 and 21 minutes respectively.

The line-ups were:

Kanto: Yamashita, Iwashita, Sunabori, Ono, Yamaguchi, Ono and Shimizu, forwards; Yamamoto, S. Ito and Yoshida, halfbacks; Kitano, Nishio, Yamano and Nakajima, threequarters; J. Ito, fullback.

Kansai: Minobe, Yanagi, Okada Yugawa, Matsumi, Miura, Saito, forwards; Saito, Kinoshita, Hayashi, halfbacks; Kumagai, Tanba, Nagaoki Hasegawa, threequarters; and Kanzaki, fullback.

Coubertin's Heart Buried At Site Of Original Games

Domei Tsushin

OLYMPIA, Greece, March 26—A simple casket containing the heart of the late Baron Pierre de Coubertin, famed French founder of the modern Olympic Games, was impressively buried today at the foot of Mount Kronos, which was the site of the original Olympic contests more than 2,700 years ago.

The elaborate burial ceremony was attended by Crown Prince Paul of Greece, hundreds of prominent Greek officials, and members of the International Olympic Committee including Count Henri Baillet de Latour, chairman of the I.O.C. and Professor Jigoro Kano, of Japan. Thousands of spectators also watched the proceedings from vantage points on the historic Cronion Hill.

The impressive ceremony was begun shortly after 10 a.m. when the casket containing the heart was moved from the Olympic Museum to its final resting place. The casket was taken to the burial grounds between two long lines of members of the International Olympic Committee and members of the Greek Olympic Committee, who stood with bowed heads. The Crown Prince placed the small casket at the foot of the grave where blessings were given and the casket sealed.

Wreaths of flowers from all parts of the world were laid beside the tomb. Also attending the ceremony were the French Minister here, Henri Cosmo and Count Berthis de Sanvigny, cousin of the late Baron, who came in behalf of his widow. The lone eulogy was delivered by the Greek Minister of Education Georgo Copulus.

Count de Coubertin died last September. He revived the modern Olympic Games in Athens in 1896 after a lapse of 2672 years. The first Olympic Games was held in 776 B.C.

Dizzy Dean Signs With Cardinals

N.Y. Times

WINTER HAVEN, Fla., Feb. 23—Dizzy Dean ended his annual salary squabble with the Cardinals today by signing a contract for 1938. Ole Diz motored here from his Bradenton Winter home, shook hands with Branch Rickey, vice president and general manager of the St. Louis club, went into a hotel room huddle with the boss and signed on the dotted line, all within two and a half hours.

Neither Dean nor Rickey would disclose the salary figure, but reports soon were circulated that Dizzy had agreed to pitch for about $17,500. He previously had said he would demand $20,000. He received about $27,000 last year.

The big moundsman returned the first contract the Cards sent him, saying he had expected to take a salary reduction but was not in the mood for a slash of "more than $10,000." Rickey didn't say at the time how much he had offered Dean but the figure was reported around $15,000.

All smiles, Dizzy emerged from the conference today declaring he was mighty pleased and would report for Spring training at the St. Petersburg camp on March 2. His only comment about the salary arrangement was: "It suits me."

Third in Effectiveness

He said he felt sure he would have a better season than in 1937, when he won thirteen games, lost ten and finished third among National League pitchers in effectiveness. He quit playing golf recently to "rest up" for Spring training.

The conference between Dean and Rickey was the quietest and most business like in the series they have held each year. Usually salary squabbles brought on hot words and they walked out on each other several times during the annual confab.

Rickey disclosed tonight he already had conferred with Joe Medwick, slugging outfielder, at St. Petersburg Beach. Medwick is not satisfied with the salary boost the club offered after his banner season last year.

"He hasn't signed yet, though," the club official continued. He described the meeting as a "friendly call."

Rickey was jubilant over his success in signing Dean so easily.

"He's got fire in his eye. That may mean a lot to our club. The Cards are a seventh-place ball team on paper, but the spirit Dizzy is showing may be catching. The Gas House Gang has lifted itself by its boot strings before."

Two Silver Weddings

William Hoffer, veteran painter and decorator of Osage, Iowa, believes that he is the only person in the middle west who has observed two silver wedding anniversaries. He married his first wife in 1881, and they celebrated their silver wedding day in 1906. She died in 1909. In 1912, he married again, and observed his second silver wedding day on September 18, 1937.

Pro Baseball Season Opens April 29 At Korakuen Park; Radical Changes Announced

The Spring season of the Japan Professional Baseball Federation will open at the Korakuen stadium at Suidobashi on April 29, the Emperor's Birthday, with all eight clubs participating in a four-games affair. The games in the Kansai will be started off at the Koshien ball park on May 1, also with four contests on the bill.

This the third year of the professional circuit in the country will see radical changes in its operation. Instead of the 224 games played in the Spring season last year, the number will be cut down to 140, all teams meeting each of the other members five times. It was thought that the season last Spring was much too long.

No Mid-Week Games

As a basic rule, no games will be played during the mid-week days. Instead, there will be tripleheaders on Saturday and Sunday. By such an arrangement, it is expected that the true strength of the teams will be shown.

While the games last year were played only at the Korakuen stadium in Tokyo and at the Koshien and Nishinomiya ball parks in the Kansai, they will be held in addition during the forthcoming season at Susaki and Kamiigusa, suburbs of Tokyo, at Yokohama, and Kyoto. The plan is to popularize the professional games.

The Spring season will end on Sunday, July 17, with a tripleheader at the Korakuen stadium.

The Tokyo Giants won the Spring season pennant last year. The Osaka Tigers clinched the Autumn season and then bumped off the Giants in the playoff for the year's championship.

The latest to be formed professional ball team of the Nankai Electric Railway Company will not participate in the regular league games this Spring.

The schedule announced by the Japan Professional Baseball Federation Monday follows:

20 Teams Participate In Daimai Ball Series

Special To The Japan Times

OSAKA, March 29—Twenty teams participated in the opening ceremonies Sunday at the Koshien ball stadium in the annual middle school baseball championships sponsored by the Osaka Mainichi Shimbun.

In the first game beginning at 10 a.m., the Namisho nine defeated the Yokosho squad by 4 to 3 by coming from behind to score three runs in the ninth inning.

In the other game, the Takichu nosed out the Nichidai nine by 8 to 7.

Real Enthusiasm In General Needed In Judging Dogs

By GEORGE E. TIMPSON
Christian Science Monitor

NEW YORK, Feb. 15—Judging dogs is an art peculiarly its own, and the importance of skill and accuracy in its exercise was never better illustrated than in the decisions made in the sixty-second annual dog show of the Westminster Kennel Club last week at Madison Square Garden. Prejudices of many years' standing had to be laid aside, traditions must be ignored, and only a real enthusiasm for dogs in general and the breed, group or final test being judged employed by the official.

Right from the start decisions of importance devolved on the judges selected with meticulous care by the Westminster Kennel Club officials. From Germany they brought over the greatest authority on Boxers, while from Tulsa, Okla., came the judge of the various setters. Toronto furnished another sporting dog expert, for the cocker spaniels, while the final tests found John G. Bates, former president of the Westminster, and an all-round dog man of many years' standing, in the place of honor.

Before the judging began, not one expert in the thousands which thronged every strategic position around or in the rings would have had an idea that the ultimate winner had the slightest chance of success. First, he was a setter, and a setter had never been selected as best of show in the history of the Westminster. Second, he was American bred, and only once before had the honor gone to one, when Governor of Moscow, a pointer, had won for Robert F. Maloney, way back in 1925. Third, and the greatest objection of all, he was a puppy, not yet able to celebrate his first year, and who ever heard of a puppy winning from his elders.

Responded to Master

But Daro of Maridor, who had enjoyed his short but happy life with his twin brother and sisters, Maro, Dora and Mora, out at East Longmeadow, Mass., since their arrival the 18th of last March, knew nothing of these obstacles. Under the excellent instruction of Charles Palmer, he had responded with excellent enthusiasm to the training of his master. So, while his twins were relegated to puppy classes, he had been promoted and placed in the American bred class.

His first encounter was with the gentleman from Oklahoma, W. W. Henry, on Friday morning, the second day of the show. But Palmer, now his great pal, was right at hand, and the big man in front of him, who looked him over so carefully and felt him too, seemed friendly also. His master patted him as they went out of the ring, holding a blue envelope, and seemed cheerful.

Later he went back again, and again a blue envelope was in Palmer's hand as they came out, and after an unusually cheerful lunch, he saw the judge once more. Now, quite at home with him, he was again greeted with glee by his twins when he went back down to his kennel, this time with a big particolored rosette labelled best of breed.

More Next Day

But this was nothing to what came the next day. All the morning Palmer was working over him, and Daro began to wonder what all the excitement was about. Then he was brought upstairs, to find everything changed. Instead of the little ring over in one corner, where he had met the gentleman from Oklahoma, there was a great big ring covering what seemed the biggest space he had ever seen. There were lots of other dogs there, strange dogs of other kinds, though he felt they had something in common as all looked as if they were ready to hunt up a bird, just as he had been taught to do, and then stand like a statue when they found it.

A strange man, much stouter than his other friend, the gentleman from Oklahoma, but equally inquisitive as to his shape, and apparently just as friendly, was surveying him with care, and after he had galloped up and round the big ring several times the fat man motioned him up to the other end of the big ring, where a big number one was marked on the wall, and Palmer, and all sorts of strange men, and ladies too, cheered him as the best sporting dog in the show.

Down stairs he went again, and if his morning attentions had been considerable, they were as nothing to the work that Palmer and his assistants devoted to him. His plumy tail, and he was rather proud of that tail, was gone over to make it as soft and feathery as that of the pheasants he so often wished to follow. Combs and powder puffs were plied, and he began to wonder whether it was right for him, a real female dog to be treated so much like a lady at her coming out ball.

In Big Ring Again

Finally he was brought up to the big ring again, and after a long wait, when he made friends with some friends of Palmer, who were sitting in a strange coop labeled press box, and appeared to wonder about him, still another stout gentleman, who also seemed friendly, looked at him closely, and again seemed interested when Palmer led him out as if once more to hunt up that bird. Well, if they wanted to see him run, he was able and willing, and he scampered with the enthusiasm that had been his in the fields at East Longmeadow. There were other dogs of all sorts of other kinds, a big black woolly animal that was also all trimmed up, that they called a poodle; a perky little white dog, which one of the press-box men had said to Palmer was the one he had to beat, though he did not think much of it, except when it stood still. Right beside him was a yellow and white dog—they called it a collie—which was bored and restless most of the time, but very dressed up also. He, Daro, would scorn to act like that, and he wondered why he was here on this important occasion.

Still the big judge walked up and down, looking first at one and then at him. What did he want to know, Daro wondered. The white dog was out in front again, just as he was. The judge was looking at them each in turn. Was it possible that the press-box man was right, and that the fight was between them. Then the judge made a motion, and once more he was walking up to that big one on the board, while the others went out of the ring.

Still he had to wait, but this time only one other dog appeared, and the proceedings lasted only a moment. He was again the best, and the judges were satisfied. He had broken all records, he the first puppy, the first setter, and the second American bred ever to win both the best in show and the Mortimer Memorial. It was enough, he was only a puppy, and he was ready to go home.

Olympic Stadium At Komazawa Is Favored By City

The latest development concerning facilities for the 12th Olympic Games in 1940 is the move promoted by the Tokyo Municipality to have the main Olympic Stadium constructed at Komazawa, in Tokyo suburbs, where the Olympic Organizing Committee has already decided to build the Olympic swimming pool. Present plans of the O.O.C. call for renovation and enlargement of the present stadium at the outer gardens of the Meiji Shrine into the main Olympic stadium.

This was indicated at the meeting of the Municipal Olympic Committee Monday when it reconsidered its objection to the Komazawa site for construction of the Olympic pool. Last week on an inspection trip, the committee thought Komazawa too far from the city proper for the Olympic pool site, inasmuch as swimming will be an outstanding event of the 1940 Games. Explanation on the part of the O.O.C. convinced the committee in favor of Komazawa.

Approved by the Municipal Committee Monday was the city's appropriation of ¥6,000,000 for the 1940 Games, as well as another item of ¥1,600,000 for construction of roads and other equipment necessary. Both were submitted to the City Assembly which convened the same day.

An eye to the future is said to be the reason for the Municipality's move for construction of the main Olympic stadium at Komazawa. In the interests of the good health of Tokyo citizens, it is believed that an athletic plant as projected at Komazawa is most necessary. The Tokyo Prefectural authorities are also in favor of such a plan, it is reported.

Canada Plans Six-Man Teams

TORONTO.—Six-man football, the game's latest development in the United States, will be introduced on an organized basis in Canada probably this Fall by the Ontario Rugby Football Union. It's played on a standard-sized field by players fully equipped for warfare.

It will be started among midgets and juveniles—between the ages of 15 and 17, the Ontario Union decided when the annual meeting adopted a resolution to form a committee for study of the game. Gordon Mellon of Hamilton was the resolution's sponsor.

Mellon detailed growth of six-man football since its inception a few years ago in the United States. Most popular among small high schools, it swept the country until it was a regular part of inter-faculty sports in American colleges last season.

The O. R. F. U's. committee will be formed when President John Degruchy has gathered all available data on the game, played by three linemen, a quarterback and two halfbacks. Feature of the "Little Games" is that the quarterback must receive the snap and pass the ball onside before the play crosses the scrimmage line.

Degruchy emphasized the Union had no thought of organizing seniors for six-man teams. What the Union wanted was to provide football of a type to teach youngsters the game's fundamentals where they were unable to get them before through lack of finances for a big team.

Rural centers will provide the locale for the game's introduction, probably in towns where it was difficult to finance and find opposition for one 12-man team.

Warren Stevens, director of athletics at University of Toronto, expressed personal approval of the idea and could see no reason why the game couldn't be introduced to fit conditions in Canada.

It has greater possibilities for teaching youngsters football's rudiments than the 12-man game, Stevens said. The university had toyed with the idea of developing it between faculties for several years, but no action had been taken yet because of an apparent preference for the big game.

Kyoto To Get Stadium Accommodating 12,000

Special To The Japan Times

KYOTO, March 29—Kyoto will have another ideal stadium for physical exercises with accommodation for 12,000 spectators at Nishi Kyogoku by 1940.

According to the planning committee, the present Nishi Kyogoku ground will fundamentally be reconstructed and be expanded to 42,400 tsubo at the cost of ¥300,000. The new stadium has eight straight 400 meter tracks, eight straight 160 meter tracks, football, jumping, hurdle, and all other equipments.

As for the swimming pool, it is 50 meters long with nine lanes in races. There is a pool for diving (25 meters long and 18 meters wide) with 10, 5, 3, and 2 meters diving stands.

The construction work will soon be started and be completed by May, 1939, so that it can be utilized during the 1940 Olympic year.

Battles Appointed As Backfield Aide At Columbia 'U'

N.Y. Times

NEW YORK, Feb. 8—Cliff Battles, one of the great running backs of modern football, has been selected as Columbia's varsity backfield coach and assistant to Head Coach Lou Little for next Fall, it was announced last night by Dr. Edward S. Elliott, director of athletics at Columbia.

Battles, who earned national fame on the gridiron as a member of the champion Washington Redskins and as the league-leading ground gainer last season, succeeds Herbert M. Kopf, who resigned January 1 to become head football coach and athletic director at Manhattan College.

In accepting the Columbia position Battles decided to give up his professional playing career.

Little yesterday expressed confidence that Battles would develop into an exceptionally good coach.

Coach's Youth Stressed

"The fact that he is young and strong and in top playing condition will considerably enhance his value as a coach for he will be able to get right in there with the boys and demonstrate the spinners and off-tackle plays," the head coach asserted.

"He has had such wide playing experience and such extensive contacts that even though he has not coached before, 'I'm sure he will make a fine coach."

Coach Little stated that the addition of a top-ranking football star to his staff may bring about some changes in the Lions' backfield play, though no changes in technique are being contemplated now. The Columbia mentor indicated he will look forward to anything different that Battles may have to offer and that he will not hesitate to incorporate in his intricate system any new, workable devices.

The Lions will begin six weeks of Spring practice early in March.

Graduated in 1932 from West Virginia Wesleyan, where he made an outstanding record as scholar and athlete, Battles joined the Boston Redskins the same year and immediately became one of the circuit's backfield stars.

Twice Led Circuit

He played six years in the National League and led the circuit in ground gaining in 1933 and 1937, his 1937 mark of 874 yards being the second highest in history. Three times, in 1933, 1936 and 1937, Battles was named as a member of the All-League team selected by the coaches of the circuit.

Though he earned greater athletic fame in professional football last year as backfield teammate of Slinging Sammy Baugh, Battles established a notable athletic record at West Virginia Wesleyan, where he played four years of varsity football and received during his last two seasons all-America recognition from many football observers. He also earned varsity letters in basketball, baseball, track and tennis.

In the classroom Battles was an honor student throughout his course and a charter member of the college's scholarship honor society. In 1933 Battles represented West Virginia Wesleyan in the Rhodes Scholarship competitions.

Born in Akron, Ohio on May 1, 1910, Battles prepared for college at Kenmare High School in Akron, where he played two years of high school football.

O.O.C. Studying Ways To Bring Olympic Fire Here

How to bring the Olympic flame by relay from Olympia, site of the original Olympic Games, to Tokyo for the 12th Olympic Games in 1940 is being seriously studied by the Tokyo Olympic Organizing Committee. The hope that the relay would be carried out was expressed to the Japanese delegation by members of the International Olympic Committee at its recent meeting at Cairo, it is reported.

One elaborate route, calling for a virtual crossing of the Asiatic continent, would have the torch carried from Greece to Turkey via the Aegean Sea, thence to Syria, Irak, Persia, Afghanistan, and through northern India at the foot of the Himalayas into Sinkiang, through Inner Mongolia and on to Peking. The course would then lead to Chosen and finally into Japan Proper and on to Tokyo, for a total distance of 15,000 kilometers. Wherever necessary, automobiles and planes will be used. But relay runners will be used wherever running is permissable. Already, automobiles have made the cross country route through Persia, Afghanistan and Sinkiang, it is said. It is also believed that such a relay would contribute much to international friendship.

Another plan would have the torch taken first to Africa, thence crossing of the Indian Sea to Australia, and northward to the Dutch East Indies, on to the Philippines, then to Taiwan and to Japan Proper.

The most feasible course would be from Europe to the United States, thence across the Pacific by boat to Japan.

There has also been suggested a scientific plan as a last resort. It would be to have the lighted Olympic flame in Greece brought to Japan by electric transmission.

"BELIEVE IT OR NOT" —by Ripley

Not On The Square

If a man travels 100 miles east, 100 miles south, 100 miles west, and 100 miles north, he will not arrive at his starting point for the reason that while he is traveling north on the last leg of his journey, he is not traveling a parallel course to his southward journey on the second leg of the trip. East-west lines of latitude are parallel, but north-south lines of longitude are not, being farthest separated at the equator and coming together at the North and South poles. In land surveying, new standard guide meridian lines, run by a solar compass east and west, are used as a base for new tiers of townships, each townships six miles wide at the south line. Every few townships farther north, new standard guide meridian lines must be established to compensate for the curvature of longitudinal lines.

Louis Knocks Out Mann In Third As 20,000 Fans Look On In N.Y. Garden

By JAMES P. DAWSON

N.Y. Times

NEW YORK, Feb. 24—The expected happened last night in Madison Square Garden. Joe Louis, world heavyweight champion, knocked out Nathan Mann, New Haven's bold pretender to the throne, in the third round of what was scheduled to be a fifteen-round battle before a crowd which packed the Garden to capacity.

The finish came after 1 minute 56 seconds of the third round which Referee Arthur Donovan tolled the fatal ten over the hapless Mann. He was on his knees on the ring floor near Louis' corner, having collapsed there under the impact of a final paralyzing left hook to the jaw, one of a fusillade of punches Louis rained on his foe in a savage outburst of fighting.

In the short time required for the fight—it was one of the shortest heavyweight championship contests in history—Mann went down four times.

He was down for a count of nine in the second session, when the bell came to his rescue as Louis tried with powerful, cruel punches to finish him after having crashed the New Haven husky to the floor. In the third round Mann went to the canvas for counts of one and three under the terrific punching of the champion before Louis' left finally ended the battle.

Didn't Know He Was Down

Mann's statement after the battle was indicative of the power in the punches Louis let go in one of his most exciting outbursts of fighting. Asked why he didn't take advantage of longer counts on the two trips he made to the canvas before the third and final knockdown in the third session, Mann replied: "I didn't know I was down. Was I?"

One of the greatest crowds ever to witness an indoor bout here turned out for this heavyweight title contest, which was the first held indoors in eighteen years, or since the night back in 1920 when Jack Dempsey stiffened the late K.O. Bill Brennan in twelve rounds in the old Garden.

The attendance exceeded 20,000. The paid attendance was 19,490, approaching the Garden's indoor record of 22,000 set thirteen years ago when Jack Delaney and Jim Maloney fought in the first boxing attraction in the new arena. The gross receipts reached $111,698 and the net $95,314.

In the gathering were men and women from every walk of life. Bankers, brokers, judges, lawyers, doctors merchants, politicians, stage and screen and radio stars, and the everyday fight fan—all were attracted to this battle.

Just an Outside Chance

They jammed the arena even though the match was advertised as a tune-up for Louis' June fight against Max Schmeling for the title, and despite the realization in advance that, on the record, Mann had only a shade better than an outside chance to win the title.

Admittedly Mann had not much chance. But he was young, sturdy, fired with ambition and the gates of fortune were open to him. Anything can happen in a heavyweight fight and with the chance of a title changing hands none wanted to be absent.

About everything did happen in this heavyweight battle—but it all happened to Mann.

There was nothing much to the contest. Suspense was present only until about midway in the second round. Then Mann, plunging in with that chance that was his to win fame and fortune in an upset, stung the champion with a mighty right to the jaw. The blow bounced Louis against the ropes. He admitted later that it hurt him. Doubtless it shook the champion without staggering him. And, in the end, it only brought about the doom of the challenger.

Louis Goes to Work

For Louis, rebounding from the ropes decided then and there to waste no more time with this youth who sought his title. He had been boxing cautiously, catlike in his movements, sticking and stabbing with a snaky left that was sharp and powerful enough to snap Mann's head back, split the challenger's lip and drew blood from his nose.

But that punch transformed Louis into the Detroit Bomber, the Alabama Assassin, the pitiless, fight-hungry Louis that fans knew before he won the crown last June from James J. Braddock. He was as unlike the placid Louis of last September in the ring against Tommy Farr as day is unlike dark.

Veteran ring followers said at the ringside that the Louis of last night would have knocked out Schmeling, one of them saying he would have done it in not more than five rounds. And there were many who subscribed, even making allowances for individual styles.

A Fearless Young Man

These veterans, likewise, said that it was a fight while it lasted. And there was agreement with this, too. For Mann had determination, fearlessness and blind courage under fire. He showed an unquenchable desire to fight while he stood erect and sometimes when his legs were like rubber under him.

Both were cautious at the start. The New Haven husky surprised those who suspected he would rush headlong at Louis with the opening gong. Instead he sparred carefully, guard high, alert for an opening, watching and waiting. Louis stuck and stabbed with straight, stiff, accurate left jabs which kept Mann at bay for the first minute.

Suddenly Mann leaped in with a left to the head that was more surprising than damaging to Louis. And after a following right to the jaw which did not even make Louis blink. Mann clinched. The challenger made another leap to get away from those punishing jabs and drove a left to the head and a right to the heart. He essayed another right for the jaw, but the blow missed before the bell ended the first round.

The second was like the first. Louis jabbed and jabbed and jabbed, catlike in his movements, his right always poised to take advantage of a forgetful moment by Mann, his left trying to make openings for a more powerful hook.

Suddenly Mann tired of the treatment. He leaped at Louis with a right to the jaw. It bowled the champion into the ropes. The crowd instantly was on its feet roaring encouragement to the challenger. Louis' face clouded, his fists clenched tighter. He backed away carefully, then sidled along the ropes to a neutral corner.

Mann leaped after his foe to press his advantage and stumbled awkwardly into Louis, who embraced him to keep him from falling. But after they worked away from the ropes it was the beginning of the end for Mann. That right to the jaw did more than fire Mann's courage and ambition. It aroused Louis to indescribable fury.

Mann's Knees Buckle

The thunderous cheers of the crowd echoed in the ears of Mann for his efforts, but he needed more than cheers in the third. Louis was on serious business bent and didn't hesitate to show it.

A sweeping left hook to the jaw threw Mann on the defensive and, following with a furious two-fisted fire to the head and body, there came a right to the jaw which dropped Mann for a count of one.

He came erect to be hammered pitilessly. Out of the storm of lefts and rights came a short right uppercut in close and a sharp right and left to the jaw, and Mann went down again, this time for a count of three.

The End Draws Near

He was still full of fight when he came erect again, was Mann, but his end was approaching. A blinding shower of lefts and right weakened the challenger's resistance as he fought with reckless disregard trying to return some of this fire. Finally a left hook crashed on Mann's jaw, and Nathan went down, to be counted out on his knees, his dream of a championship blasted.

The defeat was a blow to the many fans from Connecticut who came to see the State's first challenger for the title make his bid against Louis. There were 2,600 of them on hand from the Nutmeg State, the most notable being Governor Wilbur Cross. The group paraded from Grand Central to the Garden carrying placards extolling Mann's fistic prowess.

In the six-round engagement that followed the main event Johnny Whiters, 200, Detroit, received the verdict over Henry Cooper, 194, Brooklyn.

Nagai Visits Berlin; Going To Paris Today

Domei Tsushin

BERLIN, March 28—Now on a tour of European countries following the recent Cairo meeting of the International Olympic Committee, at which he represented Japan, Dr. Matsuzo Nagai, general secretary of the Tokyo Olympic Organizing Committee, arrived here from Budapest by train today for a three-day stopover. He registered at the Hotel Esplanade.

Dr. Nagai is expected to receive pressmen tomorrow, after which he will visit the Deutschland Halle, a Nazi indoor sports hall. He will then probably call on Hans von Tschammer und Osten, Reich Sports Leader.

Dr. Nagai will leave for Paris on Wednesday.

Osaka Nine Made Pro Loop Member

The newly organized professional baseball team of the Nankai Electric Railway Company of Osaka was formally admitted a member of the Japan Professional Baseball Federation at the latter's directors' meeting Tuesday afternoon at the Kikumasa Restaurant here.

Due to the shortness of time since its organization, the team will not play in the league's regular Spring season which opens on April 29 at the Korakuen stadium. But it will meet the eight other teams of the league in non-league games after May 19.

The following were elected advisers of the league: Yosaburo Imanishi, Kozaemon Kimura, Ichizo Kobayashi, Shoju Koyama, Matsutaro Shoriki, Hitoshi Tanaka, Jiro Morioka and Jinkichi Terada.

Heian Eliminates Hiroshima, 1 To 0 In Baseball Series

The Heian Middle School nine of Kyoto eliminated the strong Hiroshima Commercial team in a nip and tuck game that thrilled a capacity crowd of more than 60,000 rabid fans Tuesday in the second day of the 15th annual national middle schools baseball championship series sponsored by the Osaka Mainichi and the Tokyo Nichi Nichi at the Koshien stadium near Osaka. The score was 1 to 0.

This was easily one of the outstanding games of the entire tournament. Heian had won the championship in the tenth tournament and the Hiroshima Commercial institution the eighth.

Heian scored its lone and winning run in the sixth frame. Amakawa walked. Suyama gained life at first on the shortstop's error. Hirose bunted into Pitcher Ishihara and Uyemura popped out to second. Minoru Kimura walked to fill the bags. Yasui also worked Ishihara for a walk to force in Amakawa.

Amakawa hurled a beautiful game for Heian and held the Hiroshima nine to four hits. Southpaw Kuboki of Hiroshima started the game for Hiroshima but he was relieved by Ishihara at the outset of the fifth when he weakened in the fourth.

In the other two games of the day, Kaiso bumped off Muyo by 4 to 0 while Toho defeated Heian by 11 to 5.

British Proposal On Davis Cup Gets Cool Reception

Domei Tsushin

LONDON, March 28—Britain's suggestion to be submitted to the Davis Cup tennis representatives' meeting here on June 30 that the historic competition be held once every two years instead of annually, will receive little support, a general survey carried out by the Associated Press revealed here today.

Switzerland, the survey revealed, will support the British suggestion on the grounds that it cannot afford the expense of the annual system, however, Italy, France, Norway, Ireland, Czechoslovakia and Poland are definitely opposed.

Meanwhile, Germany was said to be in favor of the system provided the American and European zone finalists were decided in one year and the interzone finals and challenge round played the next year.

Italy and France, according to the survey, are opposed to the biennial plan because first, they desire the annual gate receipts and secondly, that annual competition helps develop young players.

H.R. Barrett, non-playing captain of the British Davis Cup squad declared, "We believe there is too much lawn tennis competition for amateur play." He added that the players must also attend to their respective businesses.

"At present," Mr. Barrett declared, "there is major competition going on somewhere in the world all the time. We believe that annual matches encourage players to expect money which as amateurs they have no right to get."

Cricket Heads For Changes In Point Scoring

LONDON.—Proposed changes in the system of pointscoring for the English first-class county cricket championship have been accepted by the Advisory County Cricket Committee. Other recommendations made by the Marylebone Cricket Club Commission which investigate problems confronting first-class counties were considered by the committee, but most of them were rejected.

The Committee turned down a suggestion to reduce the number of first-class counties from 17 to 15 as well as a scheme to provide a £20,000 ($100,000) fund to help "Necessitous Counties."

Adoption of longer overs by Australia and other dominions was recognized by the advisory committee which decided to recommend that the eight-ball over be given a trial by first-class counties in 1939. The Marylebone Commission had advised against extending the over from six balls although admitting it would result in time being saved.

County clubs will be asked to avoid over-preparation of wickets, but the Committee rejected a proposed registration scheme for cricketers which would expedite the qualification of unregistered players.

Under the new points-scoring system 12 points would be awarded for a victory. None would be given for a loss on first innings. In a finished match the team which led on the first innings would score four points even if it lost the game. Matches with no play or no result on the first innings would not be included in the championship table.

The previous system allowed 15 points for victory, five for a first-innings decision in an unfinished contest and three points for a loss on the first innings in an unfinished match.

It was claimed by the M. C. C. Commissioners the new scheme should produce more finished games. It would be an inducement to make every effort to win and at the same time give no inducement to clubs to play for a draw.

U.S. Quintet Tops Brazilians, 42-19

RIO DE JANEIRO, Feb. 14—The all-star basketball team sent here by the United States Amateur Athletic Union trounced the local Riachuelo quintet, 42 to 19, today in the first game of its tour. A crowd of 4,000 in the Stadium Brazil saw the Americans pile up a 21—6 lead in the first half.

The United States team lined up with Willard K. Youngblood of Schenectady, Irving Schneider of Brooklyn, Sid Glickman of Brooklyn, Sid Rabinowitz of Brooklyn and Carroll Shore of Washington as the starting quintet.

The Brazilians opened the scoring after about five minutes and a short time later the American took time out to substitute Frank Rosenbloom of Brooklyn for Youngblood, Robert Chapman of Philadelphia for Rabinowitz and Victor Probst of Baltimore for Schneider. This combination proved more effective, but further shifts were made in the second half and every member of the squad figured in the scoring.

Probst with 12 points and Glickman with 10 were the high scorers. Shore and Rabinowitz were forced out because of personal fouls late in the game.

Greece Reveals Intent To Bid For '44 Games

Domei Tsushin

ATHENS, March 29—Greece will ask the International Olympic Committee to award the 1944 Games to Athens, Education Minister K. Georgakapoulos announced this morning.

In order to provide adequate facilities, he said, plans are being prepared for the construction of a new stadium.

Michigan Downs Yale's Mermen By 41 To 34 Score

By LOUIS EFFRAT

N.Y. Times

NEW HAVEN, Conn., Feb. 16—After eight years of agitation for a dual swimming meet between Yale and Michigan, the teams finally got together tonight to determine, once and for all, intersectional supremacy between these outstanding college aquatic squads.

With a capacity crowd of 2,100 persons in attendance at the beautifully constructed Payne Whitney Gymnasium pool, the Wolverines eked out a 41-34 decision. The meet, although failing to produce a single record, had more than its share of thrills.

All the way down to the final event on the program, the 400-yard free-style relay, the teams battled tooth and nail for the slightest advantage, and when the swimmers for that relay were called out the score was tied at 34-all.

Victory in the relay meant seven points for the winner and none for the loser. With Tom Haynie staving off a desperate closing bid on the part of Yale's captain, Johnny Macionis, the Wolverines captured the deciding race by a touch in 3:35.

Ann Arbor Team Choice

Michigan, unbeaten since 1936, and present holder of the National A. A. U. and N. C. A. A. championships, entered tonight's competition a highly regarded favorite. In fact the Ann Arbor supporters predicted a 2-1 triumph over the Elis, who had not been defeated this season.

When Michigan started right out with an easy victory in the 300-yard medley relay to gain a 5-0 lead, the outlook for Yale was indeed dark. But as the meet progressed it became more and more apparent that the Eli swimmers were no mere setup.

Figuring prominently in Michigan's conquest were Captain Eddie Kirar, national collegiate 50 and 100-yard champion; Haynie, the 220-yard free-style ruler, and Waldemar Tomski. For the losers, Macionis, the N. C. A. A. 1,500-meter free-style titleholder and 1936 Olympian; Joe Burns and the Brueckel brother, Pete and Johny, excelled.

Yale trailed until the dive, when Bill Danforth scored over Jack Wolin of Michigan by 14-100 of a point to tie the count at 18-all. A one-two by Kirar and Tomski in the 100 free style broke the deadlock. Then Yale, with Burns and John Brueckel showing the way, regained the 7 points in the 150-yard back-stroke race and the teams were tied again, 25-all.

Macionis in Front

Admittedly weak in the breaststroke, Coach Bob Kiphuth sent his free-style ace into that event and Macionis overcame John Haigh's huge early lead to send Yale into the lead for the first time, 30—29.

That, of course, meant that Macionis was lost for the 440-yard free-style, and Haynie beat Howie Spendelow Jr. Thus the score was tied for the third time, 34—34, setting the stage for the free-style relay climax.

In that test Tomski, the lead-off man, gained a three-yard advantage over Russel Duncan, which Eddie Hutchens and Kirar held admirably over Bill Moonan and John Good, respectively. Then Haynie, with an eight-minute rest, and Macionis hit the water for the anchor leg.

The pair staged a great struggle, with Macionis cutting down on Haynie as the latter tired rapidly. Haynie, however, had enough left to finish on top.

Michigan and Yale last met in 1936, with the Elis winning, 41—21. In 1928, the first contest between the teams, Yale also triumphed, 39—23.

The Summaries

200-Yard Medley Relay—Won by Michigan (Harri Rieke, John Haigh and Edward Kirar); Yale (Joseph L. Burns Jr., Newton I. Steers Jr. and John W. Good), second. Time—3:01.3.

Ritsumeikan Tops Keio Newcomers By 9 To 5 Score

Coach Morita of Keio elected to use only newcomers and as a consequence his team suffered a 9 to 5 beating at the hands of the Ritsumeikan University nine in an exhibition game Tuesday afternoon at the Meiji Shrine stadium.

Pitcher Nakatani of the Kansai aggregation checked 17 Keio players to six scattered hits. But Nezu, who took care of the centerfield post for a time, lashed out the longest hit of the day, a triple.

Rain stopped the game between Ritsumeikan and Rikkyo which followed at 3:20 p.m. at the end of the second inning.

Stanford To Have Strong Ball Squad

Christian Science Monitor

STANFORD UNIVERSITY, Calif.,—Three dependable pitchers, well-balanced defense, and at least average hitting—that's the combination which is expected to make the Stanford team one to be feared in the California Intercollegiate Baseball Association title race this Spring.

In Spike Furman and Glenn Hamilton, Coach Harry Wolter has two veteran pitchers who are expected to turn in their full share of victories. Forman was the leading pitcher last year and in early-season workouts has shown a great fast ball and a sharp-breaking curve. Hamilton pitched two years ago, but spent most of last season in the outfield. Al Lazzarone, transfer from Sacramento Junior College, is the third man on whom Wolter is counting for a regular turn on the mound. Lazzarone has better control than either of the other two. Joe Griffin and Dean Pierose, on the squad last year; and Ray Stager, transfer from San Jose State, round out the pitching staff.

In Bill Jameson, trasfer from Sacramento Junior College, the Indian mentor believes he has one of his most promising catchers in recent years. Jameson will be backed by a good pair from the 1937 freshman team—Sid Lewis and Edward Smith.

Tom Killefer, student body president, who played outfield last year, is handling the first-base job in good fashion and will have some competition from Jim Graham, Menlo Junior College transfer. Killefer throws and bats left-handed.

Dick Tam, regular second baseman last year, appears certain to retain his job, but not without competition from Dale Reimer and Peet McArthur, utility men last season. Capt. George Farrell, probably the best all-around ball player on the squad, has been shifted from short to third, and is performing beautifully on the hot corner. Dick Shortall, from the 1937 freshman nine, has taken over the shortstop job and appears to have the makings of a future star.

The battle for outfield positions is wide open with at least seven men making strong bids—Bob Matthews and Jim Coffis of football fame; Wally deWitt, Dick, LaFranchi, Ben McGuire, Bill Clark, and Norm Juney. All but Clark transfer from San Mateo Junior College, and Norm Juney, up from the frosh, are veterans. DeWitt was the heavy hitter last year; but Coffis came through with the most timely blows.

Davis Cuppers Feted By Japanese Club While At Singapore

Coach-Manager Tamio Abe, Yasumine Kuramitsu and Fumiteru Nakano, member of this year's Japanese Davis Cup team, arrived at Singapore on Tuesday morning en route to Naples. All were in the best of physical condition, according to a Domei dispatch received here Tuesday.

After sightseeing about Johore, they appeared in exhibition matches, and in the evening were honored at a reception given by the Japanese Club.

They were expected to sail for Colombo at noon today.

"BELIEVE IT OR NOT" --by Ripley

11-Second Shave

At the World's Fair in St. Louis, 1904, a fast barber set a record by shaving off a man's whiskers—and leaving on his nose and ears—in 22 seconds. In September, 1937, A. G. Skinner of Tulsa cut that record exactly in half when he shaved a representative of the Tulsa Tribune in 11 seconds flat. Mr. Skinner wants to meet in contest—any time, any place—the Yugoslavian barber who also claims a 11-second shaving record; the Czechoslovakian barber who shaved 9 men in 2 minutes 12 seconds; and Walter Stiegel of Budapest who shaved 40 men in the space of 12 minutes 7 seconds.

Cunningham Thought Best Bet To Win 1,500 Meters Race In 1940 Olympics

By PAT ROBINSON
International News Service
Sports Writer

NEW YORK, March—(INS)—Glenn Cunningham—the world's greatest miler—may one day be the world's greatest Marathon runner.

If the matchless Kansan continues to race—and he indicated lately he would continue running indefinitely—he should capture the 1500-meter title at the 1940 Olympics in Tokyo.

But what about the Olympics of 1944? That seems a long way in the future but at that time Cunningham will be only 35—an ideal age for a marathoner.

Offhand, one might say, thoughtlessly, that a man who has negotiated a quarter in 48 seconds and a mine in 4:06.7 has too much speed ever to make a Marathon runner.

But track coaches will tell you that it is for that very reason Cunningham might become the greatest Marathon man the world ever saw. Virtually all Marathon runners are mere plodders with stamina enough to continue jogging along for 26 miles.

What would happen to these Marathoners in a race with Cunningham The answer is obvious: the race would be a cinch for the Kansan.

The next question is: could Cunningham run 26 miles? And the answer to that one is equally obvious: He could, and with ease.

Why, the fellow actually runs four or five miles merely to warm up those fire scarred legs of his for a mile race. Track experts believe his stamina is so great that he could turn to the Marathon distance almost overnight.

Let's see if there is any precedent for a star miler becoming a great Marathoner. Well, there was Hans Kolehmainen who found no difficulty in stepping up many years ago from the shorter routes to the Marathon and winning the longer race.

Then we had Paavo Nurmi, the great Finn, who seemed happy at any distance from a mile to a Marathon, and who, barring accidents, would certainly have won the 1932 Olympic Marathon at Los Angeles had he not been barred from it.

Even little Jole Ray, whose training was by no means ideal, and who had long since seen his best days as a miler, managed to give a fine account of himself over the long journey.

None of these had Cunningham's blazing speed and only Nurmi had as much endurance as he. Only Nurmi, too, had Cunningham's keen judgment of pace. Nurmi depended a great deal on his watch but Cunningham seems able to tell to the fraction of a second just how fast he is going without the aid of a watch.

He Has Endurance

Track experts believe that with very little training Cunningham could take a fellow like Clarence DeMar on the best day DeMar ever knew and run him ragged.

Why not? He has as much endurance as any Marathoner plus what none of the regular long distancemen have—and that's speed. And it's speed that wins any race whether it be a 40 yard dash or a 25-mile run.

Italy Likely To Send 10-Man Track Team To Manchoukuo In 1939

If a formal invitation is received, Italy will be glad to send a 10-man track and field team to Manchoukuo in 1939, Yoshinori Suzuki, member of the Tokyo Olympic Organizing Committee, was told Wednesday at Rome by the Italian Track and Field Federation, according to a dispatch to Domei. Mr. Suzuki attended the recent meeting of the International Olympic Committee at Cairo.

Due to competition in the international track and field championships at Paris, acceptance of an invitation to Manchoukuo this Summer is impossible, Mr. Suzuki was informed.

It is possible that Japan will also send a team to Manchoukuo in 1939 to effect a tri-nation meet.

Army Defeats Navy, 44 To 36, At West Point

By EVERETT B. MORRIS

WEST POINT, N.Y., Feb. 26—Army closed one of its most successful basketball campaigns this afternoon by outshooting Navy, 44 to 36, in a fast, sizzling game that was the high light of a day of diversified athletic competition which drew 2,000 visitors to the reservation.

The West Point tossers overcame an early Navy lead six minutes from the end of the first period and thereafter never were headed, meeting every Annaolis challenge in the bristling second half with a successful counterattack.

Army was smoother and better coordinated in its team play than the sailors, who relied in the first half on a quick break from a zone defense that the cadets pierced almost at will. Navy switched to a man-to-man defense in the second half, but fared no better.

Brinker Scores 19 Points

Walt Brinker, the cadet scoring expert, ran true to form and popped nineteen points into the basket. Jack McDavid and Jack Samuel each got ten. Ed Rogner, the only first-class man on the team, and Riggs Sullivan, devoted themselves assidously to defense and the feeding of the marksmen. Allan MsFarland was the Navy hero, scoring 13 points and playing well in all departments.

The triumph, watched by a crowd of 8,000 cadets, their week-end guests and a distinguished gathering of ranking Army and Navy officers, makes the standing in the service series Navy, 8; Army, 7.

It was quite a show, that basketball game. A band blared, the Corps of Cadets cheered, sang and yelled incessantly, and the incipient shavetails even went so far as to greet Dave Walsh and Pat Kennedy, the referees, with an organized cheer. These gentlemen of the whistle, accustomed to ducking wreaths of raspberries thrown from the metropolitan college court balconies, were nonplussed by the reception, but recovered their composure in time to work their customarily competent and colorful game. The cadets and their girl friends appeared to get as much of a buzz out of apoplectic Pat and his professional colleague as they did out of the contest itself.

Dartmouth Swimmers Win

While all this was going on, the Dartmouth swimming team, helped by a college record performance in the relay race, beat the amphibian cadets, 42 to 33, and the Yale fencers pricked the West Point swordsmen into a 16-to-11 defeat.

No one appeared deeply concerned by these reverses, for most of the enthusiasm left over from the basketball game was turned loose on the boxing match between the cadets and Bucknell. This ended the right way for Army when huge Harry Stella, the football tackle, celebrated his debut as a member of the boxing team by belting over his adversary in less than one round. That gave the cadet glove swingers a 5-to-3 margin. In the eight bouts, only three went the limit. The boys were not so much interested in the manly art of self-defense as they were in stiffening their opponents as quickly as possible.

Princeton Beats Navy As Swim Records Crash

Herald Tribune

ANNAPOLIS, Md., Feb. 26—Princeton swimmers won from the Navy this afternoon, 52 to 23, while national collegiate, pool and Naval Academy records were shattered. Princeton took firsts in both relays and in six of the seven individual events, although the Navy swimmers led by three yards in the free-style relay, losing through the disqualification of the second swimmer, who beat the gun.

The outstanding performance was that of Al Vande Weghe, of Princeton, who set a new national collegiate record for the 150-yard breast stroke. He did the distance in 1:33, against the old mark of 1:34.6, set by Zehr, of Northwestern.

Dick Hough, also of Princeton, set a new pool record of 2:23.5 in the 200-yard breast stroke, the figure having stood at 2:26.4. Hough is Eastern intercollegiate champion in the event.

Navy fencers won two events from Columbia, the varsity scoring, 16 to 11, and the Plebes eking out a victory, 14 to 13. It was the fifth straight triumph for the Navy fencers, who are undefeated this season.

The Columbia freshmen foilsmen won, 7 to 2, over the Plebes. The latter won with epee, 5 to 4, and took seven of the nine saber bouts to win the match by a point.

The summaries:

Waseda Defeats Kansai Ball Team By 6 To 5 Count

Waseda showed itself a strong contender for the championship of the Spring season of the Tokyo Six University Baseball league, which opens April 16, by nosing out the Ritsumeikan University team of the Kansai by 6 to 5 Wednesday afternoon at the Totsuka grounds. Victory was significant for the reason that second string men comprised the Waseda contingents.

Ritsumeikan got off to a flying start in the first half of the initial canto by pushing over two runs, by virtue of Nagata's three bagger and Pitcher Ishizaka's poor relay to the plate.

Waseda Retaliates

But Waseda retaliated with three runs in its portion of the first frame by pounding the offerings of Okayama to all corners of the field. Okayama was sent to the showers with two men still on the bags and without a man out, but Nakatani did some nice relief pitching and retired the side without further scoring.

A brace of two baggers tied the score for Ritsumeikan in the second inning and out went Ishizaka from the pitching box. Sakai, who relieved him, allowed two runs in the third to give the Kansai nine a 5 to 4 lead but from the fourth frame on he chucked airtight ball. And so did Nakatani.

The Winning Run

Waseda clinched the game in the eighth when Kataoka and Minamimura leaned on fat ones by Nakatani for a double and three bagger. Then a bungle to center by Kimura brought in the winning run.

The box score follows:

Nagai Visits Aquatic Exhibition At Berlin

Domei Tsushin

BERLIN, March 29—Dr. Matsuzo Nagai, general secretary of the Tokyo Olympic Organizing Committee, today paid a visit to the annual aquatic exhibition now being held here. He was accompanied by Dr. Seishichi Ohno, vice-president of the Japanese Ski Federation.

Dr. Nagai, who was formerly Japanese Ambassador to Berlin, arrived here yesterday from Cairo after representing the Japanese Olympic Committee at the recent annual session of the International Olympic Committee. He is scheduled to leave for Paris tomorrow.

East Japan Teams Out Of Daimai Ball Series

As the results of the games Wednesday, the third day of the 15th annual middle school baseball championships sponsored by the Osaka Mainichi and the Tokyo Nichi Nichi at the Koshien stadium near Osaka, not a single representative from East Japan is remaining.

This happened when the Koyo Middle School blanked the Shimada Commercial nine by 3 to 0 in the first game of the triple-header while Akashi bumped off Hokkai 8 to 3 in the last tilt of the day.

Chukyo, strong contender for the championship, defeated Bofu 5 to 0 in the second game.

McKechnie Sure Team Will Not Be In Cellar

By EDWIN RUMILL
Christian Science Moniter

TAMPA, Fla., March 2—Bill McKechnie, starting a new three-year term as manager of the Cincinnati Reds after a lengthy stay with the Boston Bees, today predicted that his club would not finish in the cellar of the National League again in 1938.

"I'll guarantee that the Reds won't finish in last place again this year," said the veteran pilot as the team plunged into Spring training here on Plant Field. "Otherwise there is little I can say about the race.

"I know there are many capable baseball players on the Cincinnati squad, having met them often during past seasons. Most of the rookies are unknown to me, but scouting reports show there is a lot of excellent talent available.

"The pitching staff looks good. We are well fortified behind the plate. Our chief drawback is weak hitting. We need at least two more .300 hitters in the middle of our batting order.

"Naturally, we will concentrate on building our offense, but this does not mean we will neglect our defense. With a new ball in the National League, the pitchers are going to have a better chance, and more games will be won and lost by close scores. These are the games in which a tight defense counts."

Bill McKechnie is highly regarded because of his success with the Boston Bees, particularly last season when he lifted them to the top of the second division, just one game in back of the fourth-place Cardinals.

By an odd coincidence, McKechnie faces the same problem at Cincinnati that he experienced with the Bees. He must develop an offense. His pitching is first division, but with the exception of Ernie Lombardi, the big catcher, he hasn't a consistent hitter on the squad.

Cincinnati Bunts

One of Boston's coaches last season, Hank Gowdy, is now in the Cincinnati family with McKechnie, while George Kelly, who was one of Chuck Dressen's assistants on the Reds' board of strategy, is now working under Casey Stengel with the Bees.

The Reds lost more than 80 games last year by one run.

McKechnie is concentrating on the discovery of a climax hitter who can turn a majority of those close setbacks into victories.

Among the Cinnati newcomers is Dusty Cooke, former Red Sox and Yankee outfielder. With Minneapolis in the American Association in 1937 Dusty batted .345.

Harry Craft, one of McKechnie's youngsters from Syracuse, was watched by Bill Terry, and the New York pilot makes no secret of his fondness for the rookie. Before joining Syracuse late in the season, Craft patroled the Waterloo outfield. He captained the Mississippi State football and baseball teams during his college days.

Kishi Memorial Trophy To Best Athlete Planned

Along the idea of the James E. Sullivan Memorial Trophy, which is presented annually by the American Amateur Athletic Union to the athlete, who, "by his performance, example and influence as an amateur and a man, has done most in the past year to advance the cause of sportsmanship," the Japan Amateur Track and Field Federation has decided to make an award annually as a memorial to the late Dr. Seichi Kishi, president of the Japan Amateur Athletic Federation for many years and who was one of the first advocates for the staging of the Olympic Games in Tokyo.

The plan had been considered for sometime by the Track and Field Federation and it is expected that formal approval will be given at its meeting on April 3.

Polling By Sportswriters

As in the United States, tentative plans are to have the officials of the various branches of the track and field organizations and sportswriters constitute the committee to name outstanding track and field athlete for the past year. The selection would be made early in March to make possible the presentation the same month.

If approval is given of the plan at the April 3 meeting, it is most likely that the outstanding athlete for 1937 will be selected early next month and have the award made on April 29, the Emperor's Birthday.

J. Donald Budge of California who virtually single-handedly brought back the Davis Cup to the United States after a 10-years interval, won the Sullivan trophy for 1937.

The winner in 1936 was Glenn Morris, who won the Olympic decathlon championship at the 11th Olympic Games at Berlin in 1936. Jesse Owens, who won the 100 and 200 meter dashes as well as the broad jump at the same Games, was a close second to Morris in the ballot ting, the latter receiving 1,106 votes to 1,013 votes for Owens. The voting then was on a 5-3-1 basis by a tribunal of 600 outstanding sportsmen of the United States on the ten candidates selected from the original group of 33 who were placed in nomination. It is interesting to note that Jack Medica, the bespectacled Olympic 400 meter swimming champion who is very popular in Japan, was third with 301 votes, followed by Miss Helen Jacobs, tennis champion, with 204 votes.

U.S. Winners

Previous winners were:

1930—Robert T. (Bobby) Jones jr., golf.

1931—Bernard E. Berlinger, all-around athlete.

1932—James A. Bausch, all-around athlete.

1933—Glenn Cunningham, middle distance runner.

1934—William R. Bonthron, middle distance runner.

1935—W. Lawson Little Jr., golf.

"BELIEVE IT OR NOT" --by Ripley

The Iron General

Christopher Mondragon (1504-1596) is one of the strangest military figures that ever moved across the pages of history. From early youth until his death, he participated in all the wars of the 16th century. In a thousand battles on land and on the water, he never received a wound or lost a drop of blood, although he never spared himself and was always in the thick of fighting. Amidst the strangest adventures, accidents and acts of war he seems to have led a charmed life. Friend and foe have praised his nobility of character, which made him an exemplary Christian Knight and gentleman, unstained by the acts of cruelty which were so characteristic of the soldatesca of the period.

Meiji Tumbles Matsuyama Nine By 3 To 1 Score

Meiji, champions of the Spring and Fall seasons last year of the Tokyo Six University Baseball league, defeated the Matsuyama Higher Commercial School squad, 3 to 1, Thursday afternoon at the Meiji Shrine stadium in a game that was called off in the last half of the sixth inning because of the sudden rainstorm.

Meiji sent its first string against the ball tossers from Shikoku, but at that it was a nip and tuck contest all the way through. Captain Yoshida himself took up the pitching burden for Meiji. He elected to work the corners with straight ones without pitching a single curve. Inouye of Matsuyama did fine work with his slow curves.

Matsuyama broke the ice in the scoring column in the first half of the fourth. With two men on and two away, Tsubouchi, cleanup man caught hold of a fat one and slammed it to right center to bring in one run.

Rain began to fall at this time but when it seemed dangerous for Meiji, it deadlocked the count at 1-all in the fifth by virtue of a doublestead by Sugiura and Kato. Tsukakoshi and Yoshida nicked Inouye for hits in the sixth and the former tallied after Ito went out on a foul fly. Meiji got another run before rain halted the game.

Shortstop Sugiura and Second Baseman Kameda of Meiji showed promise of developing into the league's best doubleplay combination. The box score follows:

Reich Skier Cops American Title

By FRANK ELKINS

N.Y. Times

STOWE, Vt., March 5—Roaring down the course with a recklessness that saved precious seconds on the many tricky turns, Ulrich Beutter of the visiting German Universities ski team captured the national open and amateur downhill championship today. The European ace, who has performed with honors for many years on the Continent, triumphed in the strongest field of "straight-down" skiers ever assembled for a competition in North America.

Behind the German came the defending titleholder, Dick Durrance of Dartmouth. While defeated, the American Olympian lost none of his prestige, for his exhibition was a beautiful one. Failure to increase speed on some of the corkscrew turns counted against him.

Sets Mark for Course

Beutter's time of 2:35 stands as a record, for the Nose Dive run has been changed on the last quarter-mile and today's test was the first on the improved course.

Dartmouth's crack outfit added to its imposing record for the season, for, in addition to Durrance, four other representatives of the college placed high. Walter Prager, the Green coach, who is eligible to compete since the event was staged in accordance with the rulings of the Federation International de Ski, was third. Then came Ed Wells, Ed Meservey ad Dave Bradley.

Despite the setback, Durrance set at rest any doubt about his skill. Since the start of the season, veterans had expressed the belief that this star American downhiller was not the skier of old and that the other racers finally were catching up with him. He proved them wrong today.

Second to leave the crest of Mount Mansfield, Dick set a mark for the remainder of the field of ski masters from Norway, Switzerland, Austria and Germany and the United States. He went down the precipitous one-mile-and-quarter run with a drop of 2,010 feet in 2:40.6.

This mark withstood all assaults until the German star came shooting down the trail.

In addition to the hazards of the racing course, which compares favorably with any of those in Europe, the racers had to go through a heavy fog and visibility was zero in spots. The leaders in today's event will run in the slalom championships tomorrow with points for both determining the combined downhill and slalom national titleholder.

Long before the race got under way, crowds began to gather at vantage points along the course. The run was well packed with snow that ranged in depth from twenty inches to sixty. The rise in temperature made the run somewhat slow, but this enabled the contestants to take chances.

For sheer nerve and pluck, there were several performances that will long be remembered. For instance, Roy Chamberlin and Amos Little of Dartmouth finished the last quarter mile on one ski; Sepp Ruschp sprained his left ankle halfway down, but finished under control. Many completed the grind without poles, having lost them en route.

Ted Hunter of Dartmouth, who was conceded a chance to capture the laurels, had bad luck. The American Olympian, after negotiating the toughest part of the Nose Dive, caught his ski tips in a snow hole 300 yards from the end and both of them snapped right under him.

The local organization had prepared well for any mishaps. Five ski patrols of 100 men and five first aid stations were scattered along the course.

Baseball Schools On The Increase In U.S. Assailed By N.Y. Scribe

By JOHN KIERAN

N.Y. Times

While he hasn't made any direct move yet, it is known that Judge Landis is casting a scrutinizing eye over all these baseball schools that are blossoming in the land. Unless there is some supervision, there may result a blot on the scutcheon of organized baseball.

The deans and the professors at these institutions of learning are major-league stars for the most part. That's the lure for the students. The lure for the deans and the professors is that they make money at it, whether the pupils learn anything or not. There is no equivalent of College Board examinations for entrance. All a young fellow needs to matriculate is the price of admission and the ambition to be a ball player. The first is probably the main reason why the baseball schools haven't a bigger registration than all the colleges in the country put together.

The requirements for a position on the teaching staff are equally simple. All the instructor needs is a reputation as a big-league ball player.

Instructors of Doubtful Value

Last year, for instance, Dizzy Dean and Bob Feller were members of the faculty at the same baseball school. It is doubtful that Ol' Dizz had anything of value to give his students except his own right arm and he couldn't afford to part with that.

As for Professor Feller, he spent the remainder of the Summer trying to learn a little of big-league baseball himself and succeeding in part. However, the chances are that the pupils in those baseball schools learn more by example than by precept, in which case Professors Dean and Feller might be very competent instructors. And even if the students didn't learn a thing, they had rubbed elbows with the two heroes on the diamond and it wouldn't be strange if they considered that well worth the price of admission.

But beyond the fact that apparently the promoters can make money, what is the need of these independent baseball schools? The old way of letting nature take its course seemed to be producing a fair supply of good baseball material. It produced the Yankees of 1937, for instance.

The semi-pro game, the minor league and the college diamond are recognized baseball schools that have existed for many years. There is some supervision in these fields. For that matter, many minor and major league clubs have free schools on their home grounds during the mornings of the playing season. If they serve no other purpose, they save the pupils money and time spent in traveling to and from these newer schools springing up at a distance.

The Danger

The danger is that, if this baseball school idea is allowed to run wild, it will become nothing but a racket against which indignant parents will be raising a justified howl. In fact, some of the harsher critics are calling it a racket already.

That's going it a bit strong. Some of the sponsors really expect to find a good prospect or two from the run-of-the-mill admissions at their school. A school that could come up with a Joe DiMaggio or a Carl Hubbell would prove profitable not only to the headmaster but to baseball at large. But the worth of these schools has yet to be demonstrated, whereas the danger stares any reflective baseball official full in the face.

Parents already are muttering. Jimmy or Johnny has taken his savings out of the bank or thrown up a job at the grocery store to go to one of those baseball schools. No good will come of that, they'll be bound. Nine times out of ten they will be right. Probably no great harm will come of it, either. But some harm may come and whatever harm does come will be charged against baseball as a whole.

It's the opinion in this corner that these schools are superfluous, but as long as they are pleasant for the student and profitable for the professors, they probably will increase and flourish. But if they do, certainly some Board of Education appointed by big-league authorities will be necessary to keep them in order.

Untaught Heroes

An odd thing about this school problem is that for many years a ball player could go up as far as the big leagues before anybody ever tried to teach him anything at all. Even in the big leagues patient managers spent years trying to teach senior students the rudiments of higher education on the diamond and failed lamentably to make any impression on the thick skulls of their pupils. But they were great players just the same, despite these little failings.

The late Miller Huggins spent years trying to teach one pitcher how to handle himself on the mound. The young fellow had a fast ball and a good curve. But he never knew when to throw them and just where to place them. After some five or six seasons, Huggins gave up and shipped the pitcher to another club.

Who gave Babe Ruth lessons in baseball? When he came up to the Red Sox he was so untutored that he made a ghastly mistake of a common sign. Ben Egan was his catcher and the situation in the game was critical. Ben signed for a waste ball. The Babe grooved the ball and the batter walloped it over the fence, winning the game.

"I signed for a waste ball!" raved Egan.

"Just where I put it," said the confused Bambino. "Right across his waist."

More of the Same

The players who came up through the colleges received some passing instructions from the college baseball coaches but those who came by way of the minors heard little on the way up except to wait for a good one and pickle it.

What would have been the use of giving instructions to Babe Waddell or Laughing Larry McLean or Bugs Raymond? As keen a student of baseball as Eddie Collins said that hitting was 50 per cent confidence and 50 per cent natural ability. That leaves scant room for instruction as an added asset. Professor Frisch may tell his students how he did it and even step up and show them how it is done, but that any amount of instruction or demonstration will enable them to do likewise is doubtful in the extreme. Instruction may help, but the students will find that natural ability is the main ingredient in any baseball star and it isn't the result of brainwork on the part of professor or student in any baseball school.

Purebred Dachshund Was The World's Most Amazing Dog

NEW YORK.—The most amazing dog in the world is dead. He was a purebred dachshund named Kuno vom Schwertberg, but more affectionately known as "Kurwenal." This dog was owned by Mathilde, Baroness von Freytag-Loringhoven of Germany, who reveals some almost uncanny things about Kurwenal and canine thinking and general intelligence.

Due to his prowess, Kurwenal was the subject of much scientific investigation. Remarks made by the dog were studied from all angles because of the insight they gave to the thought processes of dogs. The Baroness quotes from an article by Dr. Max Muller of Munich, as follows:

"The thought-communicating red dachshund belonging to Baroness von Freytag-Loringhoven barks, in his number alphabet, utterances of a surprising, even weird, depth of thought. The constant association of the dog with his teacher enables him to display, an answer to questions, sequences of thought which surprise us extremely. This dachshund lives, in the intellectual sense, more in man's sphere than in the animals."

Many dogs and other animals have mastered the number-language, but Kurwenal became famous because of his spontaneous utterances. He frequently would break into conversations to express his own views, without being asked. He could read very quickly. Once he showed distaste for the cumbersomeness of the barking alphabet and said he wished he could talk like a parrot.

Nagai Off For Paris After Visiting Berlin

Domei Tsushin

BERLIN, March 30—Ending a three-day stopover in the German capital, Dr. Matsuzo Nagai, secretary general of the Tokyo Olympic Organizing Committee, left Berlin for Paris by train today.

He will stay in the French capital for two days, during which time he expects to confer with representatives of several French athletic organizations.

Interviewed by pressmen prior to his departure, Dr. Nagai announced that he will start construction of the Olympic Stadium as soon as he returns to Tokyo.

America-Japan Tennis Matches Likely In October

Plans of the Japan Lawn Tennis Association are to invite a number of American stars for competition here in October this year, and for this reason the national championships will be held either the last part of October or the first part of November, it is indicated in the schedule of major tournaments announced Thursday for the year.

Visit of the American stars in October would mean exhibition of a superb brand of tennis inasmuch as members of the Japanese Davis Cup team would be back in Japan by that time.

The major items of the 1938 schedule follow:

April 3: Kanto O. B. versus students, at Denyen courts.
April 4: Kansai students championship start at Koshien.
April 9: Kanto Students league commences.
May (early in month): All-Kyushu championships at Kyushu Imperial University.
May 14: Kanto championships begin.
May 28: Kanto students championships begin.
June 11: Tournament of newcomers among Kanto students.
August 1: 11th annual Kansai junior championships.
August (first part): National junior championships.
August 19: National students championships at Osaka.
August 27, 28: 15th annual Kansai women's championships at Koshien.
September 3: Tokai students championships.
September 4: 17th annual Kansai men's championships at Koshien.
October 22, 23: East versus West students tournament.
October (middle part): East versus West Women's tournament.
October (middle part): America-Japan match, tentative.
October (last part) or November (early part): National mixed doubles veterans championships.

Hard Fought Games Feature Annual Ball Tourney At Koshien

A capacity crowd of more than 60,000 fans watched the Naniwa Commercial and Takigawa Middle School teams tangle in a game that was halted at the end of the eleventh inning with the score tied at 8-all because of darkness Thursday in the fourth day of the 15th annual middle school baseball championships at the Koshien stadium, near Osaka, sponsored by the Osaka Mainichi and the Tokyo Nichi Nichi. The two teams were to fight it out at 12:30 p.m. today.

The Naniwa nine got off to a great start by scoring four runs in the first inning, then registered another in the third to lead 5 to 0. But Takigawa rallied to chalk up four runs on the scoreboard in the fifth and deadlocked the count at 5-all in the sixth. Then it was Takigawa to forge into the 8 to 6 at the end of the eighth. A two-run rally by Naniwa in the ninth sent the game into extra innings.

The two teams battled for three hours and 26 minutes.

Sugimoto, left fielder of Naniwa, was the hitting star of the game with two triples to his credit. Takigawa outhit Naniwa by 13 to 12 hits.

Gifu Commercial, a strong contender, eliminated Fukuoka Technical, 6 to 1, in the day's first game. Kainan Middle School triumphed over Nisshin Commercial, 6 to 3, in the other tilt.

Tickets Now On Sale For British-Kanto Soccer Game, April 7

Tickets for the soccer game between the Islington Corinthians eleven of London and the All-Kanto squad on April 7 at the Meiji Shrine Stadium were to go on sale from today at the Play Guide, Mizuno and Sanseido.

The Britishers, who have been making a splendid record on their round the world tour, will play only one game in Japan, continuing on to Honolulu immediately after the game on the Empress of Japan.

War Admiral, 7-20, Scores Decisively And Earns $49,550

By BRYAN FIELD

N.Y. Times

MIAMI, March 5.—As in the past, it was War Admiral all the way today in the $50,000 added Widener Challenge Cup. The champion son of Man o' War shouldered 130 pounds and gave distance as well as weight to his opposition, yet he won eased up at the end of a mile and a quarter in one of the most remarkable exhibitions a thoroughbred has given in years.

Before 23,000 persons, who turned out for the final day of the Hialeah meeting, the son of the super horse broke from the outside of a thirteen-horse field, two lengths behind all of the others, but flashed to the front in the first furlong with a show of speed worthy of the best sprinters. From then on the 7-to-20 shot was never menaced, finishing with the power of a true stayer and with his jockey, Charley Kurtsinger, looking back as the others floundered in the rear. The margin was a length and a half.

The test grossed $64,200, of which $49,550 went to owner Samuel D. Riddle, who was present for the victory. This brings War Admiral's total winnings to $231,625, as the result of sixteen races, of which he has annexed thirteen. He never has finished out of the money, and the goal of his owner is to make him the world's largest money winner, a distinction now held by Sun Beau with $376,744.

Time Only Moderate

The brown colt finished the route in the moderate time of 2:03 4-5, and returned $2.70, $2.30 and 2.20 across the board for $2 mutuel tickets.

The surprise of the race was the second place gained by Mrs. E. H. Bartlett's Zevson, a 6-year-old former selling plater that was vanned from New Orleans especially for the race. Another half length away, Mrs. Emil Denemark's War Ministrel was third, leading his stablemate Corinto.

Picolo and Tatterdemalion then finished as named, with Columbiana, last year's victor, seventh. Court Scandal, Burning Star, Bourbon King, No Sir, Pageboy and Thorson completed the field in that order. Tatterdemalion was the second betting choice but was never in the hunt. Piccolo, surprise winner of the McLennan, was close up for half the route and then was forced back in tight quarters. Burning Star never threatened from his slow beginning.

Winner Delays Start

The story of the race was in the start and the moves that were made at the turn into the back-stretch. Presumably because he is afraid of the stall starting gate, War Admiral misbehaved badly in his No. 7 post position, as he usually does. The start was delayed five minutes by his actions, with some contributions from Columbiana and Zevson.

A Great Surgeon Who Never Performed An Operation

Albrecht von Haller (1708-1777) was a native of Berne, Switzerland. His fame, however, is associated with Germany, where he was for many years professor of anatomy and surgery at the University of Goettingen, and where he was known as the premier surgeon of his age. He established the Anatomical and Gynecological Institution and many others which made the University famous, he taught a thousand of the most famous surgeons of the century, but he never performed an actual surgical operation himself in his entire life.

Columbia Retains Title In I.C. 4-A Games, Topping Manhattan, 27-24

By ARTHUR J. DALEY

N.Y. Times

NEW YORK, March 6—Out of a welter of upsets and stunning surprises right down the line, Columbia staggered to its second successive team championship of the Intercollegiate A. A. A. A. before a wildly excited crowd of 12,000 in Madison Square Garden last night.

Manhattan, riding the crest of an inspirational wave, nearly won. The Jaspers led the Lions, 24 to 20, with only one event to go, but Ben Johnson and Herb Weast, placing second and third in the broad jump, repelled the gallant bid of the Green and gave Columbia the triumph, 27 to 24.

The Manhattan band bravely played "Roar, Lion, Roar," the Light Blue anthem, in a polite bow to the shaky, if victorious, Columbians. The Jaspers were well enough satisfied with the near-miracle feat that the master magician, Pete Waters, almost pulled out of his sleeve.

Three Manhattan Firsts

The Jasper coach, with only one winner in sight before the meet, suddenly produced three, two by the upset route, and ran Columbia ragged right down to the wire. Waters' team almost slipped into victory because every one was concentrating on the battle between the Light Blue and the Dark Blue of Yale. Then, out of a clear sky, there was Manhattan leading the parade.

And so with this stirring finale the colorful intercollegiate games came to a close with six meet records broken in the twelve varsity events and defending champions overturned with total disregard of their lofty standing.

Here, in brief, are the meet's high spots:

The Point Leaders—Columbia, 27; Manhattan, 24; Yale, 18; Princeton, 16½; Cornell, 15½; N. Y. U., 15; Rhode Island State, 14½.

The Intercollegiate Record-Breakers—Johnson of Columbia in the sprint (he twice equaled the old figures); Ted Day of Yale in the high hurdles (he and Jay Shields of Yale also equaled the former mark); Howard Borck of Manhattan in the 600; Artie Byrnes of Manhattan in the high jump; Anson Perina of Princeton in the broad jump and Frank Ryan of Columbia in the shot.

Folwartshny a Repeater

The Championship Repeaters—Irving Folwartshny of Rhode Island State in the weight throw and Johnson in the sprint.

The Champions Dethroned—Johnson in the broad jump, Jack Donovan of Dartmouth in the hurdles, Lou Burns of Manhattan in the mile, Dick Ganslen of Columbia in the pole vault, N. Y. U. in the two-mile relay and Manhattan in the one-mile relay.

The Chief Upsets—Borck beating Jim Herbert of N. Y. U. in the 600, Bob Conkling of Manhattan beating Howard Welch of Cornell in the two-mile run, Day beating Donovan in the hurdles and Perina beating Johnson in the broad jump.

The Borck triumph was one of the big surprises of the entire season. A runner-up in his four previous I. C. 4-A meets, indoors and outdoors, he finally cleared that mental hazard with a smashing triumph.

Preforms Like Halfback

The staggered start saw Herbert in one of the best regarded lanes, third from the pole, but he never took the proper advantage of it. Borck, in the bad position along the rail, performed like a swivelhipped halfback. He snaked past rivals by hugging the rail and the gun found him in second place for the final whirl around the boards.

Herbert was third, with John Nevius of Cornell blazing the trail. But it was clear that the Cornellian was in deep water against a field of this class. That was substantiated when he faded so badly in the homestretch as to finish just inside the points in fifth place.

In the backstretch of the ultimate lap Borck let go. His style is so awkward that he did not appear to be moving with the speed he really was unfurling.

It never did show until he began to gain on Herbert in the homestretch, opening up a two-yard advantage to seven at the wire. Ed Stripling of N. Y. U., finishing with a gallop, took third ahead of Dick Gill of Boston College.

The classic mile run, always a high spot, proved to be the most exciting—and the slowest—eight-furlong test of the year. There was no Glenn Cunningham around to spread-eagle the field in brilliant time and, as paradoxical as it might sound, that made for a much more spectacular race.

Judges His Pace Well

Pete Bradley of Princeton, judging his pace well, took the lead at the half-way mark and never lost it. He had plenty of fire and drive in the final lap as he administered to Lou Burns of Manhattan the first defeat the lanky Jasper ace sustained in I. C. A. A. A. A. competition.

But for the defending champion there was not even the empty consolation of second place. Ed Mezitt of Cornell came whirling up with a terrific lift in the homestretch to catch Burns unaware and snatch second place right out of his grasp, as the two finished in almost a dead heat behind Bradley's 4:19.5.

The star pupil of Matty Geis at Princeton never once folded when Burns made his bid. The Jasper ace has always had a withering blast in the final lap, but he just did not have it last night.

Little Ben Flashes

And still the record parade moved along. Little Ben Johnson contributed three sparkling performances in the 60-yard dash as he successfully defended his title to keep unbroken his string of never having lost heat or final all season. The Lion leader did 0:06.3 in his trial, 0:06.2 in his semi-final and 0:06.3 in the final.

Since the old intercollegiate record has stood at 0:06.3, Johnson twice equaled it and once surpassed it. The 0:06.2 also tied the accepted world record although a few shades behind little Ben's still unrecognized time of 6 seconds flat.

The pole vault was something of a surprise when Bill Harding of Yale dethroned Dick Ganslen of Columbia and thus regained the crown he had shared the year before. The Eli did 13 feet 9 inches and the Lion star three inches less.

The high jump, however, went according to form. Pete Waters' sophomore ace, Artie Byrnes of Manhattan, cleared 6 feet 6 inches for a new meet record, supplanting the old figures of 6 feet 5⅝ inches.

The one-mile relay was a runaway for a fast-moving Pitt team of Frank Ohl, Al Ferrara, Allen McKee and Ol' John Woodruff, the Olympic champion. Long John had a bit of trouble staying on the course and keeping out of front-row boxes but he started off ten yards ahead of Herbert and finished that same ten yards ahead of him in 3:22, good enough time.

One event, the 35-pound weight throw, was contested in the afternoon. In it Irving (Shorty) Folwartshny, the blond colossus from Rhode Island State, retained his crown with a toss of 55 feet 6¾ inches. It was the fifth national or intercollegiate title he has captured in the strongman test in the past three seasons.

English Being Studied By Equestrian Body As Preparation For Games

To prepare themselves for contact with visiting athletes during the 12th Olympic Games here in 1940, members of the Kanto Students Equestrian Association have resumed English lessons twice a week with Mrs. Anna Matsuo as instructor at its headquarters, it was learned today.

Their efforts in conversational English were supended sometime ago when it seemed doubtful for the organization of the Games here due to rumors of objection abroad. But such atmosphere has been cleared with the reaffirmation by the International Olympic Committee at its recent meeting at Cairo of its selection of Tokyo and Sapporo for the sites of the 1940 Games. Hence the decision of the Equestrian Association to resume their study of English.

Oxford Is Favored To Win On Thames

Domei Tsushin

LONDON, March 31—With the 90th Oxford-Cambridge regatta only two days ahead, sports circles here today predicted one of the closest races in many years.

The historic race, which will get under way at 2 o'clock Saturday afternoon, is likely, they said, to turn out into a Herculean tussle.

Although much will depend upon the weather and the toss, the odds are, they opined, slightly in favor of Oxford.

The Oxford oarsmen, who early in the season were favorites, became outsiders for a while. Recently, however, they returned to receive slight favoritism as a result of their defeat of the Cambridge reserve crew in a trial row. The latter recently won in the head-of-river race at Cambridge.

Though they reduced their weight by four pounds on the average per man in the course of the recent training, the Oxford oarsmen still form one of the heaviest crews in history, weighing thirteen stones on the average. Their weight, which will be of great assistance in a head wind or a rough weather, may prove too heavy in a tail wind or ordinary weather conditions.

The Oxford crew, despite the fact that it retains the same stroke, cox and nucleus and rows in the same boat as last year, is not regarded as the same class.

The Cambridge oarsmen, who are lighter, neater and faster, are expected to keep form better in the long row if conditions are good.

Since the turn of the century, Oxford has won only six of the 29 races and never two in a row. Last year, after 13 consecutive Cambridge victories, Oxford came through to win.

Cunningham Is First In 4:15 At Baltimore

BALTIMORE, March 5 — Glenn Cunningham, hailed as "the world's fastest miler," came from behind tonight to win the Governor's Mile before 5,000 spectators at the University of Maryland-Fifth Regiment indoor games and remain unbeaten this season.

The Kansas express came up on the last of the eight laps after trailing most of the way and finished ahead of his New York Curb Exchange team-mate, Archie San Romania. Mason Chronister of Maryland and Gene Venzke of the New York A. C. followed in that order.

Cunningham's time of 4 minutes 15 seconds was far from his recent record-smashing 4:04.4 mile at Dartmouth, but Coach Charlie Vernon said it set a new record for a flat indoor track, with unbanked turns. He said the old mark was Cunningham's own 4:15.2, set in New York's Seventh Regiment Armory Feb. 12.

Coach Frank Dobson of Maryland said Chronister's time of 4:16.9 was the fastest ever made by a Southern Conference man indoors.

Charlie Beetham, also of the New York Curb Exchange, sprinted from behind to win the secondary feature, the "Oriole 660," in the record time of 1:22.7 for the meet. He beat his team-mate, Bill Ray, Hendrix of North Carolina and Cronin of Maryland in that order.

Rally In Eighth Helps Hosei To Beat Matsuyama

Hosei came from behind to down the visiting Matsuyama Higher Commercial nine from Shikoku, 5 to 4, Friday afternoon at the Meiji Shrine Stadium by virtue of a five-run rally in the last half of the eighth inning to overcome a four-run lead.

Pitcher Kondo of Matsuyama was in rare form and his fast ball that cut the corners had the first string Hosei men eating out of his hands for seven innings. But he got off to a bad start in the eighth when he issued a free ticket to Kagatani. Then Ariuke's short fly back of short dropped a Texas Leaguer when the shortstop misjudged it badly. And matters became worse when Karazawa's bunt in front of the plate rolled into an infield hit to clog the bases. Their last chance to kick through with a victory, the Hosei players rose to the occasion. Timely hits by Takeuchi and Tsuruoka and another walk issued by Kondo accounted for five runs.

Paying proper respect to a visiting team, Coach Fujita of Hosei sent his best team afield. On the mound was Southpaw Akaneya, the team's ace, chucking for the first time after a long rest because of illness. But he showed signs of wildness and was sent to the showers in the beginning of the eighth. Victory was credited to Ariuke, who pitched fine ball in the relief role.

Matsuyama got off to an auspicious start by registering a run in the first inning on the strength of two walks and a double. Scoring another in the fifth, the Shikoku ball tossers collected two more in the eighth. Rightfielder Wada smashed a straight one for a triple and Akaneya lost control to walk the next three men to force in Wada. Ariuke, who replaced Akaneya with the bases loaded, struck out Yanase and it seemed as if the side might be retired without further scoring but Tan worked Ariuke for a walk and in walked Tsubouchi for the other run.

Big Ten Laurels To Purdue's Five

EVANSTON, Ill., March 5—Purdue won outright possession of the Western Conference basketball championship for 1938 tonight, defeating Northwestern, 42 to 39, to end the season with a record of ten victories and two losses.

The high-scoring Boilermakers, who led Northwestern, 25 to 17, at halftime, scored 511 points in twelve Big Ten contests, while holding opponents to 414. It was Purdue's fifth undisputed Big Ten court title. The Boilermakers have shared seven other crowns.

The defeat was Northwestern's fourth in eleven games. The Wildcats close their season against Michigan Monday night.

RALEIGH, N. C., March 5—Duke University won the Southern Conference basketball crown for the first time tonight with a 40-to-30 victory over the Clemson Tigers.

Five times since 1929 Duke had entered the final round of the conference only to be beaten, but came through in fine fashion tonight. Clemson scored the first point in the game, leading 1 to 0 after four minutes of play. Then Ed Swindell sank a basket and Duke had a 10-1 advantage after seven minutes.

Swindell was the high-scorer with 14 points while McFadden of the losers got 13.

EATON ROUGE, La., March 5—Georgia Tech staved off a second-half rally to conquer Mississippi, 58 to 47, and win the Southeastern Conference basketball championship tonight. Bo Johnston, Tech center, led the Golden Tornado to victory with 26 points.

BOWLING GREEN, Ky., March 5—Western Kentucky's Hill-toppers staged a second-season drive tonight to humble Murray College's Thoroughbreds, 44 to 29, and capture the basketball championship of the Southern Intercollegiate Athletic Association for the second consecutive year.

Italy Will Send 400 Athletes To Games In 1940, Pucci Says

Italy will support the 12th Olympic Games in Tokyo 100 per cent and send a delegation of 400 athletes and a newspaper party of 50 persons here, according to a statement made Friday by Dr. Puccio Pucci, an executive of the Italian Amateur Athletic Federation and a member of the visiting Fascist Mission. He left with the Mission for the Kansai by the Tsubame from Tokyo Station at 9 a.m. today.

Dr. Pucci also declared that if a Japan-Italy track and field meet is held here next year, a mixed team of 10, including Luigi Beccali, who placed third in the 1,500 meter run at the 11th Olympic Games in Berlin in 1936, will be sure to compete.

Dr. Pucci will return to Tokyo on April 15 to confer with the Olympic Organizing Committee.

Notre Dame Cops 3 Track Titles In Illinois Meet

N.Y. Times

CAMBRIDGE, Mass., March 5—The powerful Harvard varsity swimming team defeated Princeton, 52—23, in the Harvard pool tonight before a capacity gathering of 1,800. The victory gave Harvard undisputed possession of first place in the Eastern Intercollegiate Swimming League.

One of the features of the meet was the 300-yard medley relay, in which Princeton set up a new world's record, but lost it when the officials ruled that Al Vande Weghe, Princeton backstroke start, had made an illegal turn at the twenty-five-yard mark.

Sets a Pool Record

Other outstanding events were the 150-yard backstroke event, in which Vande Weghe set up a new pool record of 1:34.5, the 200-yard breast-stroke, in which R. R. Hough of Princeton clipped a tenth of a second off the old pool mark of 2:25.4, and a new Harvard record in the 440-yard free style.

In the last, Bill Kendall swam the distance in 4:50.5, nine and one-tenth seconds better than the old mark held by his team-mate and captain, Charlie Hutter.

Tiger Supporters Upset

The Princeton supporters were upset when the medley was awarded to Harvard on Vande Weghe's error. The Princeton star, according to the officials, was doing his flip over before his hand touched the end of the pool.

Hutter did not have to exert himself to capture the sprint events. He negotiated fifty yards in 23.5 seconds to win easily from his team-mate, Dave Barker. In the 100-yard event Hutter's time of 53.6 seconds was fast enough to beat Hendrick Van Orr of Princeton easily.

The summaries:

300-Yard Medley Relay—Won by Harvard (G. Gummin, D. C. Berizzi, H. A. Curwen). Princeton disqualified after winning the event because of Vande Weghe's illegal turn.

220-Yard Free Style—Won by W. E. Kendall, Harvard; second, J. R. Simpson, Princeton; third, R. F. Benedict, Harvard. Time—2:13.7.

50-Yard Free Style—Won by C. G. Hutter, Harvard; second, D. arker, Harvard; third, W. Shard Jr., Princeton. Time—0:23.5.

Dive—Won by E. R. Greenhood Jr., Harvard, 116.57; second, H. D. Cranston, Princeton, 114.26; third, J. C. Kelley, Princeton, 90.96.

100-Yard Free-Style—Won by C. G. Hutter, Harvard; second, H. Van Orr, Princeton; third, D. N. McKay, Harvard. Time—0:53.6.

150-Yard Backstroke—Won by A. Vande Weghe, Princeton; second, G. Cummin, Harvard; third, E. K. Farrington, Princeton. Time—1:34.5. (New pool record for short course.)

200-Yard Breaststroke—Won by R. R. Hough, Princeton; second, D. C. Berizzi, Harvard; third, P. H. Walker, Harvard. Time—2:25.3 (new pool record).

440-Yard Free Style—Won by W. E. Kendall, Harvard; second, F. W. Coleman, Harvard; third, R. H. Binns, Princeton. Time—4:50.5 (new Harvard record).

400-Yard Relay—Won by Harvard (D. Barker, H. A. Curwen, Harley Stowell, F. W. Griffin); second, Princeton (J. R. Simpson, H. Van Orr, H. L. Moeller, A. Vande Weghe). Time—3:38.7.

No-Hit No-Run Game Chucked By Chukyo Star

Pitcher Noguchi of the Chukyo Commercial team hurled a no-hit no-run game against the Kaiso Middle School nine Friday in the fifth day's contests of the 15th annual national middle school championships sponsored by the Osaka Mainichi and the Tokyo Nichi Nichi at the Koshien ball park, near Osaka. By virtue of a 4-0 victory, Chukyo entered the quarter-finals. An overwhelming crowd that filled every standing space available, nearing the 100,000 mark, saw the middle school players battle in three games.

The Naniwa Commercial and Takigawa Middle school teams that had battled to an 8-all tie game the previous day, halted because of darkness at the end of the eleventh inning, engaged in another nip and tuck contest that was finally won by Naniwa, last year's champions, by a four run rally in the last half of the ninth inning.

In the other game of the day, the Toho Commercial team staged one of the biggest surprises of the tournament by eliminating the strong Heian Middle school combine of Tokyo by 13 to 5.

Noguchi of Chukyo hurled such scintillating ball that only three Kaiso players reached first. He also struck out 12 men.

"BELIEVE IT OR NOT" --by Ripley

Washington

When Washington was born on February 11, 1731, King George II had been ruling Great Britain and its colonies for nearly 5 years. The Washingtons had always been loyal to the British Crown, (their loyalty being as old as the Conquest). It was believed then that a name had a great influence upon the course of a child's life, and Washington was given the name of George, after the name of the ruling King, thereby hoping to assure the child's loyalty. It turned out, however, that Washington was the first successful rebel against Great Britain.

One of the first acts of the French authorities after the French Revolution was to declare Washington and a number of prominent Americans honorary citizens of Revolutionary France. In this manner, the first citizen of the United States also became the first citizen of post-royal France.

Beat St. Joseph's Five

Yokohama Sports Club Tumbles St. Joseph's Quintet, 35 To 31

Special To The Japan Times

YOKOHAMA, April 2—desperate spurt in the last few minutes of play made it possible for the Yokohama Sports Club to nose out the fighting St. Joseph's College quintet by a score of 35 to 31 in a game played on the latter's floor tonight. It was no easy walkover for the All Blacks who easily trimmed the same team last week.

St. Joseph's drew first blood and for a time it seemed that they were going to have their own way and wipe out the bad taste left in their mouths from the beating received the week before. Tarasenko led the attack but it was the brilliant work of Shalfieff at center who seemed to score at will that had the All Blacks worried.

All Blacks Dually

Captain Sakagami of the All Blacks called time out. This seemed to break the stride of the college team and then the All Blacks started to work in earnest. By the end of the first quarter the score stood: 14-5 in favor of the visitors.

Again in the beginning of the second quarter the college boys started to score at will. Shalfieff made shots which seemed almost impossible but he was unable to overcome the lead held by the All Blacks.

Tarasenko who played so brilliantly last week did not do so well tonight. It seemed to the spectators that he had the idea that he was a star and his grandstand work only broke up the smooth playing of the college boys. The second quarter ended 27-22 in favor of the All Blacks.

The beginning of the second half was wild and furious. Numerous fouls were committed by both sides but the All Blacks seemed to get the bad breaks by being penalized time and time again for rough playing. From then on the game got out of the control of the referee. Captain Sakagami collected four personal fouls toward the end of the third quarter and left the floor. P. Blamey took his position. This quarter ended 27-22 in favor of the All Blacks.

Play is Furious

An excited referee and excited players made the last quarter of the game the most interesting from the standpoint of the spectators. The college boys went on a scoring spree and with only a few minutes left to play brought the score to 31-30. Both sides roughened it up but the All Blacks kept control of the ball and allowed the St. Joseph's team only one point which was scored on a foul. The last quarter ended 35-31 in favor of the visitors.

Tonight's game was rough and exciting but it was a sloppy one. Both teams tried to make long passes which were intercepted. Both teams threw the ball without looking to see if there was someone to receive it. And neither team seemed to have any plan of defense or attack.

Kansai Tops Kanto At Figure Skating

Kansai vanquished Kanto, 36 to 19, in the second annual East versus West figure skating meet over Saturday and Sunday at the Sanno rink at Akasaka to win for the second consecutive year.

Toshiichi Katayama, Olympic skater, performing for the last time as an amateur, clinched first place for the Kansai team by scoring 721.50 points in the school figures and 577.43 points in the free skating for a total of 1,298.93 points.

Takasuke Arizaka of Kanto was second with 1,138.44 points.

Fujimaru Shojishima Hiroshi Kanda, Seiji Kitagawa, and Yorio Iga captured third, fourth, fifth and sixth places respectively for Kansai.

Miss Etsuko Inada, woman champion, gave an exhibition after the competitive events.

San Francisco Planning Great Sport Program

Christian Science Monitor

SAN FRANCISCO, March 4—A year from Feb. 18 will see the beginning of one of the most spectacular and continuous sports programs the Pacific Coast—and being in California we can opine, "the world"—has ever seen.

This program of events is being planned by 30 special sports committees for the 1939 Golden Gate International Exposition—San Francisco's World's Fair. The setting for the athletic competitions is the man-made island, familiarly known here as "Treasure Island," in the center of the historic and white-capped San Francisco Bay.

Surely a more perfect setting for an athletic carnival, to spread over a period of about 10 months, would be hard to beat. Everything from winter sports—with snow hustled down from the High Sierra Mountains—to intercollegiate crew races, is being scheduled for the February to December Exposition.

Come One, Come All

As the barkers will cry—Come one! Come All! Only 288 days to see the many sports events—the biggest, the best, the most tremendous . . . all for a dime, the tenth part of a dollar! Step right up folks!" Or something like that. At any rate here's a pre-view of what is being planned:

Gold Cup class speedboats, which, I learn, cost from $15,000 to $40,000, and attain a speed as high as 91 miles an hour, will probably thrill the customers as the boats bob and dash through the spray around a specially planned race-course.

International yacht races—designed to draw trim-rigged sailing vessels, the fastest of their many classes—are scheduled. These races, which all may see, even across the Bay in Oakland and from San Francisco's hill tops, should be among the most colorful staged by the Exposition. White sails, sleek hulls glistening with foam, the bright California sun above, and the deep blue bay beneath—ah—me, for a life on the open sea! Just another plug for you to come to the Exposition.

Swimming Meets

Then there'll be distance and speed swimming by the nations most long-winded, and powerful purveyors of the many swim strokes. Swimming meets have always drawn large crowds in this area and the galaxy of stars being lined up certainly should be no let-down. Yes, there will be diving exhibitions too. What is more graceful than a perfectly executed swoop from a high board—or more ludicrous than clown-divers at any height?

As to crew, "Ky" Ebright, the University of California's popular crew coach, and mentor of two world-championship boat-loads of sweepsters, is the chairman of the crew committee. As it now lines up California, Washington, and the University of California at Los Angeles, will compete in the 1939 exposition regatta, but there are possibilities that other crews may enter before the final gun is fired. Crew is an undeterminable sport, you know, and this far away from the contemplated races it's hard to make any definite statement—but "Ky" promises some real crew races.

Grandstands to accommodate about 10,000 spectators are to be constructed along the shore of the Yacht Harbor, at the south end of Treasure Island. Here mass water carnivals, floating pageants, fire-works displays, and other "unusual" events are to take place.

For fishermen there will be championships in fly and distance casting. Rifle, and pistol tournaments will be held for the Pacific Coast championships. Already some 37 shoots have been arranged.

Lawn Bowling

Followers of that Rip Van Winkle sport—lawn bowling—can come with the expectation of seeing world championships with some 1,000 entries. Men and women's titles in singles and doubles are to be decided.

Archery is to have its place. Ever try to bend a bow and whir an arrow toward a target, without having the bow throw you, leaving the arrow behind on the turf? It's a real art—archery. And the nation's best are planning to be here for the men's and women's National archery championships.

Of course plans are under way to bring track stars, hold tennis tournaments, perhaps even professional football games, soccer, golf championships in the Bay Area, and even gymnastics. The whole gamut of the sports repertoire is expected to have been run before the 288 days of the Exposition are up. If you're a sports enthusiast and that program doesn't leave you breathless—well, what more can 30 committees do?—Royal Arch Gunnison.

Oxford Defeats Cambridge Crew For 2nd In Row

Domei Tsushin

LONDON, April 2—To the joy of tens of thousands who lined the banks of the Thames, Oxford crewers, repeating their hard-won victory of last year, the first in 13 years, this afternoon beat Cambridge to win the 90th regatta between the two schools. The winners, by capturing today's historic race, chalked up their second consecutive victory in 35 years.

Since the turn of the century, Oxford boatmen have won only seven of the 30 races. The winners were the favorites of the meet.

The victorious oarsmen led the Cambridge losers at the finish line by two lengths. The time for the four and a quarter mile race was 20 minutes and 32 seconds, remarkably well considering the choppy course and the high winds. The time for the event was the best since 1935.

The brilliant Oxford crew always held a good lead except during the half-way mark when the Cambridge oarsmen were within half a length but along the home stretch the winners put on a vigorous spurt to record a wide lead. This afternoon's race, despite the rough waters and the high wind, will go down in history as one of the finest races since the series began over a 100 years ago.

Oarsmen Ready

Domei Tsushin

LONDON, April 1—Rowing experts on the eve of the historic Oxford-Cambridge regatta which yearly draws tens of thousands of spectators to the banks of the Thames, predicted tonight a great race with ideal rowing conditions.

It was added that though the race is scheduled for 2 o'clock, it will probably get under way a bit earlier owing to tide conditions.

Both the Cambridge and Oxford crews today completed their training period with short spins on the river.

Jack Coombs Gives Pupils Questionnaires

DURHAM, N. C.—The old professor distributed mimeographed sheets titled "Final Examination in P. E.-59" and tramped out of the classroom.

Then Duke University's baseball players began swinging fountain pens with a flourish. Here was a quiz they could handle.

It was Jack Coombs' annual questionnaire for his athletes, who take a physical education course in baseball as part of their required college credits for graduation.

Professor Coombs has been giving these tests since he came to Duke in 1929. They deal with techniques of positional play, batting and fielding problems and often present case examples that call for imaginative thinking for the diamond students to extricate themselves from hypothetical situations.

Yankees Debate Answers

A baseball writer once offered one of these questionnaires to the New York baseball team and the Yankees spent hours of a road trip debating over the answers.

These tests, following a semester's classroom lectures and conversations, have made Duke's team a collection of smart youngsters. They've won a flock of titles, including last year's Southern Conference championship.

In case you've forgotten, Coombs won five world series victories for Philadelphia, three of which were against the Chicago Cubs in 1910. In 1906 he pitched the longest American League game, winning a 24-inning tussle with the Boston Red Sox, 4-1.

Some of the Questions

Here are some of Professor Coombs' questions, with the answers:

Q. What is a shortstop's hardest fielding play?

A. A batted ball which bounds over the pitcher's head. This ball must be fielded on the run, and the shortstop's throw to first base must be made under full speed, thrown from the awkward position in which he fields the ball.

Q. How would you play your infield under the following situations, deep or in close? (1) Runners on first and third bases, second inning, no score, one out, eighth man in the batting order at the plate. (2) Runner on first base, one out, three runs behind, three balls and one strike?

A. (1) deep. (2) close.

Q. Should a pitcher vary the time between each pitched ball?

A. Yes, particularly if any base is occupied. If the pitcher does not vary the time he consumes in making his different deliveries, runners will be invited to steal bases.

Never Back Up Third

Q. When should a catcher back up third base?

A. A catcher should never back up third base.

Q. What is the most difficult fielding play for a pitcher?

A. The swinging bunt. The ball is swung at very hard and is hit in such a manner that it rolls slowly close to the base line. The difficulty for the pitcher is to decide whether to let the ball roll with the hope it may go foul or pick it up for an almost impossible play at first base.

Q. What advice would you give your batsman under the following ball and strike situations? (1) Bases empty, two balls and no strike. (2) Runner on first, one out, no score, two balls and no strikes. (3) Runners on second and third, one out, three balls and one strike.

A. (1) Hit. Try for along hit to get into scoring position. (2) Hit the good ball, using possibly, the hit and run play. (3) Hit the good ball.

Joe Louis Knocks Out Thomas In 5th Of 15th

Domei Tsushin

CHICAGO, April 1—Joe Louis, 23-year old negro heavyweight champion of the world, successfully defended his title for the third time here tonight by knocking out Harry Thomas, Wisconsin challenger, in the fifth round of a scheduled 15-round championship bout.

Though his punches seemed less deadly than when he knocked out Nathan Mann in three rounds at New York last February, the Brown Bomber showed that he was still master of the ring by hammering Thomas mercilessly around in a brief, uneven battle.

It was the Detroit fighter's third victory since he blasted the title away from Jimmy Braddock, but only the last two were won on knockouts since Tommy Farr, plucky Welsh coal-miner, held the champion to a 15-round decision last Fall.

Louis' weight was up to 202 lbs., for tonight's contest, while Thomas tipped the scales at 196.

Harvard Mermen Down Princeton By 52-23 Score

N.Y. Times

CHAMPAIGN, Ill., March 5—Indiana and Notre Dame furnished the record-breaking thrills, and Bill McLane of Southeastern Missouri Teachers came up with the big individual job tonight as the Illinois relay carnival, dormant these past seven years, was revived.

The Hoosiers, who have been smashing distance-running records with monotonous regularity for years, sent up another troupe of stars to displace two of the fancier marks in the carnival book. Notre Dame, boasting its most powerful track and field array in years, won three titles, one of them with record decorations.

Indiana started with the two-mile relay, and with only one change in personnel, came back less than an hour later to do an even more handsome job of record-breaking in the university medley relay.

Wins Only Two Events

McLane, soaring over the bar at 12 feet in the pole vault, gained the points he needed to claim the "all round" championship of the carnival.

The lithe Missourian, scoring 5.513 points, won only two events in the feature of the afternoon program, the vault and the 75-yard dash, but he was so much better than his two foemen, brawny Jack Hayward of Grinnell (Iowa) College, and Illinois's Dick Brunton, in the vault that he won the coveted title right there.

His 12-foot performance earned him 868 points, to 484 for Hayward and 372 for Brunton, and boosted him from third place into a lead he never relinquished. Hayward's total points were 5,399.55 and Brunton's were 5,240.

Indiana's two-mile relay team of Jimmy Smith, Charles Cunkle, Sam Miller and Mel Trutt got the record-breaking under way by winning in 7 minutes 49.5 seconds. In lowering the mark from 7:53.5, set by Ohio State's 1931 quartet, the Hoosiers led from the start and won without being seriously pressed at any stage. Ohio State was second, Drake third and Michigan fourth.

A Blanket Finish

Bill Clifford of Notre Dame captured the seventy-five-yard dash title in a thrilling blanket finish with John Davenport of Chicago, Maynard Black, Marquette Negro, and Bill Lehman of Illinois, who followed him in that order. Clifford's time, 7.7 seconds, was three-tenths of a second slower than the meet record.

Notre Dame came right back for another title in the 1,500-meter run when Greg Rice cantered to an easy triumph over Rosy Southworth of Butler University. Rice's time was 4:01.5.

Elmer Gedeon, lanky Michigan football and track star, turned in a smashing triumph in the 75-yard high hurdles, equaling the meet and American record of 9 seconds set by Lee Sentman of Illinois in 1931.

Indiana's famed power exploded again for another record in the university medley event, after a blistering battle with a Michigan quartet. The Hoosiers, Trutt, Miller, Tommy Deckard and Smith, finished the test, comprising legs of a half mile, 440 yards, three-quarters of a mile and one mile, in 10 minutes 14 seconds, more than 17 seconds faster than the former meet and American indoor record, 10:31.2, set by a Chicago team in 1929.

Dave Albritton, Ohio State's great Negro high jumper and Olympic champion, was forced by Wesley Allen, a Michigan sophomore, to settle for a tie at 6 feet 5⅜ inches.

Third Notre Dame Title

John Francis gave Notre Dame its third championship by winning the 1,000-yard run over a big field in the meet record time of 2 minutes 16 seconds. The former meet mark, 2:16.4, was set by Orval Martin of Purdue in 1930.

Chukyo And Toho Battling Today For Ball Pennant

The Chukyo Commercial and Toho Commercial teams were scheduled to fight it out this afternoon at the Koshien stadium near Osaka for the title of the 15th annual middle school baseball championships sponsored by the Osaka Mainichi and the Tokyo Nichi Nichi.

Chukyo entered the finals Sunday by blanking the Kainan Middle School squad by 2 to 0 while the Toho combine took the measure of the strong Gifu Commercial nine by 6 to 2 in the other game of the semi-finals.

Pitcher Noguchi of Chukyo, who pitched a no-hit no-run game on Friday against the Kaiso Middle School, chucked another good game, yielding but two hits. Although his team-mates registered 10 hits off Yamazaki of the Kainan team, it was only in the seventh inning that they were able to score their winning two runs.

A three-run rally in the third clinched the game for Toho against Gifu. Hisano checked the latter to six hits to contribute to his team's victory.

The results of the quarter-finals on Saturday follow:

Toho defeated Naniwa Commercial, 5 to 3.

Kainan defeated Akashi, 4 to 0.

Gifu defeated Koyo, 3 to 0.

Sunderland Wins Soccer Cup Test Before 75,000

LONDON, March 5—Record-breaking crowds saw three famous clubs go into the semi-final for the English Football Cup today. Sunderland, the cup holder, Preston North End and Aston Villa were the successful teams in the sixth round. York City and Huddersfield will replay a scoreless draw next week.

Sunderland won a gruelling struggle against the Tottenham Hotspurs, scoring the only goal of the game. Preston North End, runner-up in the competition last year, overcame Brentford, 3—0, and Aston Villa gained the penultimate round for the fourteenth time with a 3—2 victory over Manchester City.

In league play Arsenal went into a tie with the Wolverhampton Wanderers for the lead in the first division by virtue of a 4—0 triumph over Stoke City. The Wolves were held to a 1—1 draw by Leeds United.

Carter's Goal Decides

More than 75,000 crowded into the Spurs ground at White Hart Lane for the battle with Sunderland. Carter sent in the match-winning counter.

Clever, steady football gave Preston its victory over Brentford before a crowd of 37,586. Aston Villa and Manchester City scored five goals between them, all in a thrilling second half. On the conclusion of the game the crowd invaded the pitch, the players making their way through lines of police. There was an attendance of 75,500.

Jimmy McGrory, soccer's all-time-high marksman, who scored more than 400 goals in fifteen years of big-league campaigning, was perhaps the proudest man in Scotland today. And he had two airtight reasons.

One of the most brilliant and colorful men in Scottish football for many years, Jimmy quit active playing with Celtic early this season to manage Kilmarnock, the team that hit headlines today by turning in the year's biggest upset—a startling 2—1 third-round cup victory over the Celts.

40,000 See Celtic Setback

Besides eliminating last year's trophy winners from the competition, his team avenged a Christmas Day 8—0 defeat inflicted by the old team-mates, which, incidentally, marked his debut as manager of the Killies.

Advancing slowly from the relegation zone in league standings, Kilmarnock surpassed all recent improvement against the Celts before a dumbfounded 40,000 crowd at Parkhead, lair of the highly touted Celtic eleven.

Chukyo Captures Title In Daimai Baseball Series

Chukyo Commercial of Nagoya nosed out Toho Commercial, of the same prefecture, 1 to 0, to emerge champions Monday afternoon in the eighth and final day of the 15th annual middle school baseball championships sponsored by the Osaka Mainichi and the Tokyo Nichi Nichi at the Koshien stadium, near Osaka. Twenty teams competed in the tournament which was witnessed daily by capacity crowds near the 100,000 mark.

Pitcher Hisano of the Toho team had the misfortune to lose the game although he held Chukyo to but one hit, and this did not figure in the scoring. Noguchi of Chukyo too chucked an airtight game, yielding but two hits.

Toho's Errors Costly

Three errors sent Toho to defeat in the seventh inning. Yoshida grounded to second but gained life on a peg too low to first. He went to second on Taki's sacrifice. Second Baseman Noguchi, a younger brother of the pitcher, was safe on the third baseman's failure to handle his hopper, and Yoshida advanced to third. Noguchi then stole second. The squeeze was called with Munemiya at bat. Yoshida checked in for what proved to be the winning run. Pitcher Hisano too mishandled the bunt and Munemiya reached first. Tomita filed out to right. Yokochi walked to fill the bags for further opportunity of scoring but Harada grounded to second to force out Yokochi at the keystone sack.

Toho never lost fight but Pitcher Noguchi had just too much stuff for them. Nagao was the only man to reach first, and this on a walk in the last two innings.

Pitcher Hisano made one of the two Toho hits when he came through with a Texas Leaguer to left to start the first half of the seventh inning. But he elected to steal second, a bit too anxious to break into the scoring column, and was thrown out by Backstop Taki of Chukyo. The only other Toho hit was an infield hit by Matsumoto in the fourth which caused no damage.

Ishii Doubles

Chukyo's lone hit was a double over the right fielder's head by Ishii in the fourth after two outs. He was left stranded when Yoshida grounded out to second.

The game was played in the fast time of one hour 46 minutes—fast for a middle school tilt.

Numerous trophies and pennants were presented to the Chukyo team immediately after the siren had announced the close of the game.

$125,000 In Purse For Trotting Races

GOSHEN, N. Y.—(INS)—Eleven days of trotting races for more than $125,000 in purses at the mile and half-mile tracks here are carded for July and August, according to race programs just released by Al Saunders, secretary for both Grand Circuit meetings.

Entries close March 17 for the first 1938 speed session, July 12-16, at E. R. Harriman's Historic half-mile track, while entries for the six day meet, August 8-13, at W. H. Cane's Good Time Park close March 14.

The Historic track presents two stakes which already have closed, in the Village Farm three-year-old pacing stake and its companion two-year-old pace, each worth $5,000. The traditional Harriman Cup will be raced for juvenile trotters; while the Historic Stake, for three-year-olds, will again be a full dress rehearsal to the Hambletonian Stake, scheduled for August 10, at Good Times Park.

Interest in the early Goshen card at Historic track has been growing rapidly since Harriman's plant joined the Grand Circuit several years ago. The racing strip is one of the fastest in the country, as Greyhound proved last summer in chalking up a new world mark.

All of the old-time favorites surrounding the Hambletonian will be seen August 8-13 at Good Time Park, with the Trotting Derby, worth $4,000, for all aged trotters, a new event this year. The two other leaders in interest are the Progressive purse for trotters, at $4,500; and the fast Goshen purse for pacers, at $3,600.

Saunders reports that entries are already pouring in for the two Goshen race meetings, with the advance sale on the Hambletonian, five months away, larger than ever before.

'Links' Misused

LONDON.—The word "links" is misused in America by writers when referring to inland golf courses. According to the British, nothing is a links except those holes laid out by the seashore. Links-land means rolling sand dunes formation on the Coast. British championships are held on linksland which is considered the proper sort of country over which to play the game of golf. An inland club is a golf course.

To Take On London Soccer Team

Members of the All-Kanto soccer team which will play the Islington Corinthians eleven of London on Thursday at the Meiji Shrine stadium, snapped after its workout Monday.

All-Kanto Soccer Team To Meet Islington Corinthians Announced

Considered on the par of any national all-star eleven is the All-Kanto team that has been selected to meet the Islington Corinthians soccer squad of London at the Meiji Shrine stadium on Thursday.

The line-up follows:

Kamo (Waseda), Kamo (older brother—Waseda graduate), Ninomiya (Keio), Harima (Keio) and Shiozaki (Keio), forwards; Kin (W.M.W.), Tanada (Tokyo Imperial graduate) and Mori (Tokyo Imperial graduate), halfbacks; Ukon (Keio graduate), substitute halfback; Kikuchi (Tokyo Imperial) and Yoshida (Waseda), fullbacks; and Tsuda (Keio), goalie.

The team is going through daily workouts at the Meiji Shrine stadium, determined to make a good showing against the London eleven that has made an enviable record so far on its round the world tour despite handicap of continuous traveling. In 65 games engaged since its departure, the team has won 50 games, tied in nine and lost six.

The Corinthians took on the All-Shanghai eleven on Sunday at Shanghai and were beaten by three goals to nil, the entire scoring taking place in the first half.

Princeton Beats Harvard By 37-20

N.Y. Times

PRINCETON, N. J., March 5.—Princeton basketball team overwhelmed Harvard, 37—20 in the university gymnasium tonight for Nassau's third Eastern Intercollegiate League victory of the week. The triumph gave the Tigers a record of four circuit triumphs and six losses.

Hobler made the first goal in 1 minute. Struck and Lupien erased Princeton's lead with a goal and a foul, respectively, but Hobler came back with a lay-up shot and a foul that ran the count to 5—3 for Nassau. Struck sank a loose ball to make the score 5—5.

Princeton came back strong. An overhand shot by Meyerholz as he fell, a toss by Vruwink and a set shot by Appel from the corner made the Orange and Black's score 13. Lowman drew the Cantabs up to 13—8 on a foul and a set shot.

From here on the Tiger machine gained momentum. Vruwink added a goal and Meyerholz sank a long set. Herrick slipped in a Crimson basket on a well-executed follow, leaving the count 17—11 against Harvard.

The last minute of the half saw Vruwink strike twice for Princeton on a close set and foul. The Tigers retired with a 20-11 lead, their largest half-way advantage of their season.

Tigers Stage Spurt

Princeton continued to walk away from the Crimson as the second period opened. Vruwink on a foul, Meyerholz with an overhead shot, Hobler, and Vruwink again, stretched the lead to 27—11 before three minutes had passed.

With Litman and Herrick leading, Harvard cut the margin to 27—16 with two goals and a foul. Scofield came back to convert a rebound and Lloyd capped the Nassau drive with a long shot and two fouls, making the score 32—16 with six minutes to go.

Joe Zelly rang up 10 points to pace the Yale freshmen to a 33—28 victory over the Tiger Cubs in a preliminary contest.

Ohio State Victor In Big Ten Swim

WINNETKA, Ill., March 12—By winning five first places and scoring heavily in the remaining four events, Ohio State won the Big Ten swimming championship for the first time in history in the new Trier High School pool tonight.

The Buckeyes amassed 62 points to defeat Michigan, the defending champion, which placed second with 54 points. Iowa trailed in third place with 20 points and the other teams finished as follows: Northwestern, fourth, 12 points; Minnesota, fifth, 11 points; Illinois, sixth, 7 points; Wisconsin, seventh, 6 points.

Three teams, Chicago, Purdue and Indiana, failed to score.

Three records fell during the two-day meet. Captain Ed Kirar of Michigan not only successfully defended his two championships in the 50 and 100 yard freestyle events, but set new records in both. He set a new mark of 0:23.3 in the 50 in the preliminary trials Friday night and tonight he established a new mark of 0:52.8 in the century, knocking one-tenth of a second off the old record set by Charles Elachman of Illinois in 1935.

Ohio State's 400-yard relay team broke the conference record for the event by negotiating the distance in 3:35.1, bettering the old mark of 3:35.6 made by Michigan last year.

The Summaries

300-Yard Medley Relay—Won by Ohio State (Neunzig, McKee, Quayle); second, Iowa; third, Minnesota; fourth, Michigan; fifth, Wisconsin. Time—3:01.7.

Kono Is Relieved Of Councilor Post In J.A.T.F.F.

Ichiro Kono, Seiyukai member of the House of Representatives, who created a stir in sports circles last year through initiation of a movement to abandon the 12th Olympic Games and in the recent Diet session raised the question again to cause sensation abroad, was on Sunday relieved of his post as councilor of the Japan Amateur Track and Field Federation at a general meeting of its directors, it was revealed Monday night.

The action was taken by the Federation because of failure on the part of Mr. Kono to resign on his own initiative. His opposition to the organization of the 12th Olympic Games in Tokyo was interpreted as being incompatible with the aims of the Federation, hence the decision to oust him from the post of councilor. Mr. Kono is to be notified by letter.

The Federation, however, will not raise any issue about Mr. Kono's post as president of the Kanagawa Track and Field Association.

In connection with the Japan, Italy and Germany tri-nation track and field meet which the Federation is attempting to stage this year, tentative plans are to invite 15 or 16 men athletes from Germany and 10 women athletes from Italy, it was revealed. The latter will be unable to send a men team because of a previous contract to compete in Paris this Summer.

Canada Legalizes Open Badminton

QUEBEC, March 8—Open tournaments for professionals and amateurs have been legalized by the Canadian Badminton Association in a decision to give consideration to an application for such a tournament."

Meeting in closed session the association executive yielded to pressure exerted principally by Ontario and Manitoba branches and decided applications would be considered "subject to satisfactory regulations."

Known to favor mingling of Badminton's amateurs and pros, the association president, W. N. Keenan, said the plan had been approved in principle, but would not comment on what might be the regulations under which open tournaments would be allowed. A committee has been drawn up to prepare conditions, headed by the scheme's chief proponent, Dr. Ray Cramer, of Guelph, who is president of the Ontario Badminton Association.

Brundage Is In For Much Protest On Games' Shift

Domei Tsushin

NEW YORK, April 3—When he returns to the United States next week after attending the International Olympic Committee meeting at Cairo, Avery Brundage, chairman of the American Olympic Committee, will face a storm of protest by various athletic organizations against his "tactical defeat" with regard to the date of the 1940 Tokyo Games, it was learned here today.

A number of collegiate groups, including the National Amateur Athletic Association at Chicago, it is understood, are seriously worried for fear that the one-month postponement of the Games will interfere with the participation of American student athletes, and they intend to direct harsh criticism against Mr. Brundage for surrendering to the proposal at Cairo.

Some of these bodies, it is learned, interpret the shift of dates as an intrigue designed to squeeze their influence from the Tokyo Games, while certain opponents of Mr. Brundage also feel dissatisfaction at the attitude taken by the Japanese delegates to Cairo, who supported the move to defer the Games.

Ichiro Sawada, Japanese Amateur Athletic Association representative here, is reportedly anxious to have the misunderstanding cleared up by Matsuzo Nagai, Tokyo delegate to the Cairo meeting, who is scheduled to arrive here on April 12. Since the latter, however, plans to sail from Seattle on April 16, it is feared that there will be no time.

Mr. Brundage will arrive two days after the Japanese delegate aboard the Italian liner Rex.

College Mat Title Annexed By Lehigh

N.Y. Times

ITHACA, N. Y., March 12—Lehigh dethroned Penn State as Eastern intercollegiate wrestling champion tonight by winning three individual titles in the annual tournament and winding up with the team crown by the narrow margin of two points over Princeton's favored forces. The Tigers also captured three individual championships.

The points the Engineers gained in the grappling for second and third places proved enough to give them the crown Penn State had held for the past two years. Elliott Small, taking third place in the 175-pound competition by throwing Lenox Muldoon of Columbia, gave Lehigh the margin by which it finished on top.

Small's victory gave the Engineers a total of 25 points for the two-day tournament. Princeton finished with 23 after the Tiger Captain, Morris Emory, failed to come through for third place among the 165-pounders.

Yale, although shut out of the individual laurels, wound up in third place in the final team standings, with 18 points, largely through victory in four second-place matches. Penn State finished fourth with 11 points, trailed by Cornell with 8, Pennsylvania 4, Syracuse 3 and Harvard 2. Columbia, the other college in the competition, failed to score a point.

Harkness Leading Wrestler

Harkness, Harvard light heavyweight, who won the 175-pound crown by dethroning Defending Champion Ross Shaffer of Penn State for the tournament's biggest upset, was judged the outstanding wrestler of the competition by the four referees.

Through Harkness' victory, Harvard was enabled to wind up the competition with a "plus" point score. The Crimson started the tournament with a "minus 5" total because of a default.

Lehigh's title winners were lightweight Harold Masem, welterweight Ed Hagerman and 165-pound Curtis Ford. For Princeton Dick Harding, 118-pound champion a year ago, won this year's 126-pound crown, Charles Powers retained the middleweight laurels and Charles Toll came through with an upset victory in the heavyweight ranks.

Bob Mathers, Cornell's sophomore 118-pounder, and Harvard's John Harkness, light-heavyweight, were the other winners.

Mathers, climaxing an undefeated season, gained the decision over France Burnett, Lehigh, in the final bout of their division.

Toll made short work of Myron Sterngold of Lehigh in winning the unlimited title. Toll, who finished second in the division last year, threw the Lehigh heavyweight in three minutes flat.

THE SUMMARIES

Championship Bouts

118-Pound Class—Mathers, Cornell, defeated Burnett, Lehigh (overtime).

126-Pound Class—Harding, Princeton, threw Craighead, Penn State, with hook, scissors and nelson hold. Time—3:07.

135-Pound Class—Masem, Lehigh, defeated Reynolds, Penn State.

145-Pound Class—Hagerman, Lehigh, defeated Gerber, Yale.

155-Pound Class—Powers, Princeton, defeated James Bird, Yale. (Powers retained title).

165-Pound Class—Ford, Lehigh, defeated Woodland, Yale.

175-Pound Class—Harkness, Harvard, defeated Shaffer, Penn State.

Heavyweight Class—Toll, Princeton, threw Sterngold, Lehigh, with a body lock. Time—3:00.

Fred C. Clarke and George Sisler are other members of the 3-man board. The board has jurisdiction over the National Association of Semi-Pro Leagues and its tournaments, including the national series here Aug. 12-24.

Southwest Has Star

ALBUQUERQUE, N. Mex.—A record round of 74 on the course of the Albuquerque C. C. by Miss Elinor Jones, 18 year old student at the U. S. Indian School, has drawn attention to the remarkable position this young woman has gained as the outstanding golf star of her section. In 1935 she won the medal and the state amateur championship at Roswell. She repeated as medal winner and champion in 1936 at Albuquerque, and in 1937 at Las Cruces. Her medal winning totals were 84-82-80. She won a driving contest, averaging 232 yards.

Keio Nine Beats Kansai 'U', 7-6 Over 11 Innings

In a wild and wooly game that required two extra frames, Keio, member of the so-called Tokyo "Big Six" baseball league, nosed out the Kansai University nine 7 to 6 Tuesday afternoon at the Meiji Shrine stadium.

Backstop Sakurai paved the way for Keio's winning run in the last half of the 11th by working Okayama, who had left the mound in the eighth but returned in the ninth, for a walk. Otsuki was promptly sent in to run for him. Nakada laid down a bunt to advance Otsuki to second, and then came Odate's timely hit, his third for the day, to bat in Otsuki.

Kansai Loses Chance

Kansai might have won the ball game right in the first inning when it loaded the bags without a man out, but failed to score. Okamoto, as leadoff man, singled through between third and short. Terabatake walked and Obana's bunt rolled into an infield hit. But the next three men grounded out in the infield.

Third Baseman Uno and Shortstop Odate were the hitting stars for Keio, each grabbing three hits. Miyazaki and Nakada made the other two hits for the team.

Okamoto twirled a fine game for Kansai during the first six innings, allowing but two hits, though each, by Uno and Odate, brought in runs, one in the first inning and the other in the fifth. He weakened in the seventh, however, when three walks and two hits chalked up four runs for Keio.

Scoring a run each in the sixth and seventh innings, Kansai took advantage of Keio's poor play afield and registered four runs in the ninth to deadlock the score at 6-all. Tsutsui and Koyeshita smashed Takagi for consecutive hits and the latter was sent to the showers. Southpaw Nakada took over the mound duty. Ohashi greeted him with a hit and in came the first run. Yamazaki walked and on Terabatake's grounder to third, Ohashi scored. Second Baseman Miyazaki pegged wild to first in an attempt for a double killing and Yamazaki also tallied. On top of this, Nakada uncorked a wild pitch and Terabatake trotted home for the tying run.

'Whizzer' White Named Guard Post On All-Star Five

BOULDER, Colo., March 8—That Whizzer man's here again.

Another honor caught up today with Byron (Whizzer) White, Colorado's all-America football back and Rhodes Scholar, and found him apparently more determined than ever not to play professional football, despite that $15,000 offer from the Pittsburgh Pirates.

White climaxed four years of play on the Colorado basketball team by being named a guard on the Associated Press all-star team for the Mountain States Big Seven Conference.

It pleased him, but it developed he has a problem—

Friends disclosed the Whizzer "would like to find a job this Summer—I don't care what it is, just as long as it pays $100 a month, or a little more, so I can save up some money."

White was reluctant to talk about it. But he explained he needs additional funds if he goes to Oxford in the Fall. Friends said this convinced them he plans to use his Rhodes Scholarship, even though the Pittsburgh management said it would give him "all the time he wants" to think about its offer.

"Can you imagine that?" said one university official. "Here he has a chance to get $15,000 in one year, yet he's looking around for a $100-a-month job."

Asked what he intends doing about the proffered contract, the blond athlete said, "I'm really too busy now with basketball and other things to give much thought to it. I'll have to give it some study later on."

Conference coaches and sports writers who helped pick the Associated Press all-star team said it was chiefly White's all-around play which gave Colorado a tie with Utah for the championship.

Harvard Defeats Yale Mermen To Retain Title

By JOSEPH C. NICHOLS

N.Y. Times

NEW HAVEN, Conn., March 12—Harvard's swimming team downed Yale for the second year in a row when the Cantabs registered a 46-to-29 triumph over the Bulldogs tonight. While a capacity crowd of 2,800 fans looked on in the Payne Whitney Gymnasium pool, Harvard's swimmers captured eight of nine first places to record a decisive triumph.

As a result, the Crimson retained the Eastern Intercollegiate League title. They finished the circuit season with six straight triumphs, against five victories for Princeton's runner-up team and four for Yale in third place.

Charles Hutter, captain of the Harvard forces and holder of the national 220-yard freestyle championship, shared honors with his teammate William Kendall, each taking two first places.

First Triumph in 50

Hutter's first triumph was scored in the 50-yard free style, a thrilling race in which he outdistanced Eric Peryman of the Elis by less than a foot. The Crimson captain took this slight lead at the gun and held it tenaciously. His time was 0:23.3. Third place went to Don Barker of Harvard.

Recording his second triumph in the 100-yard free style, Hutter came through in another close finish. John Good of Yale pressed him all the way, and was only about a yard behind at the finish. Hutter's time was 0:53.

Kendall's victories also were scored in free style competition. He finished ahead of John Macionis and Russell Duncan of Yale in the 220-yard fixture, in which his figures were 2:11.2. In the 440-yard test, Kendall defeated L. Peter Brueckel of Yale by a close margin in 5:05.4, with Fred Coleman of Harvard third.

Dan Endweiss brought Yale its sole first place. He displayed splendid form in the fancy dive, which was unusually hard fought. Endweiss rolled up the magnificent score of 121.95 points and yet he was extended to win, since his team-mate, William H. Danforth, was runner-up with 116.4. E. Russell Greenhood of Harvard was third with 114.42.

Anchor on Winning Relay

In addition to racing so brilliantly in the freestyle sprints, Hutter swam anchor on the 400-yard relay team. He managed to preserve a sizable margin over Good.

Harvard built up a formidable lead as soon as hostilities began. The Cantabs, with Graham Cummin, Dario Berizzi and Donald McKay swimming against John Brueckel, Newton I. Steers Jr., and Arthur Burrows, easily took the opening event, the 300-yard medley relay, in 3:00.2.

Berizzi accounted for an easy victory in the 200-yard breaststroke. He negotiated the distance in 2:29.5, and finished well ahead of Stanley Livingston and Le Baron Anthany, both of Yale. In the 150-yard backstroke, Cudmin triumphed in 1:37.3, Burns and John Bruckel capturing second and third places for the Elis.

The Summaries

300-Yard Medley Relay—Won by Harvard (Graham Cummin, Dario Berizzi, Donald McKay); second, Yale (John Brueckel, Newton I. Steers Jr., Arthur Iarrow). Time—3:00.2.

220-Yard Free Style—Won by William Kendall, Harvard; second, John Maconis, Yale; third, Russell Duncan Jr., Yale. Time—2:11.2.

50-Yard Free Style—Won by Charles G. Hutter Jr., Harvard; second, Eric Perryman, Yale; third, Donald Barker, Harvard. Time—0:23.3.

Fancy Dive—Won by Daniel Endweiss, Yale, 121.95 points; second, Wm. H. Danforth, Yale, 116.40; third, E. Russell Greenhood, Harvard, 114.42.

100-Yard Free Style—Won by Charles G. Hutter Jr., Harvard; second, William Monan, Yale; third, Henry Curwen, Harvard. Time—0:53.

200-Yard Breaststroke—Won by Dario Berizzi, Harvard; second, Stanley Livingston, Yale; third, Le Baron Anthony, Yale. Time—2:29.5.

150-Yard Backstroke—Won by Graham Cummin, Harvard; second, Burns, Yale; third, John Brueckel, Yale. Time—1:37.3.

440-Yard Freestyle—Won by Harvard (McKay, Curwen, Harley, Stowell, Hutter); second, Yale, Perryman, Duncan, Moonan, Good) Time—3:36.2.

O.O.C. Will Present Trophy To Corinthians Before Game, Thursday

A souvenir trophy will be presented by the Tokyo Olympic Organizing Committee to the Islington Corinthians soccer team of London which is expected in Tokyo Thursday. The presentation will be made by Prince Iyesato Tokugawa, chairman of the O. O. C., just prior to the start of the British eleven's game with the All-Kanto team at the Meiji Shrine stadium at 2 p.m. Thursday.

The Corinthians who are arriving at Kobe this afternoon aboard the Empress of Japan will reach Tokyo by the 8 a.m. train Thursday. After a rest at the Marunouchi Hotel, they will take on the All-Kanto team.

At 6 p.m., they will be guests at a dinner at the Koraku Restaurant at Akasaka, given by the Japan Soccer Association. Then after doing the sights in Tokyo, they will resume their globe girdling trip at midnight from Yokohama aboard the Empress of Japan.

Keio Tops Kansai Fencers At Kobe

Special To The Japan Times

KOBE, April 4—The Keio University fencing team whipped the Kansai University in the first of their annual competition by 11 to 5, at the local Y.M.C.A. today.

Incidentally, the match was the first fencing game seen in Kobe.

The annual Hyogo Inter-Club Basketball tournament began tonight at 8 at the local Y. M. C. A. court, with the strong K.R. & A.C. team meeting the much weaker A.A.C. (Alumni Athletic Club), and the Kobe Kosho Clubs fighting cagesmen, predicted as a possible winner, playing the Kusunoki Club quintet. The K.C.S.C. team drew a bye this week, and will play the winner of the K.R.A.C., A.A.C. match.

The tournament has been recommended by the Hyogo Prefecture to promote physical culture.

Popular for three years as captain of the basketball team of the K. R. & A. C., William Brown will leave here for Indo-China on April 8. He also an important participant in other sports.

He is a graduate of Colgate University, and while there, he was a star at track and field, and a basketball player as well as a gridiron hero.

A farewell party was given in his honor at the K. R. & A. C. on Monday evening.

Takeo Kunishige, football star at Meiji University, is at present visiting his friends in the Kansai. He is leaving for Tokyo on April 7, and on the 11th he is sailing for his home in California on board the N.Y.K. liner Chichibu Maru. But he will be back in Japan shortly to complete his school course at Meiji.

Hagen, Kirkwood Arriving Apr. 21

Walter Hagen, one of the world's greatest professional golfers, and Joe Kirkwood, who has no equal in trick golf shots, will arrive in Japan on April 21 and may possibly be seen in an exhibition here.

Word to this effect was brought back Tuesday by Chin Sei-sui, pro at the Musashino Club, who returned after a golfing tour in the Malay States after competing in the All-Philippines open golf tournament last January.

Chin met Hagen and Kirkwood at Singapore. The two had left the United States in February for an exhibition tour around the world. Chin did not take them on at Singapore but they promised to tee off in a match in Tokyo.

Chin gave golfing lessons at Java and Singapore. At the former place are as many as 55 Japanese golfers while at Singapore, there are 120 to show the popularity of the sport, he said.

Yale Mermen Top Dartmouth By 46-29 Score

N.Y. Times

NEW HAVEN, Conn., Feb. 25—A new Yale record was created by Eli mermen in the 300-yard medley race as the home team defeated Dartmouth, 46-29, in an Eastern Intercollegiate Swimming League meet today. Joe Burns, Newton Steers and Johnny Good finished in 3:02.2 to clip the former mark of 3:02.6 recently created by Burns, Steers and Johnny Macionis.

The victory of Eric Perryman in the 50-yard free-style also was a feature. Ed White took the breaststroke, and Art Ostrunder the 440 free-style for the visitors.

Burns led the individual scorers by winning the back-stroke race and competing with the winning medley relay team. Ostrander who also was third in the 220 free-style, was a close second in scoring.

Although Yale finished first in the 400-yard relay, Dartmouth was given the decision, because Duncan, third Eli starter, jumped the gun.

The Eli wrestlers returned to winning form in a night match, defeating Columbia, 18-8. But one fall was scored, that being credited to Captain Bob Taylor of Columbia, when Captain George Woodland threw himself with a body press. Tom Clarke, Yale's 175-pounder, furnished a surprise by defeating Joe Bartolf.

Yale also scored a notable victory at squash racquets, gaining an 8-1 triumph over Princeton. The captains' battle between George Cookman of the Blue and Bernie Ridder went to Ridder in four games.

The No. 4 match between Stillman of Yale and Richard went the full five sessions and the No. 6 contest between Touchey and Baker was decided in Touhey's favor after five hard games.

Noguchi Named Most Valuable Player In Series

Jiro Noguchi, who pitched the Chukyo Commercial School team of Nagoya, to the championship of the 15th annual middle school baseball tournament sponsored by the Osaka Mainichi and the Tokyo Nichi Nichi which ended Monday at the Koshien stadium, near Osaka, has been voted the most valuable player among the 20 competing teams in 21 games.

Announcement of the selection of 25 outstanding players and of 13 worthy of medals for "fine play" was made by the sponsors' committee Tuesday after a two-day deliberation.

It was but natural that Pitcher Noguchi of Chukyo should have won the award. In the four games he pitched, he yielded but four hits and allowed nary a run. It was a no-hit no-run affair against the Kaiso Middle School. His other victims were the Bofu, Kainan and Toho squads.

There are those of the opinion that Noguchi possesses too much stuff for the caliber of the middle school players in the country today.

$39,000 Contract Signed By Gehrig; Yanks Top Cards

By JAMES P. DAWSON

N.Y. Times

ST. PETERSBURG, Fla., March 12—With undisguised relief, Manager Joe McCarthy this morning announced the signing of Lou Gehrig to a contract for $39,000, a figure which makes him one of the highest priced players in baseball history.

Then, to round out a perfect day, the Yankee skipper directed his champions in an uphill victory over the St. Louis Cardinals in the opening game of the Grapefruit League's "world series" before a distinguished gathering which shattered attendance records at Waterfront Park. The score was 6 to 4.

The signing of Gehrig was accomplished this morning, according to word from Business Manager Ed Barrow, who phoned McCarthy from New York before the ink was dry on the document which will bring Battering Lou, in his sixteenth season as a Yankee, the highest salary he has ever collected.

Traveling With Ruppert

Gehrig will arrive here Monday evening. He is making the trip South with Colonel Jake Ruppert, Yankee owner, who stuck to his determination not to give his first baseman the $41,400 Lou originally demanded when he rejected a renewal of last year's $36,000. The $39,000 for which Gehrig signed was declined by the player when it was first offered several days ago. Babe Ruth is believed to be the only man to outdraw Gehrig in salary.

The Yankee veteran first baseman, it is estimated, has collected more than $300,000 in salary, bonus and world series money since he joined the club back in 1923. Lou this year looks forward to continuing his unique record of uninterrupted play in championship games. He has played in 1,965 contests consecutively. He will arrive in camp in time to engage in a practice workout on Tuesday before the Yanks resume their exhibition games on Wednesday. Gehrig missed the opening of the exhibition schedule today for the second straight year as a holdout.

Ex-Governor Alf Landon of Kansas, defeated Presidential candidate of 1936, was the most conspicuous figure in a crowd of 6,948 who viewed the conflict between the Yanks and Cards. The gathering shattered the three-year-old record attendance mark of 6,842 at Waterfront Park.

Baseball Notables Attend

Judge Landis headed a list of baseball notables which included President Ford C. Frick of the National League and former President John A. Heydler; President Will Harridge of the American League, Leslie O'Connor, secretary to Judge Landis; Henry P. Edwards and Bill Brandt, public relations counsels of the American and National Leagues, respectively; Judge William G. Bramham, head of the minor leagues; George Trautman, president of the American Association, and Sam Breadon, president of the Cardinals.

As if to lend added significance to the occasion, three umpires were assigned to work the game.

Olympic Institute Founded At Berlin

Domei Tsushin

BERLIN, April 4—The International Olympic Institute, a body following a suggestion made by Baron Pierre de Coubertin, founder of the modern Olympic Games, was today formally inaugurated by Dr. Wilhelm Frick, Reichminister of Interior, at the Reich Sports Field here.

Dr. Hans von Tschammer und Osten, Reich Sports Leader, was named president of the new institute and Dr. Carl Diem, former secretary general of the Eleventh Olympic Games held here last summer, its managing director.

The new body, it is understood, will aim at promoting the Olympic spirit through conducting exchanges of views with representatives of sporting circles in various countries all over the world.

The Institute will also create an Olympic archive to which everybody may apply for information and will start collection of articles of Olympic art. It was announced that the body will issue a quarterly called the Olympic Revue, reviving the spirit of the Revue Olympique founded by Baron de Coubertin.

Palace of Depression

What, in many ways, is the strangest building in this country, lifts its fantastic towers from a boggy piece of ground in Vineland, New Jersey. Its builder—George Daynor—fashioned the structure from a great variety of odds and ends and named it the "Palace of Depression," because it kept him busy and happy during three lean years when he couldn't seem to find a place for himself in the jumbled economic scheme. Daynor claims to have had divine guidance in the selection of site and the plans for the house. He had no tools and no materials except from dumping grounds, and not a cent of money. Old auto fenders became arches over doors; bedsteads were used as gates; wood, stones, and pieces of metal went into the walls, and brick dust mixed with sand and old oil made excellent weather-proof plaster. It is now a very livable home, and one of the "places to see" in Vineland.

Cochrane Hangs Up His Catcher's Mitt For Good And All

MIAMI BEACH, Fla., Feb. 17—Manager Mickey Cochrane of the Detroit Baseball Club announced yesterday he was hanging up his big mitt for good after 13 years as a major league catcher. At the same time he predicted the Tigers would knock off the Yankees "if we get the pitching."

Cochrane's playing career actually ended last May 18 when he was hit by a fast ball pitched by Bump Hadley of the New York Yankees.

"I'm all through," Mickey said. "I won't even get in there as a pinch hitter any more. I probably have some catching left in me, but I feel I could not do justice to two jobs—managing and playing.

"I've had a lot of fun as a ballplayer and I'm sorry it's all over." As for the Yankees:

"Somebody's going to knock them down eventually," Cochrane said, "and it may as well be us. We're in swell shape to do the job, if we get the pitching."

And what about the Tiger pitching?

"Say!" Cochrane grinned, "I've got 17 pitchers coming to camp at Lakeland and we ought to develop something out of the newcomers. I think Rowe may be all right this season. Then we've got Tommy Bridges and Eldon Auker as standbys. And Roxy Lawson—don't forget him. He just won 18 last season, and should be even better this year."

Mickey said Baron Poffenberger, who won 10 and lost 5 in his first year up from Beaumont, shaped up encouragingly, and another newcomer, Alton Benton, who won 16 last year for Memphis, "looks like the real goods."

"Then," he said, "we've got Vernon Kennedy, whom we received in a trade from the White Sox this Winter, who is a real pitcher. Yes, sir, it looks pretty good."

Cochrane said young Rudy York will fill his shoes as first-string catcher, with the Veteran Ray Hayworth in reserve.

Waseda Routs Kansai 'U' By 14-4 Score

Chalking up 16 hits on the scoreboard, including two triples and five doubles, Waseda's peppy baseball tossers wallopped Kansai University, 14 to 4, Wednesday afternoon at the Meiji Shrine stadium.

Only for four innings was there the semblance of a contest, with the visitors leading 4 to 3 at the end of the fourth by virtue of a four run rally in the same fourth, but after that it was a rout of Kansai with the Totsuka players hitting the offerings of two pitchers all over the lot.

Southpaw Kondo, who relieved Ishiguro on the mound at the outset of the fifth, checked the Kansai batsmen to one hit during the rest of the game.

Left Fielder Miyoshi and Right Fielder Nagata led the attack for Waseda with four and three hits respectively.

Pitcher Muneuchi of Kansai gave way to Okamoto in the seventh but Waseda pounced on him immediately for four runs, and then registered another in the ninth.

Harvard Conquers Yale Five, 57 To 42

N.Y. Times

CAMBRIDGE, Mass., March 12—The Harvard varsity basketball team ended its season in a blaze of glory tonight before a crowd of 2,000 with a smashing 57-to-42 victory over Yale in an Eastern Intercollegiate League game.

Arnold Litman, Crimson forward, playing his final game for the team, gave a splendid exhibition both offensively and defensively. He was high scorer, with 12 points. Lupien, Herrick and Struck also starred.

Yale played a tight defensive game at the start and the Crimson forwards were forced to resort to set shots. After ten minutes of play Norton, Yale guard, went out on four personal fouls.

Harvard led by 14-12 after twelve minutes, then its attack really began to function.

Litman, Herrick and Struck teamed up on some fine combination plays and the Eli defense wilted. At the intermission the Crimson forces enjoyed a 34-18 advantage.

Harvard continued its drive in the second half and when the victory seemed assured Coach Fesler sent his second and third string players into action.

Erickson was the outstanding performer for the losers. He played an exceptionally fine defensive game and led his side in scoring, with 10 points.

The victory enabled Harvard to tie Penn for second place in the final league standing.

In a preliminary game the Yale jayvees defeated the Harvard juniors, 43 to 39.

Dewagatake Competes In Tourney At Osaka; First Time In 5 Years

Dewagatake, largest of the longhaired professional wrestlers and who under the monicker of "Bunchan" is most popular with the children because of his clumsiness in the ring, is wrestling at the sumo tournament now going on at Osaka for the first time in five years. A sore back had him out of competition. His name is deep down in the rankings.

Up to the fifth day of the tourney Tuesday, he had won four bouts and lost but one but Wednesday, he was beaten by the up and coming Ominato. Thrown down in the middle of the ring, he nevertheless gave that big smile of his, and received the plaudits of the fans.

British Soccer Team Arrives

Members of the Islington Corinthians soccer team of London caught by the camera as they stepped ashore at Kobe from the Empress of Japan which arrived at 5 p.m. Wednesday. They reached Tokyo by train this morning and were to take on the All-Kanto squad at 2 p.m. today at the Meiji Shrine stadium. School teachers comprise the main of the team, but there are carpenters, moving picture technicians and band leaders as well. They sail for Honolulu at midnight from Yokohama.

Princeton Swimmers Beat Yale First Time In 14 Years, 38-37

N.Y. Times

PRINCETON, N. J., March 9.—For the first time in fourteen years, Princeton conquered Yale in swimming tonight, recording a breathtaking 38-to-37 victory. Thus Princeton finished its Eastern Intercollegiate League season with five victories in six meets and advanced from third to second place, passing the Elis.

The possibility still exists for a tie among all the Big Three teams for first place, if Yale can upset unbeaten Harvard in their closing meet on Saturday.

Old Nassau's Captain Jim Simpson scored a brilliant triumph over Pete Brueckel in the 220-yard free style and came back in the 440 to gain a second place behind Captain John Macionis of the Blue that insured the victory.

Coach Bob Kiphuth attempted to withhold Macionis from action, inasmuch as the Eli leader was reported suffering from grippe and tonsilitis. Macionis did not compete in the furlong, but he did annex the 440 in 5:06.9.

The all-conquering Nassau 300-yard medley trio of Al Vande Weghe, Dick Hough and Herb Moeller created a new league record of 2:56.7. This displaced the mark of 2:59.9 set by Harvard earlier in the Winter.

In the preliminary meet, the Princeton yearlings set a precedent for the varsity by defeating the Bulldog freshmen, 41 to 34. Captain Ned Parke set two new records and contributed to a third for the Tigers.

Winning the 220 in 2:18.2 for a freshman intercollegiate record, Parke set a second mark with an 0:55 victory in the century. Parke also swam the anchor leg of the 400-yard relay that Princeton won in the record time of 3:49.5.

SUMMARIES

300-Yard Medley—Won by Princeton (Alber Vande Weghe, back-stroke; Richard Hough, breast stroke; Herbert Moeller, free style); Yale (Joseph Burns, Newt Steers and Russ Duncan), second. Time—2:56.7 (new Eastern Intercollegiate League record; old record, 2:58.9, by Harvard, 1938).

220-Yard Free Style—Won by James Simpson, Princeton; Peter Brueckel, Yale, second; Ralph Binns, Princeton, third. Time—2:18.5.

50-Yard Free Style—Won by Eric Perryman, Yale; Henrick Van Oss, Princeton, second; William Shane, Princeton, third. Time—0:24.2.

Fancy Dive—Won by Harry Cranston, Princeton, 118.47 points; Daniel Endweiss, Yale, 117.63, second; William Danforth, Yale, 113.36, third.

100-Yard Free Style—Won by Von Oss, Princeton; John Good, Yale, second; Bill Moonan, Yale, third. Time—0:55.1.

150-Yard Back-Stroke—Won by Vande Weghe, Princeton; Joseph Burns, Yale, second; John Brueckel, Yale, third. Time—1:36.7.

200-Yard Breast-Stroke—Won by Richard Hough, Princeton; Stanley Livingston, Yale, second; Barry Anthony, Yale, third. Time—2:27.8.

440-Yard Free Style—Won by John Macionis, Yale; James Simpson, Princeton, second; Peter Brueckel, Yale, third. Time—5:06.9.

400-Yard Relay—Won by Yale (Kenner, Duncan, Moonan, J. Good); second, Princeton (Harper, Moeller, Van Oss, Vande Weghe). Time—3:40.2.

Kansas Coach Adds Another Title To List

Christian Science Monitor

LAWRENCE, Kan., March 11—The dean of basketball coaches in the United States, Dr. Forrest C. "Phog" Allen, of the University of Kansas, added his 22nd conference championship in 28 years of coaching to the record this season.

Dr. Allen, who has been in the coaching game since 1908, piloted an unimpressive group of candidates to 18 victories against 2 defeats this year. Kansas won its last nine games.

The Jayhawks started the season with only one two-letterman, five men who had lettered once and some untested sophomores. In their opening game the varsity barely nosed out the freshmen, 44 to 40.

At that, however, the Jayhawks looked better against the strong freshman team than they did in their next few games. Early in the season it was very evident that only one member of the team had enough ability to deserve the ranking of "star" and that was Fred Pralle twice an all-Big Six guard.

Fans were doubtful, however, that any one player could carry a team to a Big Six championship. Around Pralle Dr. Allen built a team which turned the trick. Even at the end of the season there was no set five, but instead three or four regulars with frequent substitutions at the other positions.

As the season progressed two sophomores, Dick Harp and Don Ebling, developed under Dr. Allen's hand to the point where predictions of greatness in the next two years were made for them.

Ebling's brother Ray was an all-America forward at K. U., graduating in 1936. Don is not as big as Ray, but is a better long-shot and floor-man. He is one of the hardest workers on the squad.

The greatest difficulty was finding a running mate for Ebling at forward and the men who alternated at this position included George Golay, Bruce Reid, Lyman Corlis, and Loren Florell. Golay was the best scorer, Reid the best passer and Corlis the best mixture.

Dr. Allen graduated from Independence (Mo.) High School and from the University of Kansas in 1907. He has been head basketball coach at Kansas since 1920.

Callow At Penn Has Difficulties Turning Out Crew

PHILADELPHIA,—(INS)—Russell S. Callow, in his twelve years of coaching rowing at Pennsylvania, has had many difficult problems to solve but the one that confronts him this year is perhaps the most trying of all.

The loss of the entire port side of last year's varsity eight and of one member of the starboard side, makes Callow's task a heavy one. Only three of the ten varsity oarsmen who received letters last year are available for this year's combination.

Frederick Ballard, Jr., number six; J. Hamilton Wilcox, number four, and W. Chattin Wetherill, Jr., stroke oar, are the only veterans who will don rowing togs when the Red and Blue starts its sixty-first season of rowing on the Schuylkill River.

Gordon Lee, a junior, who rowed number three on the varsity in the Childs and Adams Cup regattas, but who did not receive his varsity award, is expected to win a regular position this year.

Dick Marshall, Henry Callahan, George Eddy, Louis Krumboldt, Charles Wheadon, Ben Norton and Matthew McLoughlin, are junior varsity oarsmen of a season ago who are available for places on the varsity eight.

Of the large number of freshmen who rowed last year three are regarded as having varsity possibilities. They include James Burk, brother of Joe, former Pennsylvania oarsman and now National and Canadian single sculls champion; George Dahm, who rowed in a four oared shell in the 1936 Olympic games, and George W. Pepper, 3rd. The last named is a grandson of former United States Senator Pepper and the son of George Wharton Pepper, Jr., both of whom rowed at Pennsylvania as undergraduates.

More than two hundred candidates for the varsity, junior-varsity, 150 pound and freshman crews have been working out for the past six weeks on the indoor machines under the north stand of Franklin Field. With the exception of about a score who will need practice in the barge, the entire group will be boated in shells.

Chinese Athletes Want To Compete In 1940 Olympics

Chinese athletes in Central China are keen on competing in the 12th Olympic Games in Tokyo in 1940.

This message was brought to the Tokyo Olympic Organizing Committee Wednesday by Lai Ban-chee, who has been sent here by the Far Eastern Review magazine of Shanghai to inspect facilities in connection with the Games, according to the vernaculars today.

Members of the O. O. C. at the South Manchuria Railway Building were shocked and then greatly pleased by Mr. Lai's visit, according to the Yomiuri. This, because his arrivals is so soon after the establishment of the Renovation Government at Nanking, which according to present indications will be merged shortly into the Provisional Government of the Republic of China at Peking. It was considered as a gesture of goodwill from the Chinese newly awake to the organization of a new China based on cooperation with Japan.

It will be recalled that the Kuomintang Government has gone definitely on record to oppose participation in the 1940 Games in Tokyo. And at the recent meeting of the International Olympic Committee at Cairo, the Chinese delegate proposed that the Games be held elsewhere, but the proposal was turned down.

Mr. Lai, who said he would be in Tokyo for about a month, told the O.O.C. that he would make best efforts to have Chinese athletes from North, Central and South China represented in the 1940 Games under a new Chinese flag.

Little Hits High One

SAN FRANCISCO.—Lawson Little, honorary chairman of the Golf Committee for the 1939 Golden Gate International Exposition, recently was challenged to drive a ball over the Exposition's Tower of the Sun, then towering 248 feet in the air.

Little walked back some 75 yards from the tower, built a sand tee twelve inches high, and grabbed his driver. After a few shots to test windage in the stratosphere, he smacked two balls squarely over the slender steel structure—one of them went an estimated 52 feet above the topmost boom, or 300 feet above the ground.

Both balls hit the high wall of an exhibit palace, about 300 yards from the "tee."

Played Too Long, Lott Comments About His Tennis

Christian Science Monitor

George M. Lott, who quit amateur tennis a few years ago after winning universal recognition as one of the greatest doubles players of all time, today dubbed himself "the man who stayed to long."

Reminiscing about his years of tournament play, the former Chicagoan who now lives in suburban Boston, said he was "sorry" he hadn't quit "long ago."

"I played around much too long," said Lott. "I look around now and see the fellows against whom I broke in in tournaments all solidly established in banks and business, while I'm just getting around to my life work."

Lott, who won a total of five national doubles championships with three different partners, quit amateur ranks at the close of the 1934 season, and the pro ranks last year. He is writing for several tennis publications now while considering some business opportunities.

Traveling Ate Profits

"Oh, I made some money barnstorming but it wasn't enough," he said. "Traveling ate up most of the profits."

Who was the greatest partner he ever had in doubles?

"That's easy," he said. "I won the national once with John Hennessey, twice with John Doeg and twice with Lester Stoefen, as well as Wimbledon and Davis Cup finals with John Van Ryn, but the greatest partner was Doeg. He also was the game's greatest competitor. Besides a great service, he had courage and a great volley, and he always kept boring in."

And what kept Lott from becoming a truly great singles player?

Lacked a Backhand

"Lack of an attacking backhand," He said a bit wistfully. "If I were starting all over again, I'd just concentrate on the proper footwork for a backhand and play it with an eastern grip. In doubles I was able to cover up my weak backhand by going to the net and volleying, but in singles, fellows like Tilden and Cochet can keep you away from the net."

Lott predicted it would be "many years" before there was a national open tournament—for both amateurs and pros.

"Neither Vines nor Perry would play in one now," he said. "It would have to be played during the Summer, and there wouldn't be as much money in it for them as a Winter barnstorming tour. Vines and Perry are recognized as the world's greatest players already and neither would gain anything particularly by winning it. They'd have everything to lose and nothing to gain."

Football Starts At Kansas 'U'

Christian Science Monitor

LAWRENCE, Kan., March 8—Spring football is under way at the University of Kansas with a large group of enthusiastic gridders working out every afternoon. Special emphasis is being placed on Spring practice because of the Kansas opener this Fall with the University of Texas, which is one of the toughest games on the schedule.

The game with the Longhorns will be played at Lawrence Sept. 24, which will be only two weeks after practice starts next Fall. Consequently much preparation for that game must be made during the six weeks of Spring practice.

About 80 men checked out suits in the first two days and more are expected out with the end of the basketball season. The Jayhawk freshman team was outstanding and much work will be done this Spring in an effort to get the yearlings ready for varsity competition.

Dick Crayne of Iowa, new Jayhawk backfield coach, has arrived in Lawrence and has been at work since the start of practice. Crayne, who takes the place of Glenn Presnell, is proving very popular with the players and appears to be a very capable coach.

He was an all-Big Ten fullback at the University of Iowa in 1935 and played with the college all-stars against the professional league champions in Chicago the following August. The past two years Crayne has played professional football with the Brooklyn Dodgers. George "Potsy" Clark, former K. U. coach, moved over to Brooklyn last year after coaching the Detroit Lions to a national championship and Crayne served as the captain of "Potsy's" team at Brooklyn.

Jayhawk losses in the backfield were not bad, but the line was harder hit. Clarence Douglass, all-Big Six fullback, was the only senior in Kansas' starting backfield, but four of the seven Jayhawk linemen will not be back this Fall. They are Forrest Hardacre, end; Lewis Ward, tackle; George Stapleton, guard, and Charles Warren, center.

Coach Ad Lindsey is being assisted in Spring practice by Vrayne, Mike Getto, line coach, and Mano Stukey, assistant freshman coach. Getto has announced that he will not leave K.U. despite rumors to the contrary.

All-Kanto Team Outplays Islington Corinthians To Win At Soccer, 4 To 0

By LESLIE NAKASHIMA

The globe girdling Islington Corinthians soccerites of London were surprised more than anybody else at the Meiji Shrine stadium Thursday afternoon for the All-Kanto eleven outplayed them at their own game to win 4 goals to nil. Despite a drizzle that started shortly before noon, an enthusiastic crowd of more than 5,000 fans turned out to see the first major international sports event of the year.

True, the Britishers were handicapped from the after effects of travel by night train the previous day from Kobe, plus probable failure on the part of some of them to rid themselves of their sea-legs—they arrived at Kobe aboard the Empress of Japan late Wednesday afternoon from Shanghai—but that combination Thursday afternoon, with all respect to their individual skill in handling the ball, would have a mighty difficult time any day to trim the All-Kanto eleven. They lacked teamwork. They resorted to long range shooting. Their passing lacked coordination and was for the greater part of the afternoon at random. The left wing was especially a weak spot. Pearce tried gamely to take care of this position but he was unequal to the task. The Britishers apparently missed the absence of Martin, star fullback, who was unable to play because of injuries he received at Manila.

Japanese Faster

Speed was a big winning factor for the All-Kanto squad. Time and again, the Japanese players outran the Britishers to gain possession of the ball and then to storm the opponent's goal. But an even bigger contributory cause was their co-ordinated play. Their systematic short passing attack produced results. They kept pressing throughout the greater part of the game, especially in the second half, to wear out gradually the stamina of the visitors.

Ninomiya, center forward, and the Kamo brother, Takeshi at inside left and Shogo at left wing, comprised a trio that had the Britishers going all afternoon. Ninomiya and Takeshi Kamo did especially fine work in directing sallies into the opponent's zone. They handled the ball like real Scotch experts at the game. Shogo was the speediest man on the field.

The halfbacks and fullbacks too gave a good account of themselves. On the offense, they fed the ball effectively to their taem-mates. On the defense, they won the plaudits of the fans time and again with their brilliant play.

The All-Kanto goal was threatened only on a few occasions, but Goalie Tsuda put his team out of trouble without much effort. Goalie Longman of the Britishers came through with several nice saves.

The consensus of the Japanese sports writers was that the Japanese experts had nothing to learn from Thursday afternoon's play by the Corinthians.

Trophies Presented Visitors

Prior to the opening of the game at 2, a Japanese helmet was presented to the visitors as a souvenir by President Fukao of the Japan Amateur Soccer Association. Souvenir trophies were also presented by the Tokyo Olympic Organizing Committee and the Tokyo Asahi.

The game was a nip and tuck contest during the first half with the Corinthians doing some excellent work in defending their goal. After 12 minutes of play, the Kamo brothers worked the ball from midfield and passed to Ninomiya who booted it straight into the net. But the goal was disallowed because of an offside.

The All-Kanto team broke the ice in the scoring column after 40 minutes of play in the first half. Left Halfback Kin dribbled into Corinthians' territory and passed to Shogo Kamo. The latter kicked and Ninomiya bounced the ball off his head accurately into the goal from the 5 yard line.

The Japanese scored in two minutes after the halftime interval. Ninomiya received a pass from the backs and expertly dribbled through the Corinthians defense in midfield. Supporters of the British team in the bleachers groaned as Ninomiya sped down the ball unmolested. Then he passed to Shogo Kamo at left wing and the latter booted a beauty into the goal from the 20 yard line, from an angle slightly to the left.

Corinthians Miss Chance

Corinthians' only chance to score came in 10 minutes when they were awarded a penalty kick on the All-Kanto 10 yard line. Goalie Tsuda stationed himself right in front of Pearce, to the right side of the goal. Pearce booted a beeliner, but it headed straight for Tsuda and he stopped it with his hands for a sensational save.

A beautiful criss-cross pass from mid-field scored again for the Japanese in 13 minutes. Ninomiya passed to Shogo Kamo, who in turn fed it to his brother, who booted a beauty from the 20 yard line.

The Corinthians rallied for a time but the attack stopped when Captain Whittaker's shot went high over the goal.

At 25 minutes, the Corinthians had the opportunity to score with a corner kick but the ball lacked flight.

S. Kamo Scores

Play was almost on the verge of being one-sided during the last five minutes of the game. Here were the Japanese, outplaying the British at their own game. Their short snappy passing seemed functioning without any particular effort. Shogo Kamo scored the last goal of the game in 44 minutes from the left flank, booting it when Goalie Longman was unable to return to his position after sallying forth to check a score.

The Corinthians, while they were hopelessly behind during the last 15 minutes of the game, never gave up fighting. And for this, they made a fine impression.

The line-ups follow:

Fujikura Ranked No. 1 By Sao Paulo Net Body

Jiro Fujikura, former Davis Cupper of Japan, has been ranked No. 1 for 1937 in Sao Paulo, South America, according to a mail story received by Domei.

The Sao Paulo Lawn Tennis Association, during its recent deliberations, apparently took in account Fujikura's winning of the Sao Paulo championships last year in which the outstanding players of South America competed.

Fujikura has been working at Sao Paulo, following his graduation from Meiji University.

Cunningham Clips World Mile Mark; Defeated In 600

By ARTHUR J. DALEY

N.Y. Times

NEW YORK, March 13—The greatest runner of them all tried to complete an impossible double last night and found that it was precisely that—impossible. Amid the deafening din of a capacity crowd of 16,000 at the Knights of Columbus Games in Madison Square Garden, Glenn Cunningham chased Jim Herbert to a new world record in the Casey 600.

The cantering Kansan, out of his class as he himself had predicted, tried valiantly but vainly to capture the 600 just as he had won the Columbian Mile a scant hour before. Then he had carved out a magnificent 4:07.4 victory, a full second under his accepted world indoor record and an even three seconds behind his still unrecognized 4:04.4 of ten days ago.

But although Cunningham had the heart in the 600 he did not have the speed. Next to last at the getaway, he came churning up in the homestretch to third position, a yard in back of the fleet Herbert at the wire.

Ties Hornbostel's Figures

The Violet sophomore, a picture of grace and smoothness, snapped the thin red worsted in 1:11.1, with Howie Borck of Manhattan caught in 1:11.2 and Cunningham in 1:11.3. And since 1:11.3 happened to be Chuck Hornbostel's world record, the Jayhawk powerhouse had nothing to be ashamed of.

The transplanted Kansan was beaten, but not disgraced. In his first competitive effort at the 600-yard distance he equaled the universal figures—and lost. It was the start that beat him. The rest of the field broke away like sprinters from the mark.

Cunningham, using a standing start, was left standing as the rest of them catapulted down the track. Only Wesley Wallace was in back of him and Wallace had anchored a winning Fordham relay team ten minutes before. So the Ram sophomore quietly dropped out and left the party to the others.

With three laps to go the order was Herbert, Doug Raymond, Borck and Cunningham, a different Cunningham, one who had to work hard to stay in the going with none of his silken ease in sight.

Flashes Past Raymond

At the bell lap Borck moved into second place and half a lap further along Cunningham flashed past as sturdy a finisher as Raymond. But Glenn could not overhaul the other two despite his desperate efforts. The three leaders finished under a blanket, Herbert winning the first leg on the Cardinal Hayes Trophy, and Cunningham all the applause.

Glenn deserved it for a gallant job. For he had turned in a good night's work. His mile victory had been achieved as the result of a relentless piling on of the pace that made the Columbian Mile look like an Australian pursuit race.

Thus did the transplanted Kansan score his thirteenth straight victory of the season, turn in his tenth test under the once magical figures of 4:10, register his sixth successive triumph in this race and make off with his third Columbian Trophy.

Time Unexpected by Fans

The cheers of the crowd were ringing in his ears as he sped with his superlative grace and controlled power over the finish line a full thirty yards ahead of Gene Venzke. The spectators hardly had expected such time or such a performance.

They had been prepared for a lazy jaunt by the Old Master, one fashioned with one eye on his competitors of the moment and the other on his future rivals of the Casey 600. But they reckoned without Cunningham.

The mile is his distance and he apparently wanted to uncover such a dazzling performance that nothing much that happened later could dim his glory. After a 4:07.4 mile, what honors were to come to him afterward would be sheer profit.

Except for one lap, the cantering Kansan was in full command. He ran is own race just as he designed it. The first quarter was touched in 0:60.2, the second in 2:03.2 and the third in 3:06, a beautifully even pace according to Cunningham standards.

Bradley Home Third

Venzke was wallowing far behind in the early going, so swiftly did Cunningham travel. Archie San Romani pulled a muscle in less than a lap and that left Galloping Glenn with the race all to himself. Ernie Fedcroff stayed with him for a while, but paid for his eagerness later when he finished fourth, almost sixty yards in back of the red-jerseyed phantom, Pete Bradley just edging him out for third.

There have not been many miles faster than the one last night. They are Cunningham, 4:04.4 (indoors), Stanley Wooderson, 4:06.4; Cunningham, 4:06.7, and San Romani and Don Lash, 4:07.2 (same race). Thus this was the fifth fastest eight furlongs of all time.

What made Cunningham's feat last night even more amazing was that Galloping Glenn appeared to be under no strain as he whisked down the final straightaway before the pop-eyed gaze of the crowd. He was running easily, effortlessly and seemingly well within himself.

Streak Comes to End

The longest winning streak of the season came to a surprising close in the 60-yard dash when little Ben Johnson of Columbia, victor in twenty-four races—trials, semi-finals and finals—lost in his twenty-fifth, the last indoor test he had scheduled for the year.

Herbert Thompson of the New York Pioneer Club, a constant pursuer of the Columbia Comet through the campaign, scored an eyelash victory over his fellow-Negro in the final as the 60-yard record took quite a buffeting.

In the preliminaries Johnson, Thompson and Perrin Walker all had equaled the accepted figures of 6.2 seconds, with little Ben going that one better with 0:06.1 in his first trial, one-tenth under the recognized mark and also one-tenth behind his own unaccepted mark.

But in the final Johnson, while off to a good start, was unable to hold to his pace in the last burst down the boards. Thompson closed with a terrific rush and nailed him ten yards from the wire in 0:06.2 once again.

The 60-yard hurdles affair also had its share of records, but did not provide a surprise. In preliminaries Allan Tolmich and Sammy Allen each twice equaled the accepted world mark of 7.5 seconds. But in the final Tolmich won by a foot in 0:07.3, not only breaking the recognized mark but also the yet unaccepted figures of 0:07.4 that he jointly holds with Forrest Towns.

But to cap the climax and add a rather grotesque touch to the finest indoor hurdling exhibition of all time, one of the timers discovered to his amazement that his watch had failed. That meant that only two clocks caught the record flight, so that it can never get recognition.

Quite in keeping with the surprises this meet was unfolding, Norman Bright of the Olympic Club staged a major upset by vanquishing the hitherto invincible Don Lash in the Dunnigan two-mile run.

Content to lie back while the Hoosier Iron Man and Joe McCluskey were waging a dog-fight up ahead, the sandy-haired California jumped the Indiana ace a little more than a hundred yards from the tape. He caught him going around the penultimate turn.

Misses by a Foot

Then it was sprint for sprint the rest of the way. No faster finish ever has been seen for a distance race as the two finished like a couple of furlong runners in full flight. Lash came on in whirlwind fashion in the homestretch but missed by a foot as Bright was caught in 9:02.

Just to keep the records straight (or more confused), Lash was timed in 8:30.1 at 3,000 meters which is better than Joie Ray's accepted American native mark of 8:31.2, but a bit in back of San Romani's still unapproved figures of 8:27.4. Bright's two-mile time was the fastest of the year as he administered to the Hoosier his first setback at the distance all during the campaign.

Work On Olympic Cycling Stadium Will Start Soon

The construction of the Cycling Stadium in preparation for the XIIth Olympic Games Tokyo 1940 will be started this month at Shibaura by Tokyo City with an approximate budget of 600,000 yen. The proposed cycling stadium with a 500 meter track will surround a track and field ground with a 400 meter track, the general seating capacity of which is estimated at 10,000.

The cycling road race course is located on the Nakasendo Course (National Highway No. 9) in Saitama Prefecture. The details of the Cycling Stadium and the Road Race Course are as follows:—

Cycling Stadium

(a) Name:—Tokyo Municipal Shibaura Cycling Stadium.
(b) Address:—No. 9 Shibaura, Shiba-ku, Tokyo.
(c) Location:—
1. East faces Tokyo Bay, with plans to build a pier to facilitate water communications with Yokohama.
2. West faces the canal and Shinagawa Station.
3. North faces the arterial highway to the center of Tokyo City (Ginza).
4. South faces undeveloped land.
(d) Cycling Course:—
1. 500 meter track, width 9 meters including 1 meter neutral zone on the inner side.
2. Degree of angle of the track: Straightaway—1/15 degree. Curves—25 to 50 degrees.
3. Highest point on the curve from the ground is 5.40 meters.
4. Asphalt face.
5. The curves are 50 meter semi-circles.
6. A wooden barrier will be constructed surrounding the track.
7. Possible maximum speed on the course, 170 kilometers per hour. Average maximum speed on the course, 70 kilometers per hour.
(e) Field:—
1. On the inside of the Cycling Track there will be constructed a 400 meter Track and Field Course similar to that of the Berlin Stadium.
(f) Spectators Stands:—
1. A sloping turf stand of 5.40 meters high will surround the course and in accordance with the budget available a wooden stand will be erected. Seating capacity 10,000 persons
(g) Lighting:—
1. Flood lights will be installed to enable night cycling.
(h) Other equipment:—
1. A glass partitioned judges' stand will be erected at the finish line.
2. The exits and entrances will be located on both ends of the home stretch and connected with the officials stands by subways.
3. Electric score boards will be installed.
4. Six outlets for the water sprinkling system will be placed at various places on the outer side of the field.
5. Above the seats for the I.O.C., officials and press will be the flag pole. Provisions will also be made for athletes, bathing facilities, medical needs as well as repair and storage rooms.
(i) Estimated Cost:—
1. 600,000 yen.
(j) Transportation Facilities:—
1. Ten minutes by bus from Tamachi or Electric Railway from Shinagawa or by auto to Ginza.

Road Race Course

(a) Name:—Saitama Prefecture, Nakasendo Course. (National Highway No. 9).
(b) Location:—From the north-east edge of Tokyo suburbs extending to Jimbohara.
(c) Road Race Course:—
Distance:
One way 75 kilometers.
Round trip 150 kilometers
Width:—6 to 12 meters.
Surface:—Asphalt pavement.
Inclination:—Practically level.
Start and Finish:—Starting point at the Olympic Rowing Course at Todabashi; turning point at Jimbohara and returning by the same route to the finish line at Todabashi.
Turning Point:—A banked turn with a 50 meters radius will be constructed.
Additional Features:—
(1) At every 50 kilometers on the course there will be medical, refreshment and repair stations.
(2) At the starting point and turning point of the course there will be installed loud speakers connected by telephone.
Traffic Regulations:—
(1) The traffic police department of the Saitama Prefectural Office have assured that all traffic, on the day of the race, other than the Olympic Contests will be prohibited.
Distance to Road Race Course:—
(1) Twenty-five minutes by auto from the center of the city to the start line.
(2) Motor buses will be available from the city to the course.
Extra features in planning:—
(1) At present there are two points where there are railroad crossings, it is planned by the Home Ministry, in cooperation with the Saitama Prefecture, to make bridges over the crossing or to lay a new section of highway toward the east side of the railroad to avoid crossings. (Intervening distance between the two railroad crossings is 6 kilometers.)
(2) The construction is planned to be completed by the Spring of 1940.
(3) If the distance of the present course, 150 kilometers, is too short, the turning point may be extended out to Takasaki City (Gumma Prefecture). This will make the length of the course 200 kilometers.

Yamagishi Is Elected Keio Net Team Captain

Jiro Yamagishi, Japan's No. 1 tennis player, has been elected captain of Keio University's tennis team for this year, according to announcement today.

Named as committeemen were Tokuzo Tamai, Kokichi Kagitomi and Shigeru Kusumoto. Elected as manager was Yasuichi Okada.

Yamagishi is expected to leave in June straight for New York where he will join Tamio Abe, Fumiteru Nakano and Yasumine Kuramitsu, members of the Davis Cup team, in time to meet the Canadian team in the first round of the American zone.

American Outlook For Davis Cup Is Not Too Rosy

BY GEORGE M. R. HOLMES

Christian Science Moniter

Although there are still a number of months before the 1938 Davis Cup campaign really gets under way, it is already receiving considerable attention at the hands of those who will have the management of the teams of the various countries which have entered as well as the lawn tennis public in general. The draw has been completed and announced, Australia has announced the team which it expects to enter in the North American zone, and one of the original challengers, New Zealand, has already announced its withdrawal due to the fact that one of its best doubles players will be unable to compete. In the meantime, one of the players who is expected to take a leading part in America's defense of the trophy is, with his doubles partner, on the way back home from Australia, where they have been playing in many exhibition and championship matches with more or less success.

Australia and Germany

So far as the outcome of the two zone competitions is concerned, the absence of New Zealand will have no effect. There was and is little chance of any country coming through the European competition other than Germany, and it is equally certain that Australia will be the North American winner. When these two countries come together in the interzone final for the right to challenge the United States, it will really be the first time that any real doubt regarding the winning country should come up. While the team which Australia has named does not appear quite as strong as the one which represented that country in 1937 it should be able to put up a good battle against the Germans, provided, of course, both come through their zone matches as expected. Jack Bromwich and Adrian Quist are the veterans on the team and they will be supported by L. A. Schwartz and Harry C. Hopman. Jack Crawford, Vivian McGrath, and Don Turnbull, of last year's team, are unable to make the trip this year. Germany will undoubtedly be represented by Gottfried Frhr. von Cramm and Henner Henkel again, and they will be the favorites to come through to the right to challenge the U. S. A.

American Outlook

That the American outlook is not too rosy at the present time must be admitted. Don Budge is still an amateur and the only candidate for the No. 1 position; but when it comes to the question as to who will be paired with him as a partner for the doubles or who will play the singles with him, the answer is far from simple. Last year Gene Mako was his partner in the doubles; but it is quite generally felt that if America is to win the doubles this year, another partner must be found for Budge. Budge and Mako are great friends and it seems too bad to break the combination up; but it does not appear strong enough to defeat the German team of Von Cramm and Henkel, which defeated it in the United States doubles championship at Longwood last August. If Budge is to have a new partner, it looks as if Wayne Sabin would be the most logical player to name. As for the other singles assignment there is a merry (unofficial) battle going on between a number of players. Frankie Parker, who came through to clinch the Cup for America last year, is again available as is Bryan M. Grant, who played against Germany and lost; but today it looks very much as if neither of these players would get the call, as Bobby Riggs is slated for the No. 2 position. And at present his chief rival appears to be Frank Kovacs of Oakland, Calif., who has been showing up very well in the South and who is generally picked with Riggs to be the foundation of the 1939 Cup team should Don Budge turn professional before then.

Three Times A Sweepstakes Winner

Lady Luck smiles all over O. P. Nelson of St. Paul, as far as Irish Sweepstakes are concerned. In March 1936, he drew a prize of $500 on the first ticket he ever held. In May 1936, he shared a winning ticket with a member of his office, and they split $2,212.44. In October 1937, he drew "Black Fell," and collected $1,923.50. The nom-de-plumes he used on the tickets were "STOP," "SURE SHOT" and "ANOTHER MISTAKE."

9 Birds With One Shot

Oscar Welch, an official of the Oklahoma Golf and Country Club, was waiting, with a large group of players and enthusiasts, to start a tournament, when a huge flock of blackbirds descended upon the No. 1 fairway. The birds were so numerous they almost completely covered the fairway over an area 100 yards square. Welch asked a police officer for his revolver, to scare them away. Firing one shot into the air, he caused the birds to take flight in a thick flock, and as they passed overhead he shot into them. Nine dead birds fell to the ground—witnessed by the entire crowd, among whom was Tommy Armour, famous championship golfer, who sent this amazing incident to me.

Teidai Tumbles Nihon 'U', 9-5 In Season Debut

In its first pre-season game this Spring, the Tokyo Imperial University baseball team vanquished Nihon University, 9 to 5, Friday afternoon at the Meiji Shrine stadium. It was a nip and tuck contest up to the eighth when the Teidai lads rallied to score six runs.

Pitcher Hagino of Nihon University did some nice work with his change of pace but he met his Waterloo in the aforesaid eighth frame. Center Fielder Furukawa walked after one out. Nomura followed with a single, and so did Hibino, Ota and Imanaka. Kawai topped it with a three bagger to left center. Six runs had been chalked up on the scoreboard before the side was retired.

Kawai, Teidai's best pitcher this season with the graduation of the diminutive Kubota, checked the Nihon University lads to six hits.

Over at the Meiji University's ball grounds at Izumi, Meiji bumped off the Chuo University nine by 4 to 2 by virtue of better play afield. The doubleplay combination of Shortstop Sugiura and Second Baseman Kameda was especially effective.

Pitcher Omiya of Chuo lost a tough one as he yielded but three hits. Shimizu, Meiji's ace southpaw, was touched for six hits.

Chuo had an opportunity in the ninth, putting two men on the bags without a man away, but failed to score.

Notre Dame Team Wins Track Meet

N.Y. Times

SOUTH BEND, Ind., March 12—Notre Dame trackmen placed in ten of eleven events to win the Central Intercollegiate Conference indoor track and field title and set a new scoring record of 56 points today. The old mark was 44½ points, set by Notre Dame in 1929. Pittsburgh took runner-up honors with 24½, while Michigan State was third with 23.

Starring roles were divided among John Woodruff of Pitt, Gregg Rice and John Francis of Notre Dame and Harvey Woodstra of Michigan State.

Woodruff was the only individual champion to repeat. He turned the trick in the 880-yard run in 1:56.3, nosing out Francis in a brilliant stretch duel. Woodruff previously had won the 440-yard dash in 50 seconds, fastest time here since 1932, to take individual honors. He also ran anchor on the Panther mile relay team, which tied the meet and gym mark of 3:21.5.

After Francis had dethroned him as mile champion in 4:20.2, Rice returned to set the only meet record in the two-mile run. Rice stayed in second position until the last furlong, when he spurted to pass Ken Waite of Michigan State and win by ten yards in 9:19.6.

Woodstra tied the meet record in the 60-yard high hurdles. He stepped the distance in 7.5 seconds.

Other teams scored as follows: Marquette 17, Drake 10, Kansas State 9, Wayne 7½, Butler, Western State and Michigan Normal 6 each.

Best Skiers In France

Allais, Agnel, Burnet, Maurice Lafforgue, Beckert, and Captain Gignoux; seating: Rene Lafforgue and J. Couttet. Champions from 15 countries competed, and the meet was the largest in scale since the Olympic championship races of 1936. It was also the fourth to be staged in Switzerland. An outstanding performance was that by 17-year-old J. Couttet who won the downhill event.

Christian Science Monitor

CHICAGO, March 10—This year's championship basketball race in the Western Conference produced a new team champion in Purdue University, but the individual scoring honors again went to the winner of that honor in 1937. This is the first time since 1934 that one college has won the title all to itself as in 1937, 1936 and 1935 two or three colleges were sharing the title. It is also interesting to note that Purdue was also the last college to hold it alone.

The Boilermakers had a very successful year as they defeated all their opponents with the exception of one game with Illinois and Ohio State each. While their defense was not as strong as some of the other teams in the race, their attack was enough stronger to put them in first place as they scored 511 points, which was 43 more than were made by the next best scorers. There were four teams which had fewer points scored against them.

Up to the last week or two of the race the Northwestern team appeared to be in line for at least a share in the title; but the Wildcats faded rapidly dropping their last four games to finish in a tie for third place with Ohio State. While still finishing in last place, Chicago gave signs of getting back into the game by winning two of its games. The Maroons were very weak on the defense having 537 points scored against them. For the second year in succession individual scoring honors went to Jewell I. Young '38 of Purdue. Last year this brilliant player shot 67 baskets from the field and 38 from the foul line for a total of 172 points. This year he improved on those figures with 68 goals from the field and 46 from the foul line for a total of 182 points. Second place went to Ernest M. Andres '39, of Indiana, with 65 goals from the field and 32 from the foul line. The leaders of individual scores follow:

Only 2 Undefeated In Sumo At Osaka

Grand Champions Tamanishiki and Futabayama Friday remained the only undefeated wrestlers in the "makunouchi" or first ranking grapplers at the end of the eighth day's bouts of the sumo tournament now being held at Osaka.

Futabayama won the Spring season championship at the Kokugikan bowl at Ryogoku by winning all 13 bouts for an unprecedented record of going through three seasons without a defeat.

Friday, Futabayama had no trouble defeating Tamanoumi, ace pupil of Tamanishiki. The latter proved too powerful for Mayedayama, who has been promoted to an "ohseki" or champion, immediately below grand champion.

Itsutsushima tasted his first defeat when he was thrown by Haguroyama, stable-mate of Futabayama.

Transportation To Komazawa Given Approval

Transportation facilities to the presently contemplated main Olympic stadium site at Komazawa, in Tokyo suburbs to the West, will be ample for the Games in 1940, according to word sent to the Tokyo Olympic Organizing Committee Friday afternoon by the Government Railways.

The O. O. C. had requested the Government Railways for a survey covering private railway lines and bus services as to the transportation volume to Komazawa. Feasibility of handling the crowd anticipated was based on a project of the Toyoko Electric Railway Company.

According to the Toyoko's plan, ¥7,800,000 will be spent for the purpose. Two special platforms for the Olympics spectators will be constructed at Shibuya Station, and two new lines, one directly to Komazawa, and the other from Yutenji Station to the Seijo Gakuen Station on the Odakyu line, will be built. The Tamagawa electric line will be improved to double its present capacity.

Also taken into consideration is the soon to be completed subway from Shinbashi to Shibuya which will facilitate transportation from the Ginza.

The survey of the Government Railways estimates that 60 per cent of the anticipated 100,000 spectators on the opening day can be handled from Shibuya within one and a half hours.

Five Cents Worth Of Work

A nickel's worth of electricity used at home is one kilowatt hour of electricity. One kilowatt hour, according to electrical engineers and scientists, equals exactly 2,655,200 foot pounds. A man shoveling coal into a firebox or a furnace lifts the coal a little more than 30 inches from the floor. After he has shoveled one ton of coal he has, therefore, done a little more than 5,000,000 foot pounds of work, and 10 tons during the year represents 50 odd thousand pounds. In 50 years about 2,650,000 foot pounds of work would be done—equal to only five cents worth of work done by man's great friend, electricity.

Firm To Exploit Iron Mines In Yangtze Set Up

Sino-Japanese Concerns Also Established In South, North China

Domei Tsushin

SHANGHAI, April 8—Setting a definite lead to the industrial exploitation of South China in the wake of the recent turmoil, the Hwa Chung Iron Mining Company will formally be inaugurated here today as the first important Sino-Japanese joint enterprise since the establishment of the Renovation Government of the Republic of China.

The new concern, designed to develop the iron mines in the Yangtze River basin, will be capitalized at 10,000,000 yuan. The inaugural general meeting of the new concern is being held at the Shanghai Japanese Club at 2 this afternoon, in the presence of Japanese and Chinese proponents.

At today's general meeting, the executive officials of the new Company will be appointed and other important arrangements for the inauguration of the new company will be determined. The company will aim at mining the iron ores in Anhwei and Kiangsu Provinces.

Of the ten million yuan capitalization, three million yuan will be subscribed by the Japanese Central China Development Company in cash. The remainder will be jointly invested by the Japan Steel Tube, the Asano Iron Manufacturing, the Nakayama Steel Manufacturing, the Ogura Iron Manufacturing, and the Sino-Japanese Industrial Companies.

The first payment in the capitalization will amount to 2,500,000 yuan. The Company expects to yield 1,000,000 tons of iron ores during the first business year following the inauguration. At the end of a five-year program, it will be able to produce 5,000,000 tons of iron ores.

The new Company will be registered at the Industry Ministry of the Renovation Government. A little over a week after the new Government was inaugurated here, the proposed Sino-Japanese economic rapprochement has effectively been instituted, it is pointed out.

Mining Concern Inaugurated

Domei Tsushin

SHANGHAI, April 8—As the first Sino-Japanese joint concern established under the new regimes of North and Central China, the Ku Fen Company Limited which is to carry on iron-mining in Central China held its inaugural meeting at 1 this afternoon at the Japanese club here.

Among those present at the meeting were Wang Tsu-hui and Chen Neng-i, Industry Minister and Vice-Minister respectively of the Renovation Government of the Chinese Republic, Major-General Harada and Mr. Sakae Sone, Japanese Consul in Shanghai.

Kokyo Isotani of the Japan Iron Mfg. Co. was elected managing director of the new Company, and Genjiro Shiraishi, the Japan Steel Pipe, and Yuan Nai-kuan, President of the Sino-Japanese Industrial Association, were appointed directors.

Sheng En-i of the Hanchihping Iron Works and Kakei Koike of the Japan Iron were elected inspectors, while the posts of president and vice-president were decided to be left vacant for the time being.

The newly created company will be capitalized at ¥10,000,000 and engage in iron mining in Central China.

Gold Mining Company Established

Domei Tsushin

TIENTSIN, April 8—To engage in exploiting gold mines in East Hopei, the North China Gold Mining Company was established this afternoon when its inaugural general meeting was held here at the Tientsin office of the Hsin Chung Kungssu.

The new company was capitalized at 2,000,000 yen which was shared by the Sumitomo Bank and Hsin Chung Kungssu (North China Development Company).

With the paid-up capital of 500,000 yen and the holdings of 20,000 shares, the new gold mining company will establish its head office in Peking.

The following are the newly appointed officials:

Managing directors—Shuei Tsuda (Sumitomo) and Yoshisaburo Kano (Hsin Chung).

Auditors—Katsuhiro Suzuki (Sumitomo) and Hideichi Hojo (Hsin Chung).

The Hopei Gold Mining Company, a subsidiary company of the North China Gold Mining Company, has already been founded in Tanshang with the capital of 100,000 yuan with Chi Tsung-mu, former Chief Executive of the now defunct East Hopei Anti-Communist Autonomous Government, as managing director. The inaugural general meeting of the firm the head office of which is at Peking, was held on April 3 at Tangshang.

Reduction Announced On Wireless Rates For British Empire

Domei Tsushin

LONDON, April 8—Far-reaching reductions in existing rates for cable and wireless communication between all parts of the British Empire, to become effective from April 25, were announced here today by Sir Campbell Stuart, chairman of the Imperial Communications Advisory Committee.

As a result of cooperation between the various authorities concerned, said Sir Campbell, a scheme was worked out whereby a single maximum flat rate will apply to each category of wire and cable messages between different parts of the Empire. Where the existing rates are cheaper, no change will be made.

The new rates for different types of messages were announced as follows: 15 pence per word for full-rate plain language messages; 10 pence for code; 7.5 pence for deferred telegrams; and 5 pence for letter telegrams.

Japan.

"From the time we landed at Nagasaki until this very moment we have had an unforgettable testimonial of affections.

"We have been granted the highest honor of being admitted to the presence of His Majesty the Emperor who deigned to converse with us. On our breasts you can see the decorations by which we have been honored as citizens of Italy, the friend of Japan.

"Our life has been in a few weeks filled with emotions of extreme rare privileges, of which we shall bring back the remembrance to our country and spread it amongst our comrades.

"But one of the deepest emotions of all is that which we have felt before the sacred shrine of Ise where the three Imperial Emblems are preserved; the Mirror, the Sword and the precious Necklace. These three emblems assure in an everlasting future the triumphal greatness of the Japanese Empire.

"You, Japanese people like we, Fascist Italians do not rest on the memories of the past; You feel that those memories impose upon you a holy duty that of being worthy of them.

"To the history shaped by the action of your forefathers you add now the history for your future generations.

"Citizens of Osaka, the name of your town is well known even in most outlying corners of the world. Your ships reach the most distant ports and the activities of the greatest industrial town of Japan are well known everywhere.

"Your factories appear side by side with the grand structures of the past, and you are justly proud of both. Material riches are of little value, however, if the spirit is poor; economic well being is a mere illusion if it is not to serve for the greatness of the country.

"In our Fascist regime, work is considered a noble duty in the same way as military service.

"Citizens of Osaka, Italy and Japan wish to work in peace. Peace is indispensable to both our countries and therefore we are both determined to defend it at any cost.

"Your work of enterprising and daring industrialists represents one of the most important expressions of civilization; allow me, therefore, to send now from this center of industry and fruitful work the greeting and wishes of the Fascist Mission to the managers, to the technicians, and to the workmen, to the men and women who carry on their work in the factories in perfect decipline and great wisdom for the ever growing prosperity of the Japanese Empire."

The members of the Mission visited the Municipal Government Office Saturday morning. They then inspected the Osaka Castle, the Otemae Girl's School, and the Yodogawa Factory of the Kanegafuchi Cotton Spinning Company.

Germans, Austrians Of Kanto Celebrate

With the Austro-German Anschluss virtually effected and the Austrian plebiscite formally to decide it scheduled to be held on April 10, German and Austrian residents in Tokyo and Yokohama celebrated the event at the German Club, Hirakawa-cho, Kojimachi Saturday afternoon. Among the 400 or more present were German Charge d'Affaires Dr. W. Noebel and the newly-appointed German Ambassador to Tokyo, Major-General Eugen Ott, who is expected shortly to present his credentials to the Imperial Court here.

In the center of the platform of the Club hall, decorated with the Swastika flags, was set a bronze statue of Reichsfuehrer Adolf Hitler, on both sides of which stood boys and girls belonging to the Hitlerite Boys and Girls Scouts, in uniforms. Charge d'Affaires Noebel extolled the great achievements of the Reichsfuehrer, followed by several other speakers.

The Byrnes bill gives the President broad powers to reorganize the Government's executive departments, revamp federal agencies, and effect a thorough overhauling of the civil service. Legislation for this purpose was urged by Mr. Roosevelt in a special message to Congress early in the current session.

Naval Air Corps In Daring Raids Over Kwangtung

10 Freight Cars Blasted On Canton-Hankow Line; Lin Sen Speaks

Domei Tsushin

SHANGHAI, April 9—Daring air raids were made by Japanese naval air units on several points in Kwangtung Province, it was announced by the Press Section of the Japanese Fleet at 11 a.m. today.

The Japanese unit which assaulted the Tienho airfield witnessed black smoke testifying the burning of enemy's planes in the central part of the airfield while other Japanese planes exploded buildings and a powder magazine at the Tsunghua, airfield noting black smoke columns rising up about 600 meters, the communique stated.

It further revealed that Japanese raiders successfully blasted about ten freight cars massed near Pakongchow on the Canton-Hankow Railway, cutting off rails at several points there and freight cars concentrated near Sitzun station suffered a heavy damage.

The communique added that Japanese planes succeeded in blowing up buildings attached to the Meihsien airdrome.

Koito Unit Defeats Enemy

Domei Tsushin

SHIHKIACHWANG, April 9—Part of the Koito unit of the Japanese army on Wednesday attacked about 2,000 Chinese troops near Kuyang, about 16 kilometers north Antsehsien, southern Shansi Province.

Though armed with several trench-mortars, the enemy fled southerly, leaving behind about 600 dead while the Japanese suffered a slight damage.

Lin Sen Speaks

Domei Tsushin

SHANGHAI, April 8—Reporting on the results of the sixth plenary session of the Central Executives and Supervisory Committees of the Kuomintang held at Hankow, Lin Sen, President of the Chinese National Government, urged the nation to renew efforts to increase the strength of their resistance against the Japanese forces, in a recent meeting held at Chungking to observe the memorial week of the Kuomintang Party, it is reported" here today.

The gist of the address made is understood to be as follows:

Meeting in the plenary session at Hankow, approximately 500 representatives of the Kuomintang passed a resolution urging an increase in the strength of resistance against Japan and adopting readjusment of the military strategy in the fighting against the Japanese forces. Decision was also reached at the conference to stabilize an executive system of the Kuomintang for improvement of its business. As a result, General Chiang Kai-shek and Wang Ching-wei, Chairman of the Central Political Council, were elected as President and Vice President respectively.

The Hankow parley also decided to create a new young men's corps replacing the existing reserve membership system of the Kuomintang. With birth of the projected body, all Chinese young men are requested to undergo a unified training, abiding by the New People's Principle and the instructions of the late Dr. Sun Yat-sen, founder of the Chinese Republic.

A new platform consisting of 32 articles was approved by the recent gathering at Hankow to attain the primary purpose of the founding of the Republic and to discharge public duty in connection with the current hostilities. These articles envisage necessary regulations concerning political, diplomatic, military, economic and other important national affairs.

Attaching importance to future popular movements, the Head of the Nationalist Government is reported to have encouraged all official civilian bodies to organize a united front against Japan. China must exert its efforts to win a final victory in the present conflict, Mr. Lin declared in conclusion.

throughout the country at the official residence of the Education Minister at 9 Saturday morning.

At the outset of the conference, Marquis Kido, in his official capacity as the Welfare Minister, delivered an instructive address, emphasizing the need of harmonization between labor and capital so as to carry out smooth operations of mining industry which has close connection directly with the military industrial mobilization.

After careful discussion agreement of views was reached on the following points.

1. Improvement of labor condition.
2. Improvement of labor sanitary condition.
3. Enforcement of the retiring allowance system for miners.

The conference was also attended by Hisatada Hirose, Vice-Minister for Home Affairs, and Gan Yamasaki, Director of the Social Affairs Bureau of the Home Ministry.

Mt. Asama

Mt. Asama ranks as the second largest active volcano in Japan, coming next to Mt. Aso in Kyushu. It extends over Nagano and Gumma prefectures. Mt. Asama had big eruptions on three occasions—the first eruption gave birth to Mt. Kurofu, Mt. Mippa (2,405 meters) the second to Mt. Maekake (2,521 meters), and the present crater was made by the third and is called a "Kettle," from the shape of the concavity, which measures 350 meters in circumference and 60 meters in depth. The eastern part of the crater is 2,642 meters high above sea level, and is the highest point of Mt. Asama.

On the sides of the mountain there are accumulated piles of pumice-stone and volcanic pebbles, etc.

Climb up through woods of Japanese red pine-trees growing thickly at the foot of the mountain, and the grassy zone will be reached half-way up, and it will continue nearly up to the summit, where nothing is found but old and new lava, pebbles and stones erected by frequent explosions. The foot of the mountain stretches out widely to the South and Rokuri-hara, or "Six-Ri Field" in the north. Both Mt. Ko-Asama, or "Small Asama" and Mt. Sekison are parasitic volcanoes—the former is 1,655 meters high on the east side and the latter 1,668 meters high on the south side.

Special Advisers To Assist Running Of Bank At Peking

Yokohama Specie, Chosen And Industrial Banks Reach Decision

The Yokohama Specie Bank, the Bank of Chosen, and the Industrial Bank of Japan which have extended financial assistance to the Federal Reserve Bank of China, have decided to station liaison officials in Peking to give advice to the Bank in its practical management, according to Domei.

The Yokohama Specie Bank will send Yujiro Yoshida, assistant-manager of the branch office in Osaka, while the Bank of Chosen will send Kaichi Yatsunami, acting-manager of the branch office in Dairen. The Industrial Bank of Japan will dispatch Goro Sakaguchi, assistant-manager of the branch office in Nagoya.

These liaison officials will advise the Federal Reserve Bank of China along the following lines:

The representative of the Yokohama Specie Bank will advise the Federal Reserve Bank of China regarding exchange business.

The representative of the Bank of Chosen, regarding note issue and national treasury.

The representative of the Industrial Bank of Japan regarding financing.

In accordance with Article 36 of the regulations providing for establishment of the North China Development Company, the Government has decided to organize the Arrangement Committee for establishment of that concern next week.

The post of Chairman of the committee will be occupied by an influential businessman. If there is no suitable candidate, it will be held by the Commerce Minister Yoshino concurrently.

Le Stade De Tennis Pierre-De-Coubertin

A l'occasion de l'Exposition internationale, le conseil municipal de Paris avait décidé la construction d'un stade important de tennis. Celui-ci devait comporter non seulement des courts sur gazon, mais encore des courts couverts sur bois.

Une cité des sports près la porte de Saint-Cloud.

Une telle organisation faisait, en effet, complètement défaut dans la capitale et sa nécessité était d'autant plus évidente que le tennis devenait un jeu de plus en plus populaire.

La réalisation de cet ensemble architectural fut confiée à trois architectes, MM. Crevel, Carré et Schlienger, et conduite en parfait accord avec le Tennis-Club de Paris représentant la Fédération française de lawn-tennis. Un terrain situé à l'est de la porte de Saint-Cloud, à proximité du Parc-des-Princes, de la piscine Molitor et du stade Roland-Garros, fut acquis par la Ville. Ce terrain affecte la forme d'un losange et s'ouvre sur quatre rues, ce qui en facilite l'accès. Malheureusement, malgré toute la diligence apportée à l'exécution des travaux le stade ne put être terminé en temps utile, c'est-à-dire pendant la période l'ouverture de l'Exposition. Il vient seulement d'être partiellement achevé et son inauguration a eu lieu récemment en présence de S. M. Gustave V, roi de Suède, et de M. Albert Lebrun, président de la République.

Du point de vue de l'architecture pure, la réussite de la construction est indéniable. Le stade, auquel fut donné le nom de Pierre de Coubertin, est édifié en brique d'un rouge assez chaud et en pierre blanche. L'opposition de tons est des plus agréables à l'œil et donne à l'ensemble un caractère de grande simplicité artistique. La pièce maîtresse de l'ensemble est constituée par un grand court central d'une capacité de 5.000 places. La distribution de la lumière naturelle est assurée par un double plafond de verre, ce qui permet d'éviter à la fois toute condensation par temps froid et tout éblouissement dû aux rayons solaires. La surface de ce plafond atteint le chiffre record de 650 mètres carrés. Quant à l'éclairage artificiel, il est lumineux, grâce à de multiples lampes qui sont placées entre les deux voûtes. En second lieu, une corniche garnie de 500 lampes répartit une lumière égale au-dessus des gradins. Enfin, le court lui-même est éclairé par 30 projecteurs spéciaux, étudiés de manière à ne pas provoquer d'éblouissement sur le sol.

En arrière de ce court central sont installés six courts secondaires, chacun comportant 400 places. De part et d'autre de ces installations sportives sont placés des vestiaires avec salles de douche. En outre, d'autres dispositions sont prévues en faveur de manifestations diverses. C'est ainsi que le stade Pierre-de-Coubertin comprendra des salles de gymnastique, un ring de boxe, un stand de tir, une salle de conférences avec projections et un laboratoire médical permettant l'étude et le contrôle de l'effort sportif.

Sink Of The Polo Agie

In Fremont County, Wyoming, just above the city of Lander, the Pope Agie river comes down from the mountains through a fine canyon five miles long. Halfway down the entire river dashes into the right hand wall of the canyon and disappears completely. About half a mile further down, the river emerges from the left wall of the canyon and flows rapidly on its way to furnish light and power to the city of Lander. Somewhere in that half mile the river runs underground, beneath its old bed and the public highway and across the canyon, which is about 1,000 feet wide at this point.

Danced Continuously For A Day

Arriving in Columbus, Ohio, May 27, 1936, a day ahead of his date of appearance in a night club, Bill Church decided to dance the entire time away. He started at 12 noon, danced without missing a step until noon on the 28th, and went right to work that night. He estimates that he did more than 85,000 time steps and 3,600 wings without a miss.

Charles Fenske Who Was Here, Stars At Chicago

N.Y. Times

CHICAGO, March 12—Wisconsin's burly Chuck Fenske put together a brilliant, record-adorned double tonight as Michigan's irrepressible Wolverines seized their fifth straight Big Ten indoor track title—a triumph aided by the amazing collapse of Indiana's famed distance running array.

Fenske, good enough to whip Indiana's Don Lash at the mile indoors two years ago, and good enough to repeat last year, reached footracing heights tonight on the University of Chicago field house clay track.

Battling through a race in which one of his Indiana foemen, Jimmy Smith, committed a foul that caused his disqualification, the long-striding Badger finished the mile in 4:11.1, one and four-tenths seconds faster than the former Big Ten indoor mark established by Henry Brocksmith, one of Indiana's earlier greats, in 1932.

Wins as He Pleases

Fenske came back about an hour later to take the half-mile in 1:55.4, winning almost as he liked, to complete the doulbe triumph.

In the mile, Fenske shot into the lead at the end of the third lap with Smith at his shoulder. Smith challenged at almost every curve and on one effort to pass the speeding Badger behind a bank of bleachers bumped Fenske off stride.

Fenske pulled away in the final lap, piling up a margin of about twenty-five yards over Tommy Deckard of Indiana, who pulled up from the ruck to land second. Smith finished fifth behind Hal Davidson of Michigan and another Indiana star Mel Trutt, but was disqualified.

The judges apparently had not spotted a sixth and did not move a man up into the place vacated by the disqualification, leaving the event one point short.

Another Wisconsin speedster, Walter Mehl, completed the wreckage of Indiana's title bid by conquering Smith in the two miles in the meet record time of 9:18.3. Deckard, the favorite, just managed to save fifth place for Indiana. Ralph Schwarzkopf, Michigan sophomore, helped the Wolverines' cause by taking third place in the long run.

Watson Takes Shot Put

Michigan amassed 321-3 points, built around victories by Elmer Gedeon in the 70-yard high hurdles and Big Bill Watson in the shot put.

John Townsend, Wolverine basketball star, picked up a third in the shot; Doug Hayes contributed a fourth in the 440-yard run—in which Carl Teufel of Iowa scored an upset triumph over Harley Howells of Ohio State and Indiana's Sam Miller—Tommy Jester finished fifth in the half-mile, Jim Kingsley was second to Wisconsin's Milt Padway in the pole vault and Wes Smith was second in a recordbreaking high jump contest with Dave Albritton of Ohio State.

Albritton cleared 6 feet 6¼ inches to displace the meet mark of 6 feet 5¾ inches set by his team-mate, Mel Walker, a year ago.

Wisconsin collected 26 points for a surprise second place, Iowa was third with 20 1-3, Ohio State had 19, with Indiana making its lowest finish in years with 18½ points. No team failed to score, Illinois picking up 15 points, Chicago 6 1-3, Purdue 4, Northwestern 3½ and Minnesota 3.

The Summaries

One-Mile Run—Won by Charles Fenske, Wisconsin; second, Thomas Deckard, Indiana; third, Harold Davidson, Michigan; fourth, Melvin Trutt, Indiana. Time—4:11.1 (new Conference record; old record, 4:12.5, by Henry Brocksmith, Indiana, in 1932).

Students Skiing Meet To Be Held Next Year At Sapporo In January

The 13th annual national students skiing championships next year will be held at Sapporo, either before or after January 20.

Decision to this effect was reached by the All-Japan Students Skiing Federation at a meeting of its directors Sunday morning at the Y.M.C.A. at Kanda.

The directors voted also to make their best efforts toward assisting the National Ski Federation in developing the sport in preparation for the Fifth Olympic Winter Games in 1940.

Italian Mission Sees Sumo At Osaka Arena

Marquis Giacomo Paulucci and members of the visiting Fascist Goodwill Mission were interested spectators of the professional sumo matches at Osaka Sunday afternoon. They were thrilled by the size and strength, as well as agility, of the "makunouchi" or first ranking wrestlers.

Most impressed were they with the "dohyoiri" or formal entrance into the ring of the four "yokozuna" or grand champions—Tamanishiki, Minanogawa, Musashiyama and Futabayama—with whom they shook hands.

Futabayama, who went through the last three seasons at the Kokugikan bowl here without a defeat, stole the show of the day, the tenth of the tournament, by winning convincingly from Minanogawa. Unleashing great strength with his arms, he shoved Minanogawa out of the ring.

Tamanishiki continued to remain in the undefeated list, along with Futabayama, by pushing Oshio out of the ring.

Idaho Ski Meet Won By Durrance

SUN VALLEY, Idaho, March 13—Daring Dick Durrance, Florida-raised skier, of the Dartmouth Ski Club, came from behind for the second consecutive year to capture the international open skiing tournament today.

Durrance, who won all the national championships competed for here last Spring, barely beat Walter Prager, Dartmouth coach, who was competing for Switzerland. Prager captured today's slalom on Ruud Mountain in a spectacular exhibition of controlled skiing.

Uli Beutter of Germany tournament favorite by virtue of his record-breaking victory yesterday in the downhill race, fell three times on his second slalom run and placed far back.

The Norwegian, Birger Ruud, international ski-jumping champion, was no disappointment to the crowd of more than 3,000 who waited during a snowy afternoon for his jump. Ruud set a record of 48 meters on Ruud jumping hill.

Later, however, the race committee accepted a pre-competition jump of 50.0 meters by Alf Engen of Sun Valley as the official record for the 40-meter Ruud Mountain.

Grace Carter Lindley, former Pacific Northwest downhill and slalom champion, skiing for Sun Valley, won the women's slalom race.

The Bavarian delegation, Beutter and Fritz Dehmel, held up the meet for a time when they refused to participate until a non-swastika German flag of an old edition was removed from its place among a mass of international flags adorning the mountain.

Durrance, although placing only second in yesterday's downhill and today's slalom races, garnered 422 points to win his title.

Prager was second with 430.6, Beutter third with 424.4, and Hans Hauser, Sun Valley, fourth with 456.3.

Nelson's 275 Wins On Florida Links

N.Y. Times

HOLLYWOOD, Fla., March 11—Byron Nelson, young Ryder Cup player from Reading, Pa., came from behind in a subpar finish today to win the $3,000 Hollywood open with a 72-hole score of 275, eight under par.

Nelson uncorked a four-below-par 67 on his last round, after a morning 69, to beat Horton Smith of Chicago and Frank More of Mamaroneck, N. Y., by a single stroke.

Smith, with the top prize apparently in his pocket after opening rounds of 66 and 65, for a six-stroke lead, kicked the tournament into a wild scramble down the home stretch by carding a 75 this morning. He rallied with a last round 70, but Nelson, picking up steam as he went along, wasn't to be headed.

A Closing 34 Decides

The winner forged ahead on the final nine holes. His morning 69 left him two strokes off the pace and at sixty-three holes he trailed Moore by one shot. He kept knocking in his putts for birdies and pars, however, got a 34 coming home and cut-maneuvered the field.

Moore, like Nelson, toured the first nine in 33, but faded to one over par coming back. Nelson's victory brought him $700, with Moore and Smith earning $400 each.

The Chicago veteran, Frank Walsh, duplicated Nelson's final two rounds and worked himself well up in the money with a total of 278. He and Denny Shute, P. G. A. champion, who finished at the same figure, collected $250 each.

Revolta Seventh With 279

Johnny Revolta of Evanston, Ill., leading money winner of the Winter campaign, pocketed $160 for finishing seventh with a 279. Revolta had a closing 68.

Dick Metz of Chicago, last year's Hollywood winner, drove home with a 67 for a total 280 and $140.

The leading amateur was Frank Strafaci of Brooklyn, former public links champion, who won the first prize with a 285, one stroke over par for 72 holes. Bobby Dunkelberger of High Point, N. C., finished second at 288, with Robert Sweeny, British amateur champion, slipping on his last two rounds to take third place at 295.

Teidai Defeated 7 To 0 By Chuo At Own Diamond

Smashing out 12 hits, the Chuo University nine blanked the Tokyo Imperial University squad, 7 to 0, at the latter's diamond Sunday afternoon. Pitcher Omiya had a fine day and checked the Teidai batsmen to five scattered hits.

Teidai's strategy was to swing at the first pitch by Omiya but kept either popping them up or lining them into the Chuo players.

Yutani started on the mound for Teidai but his curves failed to cut the corners. The Chuo batters nicked him for three hits and two runs right in the first inning and scored another brace of runs in the second on two hits and two errors. With the bases loaded in the fourth, Yutani retired hard hitting Kato and Kino and seemed as if he might get out of trouble but Nishizawa crossed him up with a timely hit to bat in two runs.

Teidai makes its debut in the Spring season of the Tokyo Six University league next Saturday in the curtain-raiser of a doubleheader against Meiji, champions last year of the Spring and Fall seasons.

$34,125 Is Paid For Royal Mail

N.Y. Times

LONDON, March 12—Royal Mail, winner of the 1937 Grand National Steeplechase and one of the favorites for this year's running of the Aintree classic, was sold at auction today to Mrs. J. M. Evans for 6,500 guineas (about $34,125).

Mrs. Evans, the former Camille Clifford, Philadelphia actress, announced Royal Mail definitely would start in the Grand National March 25.

Royal Mail's sale was ordered by executors of the estate of H. Lloyd Thomas, who was killed in a racing accident Feb. 22.

Meanwhile, announcement was made of the scratching from the Grand National of Mrs. F. Ambrose Clark's American-owned Flying Minutes, a son of the 1925 Kentucky Derby winner, Flying Ebony.

Mrs. Camille Clifford Evans, purchaser of the famous steeplechaser, Royal Mail, was a popular musical-comedy actress both in the United States and England during the early Nineteen Hundreds. She was born in Europe, but spent her early life in Philadelphia.

She made her first stage appearance on Broadway in 1902 as a member of the chorus in "The Defender." She first attracted European attention as a "Gibson girl" in "The Prince of Pilsen" at London two years later.

She was first married to the Hon. Henry Lyndhurst Bruce. He died in 1915 and two years later she married Captain J. M. Evans.

Royal Mail is the co-favorite at 100 to 7 to win the Grand National, according to the latest call-over of odds at the Victoria Club in London. Takvor Pacha, French-bred jumper owned by a Spanish nobleman, the Marquis de San Miguel, is also held at 100 to 7.

Ikujima Wins Title In Singles Of Kansai Students Net Tourney

Shunji Ikujima of Kwansei Gakuin, fourth ranking player last year, won the singles title of the 18th annual Kansai students tennis championships Sunday at the Koshien courts, near Osaka, by defeating Junzo Fuwa of Kyoto Imperial University. The scores were: 4-6, 4-6, 6-2, 6-0 and 6-3.

Fuwa was 18th ranking player in 1937.

Ikujima and his partner, Yamagata, also of Kwansei Gakuin, won the doubles championship, taking the measure of Fuwa and Matsuyama of Kyoto Imperial in three sets, 6-2, 8-6 and 7-5.

Eastern College Wrestling Title Won By Lehigh

ITHACA, N. Y., March 12—Lehigh dethroned Penn State as Eastern intercollegiate wrestling champion tonight by winning three individual titles in the annual tournament and winding up with the team crown by the narrow margin of two points over Princeton's favored forces.

Princeton, too, won three individual titles, but the points the Engineers gained in the grappling for second and third places proved enough to give them the crown Penn State has held for the last two years. Elliott Small, taking third place in the light-heavyweight competition by throwing Lenox Muldoon, of Columbia, gave Lehigh the two-point margin by which it finished on top.

Small's victory gave the Engineers a total of twenty-five points for the two-day tournament. Princeton finished with twenty-three after the Tiger captain, Morris Emory, failed to come through for third place among the 165-pounders.

Yale, although shut out of the individual laurels, wound up in third place in the final team standings with 18 points, largely through victories in four second-place matches. Penn State finished fourth with 11 points, trailed by Cornell with 8, Pennsylvania with 4, Syracuse 3 and Harvard 2. Columbia, lone other college in the competition, failed to score a point.

John Harkness, Harvard light-heavyweight, who won the 175-pound crown by dethroning defending champion Ross Shaffer, of Penn State, in the finals for the tournament's biggest upset, was judged the outstanding wrestler of the competition by the four referees.

Through the Harkness victory, Harvard was enabled to wind up the competition with a "plus" point score. The Crimson started the tournament with a "minus five" total because of a default.

Masem Wins Title

Lehigh's title winners were lightweight Harold Masem, welterweight Ed Hagerman and 165-pounder Curtis Ford. For Princeton, Dick Harding, 118-pound champion a year ago, won this year's 126-pound crown, Charles Powers retained the middleweight laurels, and Charles Toll came through with an upset victory in the heavyweight ranks.

Bob Mathers, Cornell's sophomore 118-pounder, and Harkness were the other winners. Mathers, climaxing an undefeated season, won the decision over Franc Burnett, of Lehigh, in the final bout of their division.

Harding, of Princeton, threw Frank Craighead, of Penn State. Harding pressed his advantage all the way. His five points for first place, plus one point for a fall put Princeton into a temporary lead.

Lehigh piled up ten points and took a commanding lead by winning in the next two divisions, Masem and Hagerman taking decisions over Bob Reynolds of Penn State and David Gerber of Yale. Masem won handily, but Hagerman was given the decision in a close bout.

The first champion to retain his title at the same weight was Powers, winner by decision over James Bird of Yale, in a slow bout. Powers' victory gave Princeton 14 points to 16 for Lehigh.

Harkness scored a major upset in the 175-pound final by defeating last year's titleholder, Ross Shaffer, of Penn State, by a wide margin. Harkness kept Shaffer down most of the route.

Toll, of Princeton, made short work of Myron Sterngold, of Lehigh, in winning the unlimited class title. Toll, who finished second in the division last year, threw the Lehigh heavyweight in three minutes flat.

Waseda And Keio Top Teidai, Meiji In Tennis Tourney

Keio and Waseda made a clean sweep over Meiji and Tokyo Imperial respectively in the singles playing Sunday of the Kanto intercollegiate tennis tournament. Each had won all three doubles on Saturday to win with final scores of 9 to nil.

Hosei defeated Shodai 6 to 3 while Rikkyo scored a one-sided 9 to 0 victory over Bunrika University in the second division.

The results Sunday were:

Keio Versus Meiji

Fujikura (Keio) defeated Kataoka, 6-0, 6-0, 6-0.

Yamakawa (Keio) defeated Kano, 6-2, 6-2, 6-1.

Furubayashi (Keio) defeated Ota, 6-4, 2-6, 6-2 and 6-3.

Tanaka (Waseda) defeated Yasukawa, 6-0, 6-2, 3-6, 6-4.

Oxford Trackmen Defeat Cambridge

N.Y. Times

LONDON, March 12—Paced by Alan Pennington, Oxford University defeated Cambridge, 60 to 57, in the renewal of their ancient track and field rivalry at White City today.

Pennington, Oxford captain, won his specialty, the 100-yard dash, in 10 seconds flat and then scored a decisive second place in the 440-yard run to give the Oxonians their first victory since 1934.

When the field lined up for the quarter-mile, the final event, Oxford led at 56 to 52, with Cambridge needing the first two places to win. Godfrey Brown, Cambridge ace, won the event, as expected, in 49 seconds, but Pennington finished with a burst of speed to take second place, only inches behind the winner. Oxford also finished third in the event.

Brown scored the only double of the meet. He also took the half-mile in 1:56.2.

If the meet had been decided as in other years, when only winners counted, Cambridge again would have won as the Cantabs took seven of the thirteen events. This year, however, points also were awarded for second and third.

Discus—D. G. Brown, Oxford, 127 feet 4¾ inches.

120-Yard Hurdles—J. P. Knight, Oxford, 0:15.6.

Pole Vault—C. P. S. North, Cambridge, 11 feet 6 inches.

High Jump—A. U. Selwyn, Oxford, 5 feet 9 inches.

Three-Mile Run—Weir, Cambridge, 14:52.2.

Jaelin—J. F. Klein, Cambridge, 191 feet 10 inches.

220-Yard Dash—Irwin, Oxford, 0:24.9.

Mile—Crossley-Holland, Cambridge, 4:24.4.

Broad Jump—R. A. Powell, Oxford, 22 feet 5 inches.

Shot-Put—Peter Hincks, Cambridge, 45 feet 1 inch.

Scotland Beats England At Rugby By 21 To 16 As King, Queen Look On

London Observer

LONDON, March 20—Scotland achieved mighty victory at rugby over England at Twickenham yesterday, with the King and Queen in the Royal box and a vast multitude of more than 70,000 people to watch them on an afternoon of sunshine that belonged to Summer. The score was 21 to 16. This was the first international match watched by the King since his Accession—the first, indeed, ever watched by a Queen of England—and for breathless excitement, remorseless pace, with a crop of points and the two teams neck-and-neck to the end, it certainly was an unforgettable conclusion to a nerve-wracking season.

England, in spite of latter-day changes in their team, were so confidently expected to win; yet Scotland, stout of heart since that Murrayfield victory over Wales, played for high stakes and won, as they so richly deserved. Their victory brought them an embarrassment of prizes—the international championship, the Calcutta Cup, and, as a tribute to the unbeaten, the legendary Triple Crown.

HOW THE GAME WENT

	Points. Eng.	Scot.
3.12.—W. N. Renwick: Try	0	3
3.15.—G. W. Parker: P. goal	3	3
3.22.—Parker: P. goal	6	3
3.30.—Renwick: Try	6	6
3.34.—R. C. S. Dick: Try	6	9
3.36.—E. J. Unwin: Try	9	9
3.38.—R. W. Shaw: Try	9	12
Half-time: Scotland 12 pts., England 9.
4. 5.—F. J. Reynolds: Drop goal	13	12
4. 7.—W. H. Crawford: P. goal	13	15
4.16.—Crawford: P. goal	13	18
4.19.—Parker: P. goal	16	18
4.29.—Shaw: Try	16	21
Result: Scotland 21 pts, England 16.

The score looks something like a mathematical problem, but the inescapable fact stands out that England, besides a dropped goal and three penalty goals, could score only one try to Scotland's two penalty goals and five tries—the wind, for once was too much for Crawford's place-kicking. If the inference is that England were outplayed at back, and that the Scottish forwards took impetuous risks, it is the correct one.

It seems unbelievable that a team with so much of the ball as England had could be beaten. Yet there it is. The English heeling, true, was slow—the Scottish pack shoved their weight—but back the ball came from a preponderant number of the scrummages, and there was no one behind, except J. L. Giles, with anything like the imagination and skill of that truly fearsome Scottish triangle in midfield composed of R. W. Shaw, D. J. Macrae, and R. C. S. Dick. Their defense has been so secure this season, their attack so swiftly discerning—at Twickenham even more than Murrayfield—that their names will rank with the giants of the game.

How the crowd, English or Scottish, roared them in the end! It mattered nothing whether Scotland had the lead or lost it, they hung on, beat off manifold situations that were desperate and scored themselves almost whenever the ball came back. In courage and tenacity the same was true of England, though in their case the avenging foot of G. W. Parker was largely the making of their points; certainly no International backs, even Ireland's, have contrived to do less with the ball in movements well begun.

The blustering wind played its part as a spoiler, as well as the close tackling of the entire Scottish team. F. J. Reynolds, with W. H. Crawford pursuing his winging art in the Scottish back-row, rarely found time or room for his full swerve through the middle; he seldom attempted it, indeed, and doubts that he was fully restored in health seemed justified when he began to tire. Reynolds often passed before drawing a man, or kicked to touch, and the Scottish crash-tackling soon showed what short shrift was given to a formal passing movement.

Lacking in Thrust

J. L. Giles was the best English back for his sudden bursts from the scrummage; B. E. Nicolson was badly missed behind him, for neither the reinstated P. Crammer nor P. L. Candler, strong as ever in defense, had much thrust in attack, and the roles of the two wings, H. S. Sever and E. J. Unwin, were mainly defensive.

Vastly quicker in thought and deed were the elusive Shaw and his midfield henchmen. It was Shaw's match all right, with his two surging tries and a hand in two others; and with Shaw there always was the long-striding, vigorous Macrae, and the swift backing-up of W. N. Renwick, the new Scottish cap on the right wing, who earned his spurs with two tries. Very justly, Dick, as ever a power in the land, scored the other—by a strict Rugby standard the best of all.

Then there were the brave English forwards, with H. B. Toft, a hooker of fame, as their captain, who accomplished so much for so little, even without T. F. Huskisson, R. E. Prescott and R. Bolton, their absentees. No forward ever earned a cap more nobly than A. A. Brown, from Exeter, who always was a terror in the loose; perhaps the best of the others, a grand set in everything, but clean heeling, were R. M. Marshall and A. Wheatley.

The Scottish pack made up with a vengeance in the loose for what they lost in the tight; W. B. Young, Crawford, G. B. Horsbrugh, and A. Roy were the stalwarts we saw at Murrayfield. And Parker, in nothing save the length of his touch, finding and his flair for penalty goals, was a more dependable full-back than G. Roberts.

The Run Of The Games

At once England were attacking in a loose foot rush, and W. H. Weston might have scored had not Shaw dashed across to touch down. England had the ball from the first dozen scrummages, but the heeling of their pack, with its three changes, was laborious, and Reynolds chose kicking to touch rather than any adventurous running. But England were taking scrummages for lineout as a sign of their confidence, and so far they had had the whip hand without managing to do much about it.

Scotland, well as the English backs were playing, and Giles in particular were keeping them out through the vigor of their defense in midfield, and their speed in covering. Yet the first fifteen minutes were really uneventful until the match became electrified by a Scottish try of the "snap" variety, but none the less well-scored. Parker could not quite get to a long cross-kick, Shaw, following hard, fly-kicked along the line, picked up in his stride, and had Renwick up with him to touch down. Crawford's goalkick from a sharp angle was blown wide.

This might have been the signal for a succession of glorious happenings in the next fifteen minutes. Within a minute of the Scottish try England were level, through a penalty goal kicked by Parker from 35 yards for a scrummage infringement, and within four minutes of that he kicked another from a little farther out for "off-side." They were two grand kicks that nevertheless seemed rather cruel. A little before this second goal a Scottish passing movement had broken down at Forrest, Unwin was nearly through, and a kick ahead by Brown went dead.

Brown, indeed, was playing the game of his life. He fell back to bring Macrae down as this most dangerous Scottish center broke clear, and Dick, too, was floored. Then Forrest made a long kick to touch on the right and Scotland were level, again in this terrific battle of swaying fortunes. Renwick picked up in a loose maul from the line-out and simply bullocked his way over for a try in the corner; again Crawford's goal kick was a little wide.

Scotland had only to get the ball—it could have been no more than once in every five scrummages—for the power of their midfield attack to be seen and gloried in, and their defense was hard as iron. They survived an anguishing moment when Dick missed a pass from Shaw, Reynolds swept through and Brown was going for the line at only a forward's pace. He was collared, but Giles overran the ball by little and somehow it was scrambled away.

A Try All The Way

Then, at 3.34, came as fine a Scottish try as one could wish for, and they were in the lead once more. The movement began on the let with Shaw and the forwards. Young made ground, slung a high pass to Duff, and at last the ball was clear of the ruck with Macrae striding on to give Dick the pass that mattered—a try all the way when England failed to nip it in the bud, for Sever never looked like catching Dick. The goal kick, again near the touch-line, was disallowed for an infringement in placing the ball.

By no means was this stupendous first half over. Almost at once Giles dodged round the scrummage, Reynolds ran fast, and the ball went by way of Crammer and Candler to Unwin, who was over in his stride to score England's first try. Parker's difficult kick at goal was a little wide, and they were at it hammer and tongs again. Just before the interval Shaw restored the lead to Scotland in a run of 40 yards that looked like a stand-off's dream. He picked up off an English forward's toes, swerved three ways to beat three men, Parker among them, and was in at the corner. Again Crawford's kick, from near the left touch-line this time, was blown off its course, but it was half-time and Scotland were bravely leading by 12-9.

The Second Half

The wind had veered, and Scotland in the second half had more of its force behind them. But for a long time England, with the forwards taking more of the play upon themselves, attacked by might and main, and only Scotland knows how they were kept out. Once the English pack pushed their adversaries over the goal-line in a body and lost the ball; generally in the loose the Scottish forwards were too quick for them, and always the menace of Shaw and Macrae hung over England.

Macrae was going hard downfield when Unwin cleverly cut in to divert his pass to the wing; again Shaw was nearly over, and Giles came across to stop him. It seemed that the pace could not last. Eventually England had the reward of much frantic scrummaging when, from a heel before the posts, Reynolds dropped a fine goal unmolested. It was England's turn to have their noses in front.

In Salute to Victory

The great virtue of this Scottish side was the fury with which they hit back. Macrae and Dick were through immediately, and again Unwin was there to rob Renwick of the pass. A penalty kick by Parker was, for once, a little short against the wind; Reynolds was sweeping on and Candler was crowded into touch near the line. Then Sever came round, but as his stride lengthened and the line was only feet away, Macrae brought him down. The excitement was hardly endurable. At last Parker was penalized in midfield for not playing the ball, and Crawford's kick from just inside the half-way line sent the ball sailing high between the posts as though in salute to victory.

Two points separated the teams now—there had never been more than three—but with time creeping on Crawford made it five with another penalty goal, and the English assault became desperate. They could not break through. Yet another penalty goal by Parker made the end even more hair-raising, but when Shaw, the man of the match, if there could be only one, ran through the entire defense for the last try, Scotland had indeed won the Triple Crown.

England—G. W. Parker (Blackheath); E. J. Unwin (Army and Rossyln Park), P. Cranmer (Moseley); P. L. Candler (St. Bartholomew's Hospital), H. S. Sever (Sale); F. J. Reynolds (Army and Old Cranleighans), J. L. Giles (Coventry); R. I. Longland, (Northampton), H. B. Toft (captain) (Waterloo), H. F. Wheatley (Coventry), R. M. Marshall (Oxford University), A. Track Federation Votes To Stiffen Eligibility Rules

The eligibility regulations for participation in the All-Japan Students Track and Field Federation's meets will be tightened up to preclude the entrance of students failing in their examinations, according to a decision taken by the Federation at its meeting Sunday, it was disclosed today.

At the same time, the one-year ruling will be applied, whereby students will not be allowed to compete in their first year at college. A full year must elapse after transfer to another school before a student will be eligible to compete.

These regulations, of course, will not concern inter-school meets not under the sanction of the Federation.

A proposal for an age limit of contestants was rejected as unfair to students in the universities, some of whom are compelled to enter them in comparatively late years. But the scholarship regulation to be enforced will affect the perennially competing athletes in some of the institutions.

The Federation voted to stage annual East versus West championships from this year on. On the East team will be athletes from Kanto, Hokuriku and the Hokkaido districts. On the West will be those from the Tokai, Kansai, Chugoku districts as well as Shikoku, Kyushu, Chosen, Manchoukuo and Taiwan.

This year's meet will be held either in the middle or the last part of June at the Koshien stadium, near Osaka, under plans discussed Sunday.

Manchoukuo Approved As Member Of I.T.F.F.; May Compete In Games

Athletes representing Manchoukuo are expected to compete in the 12th Olympic Games in Tokyo in 1940, their entrance duly approved by the authorities concerned.

This was the belief in Tokyo this morning with receipt of notification by the Manchoukuo Amateur Athletic Federation that its application for membership in the International Track and Field Federation has been approved.

The application was made by Dr. Tosaku Kinoshita, Japanese delegate, at the recent meeting of the Federation at Paris.

Formal announcement of Manchoukuo's membership in the Federation is expected to be made by the latter upon receipt of the entrance fee and proper application forms, which was requested by the secretary as of March 24.

Kita Is Elected President Of Skating Federation

Soichiro Kita, Minseito member of the Lower House, and Dr. Tetsujiro Tadokoro, professor of Hokkaido Imperial University, were elected as president and vice-president respectively of the Japan Skating Federation at its meeting, it was announced today. Delegates of district organizations, excepting Korea, attended.

Mr. Kita succeeds Dr. Harumichi Kubota as president.

Baron Masaue Inada, newly appointed chief-secretary of the executive committee for the 1940 Winter Games in Sapporo, explained in detail conditions in Sapporo.

An exchange of views took place in connection with preparations for the Sapporo meet. Three points, including negotiation with foreign countries, preparations within the country and discipline of Athletes and invitation of foreign champions, were fully discussed.

Mr. Kita will be dispatched to the 1939 general meeting of the International Skating Federation to explain the conditions in Sapporo and invite foreign athletes to participate in the Sapporo Winter Event. The scene of the meeting has not yet been decided

It was also agreed to invite two or three north European skaters to the next year's all-Japan championships which will be held at Sapporo. In order to make skating popular among the public, a campaign will be started to build as many outdoor rinks as possible

The following four advisers and three councilors of the Federation were apppointed: Dr. Harumitsu Kubo, former president, Baron Uemasa Inada, Shiro Kawakubo, president of the Japan Skating Association and Professor Unichi Miura of Manchuria Medical College as advisers; Jiro Takahashi, Masao Tsuda and Ri So Haku as councilors.

2 Grand Champs Continue Wins In Osaka Sumo

Grand Champions Futabayama and Tamanishiki continued their spotless records Tuesday in the 11th day of the 13-day sumo tournament now going on at Osaka, the only two yet to taste a defeat among the "makunouchi" or first ranking circle.

Tamanishiki took the measure of Musashiyama, another grand champion, without much trouble, once they stood up to wrestle. But he demurred in the "shikiri" or process of getting started. He stood up finally after eight false starts and promptly shoved Musashiyama out of the ring.

Futabayama Wins

Futabayama triumphed over Kagamiiwa, his arch rival two seasons ago, in impressive style. Kagamiiwa succeeded in attaining his favorite hold, grasping Futabayama's girdle with his right arm, but the grand champion effected a beautiful throw.

Grand Champion Minanogawa, who loses now and then to the disgust of the fans but is physically the strongest of them all, vanquished Ryogoku, a threat at all times, so one-sidedly that the fans were amazed at his great strength.

Nayoroiwa, stable-mate of Futabayama, virtually stole the show of the day by outfighting Mayedayama, who was promoted to "ohseki," rank below grand champion, after the official tournament last January. It was a torrid bout with Nayoroiwa checking Mayedayama's throws and finally winning by pushing his opponent out of the ring.

Haguroyama Stars

Haguroyama, another stable-mate of Futabayama, also came through with a sterling victory by throwing Tamanoumi, ace pupil of Tamanishiki.

The results of the principal bouts after the intermission follow:

Fujigadake defeated Ayawaka.
Kojimagawa defeated Ryuozan.
Tsurugamine defeated Kashimanada.
Toshuzan defeated Tsukubamine.
Fujinosato defeated Katsuragawa.
Kinkazan defeated Ayanishiki.

Nayoroiwa defeated Mayedayama.
Tomoegata won by forfeit from Taikyuzan.
Haguroyama defeated Tamanoumi.
Futabayama defeated Kagamiiwa.
Tamanishiki defeated Musashiyama.
Minanogawa defeated Ryogoku.

Ducks Unlimited, Inc. Formed In Chicago To Save Wild Life

CHICAGO, March 12—Leading sportsmen and conservationists completed organization today of Ducks Unlimited, Inc., and announced a five-year program designed to increase propagation of wild life.

Elected president of the organization was Louis H. Egan, of St. Louis. With more than $250,000 already subscribed, the organization announced it expected to raise a total of $3,000,000 from American sportsmen to carry out the program.

Ray E. Benson, of New York, executive secretary, said expenditures would be in the Canadian breeding grounds of wild fowl and would supplement $20,000,000 already expended in the United States for similar purposes by the Federal government.

Ducks Unlimited plans to spend $600,000 annually in the Canadian provinces of Alberta, Saskatchewan and Manitoba.

Canadian provincial officials, Benson said, have offered full cooperation. A board of four American and four Canadian directors will direct the work in the Dominion.

Other officers selected were five vice-presidents, including John C. Huntington, of New York; secretary, E. Merrick Low, of New York vice-president of the Corn Exchange Bank, and treasurer, Frederick H. Ecker, chairman of the board, Metropolitan Life Insurance Company.

"BELIEVE IT OR NOT" --by Ripley

Shot Four Times With One Bullet

On Friday, November 5th, about noon, a unique drama was enacted on Third Street, San Francisco, when the police were called to investigate some minor trouble in the vicinity. When their quarry tried to break away, the police fired, and bystanders fled in all directions. One innocent victim was shot through the arm, the bullet lodging in his chest. Jones, hastening around the corner, was hit a glancing blow just below his shoulder blades, the bullet piercing the flesh, four distinct times. The fact that Jones had played football many years and had very large back muscles, made this possible.

Futabayama Tops Musashiyama In Osaka Tourney

Grand Champons Tamanishiki and Futabayama were scheduled to fight it out this afternoon in the climaxing bout for the championship of the 13-day sumo tournament of the Tokyo professional wrestlers at Osaka. For each yesterday won his 12th straight victory in as many bouts, although taking on grand champions.

Most anticipated match of the day was that between Futabayama and Musashiyama. The former was unable to take on the latter during the Spring tournament at the Kokugikan because of Musashiyama's decision to rest from about the middle of the season. Musashiyama succeeded in obtaining a firm hold on Futabayama's girdle with his right arm. But as he began pushing, Futabayama sidestepped to the right and threw him down with a beautiful arm throw.

Rip-Snorting Bout

The bout between Tamanishiki and Minanogawa was a rip-snorting one. No sooner had they stood up than Tamanishiki took the offensive by beginning to push. And he succeeded in forcing the giant Minanogawa to the edge of the ring. But here, Minanogawa made a gallant check and turned aggressor. Tamanishiki, who sports the largest belly of them all and uses it time and again as a lever to lift his opponents out of the ring, found himself being pushed backward. He maneuvered himself to the right to stem the attack. Minanogawa essayed a final attempt to push Tamanishiki out but the latter checked it and effected a throw so quickly that it caught Minanogawa off his guard. The consequence was that he went sprawling onto the sand.

Mayedayama, who was promoted to an "ohseki" or rank immediately below grand champion after the January tournament here, engaged in a battle royal with Kyushuzan. They fought with both hands at each other's face almost in the manner of a boxing match. Then as each grasped the other's neck, Kyushuzan beat his opponent to a body throw. It was Mayedayama's seventh defeat in 12 bouts in his first appearance as an "ohseki"—not too good.

3 Lose Only Once

Komanosato, only Yedokko among the wrestlers, Itsutsushima and Akinoumi have lost but one bout each.

The results of the principal bouts after the intermission follow:

Fujigadake defeated Oyashima.
Toshuzan defeated Kashimanada.
Imizugawa defeated Mikumazan.
Yamatonishiki defeated Tsurugamine.
Orochigata defeated Fujinosato.
Akinoumi defeated Katsuragawa.
Ayawaka defeated Banshinzan.
Ryuozan defeated Kinkazan.
Onami defeated Hatasegawa.
Dewanohana defeated Ayanishiki.
Kojimakawa defeated Takanobori.

Tamanishiki defeated Minanogawa
Futabayama defeated Musashiyama.

Ireland Defeated By Wales, 11 To 5

SWANSEA, Wales, March 12—A strong second-half recovery gave Wales an 11-5 victory over Ireland in an international rugby match played today before a crowd of 40,000. It was the third successive defeat for the Irishmen, who led, 5-3, at half time.

The Welshmen won by a goal, and a try to Ireland's goal.

The concluding match of this year's tournament between England and Scotland will be played at Twickenham March 19, when a draw for the Scots will give them the championship. Should England triumph, Scotland, Wales and England will be tied for the title, with two victories and a loss each.

Great improvement was shown by Erin's representatives, but they weakened in the second half, particularly in the last thirty minutes, when the home team dominated the game. The Irishman played the last half without G. E. Cromey, clever halfback, who was kicked in the head a few moments before the interval.

A great breakaway by F. G. Moran, Clontarf three-quarter, put Ireland ahead soon after the game started. He intercepted a pass and downed the ball under the Welsh posts. H. R. McKibben, Queen's University, Belfast, adding the extra points. Then Wilfred Wooller, Cardiff star, reduced the margin by kicking a penalty goal.

In the second period A. R. Taylor, Cross Keys, scored an unconverted try for the Welshmen, who went further ahead near the close with a try by W. H. Clement, Llanelly wing three-quarter. W. G. Legge, Newport fullback, who was brought in for V. G. I. Jenkins, converted.

The teams:

WALES—Fullback, W. G. Legge (Newport) three-quarters, W. H. Clement (Llanelly), Idwal Rees (Swansea and Edinburgh), W. Wooller (Cardiff), E. C. Davey (Swansea); halfbacks, H. Tanner (Swansea), Cliff Jones (Cardiff); forwards, E. Morgan (Swansea), W. J. Travers (Newport), H. Rees (Cardiff), F. L. Morgan (Llanelly), E. Watkins (Cardiff), McCarley (Neath) W. Vickery (Aberavon), A. R. Taylor (Cross Keys).

IRELAND—Fullback, J. K. Craig (Queen's University, Belfast); three-quarters, F. G. Moran (Clontarf), H. R. McKibben (Queen's University, Belfast), D. Torrens (Limerick Bohemians), C. V. Boyle (Dublin University); halfbacks, G. E. Cromey, Queen's University (Belfast), G. J. Morgan (Old Belvedere); forwards C. Beamish (Royal Air Force), C. R. Graves (Wanderers), H. Kennedy (Bradford), J. Tierney (University College, Cork), R. B. Mayne (Queen's University, Belfast), H. H. J. Sayers (Army), S. N. Walker (Instonians), D. O'Loughlin (University College, Cork).

Baron Inada To Leave For America, Europe On 1940 Winter Games

Baron Masatane Inada, former president of the Japan Ski Association who has agreed to assume office as General Secretary of the Fifth Olympic Winter Games Committee, will visit America and the various nations of Europe to make informal discussions concerning the 1940 Games at Sapporo.

Baron Inada is expected to leave from Yokohama aboard the Tatsuta Maru on May 12.

At the executive meeting of the committee on April 7 at Sapporo, the budget of ¥1,500,000 was approved.

Last-Minute Goal Wins For Bruins Over Rangers, 2-1

By JOSEPH C. NICHOLS
N.Y. Times

NEW YORK, March 14—A sensational solo score by Woody Dumart with only 22 seconds of regulation play remaining enabled the Boston Bruins to defeat the New York Rangers in a thrilling National Hockey League game at Madison Square Garden last night.

With almost everybody resigned to overtime, Dumart seized the disk in Boston ice, skated the length of the rink and blazed a shot past Davey Kerr that enabled the visitors to skate off the ice the winners by the score of 2 to 1.

Dumart's shot blasted whatever hopes the Rangers had of finishing the season in first place in the American Group, an eminence which the Bruins themselves clinched beyond all possibility of overthrow.

The game, a wild, hard-bumping encounter in which furious action obtained from first bell to last, was witnessed by an enthusiastic crowd of 16,000 fans. The paid attendance was 14,614.

Bruins Forced to Rally

The Boston skaters had to come from behind, for the Patrickmen went into the lead on a goal by Alex Shibicky early in the second period, and held this advantage well into the third frame. Then Charley Sands ruined Kerr's chance of a shut-out by capitalizing relays from Ray Getliffe and Bill Cowley before Dumart came through with his pulse-stirring contribution.

Although they trailed for so long, there seemed little doubt of Boston's ultimate success all through the proceedings. The visitors seemed much more sturdy than the New Yorkers, who, crippled by the absence of Art Coulter, had to resort often to makeshift defense combinations. Play was confined more frequently to Boston's ice, but the Massachusetts defensemen were hardy and tough and accorded the New Yorkers little opportunity to fire effectively at Goalie Tiny Thompson.

Indeed, through the entire game Thompson was called on to make only 10 saves, as against 24 for Kerr.

With the start of play the New Yorkers grouped in Boston ice and had a good opportunity when Eddie Shore was expelled for tripping Neil Colville. This advantage did not help the Blue Shirts, however, for they were unable to get a single shot at Thompson all the time Shore was on the fence.

When Phil Watson was penalized for charging Bauer, the Bruins sent all five skaters across their rivals' line. Their best chance came when Flash Hollett rifled a long, straight drive at Kerr, who blocked with some difficulty.

When the second period got under way, the Rangers rushed persistently. Their efforts were rewarded in 5:39 when Shibicky, taking passes from Mac and Neil Colville, rifled a shot from the left into Boston's cage. The puck bounced out of the net in a twinkling and many of the Bruins protested to the referees that it hadn't gone in at all, but their arguments went unheeded.

Cowley Assists Sands

The Bruins rushed fiercely after this tally, only to find Kerr ready to handle their hottest drives. They carried their charge over to the third period and, after numerous rebuffs, succeeded.

Getliffe carried the disk over New York's border and passed to Cowley. The latter rushed the cage and drew Kerr to one side, whereupon he transferred to Sands, who easily caged the puck from the right in 11:27.

This turn of events spurred the Rangers to attack again. They were in Boston ice almost continuously, and taxed the Bruins' guards to the limit. Overtime seemed a sure thing when suddenly, following a face-off deep in his ice, Dumart gathered the rubber and streaked over New York's line, to pierce Kerr's guard from the left in 19:38.

Neil Colville was pressed into service on the Ranger defense, and Babe Pratt played center for the Blue Shirts towards the end.

The line-up:

	Rangers (1)	Boston (2)
Goal	Kerr	Thompson
Defense	Heller	Shore
Defense	Cooper	Portland
Center	N. Colville	Sands
Wing	M. Colville	Getliffe
Wing	Shibicky	Cowley
Spare	Watson	Clapper
Spare	Dillon	Weiland
Spare	Patrick	Pettinger
Spare	Pratt	Hollet
Spare	C. Smith	Dumart
Spare	Hextall	Schmidt
Spare	Hiller	Jackson

Cunningham Feat Of 4:07.4 Mile Climaxed Season

By ARTHUR J. DALEY
N.Y. Times

NEW YORK, March 14—Just for a change, Glenn Cunningham was the chief topic of track conversation yesterday following two magnificent performances in the Knights of Columbus games at Madison Square Garden on Saturday. The cantering Kansan triumphed only once, but that happened to be man's second fastest indoor mile, a 4:07.4 achievement that is a full second under the accepted world record.

But when Galloping Glenn attempted to tack on that a victory in the Casey 600 he missed a bullseye, even though he was able to hit the target slightly off center. He chased Jim Herbert to a new world record of 1:11.1, with Howard Borck splitting the pair of them as the three finished under a two-yard blanket.

As they flashed up the straightaway Borck charged in on the outside, Cunningham finishing with such a burst on the inside that few of the crowd of 16,000 noticed that he was as close to the winner as he was. Unofficial clockers caught the Kansas in 1:11.3, which was the identical time of Chuck Hornbostel's world record.

A Matter of Opinion

Every one wondered what Cunningham might have done had he not run so blazing a mile an hour earlier. So two opinions were asked and given on the subject. Oddly enough, one had been offered the night before the meet by Herbert and the other after the race by Cunningham himself.

Herbert declared, "Borck is all wrong in saying that Glenn won't figure in the Casey 600 tomorrow. I've trained with that fellow at N. Y. U. and I know what he can do. The Columbian Mile will warm him up so perfectly that he will be red hot by the time we leave the starting mark for the 600. Don't count Cunningham out. If he ever trained for this race alone none of us could catch him."

With that interesting observation as a background, Cunningham was asked what he would have done if he had not run the mile. Glenn's blue eyes twinkled and he grinned broadly. "About 1:15," he said laconically, thus indicating that Mr. Herbert was as right as rain.

Needed Just One More Lap

Cunningham looked as fresh as the proverbial daisy in the get-together at the Hotel Capitol after the meet. "That 600 was easy," he declared. "It took nothing out of me. I just got a little more exercise. The mile was what I was after, and when I won that I was satisfied. I still don't think that I belonged in the 600. It is too short for me without training for it. But another lap and it would have been a different story."

To that last sentence Herbert nodded very emphatic agreement.

It was a smashing finale that the K. of C. games furnished the fast-fading season. The major campaign is at an end, with only the metropolitan championships at the Jersey City Armory on Saturday coming as something of an anti-climax.

Upsets and records marked the end of the season. Little Ben Johnson, after twenty-four straight victories in preliminaries, semi-finals and finals at all sprint distances, was beaten by Herbert Thompson. Don Lash, invincible at two miles, met his master in Norman Bright, who unreeled the fastest race of the year, 9:02. Herbert's 600, Cunningham's mile and Allan Tolmich's hurdling all were the fastest of the campaign.

K.R.A.C. Wins Hyogo Prefectural Cage Ball Title, Beating Kosho

(Special to The Japan Times)

KOBE, April 11—The annual Hyogo Prefectural basketball tournament was won by the strong K.R. & A.C. quintet without any trouble when it downed the Kobe Kosho Club five by a score of 40 to 26.

The score does not indicate how badly the Kobe Kosho Club was defeated by the hands of the Kracsmen. The Koshoites were held to only one field goal in the first half and accumulated most of their points via fouls, while the Kracsmen sunk field goals one after another. Austen, dimunitive forward, scored 12 points in five minutes. He was the high point man of the game. Every player scored for the Kracsmen.

Baer Outpoints Tommy Farr To Score Upset

By JOSEPH C. NICHOLS
N.Y. Times

NEW YORK, March 12—Max Baer came back to town last night and jumped right into the front ranks of contenders for the world heavyweight championship. The California battler decisively trounced Tommy Farr, the Welshman who holds the British Empire title, in a grueling fifteen-round struggle at Madison Square Garden and in so doing won back much of the prestige he lost when he was so ingloriously beaten by Joe Louis more than two years ago.

Baer, so often described—and not without justification—as the Livermore Larruper, Madcap Max and by other appellations, surprised a near-capacity gathering of 19,000 fans by waging an aggressive, courageous battle against foeman who at ring time was the 2-to-1 choice to win. And in establishing his victory Baer demonstrated he still is both the Livermore Larruper and Madcap Max.

For he sent the iron-jawed Farr to the canvas twice, a feat that the destructive punching Louis was unable to perform in a fifteen-round bout last September. And his madcap proclivities made themselves apparent by the manner in which he joshed the perplexed Farr time and again as the latter sought obstinately but futilely to bring down the strong Californian.

Loser Draws Cheers

The crowd took kindly to Baer and his performance and cheered him to the echo at the finish. Farr, too, was hailed for his courage in the face of inexorable defeat.

The exact paid attendance was 18,222, and the gross receipts, surprisingly, were $74,409.22.

In scoring his upset victory Baer won the unanimous award of Referee Arthur Donovan and Judges George Lecron and Bill Healy. Donovan scored thirteen rounds for Baer and two for Farr; Healy gave Baer eleven, Farr three and called one even, while Lecron voted nine for Baer, five for Farr and one even. This observer's score sheet showed eleven rounds for Baer and four for Farr.

Both fighters were in superb condition and threw punches without stint throughout the fifteen rounds. Baer weighed 212 pounds, Farr 208½.

Although he won the first four rounds by comfortable margins, Baer at the same time absorbed considerable punishment about the head from Farr's cutting, straight lefts. His left eye was a special target for the Welshman's southpaw, and when the seventh round rolled around the eye was completely closed. He fought the last half of the bout seeing with only his right eye.

Down in Second and Third

It was in the second and third rounds that Farr was floored. He was first dropped for a count of 3 by a left hook that came from nowhere to land squarely on his jaw. In the third frame Max let fly with a long right that found its mark on Farr's temple and Farr tumbled to the floor to take a count of 6.

What seemed to perturb Farr more than the beating he was taking was Baer's maneuvering him into the Californian's corner at the end of every round, forcing the Welshman to expend much-needed energy in walking across the ring to his own stool.

Baer started with a wild attack and smothered his foe in the first session with free-swinging rights to head and body. In the second round Baer shot his left hook to the jaw and spilled his foe. The Welshman arose and fought like a tiger.

At the start of the third Baer brought his long right across to Farr's temple, and Farr collapsed. He recovered quickly, winked to his corner to signify he was all right and got up confidently, carrying the action to the Californian.

The Welshman carried his attack over to the next round, only to lose it because of a low punch. In the fifth, too, Tommy piled up a large margin although thirty seconds before the end he was almost spilled again. The ex-champion enjoyed a wide margin in the sixth, seventh and eighth.

Rally by Welshman

Farr came into his own in the ninth and tenth, when he consistently beat the Californian to the punch. The Welshman avoided trouble in the eleventh and twelfth. They traded wildly in the last three rounds, Farr slipping to one knee but arising immediately in the fourteenth. Both warriors were badly bruised about the face at the end.

Tiger Jack Fox, Spokane (Wash.) light heavyweight, had little trouble disposing of Johnny Whiters of Detroit in the semi-final, slated for six rounds. Referee Donovan intervened at 2:15 of the fourth to save Whiters from further punishment. The winner weighed 181 pounds, Whiters 201¼.

In other six-rounders Phil Somese, 188¾, Westbury, L. I., defeated Charley Massera, 187, Pittsburgh, and Herbie Katz, 168, Brownsville, knocked out Phil Janul, 172¾, Newark, at 1:31 in the first. Izzy Mays, 155, East Side outpointed Billy Kelly, 160, West Side, Elza Thompson 223, Indianapolis, beat George Maselli, 200, Mount Vernon, and Steve Martin, 210¼, Camden, stopped Luke Garberg, 201½, Fresno, Calif., 2:51 of the second round. The last three were four-round matches.

3 'Nisei' Likely To Shine In Varsity Ball Loop

Three "nisei"—American born Japanese—are expected to make the sports pages in the Spring season of the Tokyo Six University baseball league which opens Saturday at the Meiji Shrine stadium with a doubleheader. They are Shigeo Kameda, selected as regular second baseman for Meiji, who hails from Hawaii, Chikaki Honda, who has been a regular outfielder for Keio the last three years and is from Hawaii, and Tetsu Aratani, listed as a substitute infielder for Keio, who comes from California.

Kameda is having his first chance to show his stuff. He succeeds Tsunekawa, who was the best base runner in the league last year and one of its best stickers. The combination of Kameda and Shortstop Sugiura is considered the best doubleplay duo in the league. Tsunekawa was not a flashy fielder. If Kameda picks up on his hitting, he should be one of the most valuable player on the championship defending Meiji squad.

Honda is one of the old reliables of Keio, along with Captain and First Baseman Haiyama, Pitcher Nakada and Right Fielder Kusumoto. This is his last year and it is probable that he will have a big season. Potentially, he is one of the best batters in the league.

A bad knee kept Aratani out of play throughout last year. But word comes from the Keio camp that he is in the pink now and will be called upon for considerable action. He is said not only to be a fine performer at third base but a good hitter. Keio needs hitting, and for this reason it will be no surprise if he develops into the regular at the hot corner before the season is very much under way.

Duus Wins Badminton Open Tourney At Kobe

Special To The Japan Times

KOBE, April 11—Captain Tommy Duus of the K. R. and A. C. won the badminton open tournament at the K. R. and A. C. by defeating V. Zolotareff in the final. Zolotareff gave him stiff competition, but the former proved too much for him.

In another handicap match, T. Duus whipped L. Amram in the finals.

Women open and handicap tournaments were both won by Miss L. Spain, when she defeated Miss Z. Goldman and Mrs. Grossman. Both games were very close.

"BELIEVE IT OR NOT"—by Ripley

Shortest Railroad

Clallam County, Washington, can undoubtedly claim the distinction of having the shortest railroad ever built. In 1890 Norman R. Smith had it figured out that a railroad would come to Port Angeles from the west, and the only approach was on the south side of Lake Crescent. That route led through a narrow pass, on one side of which was a natural bench. Mr. Smith concluded that some railroad company would someday want this bench, and would pay well for it, to avoid blasting through the pass at some other point. So in order to "hold the pass," and legally say he owned the railroad therein, he procured a full-length rail, cut it in two, dragged rails and ties up the mountain, and built his own railroad—only 15 feet long, but just as wide as any other.

Futabayama Is Invincible At Osaka Sumo; Downs Tamanishiki For Title

Handsome Futabayama, one of the four "yokozuna" or grand champions in professional sumo (Japanese wrestling) circles, virtually established himself as invincible in a duly sanctioned tournament by defeating Grand Champion Tamanishiki Wednesday afternoon in the climaxing bout of the 13-day tourney at Osaka. Thus did the championship go to him as he and Tamanishiki were up to the time they entered the ring the only two undefeated in the "makunouchi" or first ranking circle.

Futabayama won the championship of the Spring tournament last January at the Kokugikan bowl at Ryogoku here for his fourth undefeated season. Incidentally, he established an unprecedented record of 53 consecutive victories in the home titular grounds of the wrestlers.

Italian Officers Present

Among the rabid spectators which filled the new bowl at Osaka to overflowing were 14 officers of the Italian cruiser Raimondo Monte Cuccholl, flagship of the Italian Far Eastern Squadron in port at Kobe on a goodwill visit to this country.

As it was expected the bout between Futabayama and Tamanishiki was a humdinger. The fans went into a frenzy as the two mounted the ring to do battle for the tournament's championship. No sooner had they stood up than each thrust his right arm through the other's defense for firm grisp on the girdle to be on even terms.

Neither dared to take the offensive as this places him at a disadvantage in this indigenous sport of Japan when two opponents are evenly matched. And they stood thus for a minute or two, wary of the other's strategy. The referee, on the advice of the five judges at ringside, called "mizuiri" or a breathing space of a minute. The two were separated, tightened their girdles, were made to assume the identical positions before the "mizuiri," and time was called in. Changing his grip on Tamanisihki's girdle, Futabayama essayed a throw with his right arm. And Tamanishiki attempted to check it. But in so doing, he lost his balance, and Futabayama, quick to see the opening, started pushing and threw Tamanishiki outside of the ring.

Uppermost question now with the "Summer" season of the championships of the Ryogoku bowl approaching next month is: who is going to stop Futabayama's winning streak?

Minanogawa Wins

Grand Champion Minanogawa, largest of all wrestlers, won convincingly Wednesday from Grand Champion Musashiyama. He forced Musashiyama to the edge of the ring, then stuck his right hand at Musashiyama's throat and with Herculean strength, shoved him onto the sand outside of the ring.

Mayedayama, who was promoted to "obseki" or champion after the January tournament at Ryogoku by virtue of his splendid performance, redeemed himself after a slump of seven defeats in the Osaka tourney, by throwing Kagamiiwa, who also is an "obseki."

2 Lose Only One Bout

Komanosato, only Tokyo born wrestler, and Itsutsushima finished the tourney with but one defeat each by taking the measure of Aobayama and Katsuragawa respectively. Akinoumi, who up to Wednesday had but one setback charged against him, was defeated by Haguroyama, stablemate of Futabayama.

The results of the principal bouts after the intermission follow:

Oyashima beat Ayanishiki.
Kojimakawa beat Jinmuzan.
Yamatonishiki beat Imizugawa.
Tachiwaka beat Bochozan.
Fujinosato beat Shachinosato.
Dewanohana beat Toshuzan.
Komanosato beat Aobayama.
Takanobori beat Tsurugamine.
Fujigadake beat Onami.
Banshinzan beat Kaneminato.
Itsutsushima beat Katsuragawa.
Wakushima beat Kinkazan.
Haguroyama beat Akinoumi.
Kasagiyama beat Hatasogawa.
Tsukubamine beat Tomoegata.
Nayoroiwa beat Orochigata.
Dewaminato beat Oshio.
Ayanobori beat Kaikozan.
Tatekabuto beat Kyushuzan.
Tamanoumi beat Banjaku.
Ryogoku beat Asahigawa.
Mayedayama beat Kagamiiwa.
Minanogawa beat Musashiyama.
Futabayama beat Tamanishiki.

City To Discuss Site At Komazawa For Games

The Tokyo Municipal Olympic Committee was scheduled to discuss plans for the construction of the main Olympic stadium at Komazawa at its meeting this afternoon.

Considerable importance is attached to the meeting inasmuch as it is the first time the project will be formally considered. Accordingly, it is being closely watched by the Tokyo Olympic Organizing Committee, and a favorable decision is likely to speed up construction of the stadium.

Austin Retires From Davis Cup Annual Matches

Observer

LONDON, March 20—H. W. Austin will play no more Davis Cup tennis. Family affairs and the desire to get more enjoyment out of the game than is, apparently, possible for amateur players at the top of the tree, or even only very near it, has caused our best player to take this momentous decision.

It is no case of the captain leaving the sinking ship. Austin rightly considers that, now that a new voyage has to be entered upon, a new crew is also desirable. They will train on together, and, it may be hoped, not be long before they are worthy successors to the team which, from 1933 to 1936, kept England at the head of the tennis-playing nations.

Austin will, as he has said, now be able to enjoy the game without the heavy responsibilities which have been his in the past. He has fully done his share so far as Davis Cup tennis is concerned, as his record shows. Since 1929, when he first appeared in England's team, he has played forty-four singles and won thirty-three of them. Among his victories he can count successes over R. Menzel (twice), E. Maier, G. de Stefani, H. L. de Morpurgo, V. B. McGrath, H. E. Vines, W. Allison (twice), F. X. Shields, S. B. Wood, D. Budge J. H. Crawford, and F. Parker—a sufficiently fine bag to make one wonder more than ever that the highest individual honors of the game—the winning of the singles championship at Wimbledon—has hitherto eluded him.

Perhaps, with the feeling of greater freedom and less responsibility, he will bring it off this year. His is a name that certainly ought to be on the roll of champions, for no player since the days of the Dohertys has displayed so classical a style. If more of our young players had copied Austin instead of the uncopyable Perry they might be much better players than they are.

19,000 Witness Amateur Boxing In N.Y. Garden

By JOSEPH C. NICHOLS
N.Y. Times

NEW YORK, March 8—The Golden Gloves amateur boxing tournament, which has come to be regarded as the outstanding program of its kind in New York, closed last night in Madison Square Garden. A crowd of 19,000 fans, their appetites whetted through following the progress of the warriors through two months of preliminary skirmishes, watched the program, which comprised twenty-five contests.

Last night's competitors were survivors of a field of almost 9,000 boxers who turned out for the first sessions of the Golden Gloves, conducted in nineteen cities along the Atlantic Seaboard.

Eight localities, Miami, Trenton Philadelphia, Binghamton, Jersey City, Newburgh, Hempstead and New York, were represented on the final program, which was conducted by The Daily News Welfare Association with the sanction of the Metropolitan Association of the A. A. U.

Special for New Yorkers

Competition was in three classifications, the open, sub-novice and special sub-novice, the last-named group being composed only of New York boxers. In addition to the eight regulation classes of the sport the tournament brought out a new division, the 105-pound weight in the special sub-novice group.

In addition to receiving the miniature boxing gloves of gold that are symbols of the tournament championship, the winners of last night's finals gained first call to represent an Eastern team in a meet against a Western Golden Gloves aggregation in the Garden on March 21.

To Leo Kalt, 16-year-old student at James Monroe High School, went the honor of capturing the first championship of the show. Engaging Carlo Constantino in the special sub-novice 105-pound class fight, Kalt won the decision after an exceedingly close battle.

The program's first knockout occurred in a heavyweight open semi-final, with Abner Powell of the Salem Crescent Club of New York stopping Anthony Kollomick of Hempstead in 40 seconds of the second round, with a terrific left hook to the jaw. Kollomick lay inert on the canvas for several minutes before he regained command of his senses.

William Speary successfully defended his 112-pound open crown against Steve Bono of the Bay Ridge Boys Club. Speary, who, though he resides in Nanticoke, Pa., was fighting for Philadelphia, stopped his Brooklyn foe in 2 minutes 25 seconds of the first round.

Bono took a count of nine shortly after the start of hostilities, under the force of a right to the jaw. A two-fisted barrage sent him down for nine once more, and he was so easy a target when he arose a second time that Referee Frank Morrish halted the one-sided fray.

Sam Di Pasquale of Philadelphia garnered the 112-pound sub-novice championship by defeating Hugh Mullen of New York. The fight was hotly waged, and there was little to choose between the warriors. The decision was roundly booed by the crowd.

Keio Battles Waseda In Tennis, April 16-17

Waseda and Keio will meet in their 29th dual tennis tournament Saturday and Sunday at the Keio university courts at Hiyoshidai. Incidentally, the championship of the Kanto inter-collegiate title will be at stake.

Waseda broke Keio's string of 10 straight victories last Fall because of the absence of Jiro Yamagishi, Keio's No. 1 player, away for Davis Cup competition. But he is not leaving until June and is counted upon to lead Keio to victory.

Badminton Plan For Open Tourneys Praised By Purcell

TORONTO, March 11—The greatest Badminton player of them all, Jack Purcell of Toronto, hailed with cheer the Canadian Badminton Association's approval of the principle of open tournaments. He believes the move will lead the game to greater popularity.

Recognized as the world's professional Badminton champion, Purcell said he was ready to compete against the amateurs as soon as the C. B. A. draws up the final regulations with which it will open the way for mixed playing ability, he's not greatly concerned about being beaten.

Purcell, who has toured extensively in what he terms Badminton promotion, told of the game's tremendous strides in the United States. He recently returned from a tour of California in which he defended his title.

In two or three years he believes United States players will be on a par with Canadians and with the game sweeping Europe, especially in the Scandinavian countries, he foresaw tremendous possibilities for open tournaments with players from all over the world.

In Purcell's opinion the leading Canadian professionals are Stan Cutts and C. W. Aikman of Montreal, George (Junior) Goodwin of Quebec, former Ottawa star, and Bernard Cooke of Winnipeg. The leading amateurs, based on their showing in the Canadian championships, are Johnny Samis of Vancouver, Jim Forsythe of Winnipeg, and Len Storey and Rod Phelan of Toronto.

Though conceding the amateurs an edge in youth and competitive play, Purcell believes any four leading professionals would beat any four leading amateurs, but only by the narrowest margin.

Nagai To Thank Americans For Support At Cairo

Domei Tsushin

NEW YORK, April 12—En route back to Japan from the annual plenary session of the International Olympic Committee held at Cairo last month, Dr. Matsuzo Nagai, secretary-general of the Japanese Olympic Organizing Committee, arrived here at 9 tonight aboard the liner Europa. He will leave for Vancouver by air Thursday afternoon.

To Give Dinners

Dr. Nagai will be host to some twenty members of the American Olympic Committee including Garland M. Hammond, former president of that body, at a dinner to be given at the St. Regis Hotel here tomorrow night. Fourteen Japanese residents including Consul-General Kaname Wakasugi and Ichiro Sawada, representative of the Japanese Amateur Athletic Association, will be also present at the dinner.

Dr. Nagai expects to express at the dinner party Japan's heart-felt gratitude for America's support of Tokyo as the site of the 1940 Olympics at the Cairo meeting of the I.O.C.

It was meanwhile learned that Avery Brundage, chairman of the American Olympic Committee, will arrive here at 9 Thursday morning and plans to lunch with Dr. Nagai and Mr. Sawada as well as members of the A.O.C. at 1 on the afternoon.

Kano Also Arriving

Professor Jigoro Kano, also Japanese delegate at the Cairo meeting of the I.O.C., will also arrive here on Thursday morning by the liner Ile de France and will presumably attend the luncheon to be given by Mr. Brundage.

It is revealed that Professor Kano has already accepted a telegraphic request from the Columbia Broadcasting Company for a 15-minute radio speech on the Olympic situation beginning at 4:15 Thursday afternoon.

The Tokyo Olympic Organizing Committee will secure contact with the International Fencing Federation through Lieutenant-Colonel Suglielmo Scalise, military attache to the Italian Embassy here, it was announced after the latter's visit to the O.O.C.'s office Wednesday afternoon.

Lieutenant-Colonel Scalise visited the O.O.C.'s office to make arrangements for the meeting between the organizing committee and Dr. Puccio Pucci, member of the visiting Italian Mission and secretary of the Italian Amateur Athletic Federation.

During the course of conversation, the O.O.C. officials discovered that Lieutenant-Colonel Scalise was a noted fencer of Italy in his younger days, and is an authority on fencing rules and regulations.

The O.O.C. accordingly asked Lieutenant-Colonel Scalise to secure contact with the International Fencing Federation for the organization, which was accepted by the visitor.

Bridge That Cost Nothing

The beautiful, all-granite Bridge of Don, in Aberdeen, Scotland, was built in 1831 at a cost of $85,000, yet it didn't cost tax-paying citizens a single shilling. More than 500 years before, in the year 1320, the Bridge of Bulgownie was built over the river in exactly the same spot, and the meager sum of 2 pounds 8 shillings threepence halfpenny (equal to $12.06) was left by Sir Alexander Hays to take care of the bridge. However, it needed little care and consequently the fund with compounding interest grew to such great size that the new bridge was built complete from the proceeds of Sir Alexander's small donation.

Speedy Blind Stenographer

At the age of 6, Miss Laura Gregory lost her eyesight in an accident, but it certainly has proved no handicap to her as far as her ability to earn a living is concerned. She learned stenography at an early age, and has become so proficient that even the best stenographers would have to step on it to equal her. While working for a department store in Richmond, Virginia, she wrote 119 entirely different business letters without a single error, taking her dictation from 29 different people. Those who know her declare Miss Gregory is gifted with remarkable powers to overcome her loss of sight. When flying in an airplane, she can estimate altitude accurately, can tell whether they are flying over mountains, or valleys, or whether over land or sea.

Wallop, And Not The Baseball Is Major Factor In Home Runs

N.Y. Times

WASHINGTON, — Government scientists batted out the theory today that the wallop, not the baseball, is the major factor in home runs.

Wheeling their mechanical home-run swatter out to Griffith Stadium Bureau of Standards experts loaded it up with American and National League balls and aimed it at the far-flung fences.

The very first shot was a dandy—it cleared the centerfield fence, soared over the bleachers and fell beyond the wall—the longest base hit ever banged out in the American League park.

"Wow," exclaimed Edward B. Eynon Jr., secretary of the Senators, "that beats Babe Ruth's best home run!"

The scientists fed the Federal fence buster another ball.

It was the same story—over the garden wall and out of the park.

"We've got to tame the machine down," said Dr. H. L. Dryden, "or it'll bankrupt us."

Reducing the air-pressure which operates the machine, the experimenters contented themselves with triples and doubles for the rest of the day.

Along about seventh-inning time, they came to their first conclusion—that the much-talked-of difference between the two big league balls is not enough to count scientifically. They all flew about the same distance from home plate.

"The science of the home run," said Dryden, "is hard to pin down. Give me two baseballs and I can prove almost anything. The emphasis should be on the batter, not the ball."

Covers and stitches—long discussed as the reasons for the liveliness or deadness of the balls—are but trifles in hitting, he explained.

"The core and the yarn in the ball make much more difference," Dryden added, "and they're about equal in the two balls."

Number Of Stars In Varsity Loop Have Graduated

A number of familiar faces will be missing when the Spring season of the Tokyo Six University Baseball league, the most talked about circuit in Japan, gets underway at noon Saturday with a doubleheader. Meiji meets Tokyo Imperial in the curtain-raiser and Waseda takes on Rikkyo in the nightcap.

Meiji, last year's champions of both the Spring and Fall seasons, will miss Captain Sakurai, the best backstop last year, Second Baseman Tsunekawa, the league's best base runner and a timely hitter, Third Baseman Nihei, and Outfielders Murakami and Mizusawa.

Meiji Misses Sakurai

That backstop position is a hard one to fill for Meiji. The fine work of Pitchers Shimizu, southpaw, and Kodama, largely in the relief role, was much due to the able leadership of Sakurai, who was a fighter. Tsukakoshi will be called upon to fill his shoes. Or the assignment may go to Kamibayashi. Right now, this seems a mighty weak spot for Meiji.

Shigeo Kameda, who hails from Hawaii, has first call to succeed Tsunekawa at second. As a fielder, he is far better than Tsunekawa. As concerns base running, he is plenty fast and there is no reason why he should not be equal of Tsunekawa if he acquires the latter's boldness and quick thinking to dash for a base when such opportunity makes a peep. While in Hawaii, he was considered one of the best natural hitters in the high school league. But he seems to have suffered since coming to Japan, largely through changing his stance and swing. Once he gets going, he should be one of the leaders in the hitting department.

Big Hole at Third

Nihei left a big hole at third when he graduated. He was one of the best players at the hot corner, quick in handling the ball with a beeline throw to first. He was one of the longest hitters in the league, coming through on several occasions with homers. Kamei has a difficult task ahead of him, trying to equal the play of a greater third baseman.

Tokyo Imperial probably is lost without the presence of the diminutive Yasuji Kubota, who did practically all the pitching for the last three years. Here was a pitcher who deserved to win many a game—he did win a number—for he pitched sterling ball but was on the short side of the score because his teammates failed to hit. Not only that, he was given ragged support afield. Yutani, a righthander, will do most of the moundwork for Teidai. His job will not be easy for Teidai is the weakest hitting team in the league.

Wakahara Graduated

The situation that confronts Teidai is virtually the same with Waseda, without Shozo Wakahara, the best and smartest moundsman for the last three years in the circuit. He had excellent control, the best weapon for a pitcher. Then his nice change of pace was always a source of trouble to opposing batsmen. On top of it, he was a good hitter, one of the most dangerous in the league. He was likely to smash one into the left field bleachers at any time.

Southpaw Kondo, understudy of Wakahara for the last three years, will be No. 1 pitcher this season. But experts will not be surprised if Matsui, another southpaw, should blossom forth into one of the best hurlers of the league. He showed lots of promise in his debut last Fall. He has a nice fast ball and deceptive curve. But his best asset is his coolness under fire.

Meiji is a strong favorite to take both games from Teidai. Waseda is a slight favorite over Rikkyo, but it will be no surprise if the two split the series.

Hagen, Kirkwood May Not Appear In Exhibitions

Walter Hagen, one of the world's greatest professional golfers, and Joe Kirkwood, trick shot expert, may not appear in exhibitions when they arrive here shortly, although they want to, it was indicated today.

The two had requested the Japan Golf Association from Singapore last month to arrange a series of exhibitions in Japan. But the Association has been hesitating to accept, skeptical if the two would draw as much as Gene Sarazen who was here last Fall, and because of the China Incident.

A further communication was received by the Association from Hagen and Kirkwood from Shanghai on Wednesday, which reduced considerably the compensation they had originally designated.

The new difficulty is whether the two will be able to take out of Japan the receipts from the exhibition because of the foreign exchange control law. The Association is making inquiries with the officials concerned. And it is feared that the two pros may not be able to appear in exhibitions after all.

City Committee Doesn't Object To Komazawa

No objection was voiced against Komazawa as the site for the construction of the main Olympic stadium for the 12th Olympic Games in 1940 at the meeting of the Municipal Olympic Committee Thursday afternoon.

A field trip to the proposed site was made after the session. Deputy Choji Minabe explained the projected plans. The committee is to meet early next week and is expected to reach a favorable decision. The proposed sites for the Olympic Village and swimming pool at Komazawa have already been inspected by the committee.

At Thursday's meeting, Deputy Mayor Minabe explained to the committee that the stadium at Komazawa would accommodate 100,000 persons as against 70,000 of the projected enlargement of the stadium at the Outer Gardens of the Meiji Shrine.

Estimated cost of the stadium at Komazawa is from ¥6,000,000 to ¥6,500,000, Mr. Minabe told the committee. The Government's subsidy is ¥4,000,000. The remainder of ¥2,000,000 can be met by the increased receipts from the upping of the seating capacity from 70,000 to 100,000, Mr. Minabe said.

Martin Defeats Hough By K.O.

Times, London

LONDON, March 22—The return match between Frank Hough and Tommy Martin was fought in the National Sporting Club ring at Earls Court last night. This time Martin won in the ninth round, the same in which Hough had won the original encounter. Martin will now be allowed a second attempt to beat the Italian, Merlo Preciso.

Hough approached his task rather like an elephant beset by a large fly—patient, grim, and hopeful that one of these days he would be able to swat a dangerous insect with his trunk. Hough's trunk consisted of his right hand—unfortunately for him not nearly so deadly as a trunk—which every now and then, when his attacker grew over confident and came to grips, was driven into the ribs. But for the most part, Martin moved, almost buzzed, round and round, darting in with lefts and stinging rights, almost without fear of reply. Hough's slowness always was monumental, and now that Martin had found a way to make him fight at long range his thinking also was so slow that he seemed to have little left but his stubborn courage.

Hough followed him dully round the ring, landing very occasionally and not nearly hard enough to discourage Martin from his periodic swift counterattacks. In the course of these Martin scored at least three points to one. One would have estimated the proportion at six to one but for the fact that many of his blows landed on Hough's cover-up guard.

There was admittedly an unexpected and startling development in Round Five, for, just as Martin appeared to be lambasting his man as he pleased, and Hough merely staggered after him, the opening did come for a twohanded assault more like the old Hough. Then it became Martin's turn to wilt, and if Hough only could have achieved the semblance of a speed-up, his man would have been in serious trouble. Martin is not impressive under intense pressure. In Round Six, again, Martin had his anxious moments, though this time his punching was ample for the occasion, and Hough went to his corner weaker than before. Why, incidentally, Hough hardly ever shot out a straight left as Martin sprang in with rights he himself knew—though on second thoughts, perhaps he did not.

For most of the next three rounds Hough was a mere chopping block when Martin roused himself to attack. Hough eventually allowed himself to be counted out in a neutral corner, where he had sank to his knees under heavy punishment.

Nagai Praises Sportsmanship Of Americans At Cairo Meeting

Domei Tsushin

NEW YORK, April 13—A flat denial that Japan had supported the movement at the recent meeting of the International Olympic Committee to shift the opening and closing dates of the 1940 Olympic Games at Tokyo was made by Dr. Matsuzo Nagai, secretary general of the Japanese Olympic Organizing Committee, during the course of a dinner before the American Olympic Association tonight.

Laying the blame upon the European delegates, whom he said did their utmost to change the opening date of the contests, Dr. Nagai pointed out that the Japanese delegates had consistently maintained throughout the Cairo meeting that no change was necessary. He asked the Association not to believe rumors that Japan had taken any other action.

Dr. Nagai thanked his American friends here for the support they have given Japan in retaining the Olympic contests adding that he particularly was inspired by the attitude of the United States during the Cairo conference. Although the U.S. delegation hotly contested the shifting of dates, it handled every problem in the true spirit of good sportsmanship, he said.

Concluding, Dr. Nagai asserted that Japan, although it is much younger than the United States in the membership of the International Olympic Committee, highly values sportmanship and has always, like the United States, admired the traditions of the Olympic Games.

Dr. Nagai was host to some 20 members of the American Olympic Association, including Garland Hammond, former president of the body. The dinner was held at the St. Regis Hotel.

Owing to a delay in the arrival of the French liner Ile de France, the Columbia Broadcasting Station had temporarily postponed a 15-minute radio broadcast on the Japanese Olympic situation, which was to have been made by Professor Jigoro Kano, a returning member of the Japanese delegation to the I.O.C. meeting at Cairo.

Ireland Defeats Wales At Soccer By 1 Goal To Nil

Times, London

LONDON, March 17—Ireland beat Wales by one goal to none at Belfast yesterday, with the result that whatever happens in the match between England and Scotland at Wembley, England will be this season's international champions.

The match was disappointing, and as Ireland's goal was made possible by a defensive mistake, Wales could consider themselves a little unlucky. Wales to a certain extent, however, had themselves to blame, as they controlled the play in the first half. Their attack was uneven, and at no time was the Irish goalkeeper in difficulties.

The players found a light ball difficult to control in the wind, and for a long time there was little excitement. It was nearly all Wales at the start, but their finishing was poor, and the Irish goal seldom looked like falling. Ireland, up to half-time, relied mainly on sudden raids, but found the Welsh defence sound. For a time Ireland gained the ascendancy in the second half, but after 15 minutes Farrell was injured in a tackle with T. G. Jones, and had to be carried off. Then Ireland were awarded a penalty, but Brown, the Coventry City outside right, hit a post with his shot and the danger to Wales was averted. Just when a draw seemed certain Stevenson passed to Coulter, who, after beating Turner, sent across a splendid center. Hughes, apparently thinking the ball had gone out of play, allowed Brown to head it to Bambrick, who had only to breast it into the net.

The teams were.—

IRELAND,—Twoomey (Leeds United), goal; Cook (Everton), and R. P. Fulton (Belfast Celtic), backs; Brolly (Millwall), McMillen (Chesterfield), and Browne (Leeds United), half-backs; Brown (Coventry City), Farrell (Edinburgh Hibernian), Bambrick (Chelsea), Stevenson (Everton), and Coulter (Grimsby Town), forwards.

WALES,—Gray (Chester), goal; Turner (Charlton Athletic) and Hughes (Birmingham), backs; Green (Charlton Athletic), Jones (T. G.) (Everton), and Richards (Birmingham), half-backs; Hopkins (Brentford), Jones (L.) (Arsenal), Perry (Doncaster Rovers), Jones (B.) (Wolverhampton Wanderers), and Warren (Heart of Midlothian), forwards.

All-Star Filipino Basketball Team Arriving April 28

An all-star basketball team from the Philippines will sail from Manila aboard the Kamo Maru to arrive at Kobe on April 28 at the invitation of the Japan Basketball Association, it was announced Thursday.

Ten players are expected to arrive with Dr. R. Elanan, honorary president of the Philippine Amateur Athletic Federation who was here last year, as manager. A coach will accompany the team.

The local Association has been making plans for a tournament with teams from the Philippines, Manchoukuo and North China competing. No word has yet been received from the last-two as yet. Receipt of the acceptance of the invitation by the Philippine Federation has necessitated the Association to speed up its negotiations with the Manchoukuo and North China officials concerned.

Lack of an indoor gymnasium has been cause for insufficient practice among Manchoukuo players and it is feared they may not be able to send a team.

In the event Manchoukuo and North China are unable to accept the invitations sent, a series of Japan versus Philippines games will be held.

Coming on the same Kamo Maru will be boxing and wrestling squads invited for return engagements in Japan.

Five In Hundred Make Big Leagues According To Lane

CINCINNATI, Ohio.—Only five out of every hundred lads up from the farm clubs are good enough for big-time baseball, says the boss of the Cincinnati Reds' ten-club farm system, Frank Lane.

"But that's enough to call the system a success, I think," he said. "If we turn up five each season out of every hundred, we're adding a lot."

Oddly enough, it isn't hitting that counts most in getting the young hopeful into fast company.

"The minor leagues are full of big fellows who can slam the ball out of the lot," said Lane, "but the question is are they fast and can they throw?"

In looking the prospects over, Lane said, they are tried out first for speed—the speed that turns singles into doubles, or on the defense, cuts doubles into singles. Then how fast can they get that ball across to first base or in from the outfield. Finally, they are given a chance to hit the ball.

If they have the stuff in the first two instances, but can't hit, they may have the makings of great ball players. If they can hit; but are only mediocre in the other two, they belong in the minor leagues. A man gets to bat only three or four times in a game; but he's on defense every minute the team is in the field.

Brundage Confident Japan Will Hold 1940 Olympics Upon Return To New York

Domei Tsushin

NEW YORK, April 11—Despite Japan's apparent confidence that there will not be any serious obstacles in the way of the staging of the 1940 Olympic Games at Tokyo, authorities of the International Olympic Committee already discussed the possibility of holding the Games elsewhere on a modified basis in case Japan for any reason relinquishes her right, Avery Brundage, chairman of the American Olympic Committee, revealed to the press upon his return here today from the I. O. C. annual session at Cairo last month.

Since Japan's rights to organize the 1940 Games was confirmed at the Cairo session, Mr. Brundage said, Japan will naturally go ahead with all preparations now in progress and the United States expects to compete to the best of its ability when the Games are held. He added, however, that the I. O. C. feels that the Games should not be allowed to lapse even if the situation in the Far East "becomes such as to force Tokyo out of the picture."

In the event the war in the Far East continues until 1940, Mr. Brundage said, Japan would be asked to "relinquish the Games in time so that they could be organized elsewhere."

He went on to point out that, though ordinarily organization of an Olympiad takes at least three years, the I. O. C. opines that the 1940 Games could certainly be held on a modified basis if Tokyo yields the results of all efforts it will have made by that time. He even suggested that either London or Helsingfors which bid without success for the Games might still be willing to take them over.

As his "personal" opinion, however, Mr. Brundage expressed the belief that the Games will be held at Tokyo on schedule. "Nothing short of a world war," he declared, "would prevent the Games from being held in Tokyo in 1940."

The United States, he continued, will meanwhile go ahead with the preparations for participation in the Games, notwithstanding its dissatisfaction over the starting dates of the Games due to Japanese weather conditions. He added that it was not Japan but Scandinavian countries who suggested the change in the dates, the Japanese delegates merely presenting data on weather conditions and expressing willingness to hold the Games at any time the I.O.C. designated.

So far as the United States is concerned, Mr. Brundage said, the next step will be the organization of the meeting of 27 games committees appointed by the A.O.C. which will be held shortly at Chicago or New York marking the beginning of serious preparations for adequate United States participation in the 1940 Games.

"Japan's formal invitation," he said, "will be acted upon when received. However, I can predict now that the A.O.C. will not adopt any position which will deprive American athletes their only opportunity to represent the United States in their lifetime."

Mr. Brundage admitted that there is an agitation against Tokyo Olympics in Great Britain, but asserted that the British Olympic Committee has not taken any official stand which is against sportsmanship.

Matsuzo Nagai, secretary general of the Japanese Olympic Organizing Committee, left at 4 p.m. today by airplane for Vancouver without attending the luncheon given by Mr. Brundage in honor of the A. O. C. members. Professor Jigoro Kano, who represented Japan at the Cairo meeting of the I. O. C. together with Mr. Nagai, arrived here at 9 p.m. tonight aboard the liner Ile de France and registered at the Plaza Hotel. Arrangement has been made for a radio speech by him on the Olympic situation over the Columbia Broadcasting network beginning 4:15 p.m. tomorrow afternoon.

Temple Quintet Surprises Critics By Winning Titles

PHILADELPHIA, March 18—They laughed when Temple's basketball team took a 39-22 lacing at the hands of Georgetown in Washington early in January, but—

They (the critics) took it all back when the Owls came back to win the Eastern Conference and then went on to capture the mythical national championship with a record of 23 wins against two defeats.

Not since the great Charley Hyatt of Uniontown, Pa., led Pitt to an undefeated season (21 games) 11 years ago has a college team been accorded the national recognition the Owls have gained.

Temple's list of victories over teams from all parts of the country is all the more impressive when it is remembered that until this year, the Owls have been noted for their poor performances on the road. However, the Georgetown game was the only one they lost away from home this season. Their other defeat came at the hands of their city rival, Villanova. With the score tied at 28-all, and two minutes to go, Duke Duzminski tossed in four sensational baskets to win for Villanova, 26-28.

Before the season started, Coach Jimmy Usilton called his team of Don Shields, Howie Black, Mike Bloom, Ed Boyle, and Don Henderson "the best I ever coached." They proved by beating such teams as Stanford, Illinois, Pitt, Navy, New York University, Manhattan, St. Joseph's (Philadelphia), Penn State, Bradley Tech of Peoria, Ill., Oklahoma Aggies, and Colorado.

Soviet Merman Claims New World Record In 200-M. Breaststroke

Domei Tsushin

MOSCOW, April 14—Semion Boichenko, a Soviet swimmer, claimed the world record for the men's 200-meter breaststroke today after he swam the distance in 2 minutes 36.2 seconds. His time clips off just one second from the previous record of 2 minutes 37.2 seconds held by Jack Kasley, of the United States.

Open Tennis Play Is Scheduled In West Virginia

By GEORGE M. R. HOLMES

Christian Science Monitor

BOSTON, March 12—Announcement has been sent out by the Greenbrier Golf & Tennis Club of White Sulphur Springs, W. Va., to the effect that it will hold its second annual open lawn tennis championship tournament of the United States, April 25 to 30. It will be recalled that this club withdrew from the United States Lawn Tennis Association a year ago in order to inaugurate an open championship. Due to the fact that the International Lawn Tennis Federation refuses to permit open championships, the USLTA, as a member of the international organization, does not sanction open events, and so the Greenbrier club withdrew from the latter organization. Cash prizes and trophies valued at $2,000 are being offered for the coming tournament, which will be open to all amateurs and the professionals of the world. In its announcement the Greenbrier Club states that "Amateur players entering this tournament do so voluntarily and must be willing to accept any changes in their status which the United States Lawn Tennis Association sees fit to make."

Will Win in Time

It is certainly pleasing to those who are firm believers in the efficacy of open tennis tournaments to know that the Greenbrier club is to continue the holding of such a championship. Last year's event was naturally confined largely to professional players, with none of the ranking amateurs taking part because of not wanting to forfeit their amateur standing, and it is hardly to be expected that any of the ranking amateurs will compete next month. So long as the USLTA fails to recognize open tournaments, just so long will the leading amateurs decline to enter the Greenbrier tournaments; but when the ban is taken off of open championships, there is no question but what all of the leading amateurs will enter. And when that time comes, as it surely will, credit will have to be extended to the Greenbrier club for what it has done in the way of encouraging such an event. As we have said many times before, there is no more reason why open championships should not be held in this sport than there is in golf and all forms of squash. The character and ability of the tennis professionals of today is very high, and they are perfectly able to meet the leading amateurs on even terms.

The International Meeting

The next meeting of the International Lawn Tennis Association is to be held in Paris the 18th of this month, and question of open championships is to be brought up by the All-India Lawn Tennis Association. That Association is expected to present a motion to the effect that any national association be empowered to hold at least once annually an open tournament for amateurs and professionals. The United States representative at the meeting is to be Charles S. Garland of Chicago, and he has been instructed by his organization to move the amendment of the All-India Lawn Tennis Association's motion to amend Rule XXVI of the Federation Rules so that said motion shall read as follows, and to support said motion, if so amended, and cast the votes of the Association in favor thereof:

> It is moved that Rule XXVI be amended by striking out subdivision (b) thereof which provides that an amateur lawn tennis player is specifically prohibited from. . "(b) playing in a tournament with or against any person other than an amateur."

If this amendment should be passed by the ILTF, it will not necessarily mean that the USLTA will sanction an open tournament; but it does mean that the right to hold such an events, which was originally vested in the various national associations, members of the International Federation, will be restored to those national associations. And when such authority is restored, we are confident that open championships will be sanctioned and held in the United States as well as in other tennis-playing countries.

Hole In Doughnut

An old New England sea captain, one Hanson Gregory, gave the modern American doughnut its hole. The date of the great contribution was 1847. The captain was a boy at the time. Watching his mother fry doughnuts, he noticed that the centers of the cakes always seemed doughy, and suggested eliminating this part before the cakes were cooked. Laughingly she followed the suggestion and the result was so satisfactory that she never went back to the old way. Her method was copied by others until it spread over the whole country.—American Restaurant Magazine.

Women's Singles Likely To Feature Wimbledon Play

By F. R. BURROW

London Observer

LONDON, March 20—There are three months yet to go before Wimbledon opens its gates once more to the thousands of enthusiasts to whom the championships are the most eagerly anticipated event of the whole year. In most years the championship which excites the keenest interest is undoubtedly the men's singles; but it seems more than probable that in the coming Summer that interest may be largely transferred to the women's singles. For that event, if all goes well, will have the most remarkable entry seen for very many years past, if, indeed, ever before. It will almost rival the men's singles as a cosmopolitan affair, and the woman who wins it will certainly both receive and deserve congratulations as warm as it is possible to imagine.

For, in addition to what may be called the normal entry, there will be three national teams in the field. South Africa, Australia, and the United States will all be fully represented. Never before have all three of these great tennis-playing countries sent a women's team to Wimbledon in the same year. Though for many years past there has always been a challenge from the U.S.A., it is only at rare intervals that either Australia or South Africa sends a team, though when they have done so their players have usually achieved considerable distinction, thought they have not up to the present provided a winner of the singles championship.

Mrs. Miller, of South Africa, for example, when she visited this country as Miss E. L. Heine in 1927, was in the final of the doubles and semi-final of the mixed championships, and again, in 1929, reached the same stage of the mixed doubles, having previously won our Hard Court Women's Singles Championship. She is still a long way the best player in South Africa, and she will receive a hearty welcome back to Wimbledon after a much too long absence. Then there is Miss J. Hartigan, of Australia (though, perhaps, she ought not be counted as a member of the present Australian team, as she is playing at Wimbledon on "her own account"), who, on the only two occasions she has completed there—in 1934 and 1935—each time reached the semi-final of the singles. The "representative" Australian team consists of Miss N. Mynne, Miss T. Coyne, Miss D. Stevenson, and Mrs. Hopman; with Miss Hartigan these are five out of the first six ranked Australians.

American Entries

The Americans will probably have (though their team is not yet announced) Miss Alice Marble, Miss Helen Jacobs, Mrs. Fabyan, Miss Dorothy Bundy, who won the singles in Australia a month or two ago, and perhaps Miss Gracyn Wheeler and Mrs. van Ryn. Of these Miss Jacobs will enjoy the distinction of being the only woman in the field who has succeeded in winning the championship at Wimbledon, unless, indeed, the unpredictable Mrs. Wills-Moody should finally make up her mind to try to win her eighth Wimbledon championship and so eclipse Mrs. Lambert Chambers's record, which, at present, she has only equalled. At the moment, she has announced her intention of coming over again, but this will probably be contradicted, and reaffirmed, before June. This, at least, has been the normal course pursued in Mrs. Moody's itineraries.

Even if the championship were confined to the members of these three teams it might be exciting enough; but there are others. Mlle. Jedrzejowska, runner-up to Miss Round last Summer Senorita Lizana, the present woman champion of the U.S.A.; Mme. Mathieu, whose steadiness has carried her to the semi-final (I think) six times, but never further; Fru Sperling, who was in the final at Wimbledon in 1931, in the semi-final two years later, and in the final again in 1926—all these will, no doubt, renew their efforts to carry off the most important championship in the world for women! and may be joined by the young Jugo-Slav player, Mlle. Kovac. Nor must it be forgotten that, though Mrs. Little will not be defending the title she won last year as Miss Round, we yet have several girls who may take a great deal of beating by even the best stars of these overseas constellations.

O.O.C. To Decide On Exposition Closing After Nagai Returns

A ten-day difference exists between the advices received here from Count Henri Baillet-Latour, Chairman of the International Olympic Committee, and Werner Klingeberg, technical adviser to the Tokyo Olympic Organizing Committee concerning the date by which a definite answer is to be forwarded by the O.O.C. to the I.O.C. in connection with the lapse of one month between the Tokyo Olympic Games and the International Exposition in 1940, it was learned Friday.

According to the warning of Count Baillet-Latour received by the Foreign Office on April 7 through Saburo Kurusu, the Japanese Ambassador to Belgium, the answer should be sent not later than May 8. While Mr. Klingeberg says in his letter received Friday by Hideo Isemura, chief of the Archives and Documents Section of Tokyo City that Japan will lose the Olympic Games should the O.O.C. fail to give the answer by May 18.

Regarding a lapse of 30 days between the two major events in 1940, the O.O.C. requested instruction by cable from Dr. Matsuzo Nagai, secretary-general of the O.O.C. then visiting New York. His reply, however, did not make this point clear. He just stated that he would do his best to find a satisfactory settlement as soon as he returns home. Officials of the O.O.C. are of the opinion that the matter should be left undecided until Dr. Nagai's return here.

Italian Women's Track Team May Come In Fall

Prospects appeared bright this morning for the visit next Fall of four or five women track and field athletes from Italy at the invitation of the Japan Track and Field Federation.

A formal decision is expected to be reached Sunday night at the reception given by the Federation at the Koraku Restaurant for Dr. Puccio Pucci, member of the Fascist Goodwill Mission and an executive of the Italian Amateur Athletic Federation.

To an official of the local Federation, Dr. Pucci Friday at the Imperial Hotel expressed the possibility for an Italian women's track team to visit Japan in the Fall.

STANFORD, Calif.—Led by her brilliant captain, Angelo Luisetti, Stanford University, repelled Oregon's invasion of the Southern Division of the Pacific Coast Conference in two straight games and retained its coast conference basketball championship for the third straight year. The Indians, in defeating their northern rivals, rolled up no less than 111 points to 90 for their opponents. The results of the two playoff games follow:

Stanford .... 52 Oregon 39
Stanford .... 59 Oregon 51

Individual scoring honors in the playoffs went to Luisetti with 20 goals from the floor and 6 from the foul line for a total of 46 points. Lauren H. Gale '39 of Oregon, who was high scorer in the Northern Division, was runner up to the Stanford captain with 10 goals from the floor and 10 from the foul line for 30 points. With the conclusion of the second game, Luisetti completed his college basketball career and he has left a record which is expected to stand for many years. The individual scorers follow:

Varsity Players Pray For Men On China Fronts

One hundred fifty uniformed players of the Tokyo Six University Baseball league trekked their way to the Meiji Shrine at 9 this morning to pray for the success of the troops on the China fronts prior to the opening ceremonies of the Spring season of the league at the Meiji Shrine stadium.

Back at the stadium, with the Navy band leading, the six teams entered the field with Meiji, champions last Fall, immediately behind and the Waseda, Hosei, Rikkyo, Keio and Tokyo Imperial teams following in the order named.

After a half circuit of the diamond, the players lined in front of the main stands. While the Navy band played the national anthem, Captains Masao Yoshida, Kiyoshi Takasu, Kazuto Tsuruoka, Masao Adachi, Motoaki Haiyama and Kanao Imanaka of Meiji, Waseda, Hosei, Rikkyo, Keio and Tokyo Imperial, ran out to center field, vaulted the fence and raised the national emblem of the Rising Sun.

Then followed the return to the League by Captain Yoshida of the Crown Prince's trophy and various others won last Fall by Meiji.

The ceremonies over, the Navy band started a march and the teams left the diamond in the order they had entered.

Meiji and Tokyo Imperial teams then took the field for practice and play was called at 12:30 p.m. Meiji was a heavy favorite to win.

Waseda was a slight favorite to down Rikkyo in the second game.

Waseda and Rikkyo are scheduled to meet in the curtain-raiser Sunday. Meiji will take on Tokyo Imperial in the second game.

An interested spectator as the season got under way was Dr. Puccio Pucci, a member of the Fascist Goodwill Mission and an executive of the Italian Amateur Athletic Federation. He has been busy inspecting the facilities and proposed sites for the staging of the 12th Olympic Games in 1940.

Rikkyo Scores Seven Runs In 8th To Beat Waseda, 8-6; Meiji Blanks Teidai, 4 To 0

That a baseball game is never really won until the last man is out was proved once again by Rikkyo University's ball tossers Sunday afternoon at the Meiji Shrine stadium. The score stood 6 to 1 in favor of Waseda at the end of the seventh inning—the identical score by which Waseda had won on Saturday—and all looked hopeless for Rikkyo. But Pitcher Ishida, who had relieved Saigo at the outset of the sixth frame, banged out a double in the last half of the eighth that brought in a run to start a rally that was not stopped until seven men had crossed the plate to clinch the ball game with an 8 to 6 final count.

Meiji Beats Teidai

Meiji, champions of the Spring and Fall seasons last year, triumphed over Tokyo Imperial (Teidai), 4 to 0 in the second game, the same score by which it had won the day before. The champs never were in danger with Teidai showing no power at bat.

Ideal weather prevailed and a capacity crowd of more than 50,000 witnessed the contests. A great many of them left after the fifth inning of the Meiji-Teidai game, convinced that the Teidai players didn't have a chance against the stronger nine from Surugadai.

The Rikkyo-Waseda game almost broke up in the last half of the first inning. Waseda protested, alleging an interference by a Rikkyo base runner against an attempt for a doubleplay. The umpires were adamant that there was no such interference. The rumpus continued for half an hour. Why the game wasn't called then and there in Rikkyo's favor with Waseda refusing to play, is something to wonder about. Advised and coaxed finally by former players, Waseda consented to resume play. The bases were filled at the time, and if interference had been called, there wouldn't have been a score. As it was Kiyohara crossed the plate while Tabe (the man charged with the interference) was forced out at second on a hopper by Arimura to second.

Waseda Starts Well

Waseda had gotten away to a gals start in the first inning by scoring two runs. Two walks and a hit loaded the bags after one out. Go also worked Saigo for a free pass to first and forced in Miyoshi. Asai followed with a double to left to bat in Nagata.

Ogusu's two bagger, a Texas Leaguer by Shirakawa and a free ticket to first worked off Saigo by Murase filled the bases in the fourth for Waseda. Saigo pitched four straight balls at Nagata and Ogusu trotted home.

Waseda pounced on Saigo to score three suns in the fifth for a 6 to 1 lead. Ogusu's hit through left sent Go, who had walked, to second. Ishiguro tripled to left to score Go and Ogusu. Ishiguro scored later on the shortstop's fumble of Murase's grounder.

Then came the eighth for Rikkyo after Ishida had checked Waseda scoreless in the sixth, seventh and eighth innings. Tabe walked and Arimura was safe on Go's error. Ishida doubled to center to bat in Tabe. Machida followed with a hit to center to bring in Arimura. The Waseda bench sent in Kondo, who had limited Rikkyo to two hits on Saturday, to replace Ishiguro on the mound. But Sakurai, who had been sent in to bat for Fukumura, came through with a Texas Leaguer to center to score Ishida. The rally was certainly on. Nagasaki was sent in to run for Sakurai. First Baseman Go mussed up Yuki's bunt down the first base line and the bases were filled with not a man out. Kitahara grounded to second to force but Yuki at second, but Machida tallied on the play. Kiyohara singled over second to score Nagasaki to deadlock the count at 6 all. With Kobayashi at bat, Catcher Ogusu pegged to third to nab Kitahara but the throw went wild and the latter romped home to put his team in the lead. On top of it, Left Fielder Miyoshi threw wild to the plate and Kiyohara, ran all the way to third. The latter than tallied on Kobayashi's bunt.

Teidai loaded the bags without a man away in the third inning against Meiji. But what did First Baseman Tajima do but to ground weakly to Pitcher Kodama into a doubleplay, the threatened rally petering out.

China Conflict Won't Impede 1940 Olympics, Kano Says In New York

Domei Tsushin

NEW YORK, April 16—Belief that the present struggle in China will not have the slightest bearing upon the 1940 Tokyo Olympics "even though the present situation continues," was expressed by Professor Jigoro Kano, Japanese member of the International Olympic Committee, in an interview with newspaper reporters at the Hotel Plaza here today.

Emphasizing that Japan does not share the apprehension in some Olympic quarters as to the fate of the Tokyo Games, Professor Kano declared that she never thought of relinquishing the right to stage them.

"We cannot foretell everything but Japan made all plans and will be ready in every way to make the 1940 Olympics most successful," he said.

Professor Kano then delivered a brief lecture on jujitsu and gave a few demonstrations before the pressmen.

Gordon Drillon Maintains Lead, Apps Is Second

MONTREAL, March 15—With National Hockey League teams driving for the wire, Gordie Drillon of the Toronto Maple Leafs is staging a drive of his own. He is leading the race for the scoring championship with three games to go.

As the teams head into the last week of play, the sophomore sensation has 48 points scored on 24 goals and as many assists, and is three up on Sylvanus Apps, also of the Leafs, who has 20 goals and 25 assists.

The duo give the Leafs a monopoly of scoring "firsts." Drillon has the most goals and Apps is tops in assists with Drillon second. George Mantha of the Montreal Canadiens is second in goals. He has 22, which with 18 assists, give him fourth place in scoring with 40 points.

Paul Thompson of the Chicago Black Hawks is third with 43 tallies. The leading scorers:

8th Inning Rally Beats Waseda

Third Baseman Kiyohara scoring the last run of the seven-run rally by Rikkyo in the eighth inning which downed Waseda, 8 to 6, in the curtain-raiser of the doubleheader of the Tokyo Six University Baseball league Sunday afternoon at the Meiji Shrine stadium. Kiyohara scored on Backstop Ogusu's (right) bad throw to third in an attempt to trap the former.

Foreigners Play Scoreless Soccer Contest At Kobe

(Special To Japan Times)

KOBE, April 17—An international soccer game between the combined players of German-Hollanders (Reds) and English-Scotlanders (Whites) was held at the recreation ground here today. It ended in a scoreless tie.

The Whites went out on the field the underdogs, inasmuch as the majority of the players were inexperienced whereas the Reds had a large number of players who participated in the recent Interport game with Yokohama. But while they could not score, they held the strong Reds from scoring.

Though the Reds were held scoreless, they had the edge throughout the game, keeping the oval deep in the Whites territory all afternoon, and had several chances of scoring, but failed when either the ball went too wide or was stopped by the hawk-eyed goalie J. Winters. What seemed a perfect kick and a goal by Otto Baer late in the first half was called back by Referee Stanford as a foul was pinned on Tuinger, one of the ace players of the afternoon.

Ten minutes after the opening of the second half, fast stepping Jackie Tarr, one-man offense team of the Whites dribbled the ball straight within the shadow of the goal, sidetoeing several Reds, but his attack was stopped by Fay, hard-boiled goal-keeper.

The game was without much excitement until late in the diversion. Otto Raer big-time player for the darker jersey's found himself out in the clear with only himself and the goalie to score, but once again the energetic, ever-watching Winters prevented passage by the mere inch, when he saved the afternoon with a long boot.

From this point on the game was more or less a see-saw affair. The Whites appeared slightly tired but desperately halted the vicious attack of the Reds in and around the midfield.

The line-ups:—

German-Hollanders: Fay; Bultman, Tapendleck; Prins, Roessaler, Fleercamp; Baer, Bruym, Tuinger, Hoorguyhuis Wohler.

English-Scotlanders: J. Winters; D. Winters, Chamber; Lackie, Upton, Hutton, Richie, McWattie, Brodie, Hallstone and Tarr.

Referree: Stanford.

Dr. Pucci Is Second In 400 Meters Race

Dr. Puccio Pucci, member of the Fascist Goodwill Mission and executive of the Italian Amateur Athletic Federation, and Ryozo Hiranuma, vice president of the Japan Amateur Athletic Federation, participated in an international 400 meter race Sunday at the Peers School ground. The occasion was the Tokyo A. C.'s athletic meet.

The other two contestants were Kanaguri, who represented Japan in the marathon in the 1924 Olympic Games at Paris—Dr. Pucci was also a contestant at the Paris Games— and Professor Miyahara of the Peers School.

Mr. Hiranuma, now 60, although a great star during his college days at Tokyo Imperial University, made a most creditable showing but was last. A last spur by Mr. Kanaguri won for him over Dr. Pucci. His time was 65.1 seconds.

Four Stand Out In U.S. Indoor Track Season

By GEORGE M. R. HOLMES
Christian Science Monitor

BOSTON, March 15—Looking back over the indoor track and field season of 1937-1938 we find four athletes standing out above all the others. By this we do not mean to infer there were not other great competitors taking part in the many school, college and club games which furnished splendid entertainment to thousands of sport followers all over the United States; but we do mean to say that their performances were so brilliant and consistent that they are worthy of special mention. Every Winter some athlete speeds down the track, goes up into the air to unexplored heights or hurls a missile out further than ever before; but it is difficult to recall a year when there have been four runners who have earned as much acclaim as have Glenn V. Cunningham, Benjamin W. Johnson, James B. Herbert and Donald R. Lash. Here is a quartet of athletes which has made plenty of history during the past Winter months and, unless I am greatly mistaken, they are going to make a lot more during the coming outdoor season.

Cunningham

Having seen Tommy Conneff, John Paul Jones, Norman S. Taber, Joie W. Ray, and Jack E. Lovelock do the mile run, three of them to world's record times, I am ready to go on record with the statement that Glenn V. Cunningham is the greatest miler I have ever seen. Twice within the past fortnight has he been credited with running the fastest mile ever run by man. Some question may be raised as to his 4m.4.4s. mile at Hanover, N. H., being regarded as a real world's record; but there is no question regarding his 4m.7.4s. at Madison Square Garden last Saturday night. Cunningham will have to wait until the coming Summer for his next chance to establish another one-mile record. That he will succeed in bettering 4m.6s. seems certain and we will not be at all surprised to see him reaching or bettering 4m.5s. before the snow flies next Fall. Apparently all he needs are satisfactory track conditions and a runner or two who can push him to the limit, and the most promising time for such a condition would seem to be the next Princeton University invitation meet with Archie San Romani, Don Lash Gene Venzke and Sydney C. Woodersen of Englnd to furnish suitable competition. Winning 12 straight mile or 1500-meter races in one Winter certainly puts Cunningham in a class by himself so far as those events are concerned.

Herbert

Next to Cunningham the running of Herbert has been most noteworthy. Taking part in 13 600-yard races during the past Winter season the N. Y. U. star won 11. Wesley Wallace of Fordham and Howie Borck of Manhattan were the only runners able to gain victories over him and he had the satisfaction of defeating Borck more than once. In addition to his running the 600, he ran as anchor on the N. Y. U. one-mile relay team and generally finished with such a fast relay that his team won the race. And just to cap a most remarkable season he established a new record of 1m. 11. 1s. for the 600. He promises to be a big point-winner for N. Y. U. in the Violet's coming college meets, although he will not be able to run the 600-yard distance, as that is unknown in outdoor meets.

Johnson

The showing of Johnson has certainly stumped him as one of the greatest sprinters of all time, and when it is remembered that a pulled tendon kept him out of competition in 1936, his showing is all the more remarkable. During the past Winter season the Columbia varsity captain won 24 trial, semifinal and final races at distances from 50 to 73 yards. He also established a new world's record for the 60-yard dash. It was not until last Saturday that anyone had been able to break the tape ahead of him this year and the credit for breaking one of the most remarkable sprint records ever piled up goes to Herbert Thompson of the New York Pioneer Club, after Johnson had won his semifinal heat in world record time of 6.1s. That Johnson will add to his athletic laurels this Summer by winning more than one 100- and 220-yard dash goes without saying.

Lash

The other member of the above-mentioned quartet is Don Lash, the greatest long-distance runner the United States has ever developed. Eight times has the Hoosier star lined up at the starting line and seven times has he crossed the finish line first. In those races he ran distances from two miles to 5,000 meters. The only man to have victory over him is Norman Bright of California, who defeated Lash by about two inches in the two mile run last Saturday night. And just now there does not appear on the athletic horizon a runner who is going to dethrone these four stars if they start out on another indoor campaign next Fall.

Keio Vanquishes Waseda, 6 To 3 In Net Tourney

Led by Jiro Yamagishi, Japan's No. 1 tennis player, Keio University's net team defeated Waseda by six matches to three over Saturday and Sunday at the Keio courts at Hiyoshidai to win virtually the championship of the first division of the 4th annual Kanto inter-collegiate championships. Incidenally, Keio scored revenge of defeat in their dual tourney last Fall during the absence of Yamagishi.

Leading 2 to 1 in the doubles on Saturday, Keio clinched victory by taking four of the six singles on Sunday.

The results Sunday were:

Wakamatsu (Keio) defeated Okuno, 6-0, 6-2 and 6-1.

Taneda (Waseda) defeated Matsuoka 4-6, 3-6, 6-4, 9-7 and 8-6.

Takao (Waseda) defeated Kusumoto, 6-8, 1-6, 6-4, 6-4 and 6-3.

Kagitomi (Keio) defeated Kimura, 6-3 6-3 and 6-4.

Tsuruta (Keio) defeated Nakahara, 6-2, 6-1 and 6-2.

Yamagishi (Keio) defeated Tanaka, 6-3, 6-1 and 6-4.

The results on Saturday were:

Nakahara-Okuno (Waseda) defeated Wakamatsu-Yamagata, 6-4, 1-6, 7-5, 5-7 and 8-6.

Matsuoka-Tamai (Keio) defeated Kimura-Taneda, 7-5, 6-4 and 6-4.

Yamagishi-Tsuruta (Keio) defeated Tanaka-Takao, 6-1, 6-3, 6-2.

Chicago Looks For Stronger Nine This Year

Christian Science Monitor

CHICAGO, March 18—University of Chicago's current baseball squad, entertaining hopes of finishing the season in the upper-bracket of the Big Ten Conference, has had its first outdoor practice of the year in preparation for the opening of its 20-game schedule, Tuesday with DePauw University at Greencastle, Ind.

Coach J. Kyle Anderson has a nucleus of nine players, six of whom won major letters last year, with which to build this season's Maroon team. The squad also is strengthened by seven valuable men from last year's freshman club.

Returning veterans include Capt. French White, shortstop; Roy Soderlind, outfielder; Joseph Mastrofsky, Paul Amundsen and Robert Reynolds, pitchers; Robert Meyer, first base; Jerome Sivesind, third base, Art Dean, catcher and Lawrence Klass, second base. Captain White, Meyer and Sivesind batted over .300 last year.

Outstanding Sophomores

Outstanding sophomore recruits are: William Cologeratos, second base; Denis Cowan, third; Marty Levitt, Howard Issacson and Ted Stritter, catcher; Robert Burke, pitcher, and Robert Brinker, first base.

Although the Maroon pitching staff will be made up chiefly of veterans, Burke, a sophomore, will be one of Coach Anderson's mound mainstays. On the basis of indoor season practice, Reynolds tops the pitching list with Burke a close second.

The most improved pitcher on the staff is Paul Amundsen, senior basketball player. Erratic on the mound last season, he has improved his control and has added punch to his curve ball. Amundsen is 6ft 6in high and has long arms and ideal pitching hands. He can completely encircle a ball with his hand. Mastrofsky, ace of last year's pitching staff will not be in shape for several week.

The Maroon team will have a fast, snappy infield. Captain French, one of the Conference standouts last years, will handle the shortstop assignment. Meyer will hold down first base. Klass or Cologeratos, who are competing for the second-base post, is capable of making a good double-play combination with White. Third base is the scene of a hot contest between Sivesind, who batted .350 last year, and Cowan, a speedy sophomore recruit.

Four Fine Catchers

Four fine catchers are competing for the backstop post vacated by the graduation of Robert Shipway, 1937 captain. Dean, last year's reserve, and Leavitt, Stritter and Isaacson, sophomores, all are big, fast candidates.

The outfield presents the only serious problem for Coach Anderson. With Milton Bernard and Harvey Lawson both lost to the squad, the Maroon outfield this year is lacking in speed and hitting strength. Sollie Sherman and Clig Gramer, reserves last year, and Soderlind, a veteran, are the outstanding candidates.

Best In The World

Dr. Puccio Pucci, left, member of the Fascist Goodwill Mission and representative of the Italian Olympic Committee, inspecting the Olympic boat course now under construction at Todabashi, Saitama Prefecture, on a field trip Monday morning. He described it as the best in the world.

Dr. Pucci Satisfied Preparations Well Under Way For '40 Games

Dr. Puccio Pucci, member of the Fascist Goodwill Mission and an executive of the Italian Amateur Athletic Federation, left Tokyo Monday fully satisfied that preparations for the 12th Olympic Games in 1940 are progressing smoothly, much better than what he had expected when he first arrived.

Dr. Pucci returned from the Kansai last Friday and in his capacity as representative of the Italian Olympic Committee has been busy interviewing members of the Tokyo Olympic Organizing Committee and the various sports organizations about the 1940 Games, with Lt. Col. Guglielmo Scalise, military attache of the Italian Embassy, acting as his interpreter. He completed his survey Monday morning.

Praises Boat Course

The boat course, now under construction at Todabashi, was hailed by Pucci Monday morning while he looked at it as the best in the world. He considered the proposed plan for construction of the main Olympic stadium at Komazawa better than that for the renovation of the present stadium at the Outer Gardens of the Meiji Shrine.

At an interview with the Japanese press at the Imperial Hotel Monday prior to his departure, the following questions and answers took place, as reported by Domei:—

Question: Is there anything yet to be investigated as your stay here is comparatively brief?

Answer: I have completed my investigations here. Although I had a busy time, I have acquired a full knowledge of the schemes and preparations with which Japanese officials concerned have been proceeding to meet the 1940 sports event. I extend my gratitude to these quarters for their full explanation of the programs now under way. On my return home, I shall submit detailed reports to Premier Mussolini on my findings here together with the warm reception given during my sojourn here.

Q.: What is your impression as a result of your investigations here?

A.: I am greatly impressed by the thorough preparedness with which you have been proceeding with regard to the 1940 Olympic Games. I am rather surprised to see that your preparations have advanced more than I had expected before. Europe is quite ignorant of this fact.

Q.: Is there anything to advise as to Japan's program?

A.: No, there is nothing. Everything is quite satisfactory.

Q.: What impressed you most?

A.: The first is your good preparedness. Secondly, the plan to build a new stadium at Komazawa is better and wiser than the former scheme utilizing the Meiji Shrine stadium. The distance between Komazawa and the center of the city is shorter than that between Berlin and the stadium at the time of the 1936 Olympiad. The course designated for the boat race in the Tokyo Olimpiad is the best in the world.

It was regrettable that I havn't had enough time to visit Sapporo at this time. All the plans made up, however, are very satisfactory.

Would Consult Japan

Q.: Suppose the 1944 Olympic Games are held in Rome, what do you wish to learn from Japan's programs?

A.: We are confident that the 1944 Olympiad will be brought to Rome. As for its preparations, every point of Japan's schemes are to be consulted with.

Q.: What are prospects of the Tokyo and Sapporo events in the 1940 Olympic Games?

A.: There is no doubt that these events will make a great success. I have already contributed to the largest sports magazine in Italy several articles on the actual situation of Japan's sports world. On my return home, I expect to contribute more to the various press regarding the same topic. I again express my thanks for the kind treatment given us during our stay in Japan.

Yankees Are Looking Too Good To Joe McCarthy

By EDWIN RUMILL
Christian Science Monitor

SARASOTA, Fla., March 15—Over in St. Petersburg, about 25 miles from here by way of road and ferry, Manager Joe McCarthy of the world champion Yankees is walking around without a smile on his face. Although Joe is not always in good humor, it would seem that he has little reason to stalk in the vicinity of Huggins Field with his long chin dropped on his chest.

But it develops that the rotund manager, whose team won the American League pennant by 13 games last season, is surrounded by one of the strangest situations known to big-league baseball. He is seriously concerned because his Yankees look too good.

This may sound ridiculous, and yet there may be something to it. Overconfidence has ruined many careers down through the years in sport, and although the Yanks are balanced with enough experience to offset any "cockiness" apparent among the youngsters, the almost perfect attitude sensed over Hugging Field may be the well-known calm before the storm.

Uncertain Quantities

Last Spring when McCarthy called the roll, Lefty Gomez represented a question mark. Lefty had won only 13 games the previous year. Frank Crosetti, Red Rolfe and Myril Hoag were uncertain quantities. Red Ruffing was missing from camp and did not report until after the regular season opened.

Today there are no clouds in the Yankee sky. Regulars who were injured in 1937 have attained fine condition. Tommy Henrich, Spud Chandler and Joe Gordon are three rookie sensations. Billy Knickerbocker, formerly of the Browns, is just the proper amount of infield insurance McCathy needs. The picture at Huggins Field is a double feature in technicolor.

More apparent today than ever is the tendency for young men, many of them former players, to turn toward umpiring as a profession. In the not distant past any retired player who was big enough to take care of himself on the field of battle was eligible to carry an indicator.

However, with increased interest in modern baseball, and the realization that the blue-suited gentlemen are the most important figures on any playing field—who could ruin a pennant race by a single inaccurate decision—the National and American leagues are spending much time and money on the development of umpiring talent.

Requires Higher Qualifications

Umpiring now requires higher qualifications than in the past. A play-caller of today, in order to reach the top, must measure up to many requirements and go through a special course of training before he is considered. The rewards of umpiring, although not immediately as great as those of players, more than compensate in the long run for the salaries paid to performers, except stars, counting the arbiter's greater length of service and pensioning provisions.

The American League this season is introducing Eddie Rommel, the old Philadelphia knuckleballer who pitched for Connie Mack for a number of years. Eddie is the first of the American League "recruits" to be brought along by Tommy Connolly, chief of umpires and the circuit's one-man scouting staff. Rommel, with the eye of a veteran pitcher, should make the grade.

New Creed for Moundsmen

Three or four days after Spring training started for the Cincinnati Reds at Tompa, Manager Bill McKechnie called his pitchers together and surprised them with the following question: Have you thrown any curves so far?" When none replied in tht affirmative, McKechnie expounded what is believed to be a new creed for moundsmen.

"I suppose you fellows have been warned against throwing curves during the first week of practice," said Bill. "In my opinion, that is a false idea. I know you won't place any unnecessary strain on your arms by throwing early curves, any more than you would throwing fast balls. I don't mean fast curves. I mean slow ones. A pitcher should twist the ball easy from the start and bring his curve right along with the fast ball, increasing the speed with each day."

This system may be frowned on by many managers, but it paid remarkable dividends at Boston for McKechnie and may help lift the Reds out of the National League cellar.

Pro Ball League Makes Known Revised Schedule

With the view to equalizing the number of trips either to the Kansai or to the Kanto among the eight competing teams and to make the doubleheaders more attractive, the recently announced schedule of the Japan Professional Baseball league has been completely revised.

Inasmuch as the War Victory Exhibition now on at the Nishinomiya stadium, near Osaka, has been extended to June, the diamond here will be used only on June 11 and 12 during the Spring season which opens at Korakuen stadium on April 29 with four games on the program. The games originally scheduled for the Yokohama Park have been cancelled because the grounds will be unavailable for use.

The revised schedule follows:

Korakuen

April 29—Nagoya Dolphins vs Nagoya, Tokyo Eagles vs Tokyo Senators, Tokyo Giants vs Tokyo Lions and Osaka Tigers vs Osaka Hankyu.

May 7—Senators vs Nagoya, Senators vs Lions, Eagles vs Lions.

May 8—Lions vs Nagoya, Eagles vs Nagoya and Eagles vs Senators.

May 14—Lions vs Hankyu, Lions vs Tigers and Senators vs Tigers.

May 15—Senators vs Lions, Senators vs Hankyu and Tigers vs Hankyu.

May 21—Nagoya vs Lions, Dolphins vs Lions and Dolphins vs Hankyu.

May 22—Lions vs Hankyu, Nagoya vs Hankyu and Nagoya vs Dolphins.

May 28—Eagles vs Lions, Eagles vs Dolphins and Giants vs Dolphins.

May 29—Dolphins vs Lions, Giants vs Lions and Giants vs Eagles.

June 1—Dolphins vs Nagoya, Eagles vs Lions and Giants vs Senators.

June 4—Senators vs Hankyu, Dolphins vs Hankyu and Dolphins vs Giants.

June 5—Dolphins vs Senators, Giants vs Senators and Giants vs Hankyu.

June 15—Eagles vs Nagoya, Dolphins vs Senators and Giants vs Lions.

June 18—Senators vs Lions, Senators vs Nagoya and Giants vs Nagoya.

June 19—Lions vs Nagoya, Lions vs Giants and Senators vs Giants.

Star Pitcher Of Hawaii Joins Tokyo Eagles; Arrived Last Sunday

The Tokyo Eagles will be the team to watch in the Spring season of the Japan Professional Baseball league which gets under way on April 29 at the Korakuen stadium. The reason is Ted Kameda, one of the best pitchers of Japanese extraction ever developed in Hawaii, who arrived Sunday aboard the Taiyo Maru to join the squad.

Kameda is in shape to pitch from the opening game as he has been playing in the Japanese Senior league in Honolulu. With Bucky Harris, of Los Angeles, rated by many as the best catcher in Japan, as his backstop, Kameda should have no trouble on the mound.

Kameda will also bolster the team's hitting as he is a timely and long hitter. He is an older brother of Shigeo Kameda, who on Saturday last started as regular second baseman for Meiji in the Tokyo Six University league.

Rin Wins Kanto Pro Golf Tourney At Sagami Links

Shooting a 144, Manfuku Rin, pro of the Tokyo Club, won the first Kanto professional golfers tourney for this year Monday at the Sagami links over 36 holes.

Chin Sei-sui of the Musashino Club was second with a 145.

Others finishing within the first ten of 37 contestants follow:

Kokichi Yasuda (Tokyo) 148, Masato Iwasaki (Karuizawa) 150, Kunishiro Kashiwagi (Kasumigaseki) 150, Taketo Fujii (Kasumigaseki) 150, Sukemasa Shimamura (Musashino) 150, Genjiro Suzuki (Hodogaya) 151, Torakichi Nakamura (Hodogaya) 151 and Kunikiyo Koike (Kasumigaseki) 151.

Mile Run Is Annexed By Fenske In 4:08.9

CHICAGO, March 19—Charles (Chuck) Fenske, Wisconsin's great distance star, tonight raced the fastest indoor mile in Midwestern track and field history—4 minutes 8.9 seconds—in the feature event of the tenth annual Armour Tech relay games.

Fenske, who won the Big Ten title with a 4:11.1 performance last week, set out to beat 4:10 tonight in preparation for his meeting with Glenn Cunningham next week in the Chicago Relays, and did it with astonishing ease.

Paced through the first half-mile by his team-mate, Walter Mehl, the bespectacled Badger star then moved out on his own, winning by about seventy yards. The other two starters in the university division of the event, Ernest Klann of Kansas University and Charles Mitchell of Kansas State College, never were contenders.

Fenske followed Mehl through a 61-second first quarter, and took the lead after a 2:04.5 half-mile. He sped past the three-quarter post in 3:06.8, and finished with a fine 62.1-second quarter, slowing up a trifle at the finish. His spectacular mark wiped out the meet record of 4:14.1 established by Henry Brocksmith of Indiana in 1932.

Fenske's 4:11.1 last week was the fastest previous mile indoors in Chicago.

13 Nations Will Broadcast Events Of 1940 Games

The Japan Broadcasting Society's queries to 62 nations of the world inquiring whether they will dispatch announcers to the 12th Olympic Games in 1940 here in Tokyo or not and if so in what line they will specialize, answers have been received from 27 bodies. And out of these, 15 organizations of 13 nations submitted their wishes to send announcers.

Nine nations will not participate. Answers were not received from France, Latvia and Yugoslavia and several other nations. However, it is expected that they will make their decisions together with the participating athletes or either relay their broadcasts over the network.

The outstanding sports announcers from the various nations are expected to be sent to cover the Games.

The participating organizations are as follows:

Colombia Broadcasting System of America:—2 or 3 members for the finals.
National Broadcasting Company of America:—At least 1 member.
Canadian Network:—1 member (Event undecided).
Dutch Station:—1 member.
Dutch Amateur Society:—1 member.
Dutch East Indies:—1 member, Opening and closing ceremonies.
Hungary:—1 member.
Poland:—1 member.
Switzerland:—1 member.
Germany:—Several for finals and recordings.
Finland:—1 member track and field, boxing, swimming, wrestling and football.
Italy:—3 members.
England:—1 member track and ceremonies.
Rumania:—1 member.
Australia:—1 member.

Prince Iyesato Tokugawa, chairman of the XIIth Olympic Organizing Committee, will depart on May 21 aboard the Empress of Russia to London via America to attend the meeting of the International Red Cross Society. He will conduct informal discussions and give information concerning the progress of the XIIth Olympic Games preparations.

JAPANESE CONVERSATION GRAMMAR

By Mr. Oreste Vaccari and Mrs. Enko Vaccari

THE LONDON TIMES

LITERARY SUPPLEMENT

No. 1844, Saturday, June 5, 1937

....this new manual is practical and useful, and what Count Kabayama in his prefactory note calls its "human method" will make it acceptable to the growing number of English students of Japanese. When the student has mastered its sixty lessons he will have completed the equivalent of an ordinary Japanese school education and will be at home in the language and able to proceed to higher things.

A feature of the book is its transliteration with Chinese characters of every Japanese example rendered in English spelling so that the student is gradually familiarized with the appearance of the language as well as with its sound.

Studying Japanese with this Grammar Becomes a Real Pleasure

EXTRACTS FROM THE PREFACE

Written by Count Ayské Kabayama, chairman of the Kokusai Bunka Shinkokai (The Society for International Cultural Relations of Tokyo).

"Mr. and Mrs. Vaccari have brought out what I would like to regard as the most complete book to date for the study of Japanese, and have, thereby, provided an effective and practical guide toward a basic study of the Japanese nation and people ....The method introduced by the authors is not only scientific, but human....the particular of the language, fully treated with practical examples, have been regulated in each lesson according to the measure of a partial effort of the mind....The Japanese taught in the book has struck me as of the best commonly accepted diction today....The authors have introduced a new system of giving all the sentences in the book in Japanese characters and Roman transliteration with their respective English translation, an innovation most likely to prove very helpful....Mr. and Mrs. Vaccari have published a book of high merit and may be regarded as the initiators of a new system for teaching Japanese.

Before Empty Stands

The opening ceremonies of the Tokyo Inter-collegiate Baseball league's Spring season Tuesday afternoon at the Meiji Shrine stadium. The virtually empty stands tell you the difference of the following between this circuit and the Tokyo "Big Six" league, games of which are witnessed by crowds of more than 50,000 fans. Chuo, champions of the Fall season, wallopped Kokudai, 16 to 8, in Tuesday's game.

Over 3 Million Have Seen F.A. Cup Soccer Games This Season At Wembley

London Observer

LONDON, March 20—Fifteen years ago a huge new arena, a national football ground, came into being at Wembley. It was agreed that the outstanding matches of the season, such as the Cup Final and certain international contests, should be played there. Rulers of the sport were apparently content with that ground effort. At last there was a place, suitable in every way, and big enough to hold all the people who would desire to witness any one football spectacle. That was the theory advanced, only to be proved wholly unsound by subsequent events.

Fifteen years later—that is, in the current year—the rulers of the Cup competition have passed the plans for a Wembley arena which will be gradually increased until there is accommodation for 160,000 people. But every year, since that first final tie at Wembley, with its resultant admission by ticket only regulation, the ticket applications have exceeded a quarter of a million, and it is officially stated that the ticket application for this season's final tie, received before anybody could even make a rough guess at the probable finalists, exceeded half a million.

Increasing Popularity

What applies to the outstanding matches of each season applies also to many other matches. On every hand are indications of the increasing popularity of the entertainment which is provided by the foremost clubs, but in many cases these clubs, like the bodies responsible for staging the most important events lag behind the public. Two rounds of the present F.A. Cup competition remain to be played—the semi-final and the final. Already the full total of people who have witnessed the games in this competition alone has passed the three millions mark: a record for the same number of rounds in the whole history of the competition. The competition proper really starts with the Third Round. Appended in tabular form are the aggregate attendances and receipts of the various rounds from the third to the sixth.

	Attendance	Receipts
3rd Round	1,062,014	£60,378
4th Round	806,666	£56,004
5th Round	531,133	£42,005
6th Round	274,253	£21,083
	2,674,066	£180,470

Five different games have each attracted over 70,000 people. Nor is that really the end of the story. The gates at the Tottenham Hotspur ground, for example, were closed before the start of the Cup-tie with Sunderland, with many thousands still on their way to the ground who would have been added to the number present if accommodation had been available. The tie between Charlton Athletic and Aston Villa necessitated three meetings. The total attendance at the three games was 202,348, and the receipts were £15,297. Football is a big money spinner. Nor it is only for the clubs that it spins the money. Consider the revenue to the transport companies. Again, the benefit to the national exchequer. Taking the entertainment tax at roughly one-sixth—and that is the figure which is nearest—the four big rounds of the F. A. Cup competition have yielded over £30,000 in Entertainment Tax.

Last Quartette

So, from facts and figures illustrative of the popularity of big football, one passes to the position of the F.A. Cup competition in the strictly playing sense. Three First Division clubs—Huddersfield Town, Preston North End, and Sunderland—plus one Second Division side—Aston Villa—have reached the semi-final. Truly representative, these four clubs, of the playing strength of the competitors for the trophy. In the semi-finals due to be played on Saturday week Aston Villa will meet Preston North End on the Sheffield United ground, and Sunderland will play Huddersfield Town on the Blackburn Rovers ground. Huddersfield Town are not free from anxiety concerning the League position: Aston Villa are ambitious to return to the highest class of football, but Preston North End and Sunderland are placed, in the League sense, as eventual Cup winners are usually found—without hopes or fears for the immediate future.

One particularly interesting feature of the pairings is that the two finalists of last season—Sunderland and Preston—have escaped each other in the semi-final. Thus there is held out the possibility of an event unknown for more than fifty years: that of the same clubs competing in the final tie in successive seasons. Sunderland and Preston North End have also progressed thus far without conceding a goal to their opponents. Neither has taken part in a drawn Cup-tie this season. Four goals—one in each tie, of course—have sufficed to carry Sunderland along again, and they have ten of last season's winners assisting them this season. Preston North End have made more change since the Cup Final, and their progress is represented by a total of nine Cup goals. The Preston figures are impressive, even suggesting that of the four clubs left Preston are the stronges side, but it by no means follows that this season's final will be a replica of that played last May. Aston Villa have come back to power, playing a class football worthy of the best traditions of this most famous of all clubs. In their progress to the semi-final they have scored thirteen goals, to seven against. In attack both Aston Villa and Preston North End have developed the same idea, though it is carried out in a different way. Dougal, the centre-forward of Preston, often wanders from his original position in the course of a match, Aston Villa start, usually, with a center-forward whose task it is to tire the opposing center-half, and then that center-half is faced with an entirely new proposition in defense—called upon to meet Broome, who comes over from outside-right to assume the responsibility of leading the attack. A pity, in a way, that these teams meet in the semi-final.

Huddersfield Town have progressed thus far without flourish: without even much beating of drums on their behalf. Apart from a victory at Liverpool they have thus far met only Third Division opponents. Team changes as the season has progressed have detracted from confidence in the side. In the Cup semi-finals, no matter the clubs concerned, all start from scratch. Hence, although popular opinion may lean to a Sunderland victory, Huddersfield Town must be considered to have a chance. They are managed by a former Aston Villa player, included among the select few who have three Cup winners' medals. It may even be true that Huddersfield Town are where they are because of the ideas of Manager Stephenson on what makes for Cup success. Against that is the fact that Sunderland possess the confidence which comes from a recent success. Some will say that the best reason of all why Sunderland won't win the Cup this season is the fact that not for 47 years has the same club gone through to complete victory in successive seasons.

Yankees Are Defeated As 1938 Major League Season Gets Under Way

Domei Tsushin

WASHINGTON, April 18—Approximately 32,000 baseball fans jammed Griffith Stadium this afternoon to see President Roosevelt toss out the first ball to inaugurated the 1938 major league baseball season. The Washington Senators outslugged the Philadelphia Athletics to register a 12 to 8 victory.

In the only other game played in the American League, the New York Yankees met defeat at the hands of Boston by a score of 8 to 4.

The National League season is scheduled to open tomorrow.

Kongo To Take On Isagawa, April 27 Over Eight Rounds

Iwao Kongo, up and coming protege of Kintaro Usuda, will take on Saburo Isagawa, clever fighter of Kobe, in a double main event of eight rounds each on Wednesday night, April 27, at the Hibiya Public Park amphitheater. It will be the first smoker to be staged outdoors this year.

Yoko Sasazaki of the Nippon Boxing Club will mix it up with Tetsu Yamaoka in the other main event. Both are featherweights.

There will be three other six rounders and three four round preliminaries on the card.

Teidai To Build Athletic Ground Near Chiba City

Tokyo Imperial University, which has been suffering from the lack of recreational grounds, will build an athletic field, 100,000 tsubo in size or equivalent to the entire university campus, at Kemigawa in Chiba prefecture, according to announcement by President Nagayo.

The ground has just been bought and it is expected that it will take several years before construction into an athletic field will be completed.

Recreation over the weekend and for gatherings, these and other needs will be met by the new field.

The site has been purchased for ¥268,000 by Chiba City for the University. It will be transferred to the University after levelling work will have been completed, which is expected to be at the end of the current year.

Plans call for the construction of a baseball diamond, a track and field ground, tennis and basketball courts, and a club house.

Kemigawa is in the northeast end of Chiba City and its climate is mild, similar to the Shonan district near Kamakura and Zushi. Travel from Tokyo by shosen and bus is an average of one hour 15 minutes.

Christian Science Monitor

Winning every one of its meets and scoring 317 points to 133 for the opposition Harvard University is enjoying its second successive championship of the Eastern Intercollegiate Swimming League. This is the second year that this organization has been holding championships and the Crimson has a clean slate in both championship races. Harvard won all six of its 1937 meets; but its score for the season was 313 points to 137 for the opposition.

Princeton University had the distinction of being the second Ivy League college to win a victory over Yale and by virtue of this honor, finished as runner-up to Harvard this year. Last year the Eli were second to Harvard with more points for than the Crimson secured; but the Blue fell off quite badly this Winter, finishing in third place with only 264 points to its credit.

The United States Naval Academy, more popularly known as Annapolis or Navy, showed some improvement this year, moving up into sixth place at the expense of Pennsylvania. Last year Navy failed to win a single meet. This year it won from Pennsylvania, the latter taking its turn at not winning a meet. The result of all the games follow:

Harvard	52	Princeton	23
Harvard	46	Yale	29
Harvard	54	Columbia	21
Harvard	53	Dartmouth	22
Harvard	55	Annapolis	20

Columbia	45	Pennsylvania	30
Dartmouth	47	Annapolis	28
Dartmouth	50	Pennsylvania	25
Annapolis	44	Pennsylvania	31

While Pennsylvania failed to win a single meet, individual scoring honors went to one of the members of its team. Paul H. Williams '39 was the man to top the list. He scored 56¾ points, which was 6½ points more than were scored by Harvard's great captain, Charles C. Hutter, Jr. Last year Hutter led the league with 61 5-12 points, Williams being far down the list with only 13 2-6 points. Williams gained his points this year by scoring six firsts and six seconds in individual events, while Hutter scored his in nine individual events and three freestyle relays. The Harvard captain was also unbeaten during the season. Third place went to Hendrick Van Oss '39 of Princeton with 48½ points. The individual scorers:

Premier's Son Halves Golf Match With Virginia 'U' Captain

Domei Tsushin

PRINCETON, N. J., April 18—The Princeton and Virginia University golf teams in their meeting here today tied at four and a half matches apiece.

With the team score squared at four victories each, Fumitaka Konoye, captain of Princeton's squad and son of Japan's Premier, met Oehmig, captain of Virginia, for the final and deciding match. The encounter was halved and the teams remained tied.

Experts Here

Top, Joe Kirkwood, Australian trick golf shot expert, in one of his antics that gave enthusiasts a good laugh recently at Shanghai. Bottom, Walter Hagen, one of the greatest professional golfers in the United States. Both arrived Tuesday afternoon at Nagasaki aboard the Empress of Asia and will disembark at Kobe for exhibitions in the Kansai, after which they will come to Tokyo.

Davis Cuppers Reach Rome; Play At Milan

Domei Tsushin

ROME, April 18—Three members of Japan's 1938 Davis Cup team, who disembarked at Naples yesterday on route from Kobe, arrived here today to take part in a series of international matches getting under way tomorrow. They were greeted at the station by a large number of Japanese residents.

Those who arrived were Tamio Abe, non-playing captain of the team, Fumiteru Nakano and Yasumine Kunamitsu. Jiro Yamagishi, third playing member of the team, is still in Japan and will go directly to Canada for Japan's first-round matches in the American Zone.

Following their arrival, it was decided that the Japanese players would not appear in tomorrow's opening international matches but would start play on the second day after having a little time for practice. They will leave for Milan on Monday to play an exhibition series against a team of Italian players.

From Milan, they will proceed to Berlin and thence to Paris to participate in the French national tennis competitions beginning May 2. Then they plan to go to England to compete at the Wimbledon Championships which will get under way on June 22, after which they are scheduled to sail for the United States.

The Japanese squad is scheduled to meet the Canadian team at Montreal at the end of July in the first round of the Davis Cup American zone.

Temple Clinches U.S. Cage Title

By ARTHUR J. DALEY

N.Y. Times

NEW YORK, March 17—Mighty Temple, flashing a brand of basketball that never has been surpassed in Madison Square Garden, routed Colorado in the final of the national invitation college tournament last night, 60 to 36.

A crowd of 14,497 that came to watch a close battle between two high-scoring teams remained to marvel at the overpowering magnificence of the towering Owls. The Buffaloes were game and ever-trying, but they could not halt a super-team, riding the very peak of its effectiveness.

Midway in the second half Whizzer White turned to a Colorado mate and remarked, "How do you like this part of the country, my friend?" It was as bad as all that.

The champions from the Rockey Mountains had not a ghost of a chance from the opening whistle. They trailed at 10-1 in the first five minutes and 33-18 at the half. Then Jimmy Usilton, the Owl coach and apparently a merciful citizen, began withdrawing his varsity after six minutes of the second session but still the points rolled in.

Stage Scoring Outburst

Not since the McPherson Oilers displayed their collective skill in the Olympic tryout tournament two years ago has there ever been anything that could quite compare with the giants in Temple's red. It is doubtful that Stanford or any college team could have stemmed the furious scoring outburst of the Owls.

Temple was so red hot it was afire. The crowd just sat there and gasped in astonishment. It never had seen such shot making. Not only was it the point-getting that impressed but the way the Eastern Conference champions made the nets dance.

They pegged bullet passes so high in the air that none but their own giants could catch them. And they shook loose men in easy lay-ups. pegged long range baskets from all sections of the floor and curled in dazzling hook shots that were slightly more impossible to stop than they were to make.

Colorado was helpless. The nice looking youngsters from the Rockies never quit for an instant, a tribute to their courage and spirit, but such intangibles as that were of no avail. Just to make things slightly worse, the Temple zone defense was as rugged as a rock barrier.

Bat Away Buff Shots

Mike Bloom and Don Henderson, two midgets of 6 feet 6 inches each, were the "goal-tenders" who batted away nearly everything in sight and clamped down on the Buff shooters like a net.

Don Shields was the outstanding figure of the game—and the tournament, too, for that matter. The angular senior in his last college game (Bloom is the only other senior on the team) was a wraith in his cuts for the basket. Not only was he high scorer with sixteen points, but he fed half of the other baskets to his mates in a dazzling all-around display.

Howie Black and Ed Boyle were not far behind Shields with fourteen apiece, a three-man total that would have beaten the Buffs without any outside assistance. Jack Harvey, a great player last night on offense and defense, was high gun for Colorado with eleven, but right in back of him came the one and only White with ten.

Gives Superb Exhibition

Oklahoma A. and M. gave a superb ball-handling exhibition in the third-place play-off as the Cowboys administered to N. Y. U. the most decisive beating the Violet has received all year, a 37-20 walloping. New York, wearied from two magnificent exhibitions in the preliminary stages of the tournament, could not get going at all. The law of averages had caught up with it at last.

In forty minutes N. Y. U. could make only seven field goals, a new low for the campaign. The Missouri Valley champions were simply greedy in the way they hogged the ball. They passed with deft perfection and refused to shoot until the Violet was wide open.

The Cowboys had such speed that they could have rolled up any number of points had they continued their drive right through in metropolitan style. As it was, they gave so magnificent an exhibition of well-coached team play that N. Y. U. was simply helpless, especially since no one had his shooting eye.

The top scorers were Dick Krueger of Oklahoma, 13, and Si Boardman of N. Y. U., 10.

In a between-halves engagement, the Avenue A Boys Club defeated the lower West Side team of the Children's Aid Society in a 100-pound fray for the city championship, 9 to 7.

Building Sold For $1

About six years ago the county building committee in Racine, Wisconsin, sold a brick veneer building, only 10 years old, two stories high with a basement, to contractor Henry Gloede, Jr., for the sum of exactly one dollar. The contractor, however, was required to raze and remove the building, deriving his pay for the work from sale of salvaged bricks, windows, woodwork, etc. Then he had to fill in the hole, level off the fill, and prepare the site for seeding.

One Man Basketball Team

The Young Peoples' League basketball team was playing a team called "Comrades" in the Y.M.C.A., San Antonio, Texas, January 29, 1935. Every player on the Young Peoples' team had been put off the floor through the personal foul route except Lubel, who played the last three minutes fighting the other team all by himself. He not only played the game himself but won when he made a foul shot in the last 10 seconds of play, making the final score 59-58.

Oxford Beats Cambridge 60 To 57 In Track Meet

Times, London

LONDON, March 14—The University Sports at the White City on Saturday, if they left behind them no crop of broken records, produced as splendid racing as the heart of the most zealous of spectators could wish. Sufficient is it to say that when the pistol went for the last race, the Quarter, the result was still in doubt. A.G.K. Brown, the great man of the afternoon, won that thrilling race for Cambridge, but under the new system of scoring by points his triumph was in vain, for Oxford, with the equally gallant A. Pennington running second and C. H. Kearney coming in third, snatched a victory on the afternoon by 60 points to 57.

There was a deal of argument and counter-argument as to the merits or disadvantages of this new fangled method of scoring, but there can be but little doubt that it was amply justified, if only by the immense interest it added to the performance of those who, although beaten out of first place, were battling for three points or even a solitary point. It was here that Oxford, although they won only six of the 13 events outright, gained their reward. So, too, was the introduction of the new events, Throwing the Discus and Throwing the Javelin, a decided success. It was a day of beautiful sunshine, and if the track was indeed too loose to encourage any remarkable times all the more credit is due to those who came so close to previous records. The White City with its enormous stand can look very bare, but on Saturday there was a grand muster of enthusiasts, and the roar which went up was worthy of the more intimate surroundings of Queen's Club. In one respect the White City is most convenient, for with javelins being hurtled about dangerously and the discus skimming through the air at the same time there is at least a fair chance for judges and stewards to avoid being transfixed or decapitated.

Oxford's Good Start

At a quarter-past 2 the festival began, when the first competitors started to clamber up the Pole, which, quite properly, they continued to do until much later in the afternoon. The discus made its first bright flight through the air at the same time, but that is a comparatively sharply-decided proceeding, and with D. G. Brown winning at 127ft. 4¾in. and the two Cambridge men being second and third Oxford had gained a lead of five points to four. The 100 Yards, which all true men consider to be the real start to the Sports, was Pennington's all the way, but Cambridge, thanks to W. R. Loader, gleaned three points. The time, 10sec. dead, was more than good in the circumstances, for, apart from a slow track, there was a dead wind against the runners which had its effect in the finish of most of the track events. Then came the High Hurdles, which was as good and close a race as any seen all day. There was no tailing off by any one of the hurdlers, and they were away over the last hurdle as near as one could see from the other side of the ground in a bunch. But it was the Oxford pair who just held on to a slender lead, and at the end of the first three events Oxford were leading by 19 points to eight—a comforting start, even if it did seem that Cambridge were a little more than holding their own with the help of the Pole.

The High Jump also went to Oxford after a lot of jumping and rejumping. A W. Selwyn won at 5ft. 9in., leaving B. Penman and B. E. Pleydell-Bouverie to dispute second place; after each had squeaked over at 5ft. 8in. at their third attempt they decided to divide the four points allotted for second and third between them. Then came the first of Brown's two races, the Half-Mile, and a lovely race it was for him. Coming round the stands at the end of the first quarter he was lying third, and it was not until he was halfway round the last lap that he really drew away, but when he did each stride took him farther and farther away from J. T. H. Macnair. If ever there was an example of a runner having something in reserve this was it.

A Surprising Mile

Cambridge recovered three points in that event, and they gained another which the javelin throwers had spent their energy. For a long time the distances covered by each competitor seemed meager until suddenly first J. F. Klein and then R. E. M. Blakeway startled onlookers and judges as well with throws of an unexpected distance. Klein won the event, but Oxford with the second and third only lost one point on the deal. Cambridge having obtained eight hard-earned points in the pole vault were gradually creeping up, and they retrieved yet three more points after the Three Miles, a race which was distinguished by the beautiful running of E. C. Weir, the Cambridge President. He forced his way in front early on after a pace had been set by C. A. Owen which was obviously too fast to be true. Weir was passed more than once, but running steadily on with only an occasional spurt he was well away before half the second mile had been covered. J. K. Hawkey did his utmost to make a race of it until he was obliged to fall back after 2½ miles, and toward the end there was a big thrill when R. A. G. Clough came up from the back of beyond to beat R. H. Percival for third place. It was Clough who received in the end all the cheers and handshakes while Cambridge men wagged their heads and said there was a good deal in the new system after all.

The Cambridge threat was becoming too serious, so back came Oxford with the Yong Jump, and J. N. Irwin won the Low Hurdles for them also, with a dead-heat for second place and another division of four points. The Mile was Cambridge's great moment of the day, although it was in itself a most queer race. The race had been expected to lie between D. R. Martin, of Oxford, and W. M. Hudson, of Cambridge, but somehow everything went topsy-turvy. Maybe Hudson went off a shade too adventurously; at any rate, he never seemed to be quite comfortable in his running, even if he was leading at the end of the first half-mile. Martin was going the easier to the pace set by S. L. Dorman, the Cambridge third string, but in the third lap he too, looked to be tiring, although he was a good 20 yards ahead when the bell went. It certainly seemed that he would be able to hold on during that last lap, when suddenly out of the blue came R. A. Crossley-Holland; gradually he reduced the distance yard by yard on the far side of the ground; with 50 yards to go he was all but up level with Martin; and with 30 more yards to cover he passed Martin to win a really gorgeous race. In the meantime the imperturbable Dorman had come to snatch second place from Martin on the tape. Crossley-Holland, by his running in this race, deserves to be remembered for many years to come.

Cambridge had continually put themselves within striking distance of passing Oxford on points, the state of affairs being most clearly explained to those spectators who are not particularly adept or correct at mathematical problems, and when P. Hincks had pocketed another five points for winning the Weight all was set for the final gamble of the afternoon, the Quarter-Mile. When the whistle blew for the runners to take their sweaters off it was known that the score stood at 56 to 52 in favor of Oxford, and a process of adding and subtracting showed that the great Pennington had only to avoid being beaten out of second place to win the Sports for Oxford. This was assuming that the apparently unconquerable Brown would win the race for the fourth year in succession, which in fact he did do, but only after a splendid race with Pennington, who in a supreme effort fell exhausted at the finish.

It was a great finish to a memorable afternoon, and no doubt a most encouraging one for those who have advocated this new system of scoring. It is all very well to say that Cambrige in the good old days would have won by seven events to six; as things turned out they were beaten by an Oxford team which judged by the result must be considered the better balanced.

Manchoukuo To Compete In Far Eastern Cage Championships Here

Manchoukuo will participate in the Far Eastern basketball championships to be held at the outdoor courts at the Outer Gardens of the Meiji Shrine stadium on May 14, 15 and 16, according to information received by the Japan Basketball Association from Hsinking.

Fourteen players will be selected from the Kirin and Harbin teams after completion of a training period starting on April 27 at Hsinking.

The All-Philippines team is now on the high seas, having sailed from Manila on April 19.

Tamanishiki Leads Tour Of Wrestlers To Shanghai, Nanking

Domei Tsushin

SHANGHAI, April 21—A party of 18 long-haired Japanese professional wrestlers headed by Tamanishiki, Grand Champion, arrived here at 1:30 p.m. today from Japan on an exhibition tour to cheer Japanese soldiers in action on the front.

The present group was organized through the good offices of the War Relief Department of the War Office.

Following their arrival here this afternoon, the wrestlers made a round of courtesy calls on local Japanese officials, including General Shunroku Hata, Commander-in-Chief of the Japanese Expeditionary Force in China, Vice-Admiral Kiyoshi Hasegawa, Commander-in-Chief of the Japanese China Waters Fleet, Rear-Admiral Denshichi Okochi, Commander-in-Chief of the Japanese Naval Landing Party, and Major-General Kumao Harada, chief of the Japanese Army's special service organ here.

Later in the afternoon, they visited the Japanese shrine in Hongkew. They are leaving here for Nanking at 7:20 a.m. tomorrw. During their present tour of Central China, the wrestlers will hold exhibition performances at Nanking, Wusih, Soochow, Hangchow, and other districts for the benefit of front-line soldiers.

Florida, Cornell And Wisconsin Win

PROVIDENCE, R. I., March 25—University of Florida, University of Wisconsin and Cornell University were announced as the winners of the three intercollegiate billiard tournaments by Nelson B. Johnes of Brown today.

Florida won the pocket-billiard tournament with an all-time record of 566 points of a possible 750, with Morris Geiger scoring an individual 125 of a possible 150. Colgate was second with 440 points, also breaking the all-time high of 378 points established by Wisconsin.

Wisconsin took the title in the three-ball billiards tourney with 105 points, and Michigan and Cornell were tied with 84 points each. Ohio State won last year with 179 points. Cornell took the straight rail championship with 399.

The play, which was conducted on a telegraphic basis, is for the trophies donated by Gene Tunney, Gar Wood and Nobel Kizer. The scores in the three tournaments:

Pocket Billiards—Florida, 566; Colgate, 440; Michigan, 401; Wisconsin, 368; Buffalo, 365; Iowa State, 324; Cornell, 304; Indiana, 293; Minnesota, 291; Brown, 275; Pennsylvania, 228; Purdue, 220; Utah, 218.

Straight-rail Billiards—Cornell, 399; Wilsin, 395; Indiana, 235; Florida, 254; Illinois, 247; Brown, 218; Bowdoin, 209; Utah, 187.

Three-Cushion Billiards—Wisconsin, 105; Michigan, 84; Cornell, 84; Purdue, 82; Indiana, 75; Illinois, 67; Utah, 40; Pennsylvania, 40.

Kansas Relays Will Headline G.V. Cunningham

Christian Science Monitor

LAWRENCE, Kan., March 19—The sixteenth annual Kansas Relays April 22 and 23 are expected to draw their usual star-studded field, headlined by Glenn V. Cunningham, the world's greatest miler.

New American records have been established at each of the last four Kansas Relays and others may go by the board this year. Last year at the Relays, Alton Terry of Hardin-Simmons threw the javelin 229ft. 2¼in., three feet farther than any American had ever thrown the missile before.

The previous year the medley-relay team of Kansas State Teachers College of Emporia, anchored by Archie San Romani, had established a new intercollegiate record of 10m. 12.7s. in its event. The year 1935 saw a sensational University of Iowa sprint-relay team better the accepted world's record in the 440-yard relay with a time of 40.5s., and in the 880-yard relay with 1s. 25.2s.

Indiana and Texas

On the basis of showings made indoors and early outdoor results it appears that Indiana will stand out in the relay races once again and Texas will have the strongest team in the individual events.

Last year Indiana made the greatest showing any single college has ever made in the Relays. The Hoosiers captured the 880-yard relay, one-mile relay, two-mile relay, distance medley-relay and mile team race. In addition, Tommy Deckard, Crimson ace, won the 3,000-meter steeplechase for the second consecutive year.

Indiana will be represented by another strong team this time, but will probably find the competition tougher. The Hoosiers' only losses by graduation, however, were Don Lash, distance ace, and Bob Collier, sprinter. Back in action are Tommy Deckard, James Smith, Mel Trutt, Sam Miller and Fred Elliott.

Down in the Southwest, where weather conditions permit early outdoor competition, the University of Texas boasts a number of stellar track men. Especially torrid have been a group of sophomores.

Cox Is Star

The Longhorns had their first taste of competition March 5 in the Border Olympics at Laredo. In this meet Milo Cox, best of the sophomores, high jumped 6ft. 6in., and then ran a beautiful anchor leg on the 880-yard relay team. Cox started six yards behind the conference 220-yard dash champion in the relay and beat him to the tape. Cox also broad jumped better than 23 feet.

Gillam Graham, another sophomore, will endeavor to take up where Alton Terry left off. Graham won the National junior A. A. U. championship in the javelin last Summer with a throw of 217ft. 4in.

Another sophomore satellite at Texas is Bryce Gatewood, high hurdler. Gatewood has already this year run the hurdles in 14.8s. and his coach, Clyde Littlefield, expects him to improve on that time.

The Longhorns boast an outstanding sprint-relay team virtually every year and this season is no exception. In the 880-yard relay Littlefield is using Graves and Morris from last year's team, Seivert, a veteran quarter-miler, and Cox. In the 440-yard relay Jud Atchison, football star and broad jumper, has been replacing Seibert.

Defending Champions

Among the defending champions will be Sumner of Emporia Teachers in the 120-yard high hurdles. He won the hurdles at the Missouri Valley A. A. U. meet in 14.6s. last year and then went out to California where he was fourth in the hurdles at the National Collegiate A. A. meet.

Dick Kearns of Colorado will be out to recapture the title he won in the decathlon here last year. Several weeks ago Kearns won the septathlon at the Colorado Relays, indication that he should make a strong bid for another championship. Alex and Ell Cains, Arkansas City Junior College Negro twins, and Bill Hemphill of Kansas State, who competed last year, are all expected to be back again.

In the discus throw John Pritchard of Oklahoma will receive most of the fans' attention. Pritchard tossed the discus 168ft. 7in. last year as a freshman, the best throw made in the United States. Now people want to see if Pritchard can do it again and he will have one of his best opportunities to demonstrate at the Kansas Relays.

Minnesota Faces Attractive Sports Season At Home

Christian Science Monitor

MINNEAPOLIS, March 26—Topped with one of the nation's outstanding sports events—the National Collegiate A.A. track meet—the most colorful Spring athletic program in many a season has been scheduled for University of Minnesota teams.

The national track and field classic at Memorial Stadium on June 17-18 will climax a schedule that includes the annual Big Ten golf championships over the University course on May 23 and 24 plus 17 other home events.

Tuesday will see the Spring quarter officially under way and will open the athletic schedule as well. On that date the Minnesota football squad will report to Coach Bernie Bierman for its initial Spring workout. The same evening, Fred Perry and Ellsworth Vines, professional tennis champions, will play an exhibition match in the Field House.

Six home games with Big Ten opponents have been scheduled by Coach Frank G. McCormick for his Gopher baseball nine, along with a pair of games with the University of California (Berkeley). Additional home games with non-conference opponents will be scheduled later.

The Minnesota track team will make only one home dual meet appearance during the season—against Iowa on May 14—before entering the national meet on its home track; but Gopher entries will be kept busy in several of the nation's big sectional meets, including the Texas Relays, April 1-2; Kansas Relays, Drake Relays, the Central Intercollegiate and the Big Ten-Pacific Coast dual meet. The Minnesota team will also meet Iowa State, Wisconsin, and Marquette in dual meets away from home and will compete in a quadrangular meet at Evanston, Ill., with Northwestern, Purdue, and Pittsburgh.

Meiji Nine Favored To Down Keio In Series Over Weekend

Meiji, champions of the Spring and Fall seasons last year of the Tokyo Six University Baseball League, is a slight favorite to beat Keio in their series Saturday and Sunday at the Meiji Shrine stadium. The two meet in the nightcap of Saturday's doubleheader. Hosei and Rikkyo will clash in the curtain-raiser.

Hideo Shimizu, southpaw, who virtually pitched Meiji to the championship last Fall with his effective work on the mound, undoubtedly will get the hurling assignment. Pitted against him will be Takeo Nakada, Keio's ace lefthander. He has a fine curve ball and if he is in any form, he is likely to cause the Meiji batsmen plenty of trouble.

Hosei and Rikkyo are evenly matched and it is a toss-up between the two.

Coaches Name Court Team In M.V. Conference

Christian Science Monitor

DES MOINES, Iowa, March 22—Nick Miletich, rugged, fast charging Drake guard, was the only unanimous choice for a position on the all-Missouri Valley Conference basketball team selected by the eight league coaches and thus earns the captaincy of the mythical quintet.

Miletich received eight first-team votes for a total of 16 points, counting two points for each first-team selection and one for a second-team allot.

Failure of one coach to put Dick Shaw on his first team cost the little Creighton forward a chance to the Miletich. Shaw, who led the conference in scoring, got 15 points, one more than did his running mate at forward, Dick Drueger of Oklahoma A. and M.

At center big Bill Barringer of Oklahoma A. and M. College failed to repeat as a first-team choice, being pushed to the second squad by Bobby Jones, kingpin at Tusla University. Jones received 10 points to Barringer's eight for center, and in addition the Golden Hurricane star was placed at forward on one coach's second team and at guard on another's.

Merle Scheffles, called by Coach Hank Iba the best defensive player in the Conference, won the first-team guard assignment opposite Miletich. The Oklahoma Aggie backcourt man was given eight votes to nose out Hal Dean of Grinnell, who had seven.

Bud Suter of Drake and Fred Luther of Grinnell earned second-team places at forward, while Carl (Roman) Roh of Creihton was put at guard on the second outfit. Roh, who played all three positions, received four points for guard, two for center, and one for forward.

Shaw is the only repeater on the first team and is one of the two juniors, Scheffler being the other. Krueger, Jones and Miletich are seniors, as are all of the second-team players except Roh.

Coaches who did the choosing were Henry Iba, Oklahoma A. and M.; Bill Williams, Drake, Eddie Hickey, Creighton; John Truesdale, Grinnell; Chet Benefiel, Tusa; Dee Errickson, Washburn; Hudson Hellmich, Washington, and Eddie Davidson, St. Louis. The teams:

	Position
First Team
Dick Krueger, Okla. A. and M. (14)	F
Dick Shaw, Creighton (15)	F
Bobby Jones, Creighton (10)	C
Nick Miletich, Drake (16)	G
Merle Schenffler, Oklahoma A and M. (8)	G
Second Team
Bud Suter, Drake (6)	F
Fred Luther, Grinnell (4)	F
Bill Barringer, Oklahoma A and M. (8)	C

Uji-Yamada City Wants City Picked For Relay

To the Olympic Organizing Committee has come a request from Uji-Yamada City where the Grand Ise Shrines are to select that city as the starting point for the relay to bring the Olympic flame to the main Olympic stadium during the 1940 Games.

The request will be carefully considered by the Olympic Organizing Committee, which has been studying the matter of the relay for some time now.

Keio Eight Favored

The Keio and Waseda eights are going through strenuous workouts for their 10th annual boat race on the Ogu Arakawa course over 3,200 meters on April 29. Keio is a slight favorite to make it its sixth straight victory.

Nakano Defeated By Palmieri In Rome Net Play

Domei Tsushin

ROME, April 21—Fumiteru Nakano, member of the Japanese Davis Cup team, was eliminated by G. Palmieri, Italy's top ranking player, today in the second round of the singles of the Italian international tennis tournament. Unable to round into form from lack of practice, Nakano lost in two straight sets, committing numerous errors. The scores were 6-3 and 6-3.

The Italy-Japan matches will be played at Milan on April 29, 30 and May 1 instead of April 25, 26 and 27. The Italian team is to be picked after the current international tourney is over. The tourney will be on the same basis of the Davis Cup matches, four singles and one doubles.

Kuramatsu Wins

Domei Tsushin

ROME, April 20—Both Japanese entries in the singles of the International Tennis Tournament inaugurated here yesterday advanced today to the second round as Yasumine Kuramatsu defeated Scotti, 8th ranking Italian player, 6-1, 8-6, and Fumiteru Nakano won at the default of Cavrioni, also an Italian player.

Kuramitsu will be pitted against Romanoni, 4th ranking Italian player, in the second round tomorrow, while Nakano will be matched against G. Palmieri, Italy's ace racket-wieldor. Tamio Abe will team up with del Bello, another Italian player, in the doubles second round against Duplaix, of France, and Serventi, of Italy.

The three Japanese players, who are members of Japan's 1938 Davis Cup team, arrived here on Monday by way of Naples. Jiro Yamagishi, fourth member of the team, is still in Japan and will go directly to Canada for Japan's first-round matches in the American zone.

Abe, captain of the team, will not actually play in the Davis Cup matches.

Argentina Will Send 100 Athletes To Games, Cano Avers

Argentina will send a delegation of 100 athletes to the 12th Olympic Games in Tokyo in 1940, or double that dispatched to the 11th Olympic Games in 1936.

This assurance was given by Dr. G. Cano, former Governor of the State of Mendoza, member of the trade mission now here from Argentina, Thursday at the luncheon given the mission by the Olympic Organizing Committee at the Tokyo Kaikan.

There is as yet no systematically organized Olympic Committee in Argentina and the Government has been advancing funds for the dispatching of teams to the Olympic Games, Dr. Cano said. While he did not know of definite plans concerning the 1940 Games, because of Argentina's friendly attitude to Japan he expected that a delegation double that to Berlin will be sent to Tokyo in 1940.

From past practise, the Argentinians would be sure to compete in the marathon, yachting, rowing, soccer, polo, cycling and swimming. Dr. Cano believed that contestants in other events will most likely be sent.

Dr. Cano told the Committee he would make his best efforts upon his return to Argentina to inform the people of the splendid facilities in Tokyo for organization of the 1940 Games.

Australian Cricketers Sail On Liner Orontes

FREMANTLE, Australia, March 22—Led by Capt. Don Bradman, Australia's test cricket team sailed for England yesterday, aboard the liner Orontes. The 16 players were given a great send-off by a large crowd at this West Australian port.

Holders of world cricket honors, the Australians will play five test matches during the coming season in addition to meeting first-class county and other teams. England and Australia have met in 139 international matches, the Antipodeans winning 66 and England 54. The remainder were drawn.

With Bradman as skipper, the touring team is composed of C. L. Badcock, F. A. Ward, C. W. Walker, M. G. Waite, South Australia; S. J. McCabe, S. Barnes, A. G. Chipperfield, J. H. Fingleton W. J. O'Reilly, E. S. White, New South Wales; B. A. Barnett, A. L. Hassett, L. O'B. Fleetwood-Smith, E. L. McCormick, Victoria and W. A. Brown, Queensland.

The touring players came here after winning a three-day match against West Australia at Perth by an innings and 126 runs.

Easy Moving

CCC workers in Black Hawk State Park, Rock Island, Illinois, had occasion to move one of their garages June 5, 1934, and someone conceived the idea of moving it intact on one of the trucks it housed. The garage was jacked up about 2 feet, heavy beams and braces were fastened from the walls and ceiling in such a manner that they rested on the truck body, and away they went to the new location ¾ mile distant. After the moving job was finished, the driver remarked, "I've worked 7 hours driving a truck, traveled three-fourths of a mile, used 2½ gallons of gas, and never left the garage."

All-Japan Cagers For Far Eastern Tourney Selected

Selection of an All-Japan basketball team of 11 players to compete in the Japan-Philippines-Manchoukuo tournament beginning May 14 at the outdoor courts of the Outer Gardens of the Meiji Shrine was announced Friday.

They are:—

Forwards: Tokuzo Hirooka (Tokyo Commercial College), Hiroshi Murakami (formerly of Tokyo Imperial University), R Yo-fuku (Meiji), Rokuya Nagata (Tokyo Imperial University), Kenshichi Yokoyama (Waseda).

Centers: Saburo Oka (Waseda), Hiroji Ito (Tokyo Imperial University).

Guards: Uichi Munekata (Waseda), Akira Matsui (Kyoto Imperial University), Kin Sei-ko (Rikkyo) and Cho Ri-shin (Rikkyo).

Shozo Hiraoka of Rikkyo was selected manager.

The selection was made by Coaches Ashida, Omura, Mihashi and Tanaka from the first group of Olympic candidates that have been in training.

Players residing in Chosen were not selected for the reason that they will have an opportunity of taking on the All-Philippines team at Keijo. But Cho Ri-shin, former Enki College student, who entered Rikkyo this Spring, and who was a member of the Japanese team that made a fine showing at the 11th Olympic Games at Berlin in 1936, and Ri Yo-fuku, former Enki College player, who also entered Rikkyo this Spring, were put on the All-Japan squad. These two players, with Yokoyama of Waseda, pack a combination that is on the par with any all-star selection possible.

The team is especially strong in the guard positions. Munekata, Matsui and Kin all had experience at the Berlin Games.

K.R.A.C. Annexes Kobe Cage Title

(Special to The Japan Times)

KOBE, April 22—The K. R. & A. C. basketball team completed one of its most successful seasons tonight when it won the Hyogo Basketball League tittle by defeating the strong Kobe Koshi Club in a hard fought game, 37-25.

The game started with a bang as the Japanese drew first blood, but their lead was short-lived, when Austen sunk a perfect set-up shot for the red and whites to tie the score, and another basket was shortly followed by Zolotareff's favorite mid-court shot emerging ahead with two points. Though the Kracsmen were never headed after their two point lead, they were constantly tied and never at any stage of the battle until the last quarter did the foreigners have any lead to speak of, the half ending with still only a two point lead for the Kracsmen, at 17-15.

The second half began again with the Koshoites determined to outscore the taller team, sinking a beautiful basket from the side-line to tie the score at 17 all.

At this stage the Kracsmen called for time out, and showed signs of worry, but they started to toss the round oval back and forth behind mid-court, keeping this up for about five minutes before even trying to shoot for the basket, which seemed to baffle the Koshoites completely, as they became overanxious and started to follow the ball, breaking their airtight defense, the chance which the Kracsmen had been looking for. And before the Koshoites could get their defense organized again, the third quarter had ended with them eight points behind.

Entering the last quarter of the match, the Koshoites tried desperately and cut down the Kracsmen's eight point lead to five, but once again the never tiring smooth working Kracsmen started their fire works with accuracy to win by a 12 point margin.

Austen at forward and guard Amram were the stars for the winners.

Coach Of Philippine Wrestling Team Dies En Route To Japan

Coach Galégos of the Philippine wrestling team which will compete here next month died from a brief illness, developing intestinal trouble, on Friday afternoon aboard the Kamo Maru shortly after departure from Hongkong, according to a dispatch to the Nippon Yusen Office here. The vessel had left Manila on April 20.

Coach Galegos, who apparently was in the best of health until he suddenly became ill, was an engineer in the public works department of the Philippine Government. Besides wrestling, he was also connected with weight lifting and boxing.

Caras Regains World's Pocket-Billiards Title

NEW YORK, March 24 — Jimmy Caras, the youthful pocket billiards star from Wilmington, Del., is back on top of the world in his favorite game—but Ralph Greenleaf is still around. Caras regained the world championship last night by defeating the veteran Andrew Ponzi, of Philadelphia, 125 to 22, in the final game of the second play-off series, a game that went 16 innings.

Caras was every inch a champion yesterday. He whipped Willie Mosconi of Philadelphia in the afternoon, 125 to 47, in 11 innings, after Ponzi also had beaten his fellow townsman, 125 to 119, in 21 innings.

Ponzi, who had run out his match with Mosconi with an unfinished run of 42, couldn't match the younger player, who regained the title he first won in 1935.

Austrian To Replace Von Cramm On Reich 1938 Davis Cup Team

Domei Tsushin

BERLIN, April 22—Ousted from this year's German Davis Cup team because of charges of immorality, Baron Gottfried von Cramm, first-ranking tennis ace of the Reich and considered second strongest in the world, may be replaced by G. von Metaxa, powerful Austrian player, sport circles disclosed here today.

With Austria no longer entitled to have a separate team as a result of the Anschluss, it is understood that von Metaxa was offered Baron von Cramm's place on the German team and has indicated willingness to accept the offer. Baron von Cramm, it is rumored, has been sentenced to two years in jail on a charge of sex perversion.

Oklahoma Aggies Annex American Wrestling Title

STATE COLLEGE, Pa., March 26—Oklahoma A. and M.'s orange-clad Cowboys tonight captured their ninth National Collegiate A. A. wrestling championship in eleven years and had one of their number, Tiny Joe McDaniels, named best in the tournament.

The sturdy 117-pounder, former national amateur champion and defending N. C. A. A. king, led the Aggies in their impressive triumph by defeating Willard Duffy, Indiana's Olympic star and undefeated Big Ten champion.

McDaniels was selected by a committee of the American Amateur Wrestling Coaches Association, and continued the reign of Cowboy wrestlers as the tournament's best performers.

Aggies Win With 19 Points

Oklahoma A. and M.'s point total was 19, only 4 more than that of Illinois, which won two firsts and a second—the latter by forfeit because the Cowboys' captain, Fred Parkey, was hurt and unable to compete in the second-place eliminations after going to the finals.

The complicated N. C. A. A. system of deciding second and third places by having the defeated finalists meet winners of elminations caused a shake-up in other scoring, and as a resuult the other teams stood thus:

Indiana 12 points, Southwestern Teachers (Oklahoma) 8, Oklahoma University 8, Minnesota 6, Lehigh 5, Harvard 5, Cornell (Iowa) 5, Chicago 4, Franklin and Marshall 3, Princeton 3, Iowa State 3, Iowa State Teachers 2, Nebraska 1 and Syracuse 1.

Ed Callagher, veteran mentor of the A. and M. squad, saw two other of his pupils come through with championships. Stanley Henson, welterweight who was chosen the tournament's outstanding competitor last year, defeated Bob Finwall of Chicago, and Dale Scrivens won a decision from Kenneth Knight of Southwestern Teachers of Oklahoma.

The other titles were distributed as follows: Three to the Big Ten, one to the East and one to the Southwest.

Harkness Beats Olsen

John Harkness of Harvard saved the East from a shut-out by taking a decision from Ervin Olsen of Southwestern Teachers in the light-heavyweight division.

Dave Matthews, Oklahoma University's Big Six champon, accounted for the only defeat of an Oklahoma Aggie wrestler in the finals when Parkey, former national amateur lightweight champion, threw his shoulder out of place and defaulted.

Illinois took two of the Big Ten's titles in the meet and Indiana the other. John Ginay, Illini captain, topped Curtis Ford of Lehigh in the most exciting final match. With the crowd of 2,000 shouting and applauding, the two grapplers, one champion of the Big Ten and the other of the East, twisted and squirmed into unbelievable knots. Ginay was on the verge of obtaining a fall when the match ended.

His team-mate, Allen Sapora, defeated Hony Stone of Oklahoma in the 126-pound class.

Charles McDonaiel gained the Indiana first with a decision over Bob Kygar of Southwestern Teachers.

There were no falls either in the semi-finals or finals and only one extra-period match tonight—Scribens in the 155-pound class.

Princeton's collapse in this afternoon's semi-finals, after the Tigers had earned three spectacular victories last night, was the most surprising turn taken in the eleventh annual tournament.

The small crowd booed the referee's decision which advanced Hoystone, Oklahoma University's Bix Six champion, past Dick Harding, blond Eastern champion, in the 126-pound bracket, but there was no questioning the decisions which eliminated Charles Powers and Charles Toll of Princeton in the 165-pound and heavyweight classes.

The American Amateur Wrestling Coaches Association elected B. R. Patterson of Kansas State president at a meeting held in conjunction with the championships. James Reed of Princeton was named vice president and W. Austin Bishop of the University of Pennsylvania was reelected secretary.

The association recommended to the N. C. A. A. wrestling rules committee that the present weight classifications be revised to make the competitive limits 121, 128, 136 145 pounds and up instead of 118, 126, 135, 145, etc. Advocates of the change said they believed 118 pounds was too low for a college wrestler.

The coaches were unable to agree on a proposed scoring system which would specify points for competitors getting on top, out from under and other maneuvers. As a result the rules committee, headed by Dr. R. G. Glapp of Nebraska, will consider the question without a recommendation from the coaches.

Big Ten mentors, who have such a system now, were reported divided on its success while the Oklahomans favored it strongly.

Hagen, Kirkwood To Tee Off Here April 29 And 30

Walter Hagen, one of the world's greatest professional golfers, and Joe Kirkwood, trick shot expert, will be seen in three exhibitions in the Kanto, according to an announcement by the Tokyo Golfers Club.

Hagen and Kirkwood will arrive in Tokyo on the morning of April 27 from Nagoya, where they will have appeared in an exhibition the preceding day. They will appear in their first exhibition here at the Koganei course on April 29. Teeing off with them at 2 in the afternoon will be Taketo Fujii and Kunikiyo Koike, pros of the Koganei and Kasumigaseki clubs respectively.

Their second exhibition will be at the Hodogaya course at the same hour on April 30. Matched against them will be Ch'n Sei-sui and Rin Manfuku of the Musashino and Tokyo Golf clubs respectively. The third exhibition will be at Sagami but the date has not yet been fixed. It will be on either May 3, 4 or 5 and the players from the Japanese side are expected to be Chin and Rin.

Play for the three exhibitions will be over 13 holes and the admission will be ¥4.40, including the special admission tax.

Hagen was last in Japan in 1936. To date, he has appeared on 1,200 different golf courses throughout the world.

Helen Wills Ready For A Comeback

SAN FRANCISCO, March 24—Admittedly as thrilled as when she prepared for her first trip abroad many years ago, Helen Wills Moody looked forward today to a tennis comeback which will carry her through tournaments in England, Continental Europe and the United States.

The former many-times American and Wimbledon champion confirmed the announcement by the United States Lawn Tennis Association that she would be a member of the Wightman Cup team; as well as a challenger for the United States and All-England crowns.

Hoping to regain laurels she held as undisputed "Queen of the Courts," Mrs. Moody said she would sail for England early in May.

Training Several Months

Mrs. Moody has been in training several months for what has developed into another international comeback campaign, the first since 1935. She has not participated in major tournament competition the last two years.

While she declined to discuss her game, one of her coaches, Howard Kinsey, declared she was playing "the best tennis of her career."

Kinsey, a former internationalist, has practiced with Mrs. Moody regularly. He said she "displays newfound confidence and has developed remarkable stamina. Her net game seems considerably improved. She smashes hard and is faster on her feet. Where formerly it was comparatively easy to put over drop shots on her, she now anticipates them and is seldom caught off guard.

Keen and Confident

"She is keen and utterly confident."

Kinsey also said Mrs. Moody had improved her volley game wherein she had changed from a drive to a chop stroke. He said it was decidedly effective.

Preparatory to the Wimbledon tournament, she will play in a couple of small tournaments in England. She will play with the American Wightman Cup team against the British June 10 and 11, and June 20 will seek the All-English title she held many times.

Mrs. Moody will play in the German championships July 8 and later in tournaments in Poland.

She will return to the United States in September to prepare for the National championship, following which she will undertake a seven-week lecture tour.

Mrs. Moody predicted the United States would retain the Wightman Cup, pointing out that England would be without one of its finest players, Mrs. Douglas Leigh Little, the former Dorothy E. Round.

She said the 1938 team would be one of the strongest ever to represent this country. It will include Mrs. Moody, Alice Marble, Helen Jacobs, Dorothy Bundy, Sarah Palfrey Fabyan and Gracyn Wheeler, an alternate.

They are five of the six top-ranking payers in the United States.

Kuramitsu Eliminated From Tennis Tourney At Rome In 2nd Round

Domei Tsushin

ROME, April 21—Yasumine Kuramitsu, Japanese Davis Cup star, was defeated today by Romani, 17-year old 4th ranking Italian player, 6-2, 6-1, in the second round of the international tennis tournament here.

Tamio Abe, captain of Japan's 1938 Davis Cup squad, teaming up with del Belo, Italian player, advanced to the third round by defeating a team of Duplaix, of France, and Servetti, of Italy. The score was 3-6, 6-3, 6-3.

Earlier in the day Fumiteru Nakano, Davis Cupper, was eliminated by G. Palmieri.

Landis Declares Many Free Agents In Farm Question

BELLEAIR, Fla., March 23—Baseball Commissioner K. M. Landis today fined three minor league clubs and made free agents of the players of six clubs for their participation in "Secret Working Agreements" with the farm system of the St. Louis Cardinals.

Judge Landis fined Cedar Rapids, Iowa, of the Three-Eye League $538 and declared all but one of its players free agents. He imposed a fine of $1,000 on Springfield, Mo., of the Western Association, and a fine of $538 on Sacramento, Calif., of the Pacific Coast League.

In addition he made free agents of all players on the Monett (Mo.) team of the Arkansas-Missouri League and of all players on the squads of the Newport, Crookston, Mitchell and Fayetteville Clubs, the latter all affiliates of Cedar Rapids.

Judge Landis declined to discuss his nine-page order except to say the list of players made free agents would be made public in about two weeks.

The order itself said the Cedar Rapids, Newport, Crookston, Mitchell and Fayetteville players would be permitted to re-sign with their clubs for the 1938 season if they wished.

In the case of the four clus affiliated with Cedar Rapids, the order said the players could not be traded or transferred to Cedar Rapids or to any St. Louis Cardinal Farm or affiliate within three years.

No mention was made of the Monett players being allowed to resign with their team. Landis declined to answer questions about this point.

The Commissioner's order severely criticized the St. Louis Cardinal farm system and especially the activities of Branch Rickey, vice-president and general manager of the club.

At St. Petersburg, Rickey said he had not seen the order but did not expect it to affect the club's farm system or its players to any serious degree. He said neither he nor President Sam Breadon of the Cardinals had talked with Landis.

The only member of the Cedar Rapids Club not placed on the free agent list was James Howard.

Discussing the Cardinals-Cedar Rapids situation, Landis' order said it was apparent Cedar Rapids had been the property of the Cardinals for the past two years.

The order criticized "Secret Working Agreements" with minor-league teams and said Sacramento was fined particularly for "wash out sales" of players who actually were not sold.

World Cue Title Won By Conti

N.Y. Times

PARIS, March 26—Roger Conti, the French expert, today won the world championship at three-cushion billiards, defeating Welker Cochran of San Francisco, the defending titleholder, in the deciding match of a tournament in which four European stars besides Conti, and Jake Schaefer of Chicago also competed.

Schaefer finished third, with Felix Grange, Roger Derbier, M. Ransom and Marcel Leemput trailing. In the final match Conti triumphed in forty-two innings and turned in a high run of 6. Cochran tallied 9 in one frame, but was not so consistent as his French rival.

Conti previously had defeated Schaefer and the four European cueists. In one of these matches he gathered a cluster of fourteen, the high mark of the competition.

Following the loss of the title Cochran said that he had been upset by the stuffy atmosphere in the overcrowded hall where the tournament was held. He added that he would be willing to meet Conti anywhere in the United States in a challenge match.

Schaefer and Cochran plan to remain in Paris several weeks for a series of balkine contests before resuming their European tour.

PARIS, March 26—In capturing the world three-cushion title from Welker Cochran today, Roger Conti took two out of three matches. Conti totaled 14 points, Cochran 12 and Schaefer 8.

Upon completion of the regular round-robin Conti and Cochran were tied at 10 points each on a basis of two points for each victory. By taking two of the play-off games Conti registered 14 points to 12 for his American rival. Schaefer won four matches in the tournament for eight points.

Cochran won the championship for the third time in four years in December, 1936, at Chicago, ending one of the most thrilling tournaments in three-cushion history with a victory over Kinrey Matsuyama of Japan. The tournament proper had ended in a three-way deadlock among Cochran, Matsuyama and Tiff Denton of Kansas City, each with six victories and three setbacks.

Then Matsuyama beat Denton and the latter was eliminated when he bowed to Cochran. The San Francisco expert turned back the Japanese in the deciding tilt, 50 to 37, in 53 innings.

Kansai 'U' Plays Kobe Gridders In Off-Season Game

(Special to The Japan Times)

KOBE, April 21—Off-season American Football game will be played at the South Koshien Stadium on April 24, between the Kansai University aggregation and the Kobe American Football Team. The kick-off is scheduled at 2 p.m.

Kansai University has never won a game since its adoption of the sport three years ago, but in the last two games played against the strong Kanto contenders, Keio and Rikkyo, it lost to the former by a small margin and came back the following week to score a well-earned 6-6 tie against the much stronger Rikkyo gridders, a game which should have been all Kansai's. The statistics of yards gained through scrimmage showed 13 first downs for the Kansai University to five for Rikkyo.

The University's mainstay in the backfield will be Tsuboi, who is good in both passing and punting, but his running attack can be polished a little more. However the fact that Yamauchi the fastest man on the squad, will be at right half is reason to believe there will be plenty of power. Besides there is Fujii who is no novice in the game, having played as a first stringer on the All-Kansai team recently. As a mater of fact all three were first stringers of the All-Stars who were beaten by the Kanto eleven, the fourth member in the backfield having been Ray Uyeshima who is slated to be their oppenent in this game. Their captain and guard Hamamoto will be out of the game, as he has not recovered from his injury received in the All-Star game.

The KAFT team is composed largely of K.R. & A.C. members, who have yet to play their first American Football game, with a few addition of Kansai University O. B. and Nisei. Despite the fact that it lacks any individual stars the team hopes to grab the bacon. Zolotareff who was seen in action at halfback at the Meiji Shrine fray and Jackie Tarr the 190 pound plunger are the victory hope for the team, and they will be watched closely by their opposition, while Amram at tackle will be the whole line.

Frank Hayashi, captain of the recent Kansai All-stars, though a member of the organization, will referee.

Ray Uyeshima, coach for both the Kansai University and Kobe teams, will go on the field as a reserve for the Kaftites, and may be seen in action once during the struggle.

The line-ups:

Kansai U.		Kobe
L.E.	Miyuki	Namba
LT.	Okamoto	Amram
L.G.	Kohno	Kitamura
C.	Tochibanaya	Arab
R.G.	Kusube	Mendonca
R.T.	Fujimoto	Da Silva
R.E.	Kobayashi	Yoshida
Q.B.	Tsuboi	Tarr
H.B.	Fujii	Mosher (Iwai)
H.B.	Yamauchi	Austen
F.B.	Okumura	Zolotare:

Reserves

Kansai Univ.: Fukaye, Ogawa, Yoshioka, Muragawa, Yamagami, Todoroki and Okuno; Kobe: Mehta, Iwai, Yamagiwa and Kimura.

Britain Invites Six To Train For Cup Team

LONDON, March 24—Great Britain's tennis officials decided today to give the younger crop of players a chance to regain the Davis Cup, lost last Summer to the United States.

They invited D. W. Butler, F. J. Fitby, C.M. Jones, D. McPhail, R.A. Shayes and Frank H. D. Wilde to start training with a view to possible selection for the team.

Of these, only Wilde ever has played in Davis Cup matches. He partnered C. R. D. Tuckey in doubles last season.

Henry Wilfred (Bunny) Austin, Great Britain's Davis Cup veteran singles ace, already has announced he will not be available for Cup duty this year.

The Most Famous One-Family House In History

Berkeley Castle, the oldest inhabited castle in England, was begun in 1121 in the reign of King Henry the First and completed by Roger III de Berkeley in 1154 in the reign of King Stephen. It has been inhabited since by the same Berkeley family. In the eight centuries of its occupancy, it has had a varied and romantic history. It was here that Edward II was confined and barbarously murdered in 1327.

The present occupant of Berkeley Castle is Randal Thomas, the 8th Earl of Berkeley.

Little Entente Powers To Meet At Sinaia

Domei Tsushin

BUCHAREST, April 22—Instead of meeting here on May 5 as previously scheduled, the conference of the foreign ministers of the three Little Entente Powers on the new European situation will convene at Sinaia, a Rumanian health resort, on May 4, the German D.N.B. news agency reports today.

Following the close of the conference, which will last for three days, the news agency says, the three foreign ministers, comprising Dr. Petrescu Comnen, of Rumania, Dr. Milan Stoyadinovitch, of Yugoslavia, and Dr. Kamil Krofta, of Czechoslovakia, will proceed together to Geneva to atten the 101th League Council session opening May. 9.

Provisional Government Reports Income Increase

Domei Tsushin

PEKING, April 22—Reflecting steady restoration of commercial activities in North China, revenue income of the "Provisional Government of the Chinese Republic" has increased considerably, according to investigations made by the branch office here of the Consolidated Tax Collection Bureau.

Taxes on salary income, interests on securities, and deposits amounted to 168,000 yuan during three months between January and March this year, indicating an increase as compared with the corresponding period of last year.

Though Government taxes on capital for the 1937 fiscal year were exempted in view of present hostilities, the Provisional Government issued a decree ordering enterprisers to report the amount of their capital to be taxed for the 1938 fiscal year.

Boston Newspaper Hails U.S.-Japan Trust Fund

Domei Tsushin

BOSTON, April 22—Cordial approval of the scheme, announced by the American Embassy in Tokyo on Tuesday, to establish a Japanese-American trust fund from the contributions made by Japanese sympathizers for Panay victims, was expressed by the Christian Science Monitor in an editorial yesterday.

Emphasizing that in the sympathy and friendship between two nations exemplified in the contributions lay the foundation for international peace, the journal voiced hope that the step of the American Embassy in Tokyo will pave the way for further and genuine Japanese-American cooperation.

Coal Commission Situation Called Worse Than TVA

WASHINGTON, March—The "scandalous" situation within the bituminous coal commission was cited recently by the national civil service reform league as "an example of the inevitable result of wholesale exceptions from the civil service act."

The internal dissension within the commission, whether "scandalous" or not, moved into a new zone, says a Christian Science Monitor report.

Recapitulating what has gone before, the commission, after wasting months in squabbles over personnel patronage distribution, failed to hold hearings before issuing its schedules of minimum rate structures. When these were finally issued they were blocked in the courts on the ground that advance hearings had not been held.

Following this delay, amounting to a year, Charles F. Hosford, Jr., chairman of the commission, announced his intention of resigning, bringing the internal turmoil to a showdown.

Now comes a third phase—a general shake-up of membership in the commission, and an undercover fight for control by John L. Lewis, United Mine Workers leader, in conjunction with Senator Joseph F. Guffey, the Democratic leader in Pennsylvania, who has just thrown in his political lot with Lewis in that State.

Most immediate result of the fracas is the expected discharge or reorganization of the five-man "publicity" section which the commission established. This division gets cut the usual run-of-mine "handouts" of government departments, which generally are handled by one or two men in comparable commissions in Washington. Cost of the publicity division is set at $25,000. Its head is Harold K. Phillips, long connected with the powerful American Legion lobby, and former newsman.

The coal commission has come to be the horrible example of unrestrained pie-counter spoilsmanship in Washington today. Not so much as a mere shoveling out of jobs, for Washington could stand even that, but for letting this ignoble activity block its legitimate duties by producing what is little short of chaos.

The situation is regarded as far worse than TVA, where the spoilsman was kept out by the eagle eye of Senator Norris and where the executive row is confined chiefly to the three-man board at the top.

In the coal commission, on the other hand, the disorganization runs pretty generally through the agency. The influence of Pennsylvania politics is marked; Pennsylvania, the second largest State in the Union, has no state civil service act, unlike most of the other bigger states; and the traditional state job-hunt has been extended into this Washington agency.

"All positions on the field staff," explained Robert L. Johnson, president of the Civil Service Reform League, in a recent statement, "were thrown open to political patronage.

"As a result, an excessive number of employes were appointed to the field force in order to avoid the requirement of a civil service test, and then transferred to Washington.

"Over 950 positions are now excepted from civil service rules, while only 300 are under the merit system.

Salaries Are Higher

"Furthermore the salaries paid to incumbents of such excepted positions are substantially higher than those paid for comparable positions in other agencies operating under the civil service law.

"Such a callous disregard of the public's pocketbook is most discouraging at a time when economy in public expenditures is so imperative."

What has been the result of this? The present demoralization within the commission seems clearly the result of patronage squabbles, and the efforts of outside political and interested parties to pull its strings.

Chairman Hosford submitted his resignation recently through his sponsor, Senator Guffey. Next day Mr. Roosevelt said he hoped the chairman would remain till April 30. There are reports that the Lewis-Guffey bloc had forced Hosford to resign, but Mr. Hosford's friends deny this. At any rate, there seems evidence that Lewis and Guffey are backing Pleas E. Greenleaf, a former political associate of Paul McNutt in Indiana, who later broke with the executive, for Hosford's place. Greenleaf is now a member of the commission. The same political team were reported backing Walter A. Jones, Pittsburgh oil man, for the commission vacancy when Hosford quits. There are seven members of the commission.

Le Printemps au Japon

Par Noël Nouët

On m'a proposé de vous parler du printemps au Japon. C'est un sujet agréable. Le printemps est une saison qu'on salue avec joie dans tous les pays de la terre, sauf sans doute dans les régions tropicales où il n'existe réellement pas. Au Japon nous sommes comme en France, dans les régions tempérées et quoique la latitude du Japon soit sensiblement plus basse que celle de la France, son printemps arrive en même temps que le nôtre et on peut comparer le printemps des environs de Tokio au printemps des environs de Paris. Comme j'habite à Tokio je vais vous parler du printemps tel que je le vois ici.

Le tout premier signe du printemps est la floraison des pruniers qui arrive dès le mois de Février. Ce sont de petites fleurs blanches, qui ne sont pas suivies de fruits. Elles ont un parfum pénétrant, mais elles sont très fragiles et elles sont souvent surprises par les gelées et les chutes de neige tardives. Vous savez que la nature tient une grande place dans la poésie japonaise. C'est une tradition en poésie d'associer ces trois blancheurs: la lune, la neige et la fleur de prunier.

Au mois de Mars nous voyons apparaître des fleurs roses ou rouges sur certains arbres: ce sont des variétés de pruniers ou bien des pêchers, des abricotiers des poiriers. Cette fois c'est vraiment le printemps qui commence. De petites feuilles pointent sur les hortensias, sur les érables, des herbes sortent du sol, un parfum tiède flotte dans l'air. On a envie de se promener, de chanter, de rire, de danser. Enfin vous savez ce que c'est que le printemps. C'est aussi le moment où les saules pleureurs qui bordent les fossés du Palais Impérial se couvrent de feuilles nouvelles, longues et fines qui se balancent au vent. C'est très joli de regarder entre les saules, les vieux murs du Palais, et ses portails, ses pavillons aux murs blancs et aux toits relevés. Au même moment dans les jardins, ça et là, on voit dans certains arbres de grosses fleurs blanches: ce sont des magnolias, ou bien des corolles rouges, ce sont des camélias tardifs.

Mais nous voici arrivés au moment le plus beau. C'est à la fin de Mars ou au commencement d'Avril, un peu plus tôt ou un peu plus tard suivant la température: c'est l'éclosion des fleurs de cerisiers. Il semble que toutes les autres fleurs ne soient venues que pour préparer ces dernières. La fleur des cerisiers, Sakoura en japonais, est comme la fleur nationale. Elle est aimée par toute la population avec une ferveur extraordinaire. Et nous, les étrangers résidant au Japon, nous nous mettons à en parler aussi, comme tout le monde. "Les cerisiers sont en avance!" ou bien: "les cerisiers sont en retard!" Ou bien: "Voilà un temps à souhait pour les cerisiers!" ou bien "Etes vous allés faire une promenade pour voir les cerisiers?"

Sans doute nous avons aussi en France un joli moment quand les arbres fruitiers sont en floraison. La Normandie avec ses pommiers et ses aubépines est merveilleuse et je le dis à mes amis japonais. Mais ils restent persuadés que rien n'égale leurs cerisiers. On dit qu'il y en a une centaine de variétés, depuis les cerisiers simples, des montagnes, jusqu'à certaines espèces aux pétales nombreux, serrés et découpés. Il y a des fleurs qui sont très blanches, d'autres légèrement rosées, d'autres franchement roses. Presque toutes les espèces fleurissent avant que les feuilles n'apparaissent, et alors les arbres font comme des boules d'une écume légère et frémissante. On en voit dans les parcs publics, dans les jardins des temples, dans les cimetières, sur le flanc des collines, le long des rivières et jusque dans la ville le long de certaines avenues où l'on passe dans une tunnel neigeux!

Alors, si le temps est favorable, les jeunes filles mettent leurs plus beaux kimonos et les familles s'ébranlent. Les chemins de fer publient des affiches avec la liste des endroits les plus notables qu'il faut absolument visiter. On combine des itinéraires à prix réduit, les compagnies de tramways suivent l'exemple, les autobus font de même. Il y a des cerisiers centenaires que les vieillards veulent revoir pour comparer leurs fleurs à celles de leur jeunesse, il y a des jardins fameux depuis l'antiquité, il y a des lieux consacrés par l'art et la littérature. On se promène. Les boutiques, les restaurants improvisés, les buvettes font des affaires. On s'asseoit sous les arbres, on déjeune, on boit du saké, on chante, on danse, on attache aux branches de petits morceaux de papier qui portent un poème en l'honneur des fleurs. Cela se faisait beaucoup à l'époque classique et on le fait encore.

Malheureusement les fleurs durent peu. C'est pourquoi on les a comparées souvent aux Samourais, aux chevaliers d'autrefois qui devaient être toujours prêts à mourir pour leur Seigneur et qui en effet avaient souvent une fin précoce. Si un vent violent se met à souffler, si la pluie se met à tomber les fleurs se défont et l'on ne peut presque pas jouir du pavoisement des jardins.

Cette année nous avons eu assez de chance. De belles journées nous ont permis d'admirer le spectacle. Les jardins étaient pleins de photographes ou de peintres. On faisait des films. Il y avait même des avions qui venaient prendre des photos du haut des airs. Imaginez les toits verts des temples et des pagodes au milieu de cette dentelle de fleurs! Imaginez les grands toits bruns des chaumières dans les villages entourés de cerisiers Et même la nuit au clair de la lune ou, dans la ville, à la lueur des lampadaires électriques, le spectacle a un charme inoubliable.

Vous savez que la plupart des cerisiers japonais ne donnent pas de fruits. On prétend qu'ils sont d'autant plus admirés qu'ils se contentent d'être beaux, seulement beaux, sans rien de bassement utilitaire. Mais, entre nous, je dois vous dire que les cerisiers qu'on voit apparaître plus tard dans de petites boites et qui viennent je ne sais d'où, sont tout de même bien appréciées.

Je me suis attardé à parler des cerisiers et il ne me reste plus de temps pour décrire les fleurs qui leur succèdent et qui rattachent par leurs guirlandes l'été au printemps: les azallées en buissons blancs, roses, rouges, les glycines en nuages mauves, les iris en tapis bleus. Et les oiseaux! et les lucioles! Mais il faut m'arrêter: je vois un moustique que tourne et qui cherche à me piquer!

Une pagode au milieu des fleurs.

Meiji Downs Keio, 4 To 2; Rikkyo And Hosei Battle To 1-1 Tie In 12 Innings

By LESLIE NAKASHIMA

It's too bad for Second Baseman Miyazaki of Keio but to most of the 60,000 fans that jammed the Meiji Shrine baseball stadium Sunday afternoon, he is largely to blame for th team's 4 to 2 defeat at the hands of Meiji in the curtain-raiser. He lost an easy fly in the sun after two outs in the fourth inning that started a Meiji rally for two runs. The after-game reflection is this, that if he had caught the ball and retired the side, Southpaw Nakada, who had been turning back the Meiji batsmen without much trouble with his drops, might have hurled even greater ball and been invincible. As it was, he cracked down in the eighth when he was bombarded for two more runs.

Rikkyo and Hosei fought to a 1-1 tie in the nightcap that was halted at the end of the twelfth inning because of darkness.

The games postponed on Saturday because of rain will be played Tuesday at the same stadium. Hosei and Rikkyo will clash in the curtain-raiser at 12:30 p.m. and Meiji and Keio in the second game at 2:30 p.m.

Poor Day For Shimizu

Out to retain its championships of the Spring and Fall seasons last year, Meiji sent its ace southpaw, Shimizu, to the mound. But he had a poor day. He lacked control and resorted largely to his fast breaking drop, which however failed to cut the plate. The consequence was that he was constantly in trouble and when Captain Haiyama of Keio nicked him for a hit to short center to bring in Uno, who had walked, stolen second and gone to third on a fielder's choice, in the last half of the third inning, he was sent to the bench. Righthander Kodama, who contributed greatly to Meiji's march to pennantville last Fall through his effective relief pitching, was sent to the mound and did very nice work, once again pulling his team out of a tough hole to victory. He yielded four hits and one run in the last six innings.

Keio had a fine opportunity to score in the second inning but poor base running by Shortstop Odate killed it. This player walked to start the inning. Nakada rifled a beautiful hit through third, just inside of the foul line. Odate could have easily made third but he stopped momentarily at second and was thrown out at third.

Striking out two men in the third Nakada was going great guns. Ito of Meiji worked him for a walk in the fourth and stole second. Yoshida popped to first. Hard hitting Shortstop Sugiura, switched to clean-up position, fanned. Sakata lifted an easy fly between first and second. Second Baseman Miyazaki signalled for it and then lost it in the sun to let it go for a hit. First Baseman Haiyama could have caught it easily. At any rate, Ito romped home all the way from second to deadlock the count. Then to make matters worse, Nakada uncorked a wild pitch and Sakata went to second. Kamei walked. Second Baseman Kameda, who hails from Hawaii and is a regular for Meiji for the first time, came through with a timely hit to center, after two strikes had been called on him, to bat in Sakata to put his team into a one-run lead. Another wild pitch was charged against Nakada and Kamei went to third. Backstop Tsukakoshi, a youngster and weakest hitter at the moment on Meiji's team, was no match for Nakada. He looked over a fat third strike with the bat on his shoulder.

Keio got two men on the bags in the sixth after two outs but Center Kawase grounded weakly to Pitcher Kodama for the third out.

Meiji Clinches Game

Meiji salted the game away in the seventh. Nakada's downfall was abrupt as he had struck out Kodama and Yano, batting for Kitazawa, had popped out weakly to first. Ito lashed a hit through second. Husky Kato, sent in to pinchhit for Captain Yoshida, swung at a slow teaser by Nakada and pummeled it to open spaces in right center for a double that scored Ito all the way from first. And what did Sugiura not do but follow suit with a two bagger that bounced off Right Fielder Kusumoto's shoes to bring in Kato. Right Hander Takagi finished the game for Keio on the mound from the eighth on.

A three bagger to left center by Odate tallied Honda, running for Haiyama who had walked at the outset of the eighth. Nakada grounded out to short. Kawase walked to put two men on the bags but Miyazaki swung at the first pitch and popped weakly to short. Sakurai then went out on a foul fly to first and Keio had no more hopes.

What proved to be Hosei's only run came in the first inning after two outs. Murakami doubled to right center. Captain Tsuruoka walked and Nagasaka singled to center to bring in Murakami.

And Rikkyo's run that tied the score at 1-all until darkness halted the contest was registered in the fifth. Pitcher Saigo, who had been engaged in a pitchers' duel with Southpaw Akaneya of Hosei, smashed out a triple to center, the ball taking a one bounce hop into the spectators. After Machida grounded out to third, a squeeze was called with Fukumura at bat. And it worked. Saigo not only scored but Fukumura also was credited with a hit.

Rikkyo Threatens

Rikkyo threatened to win the ball game in the first half of the 12th. After one out, Kitahara poled out a triple to left field. Akaneya was sent to the showers and Ariuke relieved him. Kiyohara grounded out to him and Kobayashi was out, short to first, to retire the side.

For Hosei, Karazawa started the 12th with a hit through the pitcher's box. Ito laid down a bunt to put Karazawa in scoring position at second. Ariuke walked but Kagaya, batting for Katsumura, grounded to second into a double play.

Five snappy doubleplays featured the game.

Six Women Named To Go To England

N.Y. Times

NEW YORK, March 24—Five of the country's first six ranking singles players are included on the team named yesterday by the United States Lawn Tenn's Association to defend the Wightman Cup against England at Wimbledon on June 10 and 11. It is regarded as one of the strongest squads ever selected for this international match by the U. S. L. T. A.

The combination consists of Miss Alice Marble, Miss Helen Hull Jacobs, Miss Dorothy M. Bundy, Mrs. Sarah Palfrey Fabyan and Mrs. Helen Wills Moody, with Miss Gracyn W. Wheeler as alternate. British, United States and Australian title winners are among them.

Winners of Many Titles

Miss Jacobs, who sailed yesterday for England aboard the Cunard White Star liner Queen Mary, has won the national crown here four times and the British title once. Mrs. Moody, who will go to Europe soon, has captured the national laurels and also the British honors on seven occasions. Miss Wheeler is already overseas.

Miss Bundy, who recently annexed the Australian singles championship, and the other members of the team are scheduled to leave New York on or about May 11. The entire group will remain for the British championships at Wimbledon, starting on June 20, and will sail for home on or about July 6. They may also participate in one or two grass-court tourneys prior to the cup contests.

Added interest will be manifested in the Wightman Cup matches this year because of the return of Mrs. Moody, who has not participated in the event since 1932. The coming competition will mark one of the links in her comeback campaign on the courts. She also intends to play in the British championships as well as several important grasscourt tournaments in this country and to seek the national crown at Forest Hills in September. She held the latter title in 1931.

Order of Play Uncertain

The actual order of play, along with the selection of the singles and doubles combinations, will not be known for at least eight weeks. They will be determined by the showings made by members of both teams in practice and competition. The English squad is in training at the present time.

This year's matches will be the sixteenth in the series for the Wightman Cup. The competition started in 1923 and to date the United States holds an 11-to-4 edge in victories.

Toronto Defeats Bruin Six By 3-2 For 3 In Row

N.Y. Times

BOSTON, March 29—The smooth-clicking Toronto Maple Leafs overcame Boston's furious power for the third straight time tonight in their National Hockey League play-off series, winning by 3-2 in an overtime session before 16,523 fans at the Boston Garden. The triumph gave the Leafs the league championship and a place in the Stanley Cup finals.

The tally that sent the Leafs into the cup final was scored by Gordon Drillon in 10:04 of the overtime period.

When Rookie Defenseman Bingo Kampman set off on an apparently aimless rush, Drillon followed closely. Kampman was halted but Syl Apps took the disk and sent it ahead a few feet. The fast-flying Drillon swooped in and batted it high into the Boston cage to end the sudden-death play.

Bruin Center Ties Count

Drillon opened the Toronto scoring early in the second period, with Apps assisting, but Bill Cowley, the Bruin center, tied the score during the fourth minute of the third stanza and again, at 2-all, after Pep Kelly had converted the rebound on George Parsons' goalpost shot for the second Leaf marker.

While being knocked out of the play-offs, the Bruins bore down hard almost every minute of the time required to decide this three-game series. Boston's sledge-hammer attack, however, was offset by Goalie Turk Broda, who, aided by a tight defense, performed in sensational fashion in every game.

After twice coming from behind to tie, the Bruins missed a winning chance in the last minute of regular time when Jack Portland, who had failed to score during the regular season, failed to convert a point-blank shot at Broda. He missed the golden opportunity by shooting wide.

Parsons Won Opener

The first two games of the series, played on Toronto ice, went to the Leafs by 1-0 and 2-1 margins. Parsons won the first game for them after 81 minutes 32 seconds of play and goal by Drillon and Kelly, tonight's Toronto heroes, decided the second contest last Saturday night.

The Bruins started at full strength, but the Leafs skated without Harvey Jackson, on the sidelines with an injured hand. Ray Getliffe, the Boston wingman, who had been hurt in a previous game, came out with the first line and assisted Cowley in making the first tally for the home team.

Referees Ag Smith and Bert McCaffrey handed out five penalties in the opening session with a warning to the battling teams that they intended to keep the game safe and sane. Shore and Davidson each drew two sentences. Through the remainder of the contest, though the play was rugged, there were no more penalties.

The line-up:

Both Hagen and Kirkwood were far below form while it was vice versa with Miyamoto and Kamikata.

Birthday Party Is Given For Man O'War, 21

By BRYAN FIELD

N.Y. Times

NEW YORK, March 30—Man o' War, America's best-known thoroughbred, was 21 years old yesterday as breeders and turf followers throughout this country and abroad celebrated. Samuel D. Riddle of Philadelphia, owner of the horse whose sons and daughters have earned approximately $2,500,000, said over the long-distance telephone from Lexington, Ky.:

"Whatever Big Red (Man o' War) thinks of it, this is one of the proudest days in my life. We have the Governor of Kentucky here, the Mayor of Lexington and twenty-one electric lights on a big cake. I am only sorry that Mrs. Riddle was not able to make the trip from Philadelphia."

Mr. Riddle, a septuagenarian, also is the owner of Man o' War's mighty son, War Admiral, the current king of the turf. War Admiral now has a full sister, a bay filly from Brushup, who was foaled yesterday. This coincidence brought renewed congratulations from the many friends and breeders at Faraway Farm in Kentucky for the birthday celebration.

Man o' War was bred by the late August Belmont and purchased by Mr. Riddle for $5,000. In his career during 1919 and 1920, Man o' War starred in twenty-one races, winning twenty and setting five time records. He was the first American thoroughbred to earn more than $200,000 and closed his career with $249,465.

Weight About 1,350

Mr. Riddle said: "He weighs about 1,350 pounds now, against about 1,100 when he was in racing trim. We give him his breakfast early, around 5 a.m., and then he is taken out for exercise. He eats again about 11 a.m. and then has time to play in the paddocks. He is doing splendidly and we are all so happy that he is a credit to American racing."

The festivities at Faraway Farm were broadcast by the National Broadcasting Company. A switch was made to London, where Reginald Hobbs and his son, Bruce, respectively trainer and rider of Battleship, victor in the recent Grand National, were the speakers. Battleship, an 11-year-old son of the superhorse, was the latest of his yet to cover himself with glory.

The elder Hobbs, trainer of Battleship for Mrs. Marion du Pont Scott, disclosed that Battleship, bred by Walter J. Salmon, was to be retired to the stud. Both Hobbses extended warm birthday congratulations across the "pound" to Man o' War.

Man o' War was called "Kentucky's first citizen" by E. R. Wilson, Mayor of Lexington, and was congratulated by Governor Chandler because "he is of voting age and we are interested in that in Kentucky." Others to speak over the radio were Mr. Riddle, L. A. Beard, Tom Cromwell and J. A. Estes.

Birthday Cake From Boston

A birthday cake was received from the Suffolk Downs track in Boston. Mr. Riddle said, adding that was made of "stuff that he can eat." A "bouquet" also was received, consisting of corn, carrots and other equine delicacies, which also will go to the stall of Big Red.

Man o' War has served eighteen seasons at stud, and during all time has been at the top or near the top when the final summing up was made at the end of each of the years.

While his breeding record cannot hope to be as dominant as his racing record he nevertheless was described "as one of the greatest sires the country has known." Certainly the success that has come to his sons and daughters is amazing. Until the advent of War Admiral, Crusader was considered his greatest son. This year the expectation in horse circles is that War Admiral will do much more to enhance the prestige of his sire.

Japanese Players Are Eliminated In Rome Tourney

Domei Tsushin

ROME, April 23—All three Japanese entries in the men's doubles of the international tennis tournament inaugurated here last Tuesday were eliminated in the semi-finals this afternoon.

The team of Fumiteru Nakano and Yasumine Kuramitsu, Japanese Davis Cup stars, which this morning advanced to the semi-finals by eliminating the combination of Vida and Martinelli, both Italian players, by a score of 5-7, 9-7, 6-3, met defeat at the hands of another Italian team, Bossi and del Vida, 2-6, 6-3, 7-5. Tamio Abe, non-playing captain of Japan's 1938 Davis Cup squad, teaming up with del Balo, Italian player, was defeated by a team of Palmieri, Italy's No. 1 player, and Maneff, first-ranking Swiss player. The score was 6-3, 6-4.

In the mixed doubles, however, Nakano teamed up with Miss Sandonnico, Italian player, to defeat an Italian team of Miss Metha and Mr. Behrens by a score of 6-3, 6-1, and advanced to the finals.

Yale Fifteen Bows ToCambridge,40-0

By FRANCIS J. O'RILEY

N.Y. Times

NEW HAVEN, Conn., March 23—Cambridge's Rugby team opened its invasion of the United States today and had an easy time winning from Yale, 40-0, in the Yale Bowl. The invaders dived up to all advance notices and gave a performance equally as impressive as that turned in by the Light Blue fifteen which visited America in 1934.

The 2,000 spectators who witnessed the contest, many of whom were seeing a Rugby game for the first time, marveled at the tricky maneuvers of the Cantabs and the dexterity with which they handled the ball. Time after time they brought the crowd to its feet with their clever passing and, only for some fumbling at inopportune moments, would have run up an even larger score.

The Light Blues played most of the second half with fourteen men. Peter Bateman—Champain, who started the game with a bad knee, aggravated the injury at the beginning of the second half and left the contest. He had just returned when Tommy Heath injured his leg and was carried off the field.

Gives Great Exhibition

Tommy Ritchie gave a remarkable kicking exhibition, converting six out of seven tries, two of them from almost impossible angles. He also made the first points of the game when he took the ball for a try in the opening minutes.

Douglas Low, playing at fullback instead of scrum half, gave a fine exhibition on the defense and drop-kicked a field goal from the 35-yard line in the second half. Keith Downes and Sam Kemble also stood out for the winners.

Yale threatened only once and that was near the end of the half when Kevin Rafferty almost broke away for a score, reaching the 10-yard line before he was stopped. The rest of the time play was almost all in the Eli part of the field, although Al Hessberg got off for several short runs which kept the visitors on the alert.

Scores Right After Whistle

Ritchie's try came right after the whistle. Downes missed the conversion. Less than five minutes later, Bateman-Champain went over for the second try on a 10-yard run down the right side of the field. About midway in the half, Jim Parsons added another and, just before the intermission, Freddy Folker went over for the fourth try.

Low's kick was the first score in the second half and, shortly after, Dudley Reed tallied on a pass from Kemble. It was on this play that Bateman-Champain was hurt.

The sixth try was made by Spug Spencer and the final won by Downes and Kemble.

The line-up:

A Monument In Honor of A Pig

This unique monument, which is situated just off the highway on Route 25, north of Blue Ball, Ohio, bears the following historical inscription:

"The first pedigree of a Poland China hog was written on this farm in 1876 by W. C. Hankinson, owner of the farm, and Carl Freigau, compiler of the original record. This strictly American breed of swine originated within a radius of a few miles of this place and in the making required the period from 1816 to 1850. The first volume of pedigrees was printed in 1878." "This monument was erected by the Ohio Poland China Breeders Association. Unveiled June 15, 1922."

Michigan Retains Title As U.S. Collegiate Swimming Champions

By ARTHUR J. DALEY

N.Y. Times

NEW BRUNSWICK, N. J., March 26—By the infinitesimal margin of a touch. Harvard edged out Ohio State for second place in the 400-meter relay that brought to a dramatic conclusion the National Collegiate A. A. swimming championships in the Rutgers pool tonight. And that touch, meaningless to Harvard insofar as the team title was concerned, toppled the Buckeyes from the throne they were about to preempt and gave the crown to Michigan.

The Wolverines won the relay races in brilliant time and brilliant fashion, but it still would have been of no avail had it not been for the Cantab victory over Ohio for that second place.

So by this most peculiar chain of circumstances Michigan upset Ohio State with a garrison finish beyond its wildest dreams. The Wolverines tallied 46 points to 45 for the Buckeyes as Coach Matt Mann did a jig of joy that came perilously close to sending him careening into the pool.

Haynie Comes Through

Ohio had gone into that final test with a 39-36 lead over its Big Ten foe. There was only one way it could lose, some team had to split apart the two of them in the relay. And even that seemed impossible since Harvard was an odds-on favorite with the other two "certain" to finish right behind. The Buckeyes, to all intents and purposes, were "in."

At the halfway mark the crown seemed secure on the Buckeye heads. Harvard had a foot lead on Ohio State with Michigan three feet behind. But Tom Haynie, shorn of both of his titles by Willie Kendall of Harvard, recouped all lost territory so that the three leaders touched off abreast for the anchor leg.

Then it was up to Ed Kirar, the stockily built blond from Ann Arbor, to hold off Charlie Hutter of Harvard and Bill Neunzig of Ohio State for the last mad hundred yards. As he thrashed down the final length of the pool it was clear that he had made it.

A Grim Struggle

Few saw him finish. All eyes were glued on Neunzig and Hutter in their grim battle for second place. The team championship was to be decided there. They came down the tank for all they were worth as water boiled around them.

They were even in the last few strokes and then it was slap, slap as their hands hit the end wall. But Hutter's hand had touched first and the Ohio State hope for the team crown was sunk lower than Davy Jones's locker.

The Wolverines danced and bellowed lustily along the water's edge in sheer delight. Michigan had retained a team championship it hardly had been expected to win. Ohio State had been a terrific opponent since it gained 20 points in the two dives alone, but in the water the Ann Arbor contingent was more than its match.

Michigan took three of the eleven championships to match Princeton for top honors in this department, but the East had the better of the West with six titles remaining along the Atlantic seaboard. Harvard captured two, Yale one and Ohio State two.

The star of the Wolverine ensemble was Kirar, who successfully defended both his sprint crowns and then anchored the winning relay team.

Others to Score Doubles

Two other double winners also bobbed up, Kendall of Harvard with victories in the 220 and 440 free-style and Al Patnik, the magnificent diver from Ohio State, off both high and low boards. As for defending titleholders who survived they were Kirar, Johnny Macionis of Yale in the 1,500-meter freestyle and Michigan in the relay.

That relay team really deserved the title it won. Waldemar Tomski, Ed Hutchens, Haynie and Kirar won by a yard in the superb time of 3:33.2, the fastest of the season. Harvard was caught in 3:34.3 and the ill-fated Ohio State quartet 3:34.4—one-tenth of a second away from a championship.

There were only five schools that turned in enough points to be worthy of mention. They were Michigan with 46, Ohio State, 45; Harvard, 36; Princeton, 22, and Yale, 18.

The odd part of the Nassau total was that it represented only the three first places that were won. Dick Hough took the breast-stroke tonight, Al Vande Weghe captured the back-stroke yesterday, and the medley relay team, with both Hough and Vande Weghe doing yeoman work, annexed that event.

Two Great Performances

It was rather difficult to determine which was the more eyecatching performance, Hough's smashing victory in the 200-yard breast stroke or Kendall's brilliant triumph over Johnny Macionis of Yale in the 440-yard free style.

Hough won off by himself in 2:23.4, man's second fastest achievement for the distance. Swimming records have become so ill-regarded because of their plentitude that the job the Princetonian did hardly will get the credit it deserves.

But when Jack Kasley of Michigan set world, American, intercollegiate and meet records two years ago with an incredible 2:22.5 exploit, the Wolverine traveled three seconds faster than he ever moved before or since. And no one even had been within those same three seconds of the time until the handsome Nassau power house did it tonight.

The husky blond from Princeton spreadeagled the field to win. He was matching strokes with no novice when he battled against Johnny Higgins, the Ohio State sophomore. Higgins was America's No. 1 breast stroker in the 1936 Olympics, a national champion and a world record breaker. But Hough beat him by fourteen feet, leading from the very first turn right through to the finish.

A Submarine Start

The Nassau ace went the first thirty yards under water, butterflied fifty yards more and then swung into the orthodox method of locomotion until he was on the last tour of the tank.

Half-way down the pool and semi-submerged, he came up under one of the red guide ropes that delayed him perhaps the nine-tenths of a second that would have given him a world record. But he still finished strongly to romp home with ease.

As for Kendall, the Australian Olympian caught a tartar in Macionis. This quarter-mile race had been clearly earmarked for Kendall from the very beginning. In fact, the only question was as to whether Macionis or Tom Haynie of Michigan, the defending champion, would get second place.

For most of the way it went according to the form chart. Kendall was out ahead with Haynie and Macionis following in that order. At 250 yards there was six feet between first and second and another six feet between second and third.

But then Macionis, in a typical Macionis last-ditch finish, started to climb. The Cantab had ten feet on the Wolverine at 300 yards, but the Eli Olympian was only two feet out of second place. At 325 he was in it. Haynie faded badly after that as the Yale senior began to gain tremendously on the Harvard sophomore.

Only three feet separated the two at the 400 mark and the crowd jumped to its collective feet in the excitement of a brilliant race. On came Macionis. Kendall was flying, a porpoise on the loose, but the Eli was flying faster. On he rushed until only a touch was between the two at the end.

The winning time was the best of the season by far, a sizzling 4:48.4 achievement. Except for Jack Medica or Ralph Flanagan there probably is not a free styler in America who can match a performance of that caliber.

The 100-yard free style was something of a surprise even though Kirar, the defending champion, came through to his second title of the meet. Most of the experts had picked Charlie Hutter of Harvard, unbeaten until the Wolverine nipped him in the 50-yard test last night, to turn the tables on his Michigan rival.

The Crimson Olympian did not miss by much, a scant touch at the end wall as Kirar won in 52.7 seconds, the identical figures that Hutter had posted in capturing his trial heat. But the Cantab, never in the lead although never more than a foot out of it, had the misfortune to make a bad turn on the last lap.

Kirar Stays in Front

In a sprint race trifles such as these are magnified out of ordinary proportions. This cost Hutter whatever chance he had at the championship. Kirar stayed just a few inches ahead of him right through to the end. Bill Quale of Ohio State surprised by taking third to give the Buckeyes a few points they hardly had expected.

The team race was a shuttlecock and battledore affair for these first three races. Michigan led Ohio, 26—24, at the end of the first test. Then it was Ohio in front, 29—28, after the second one and finally Michigan 31, Ohio 29 and Harvard 28 at the finish of the third. But along came the dive and a backbreaking batch of Buckeye points.

That dive, by the way, followed the form chart fairly closely. Patnik won as every one expected with a grand total of 143.92 points, with Jim Patterson, his team-mate, following along with 133.38. But then came a surprise.

As later events were to prove this was a deciding factor in the team race. Sophomore Harold Benham of Michigan, seventh and last of the qualifiers, hurdled up into third place with 122.36, while Adolph Ferstenfeld, also of Michigan, was fourth with 119.04, edging out Dan Endweiss of Yale, who had 118.88.

Reich Will Send 10 Track Athletes To Japan In Fall

A 10-man German track and field team will compete here next Fall at the invitation of the Japan Amateur Track and Field Federation, according to a special dispatch to the Asahi Monday.

The decision to dispatch here a 10-man team was notified Jiro Takahashi, attache to the Tokyo Olympic Organizing Committee, at Berlin by President von Hart of the German Track and Field Federation, according to the Asahi dispatch.

Mr. Takahashi was told that it would be difficult to send 20 athletes as requested by the Japanese Federation. Composition of the 10-man team would be such that each would compete in a different event, it was said.

President von Hart said the team would be sent on the understanding that the meets would not be on the basis of dual competition—that no points should be awarded.

A formal invitation to the German Federation to send 10 athletes is expected to be dispatched forthwith by the local Federation.

Plan 9 New Roads To Komazawa Site

With Komazawa selected by the Tokyo Olympic Organizing Committee as the site for the main Olympic stadium for the 1940 Olympic Games, the Tokyo City authorities have decided to construct nine roads to make it possible to transport 130,000 spectators an hour to the prospective stadium.

Construction will be started soon after approval by the Tokyo Municipal Assembly.

The cost is estimated at ¥13,000,000 of which ¥10,000,000 will be defrayed by Tokyo City while ¥3,000,000 will be by Tokyo prefecture. On completion of these roads, about 50,000 spectators can be transported by buses every hour while by increase of the transporting capacities of the Toyoko, Mekaba and Tamagawa Electric Railways more than 50,000 will be transported to Komazawa hourly, or a total of 100,000 in one hour.

The roads will start from the following places, each reaching Komazawa. Figures in brackets show their width:

Meguro (25 meters), Yebisu (15 meters), Shibuya via Komazawa parade ground (11 meters), Shibuya via Sangenjaya (25 meters), Futako-Tamagawa (11 to 15 meters), Maruko-Tamagawa (8 to 11 meters), Omori Keihin Electric School (25 meters), Daida-bashi (25 meters), Gotokuji on the Odawara Express Electric Railways (15 to 18 meters).

Nagai Back Wednesday From Cairo Meeting; To Report On Saturday

Dr. Matsuzo Nagai, secretary general of the Olympic Organizing Committee who attended the recent meeting of the International Olympic Committee at Cairo and did much to remove apprehension over the staging of the 12th Olympic Games in Tokyo in 1940, is scheduled to return to Yokohama Wednesday morning on the Canadian Pacific liner Empress of Russia from Vancouver. He is expected to arrive at Tokyo Station at 2:35 p.m.

Dr. Nagai will report on the I.O.C. meeting at Cairo and on the contacts he made with Olympic officials both in the United States and in Europe at a meeting sponsored by the O.O.C. at 3 p.m. next Saturday at the Tokyo New Grand Restaurant.

Saigo Is Leading Batting Race In Varsity League

Pitcher Hayafusa Saigo of Rikkyo University, who checked Hosei to a 1-all tie Sunday in a game that was halted because of darkness at the end of the 12th inning, is leading the varsity league in hitting for games up to and including Sunday. He lashed out three hits in four times at bat in two games for a .750 mark.

Others hitting over the .300 mark follow:

Triangular Meet Is Won By Cornell

ITHACA, N. Y., March 19—Cornell's track team closed its indoor season tonight by overwhelming its up-State rivals, Colgate and Syracuse, in their annual triangular meet in the Cornell drill hall.

The big Red team piled up 83 points for its sixth consecutive victory since the meet was launched in 1933. Colgate was second with 21 points and Syracuse third with 9.

Cornellians swept four events and set up three new meet records, with Lester Murdock, sophomore, turning in a double in the high and broad jumps.

Mezitt Captures Mile Run

Edmund Mezitt, who finished second in the Intercollegiate A. A. A. mile two weeks ago, ran as he pleased to win his specialty in 4:23.4, erasing the mark of 4:28.3 set up by Joe Mangan of Cornell in 1933.

Howard (Wresk) Welch, the I. C. 4-A outdoor two-mile and cross-country champion, also spreadeagled his field to win the two miles in 9:34.8. The former meet mark was 9:44.3, set by Bruce Kerr of Cornell in 1934.

The third new record was 9.3 seconds in the 75-yard high hurdles by Donald Weadon, a sophomore, who clipped one-tenth of a second off the 1935 mark of Walter Mervin of Cornell.

Valentine Scores Upset

The upset of the meet was Drew Valentine's victory for Colgate in the 440 over John Nevius of Cornell. Nevius, leading all the way, broke his stride in the stretch and was shut out in a blanket finish.

Nevius came back in the mile relay to run his quarter under 50 seconds as compared to Valentine, William Cook, sprinter, and John Thomas, pole vaulter, were Colgate's firstplace winners. Syracuse failed to win a single event.

Schedule Is Out For Far Eastern Basketball Series

The schedule for the Far Eastern Basketball championships to be held at the outdoor court of the Outer Gardens of the Meiji Shrine on May 14, 15 and 16 was announced as follows by the Japan Basketball Association Monday:

Saturday, May 14: Manchoukuo versus Philippines, at 4:30 p.m.

Sunday, May 15: Japan versus Philippines, at 4:30 p.m.

Monday, May 16: Japan versus Manchoukuo, at 4:30 p.m.

In case of rain, the games will be switched to the National Gymnasium at Hitotsubashi.

Selection of the All-Japan students team to meet the Philippine cagers on May 8 at the Kyoto Shochiku Skating Rink was announced by the Association Monday as follows:

Forwards: Nagata (Tokyo Imperial University), Hirooka (Shodai), Ono (Tokyo Imperial), Sakai (Kyoto Imperial).

Centers: Oka (Waseda); Ito (Tokyo Imperial).

Guards: Munekata (Waseda), Matsui (Kyoto Imperial), Kin (Rikkyo) and Oda (Waseda).

Munekata will lead the team on the floor as captain.

Shinzo Ashida and Hidejiro Tanaka, directors of the Association, were assigned as coaches of the All-Japan and All-Students teams.

The Philippine contingent, reputed the strongest combination in the Philippines, arrived at Nagasaki Monday night aboard the N. Y. K. liner Kamo Maru. On board also were All-Philippines wrestling and boxing teams to compete at the invitation of the respective sports organizations here.

The basketball team disembarked at Nagasaki and caught the 11 p.m. train for Shimonoseki, whence they were scheduled to take the ferry boat for Fusan. They will play three games at Keijo. Returning to Japan, the Filipinos will make their debut at Kyoto on Saturday, May 7, taking on the Kyoto Imperial University five. The next day at Kyoto, they will meet the All-Japanese Students contingent.

The visitors will play their first game in Tokyo on Tuesday, May 10, meeting the Rikkyo University quintet at the National Gymnasium at 7 p.m. They clash with the Tokyo Imperial University cagers on the same court at 7 p.m. the next day.

Cambridge Routs Harvard By 50-0

N.Y. Times

CAMBRIDGE, Mass., March 26—The touring Cambridge University Rugby team scored its second straight American shut-out victory during a driving rainstorm in the Stadium today, defeating the Harvard team, 50 to 0.

From the second minute of play, when Tommy Ritchie kicked a 35-yard field goal, the visitors had a decided edge. The game was played in typical English weather, which the visitors credited chiefly for the fact that they ran up a bigger score against Harvard than against Yale last Wednesday at New Haven.

Ritchie was the high scorer with a 25-point total. Besides his opening field goal, he made two others, converted five tries and scored a try himself. He was by far the most brilliant rugby player who has ever appeared here.

At half time the Cambridge team had a 27-to-0 lead. Three of these points was the result of a sensational broken-field run by Keith Downes. Downes took a pass from Kemble and dashed 50 yards through the Harvard team for the most sparkling individual play of the game.

Joseph P. Kennedy Jr., son of the American Ambassador to England, playing with Harvard, received a bad injury to his left eye late in the second half. He finished the game with his eye bandaged.

The line-up:

Cambridge (50)	Harvard (0)
F.B. Low	Hadden
L.W. Reed	Cohen
C.W. Mallett	Kennedy
C.W. Downes	Constable
R.W. Ritchie	Watt
H.B. Kemble	Goff
H.B. Parsons	Osgood
F. Spencer	F. Whitney
F. Steeds	Clowes
F. Jerwood	Knapp
F. Newton-Thompson	A. Scott
F. Folker	Fisher
F. Hunter	Downes
F. Williams	Gephart
F. Parry	Miller

Tries—Parsons 2, Mallett 2, Ritchie, Downes, Kemble, Steeds. Conversions—Ritchie 5. Field goals—Ritchie 3, Kemble.

Referee—Sydney H. Lane. Time of halves—40 minutes.

"BELIEVE IT OR NOT" --by Ripley

The City Built By Mistake

On June 15, 1844, the Brazilian Emperor decided to build a palace for himself in Petropolis near Rio de Janeiro. He contracted with Eugene Pisani of Dunkirk to send him 35 German masons and builders for that purpose. It was agreed that he would pay for each man the cost of the transportation, plus a commission of $81 per head.

Pisani added two noughts to the number of men contracted for, and sent the Emperor 3500 men instead of 35, which earned the agent a commission a hundred times in excess of that agreed upon. Not knowing what to do with the unexpected influx, the Emperor set the immigrants to building the city of Petropolis, which owes its foundation to the "mistake" of the Emperor. Pisani stated that the Emperor had made a mistake by inadvertently adding the two zeros to the figure 35.

Title In Butler Relays Taken By Michigan

INDIANAPOLIS, March 19—The University of Michigan's well-balanced track team scored in ten of the eleven events it was eligible to enter to win its fifth consecutive Butler University indoor relays team championship tonight with a total of 40½ points.

Don Lash, who for three years broke distance records for Indiana University, won a special 3,000 meters run but failed to break any mark. He ran the distance in 8 minutes, 32.8 seconds. The world record of 8 minutes, 26.4 seconds was set by Paovo Nurmi, of Finland, in 1925. Joie Ray holds the American indoor record of 8 minutes, 31.2 seconds.

Princeton Changes Its Awards For Swimming

Christian Science Monitor

PRINCETON, N. J., April 1—Following Princeton's outstanding swimming success this season, university athletic authorities have taken steps to reward consistent first-rate performances.

A new ruling, adopted by the university council on athletics and announced by Prof. Burnham N. Dell, the council's president, provides that a major varsity "P" will be awarded to the individual swimmer who places first or second in a majority of Eastern Intercollegiate League dual meets. Either the Harvard or Yale meet must be included. Heretofore it has been extremely difficult, although possible, for a Princeton swimmer to win a major letter.

Meiji Comes From Behind To Down Keio By 3 To 2; Rikkyo Routs Hosei, 13-3

By LESLIE NAKASHIMA

Last week we said a ball game is never really won until the last man is out in referring to Rikkyo's 8-6 victory over Waseda by means of a 7 run rally in the eighth frame. This adage was proved even more convincingly Tuesday afternoon at the Meiji Shrine Stadium when Meiji on the verge of defeat unleashed a rally in the last half of the ninth to bat in three runs and down Keio, 3 to 2, in a nip and tuck contest. Meiji thus made it two straight over Keio for the Spring season and remains the only undefeated team in the Tokyo Big Six Varsity Baseball League—four victories in as many games.

Rikkyo and Hosei had battled to a 1-all tie that was halted because of darkness last Sunday but it was a different story in Tuesday's curtain-raiser. The Rikkyo batsmen bombarded the offerings of three Hosei pitchers for 15 hits to win by a lopsided score of 13 to 3.

Southpaw Nakata of Keio was going like a million dollars up to that disastrous ninth inning. His fast breaking indrop had kept the best hitters of Meiji guessing all afternoon. Center Fielder Kawase's double to left field after two outs in the seventh and a timely single to left by Second Baseman Miyazaki had given him a 2-0 lead. No wonder the Keio cheering section stood confident of victory as Meiji trekked in for its last time at bat in the ninth.

Nakata Blows Up

But Meiji had not given up, though the task seemed virtually impossible to accomplish—that of scoring three runs or even deadlocking the count at 2-all in one inning. So to try anything or to break the jinx of the preceding eight frames, Iwao Kamei was sent in to pinchhit for Second Baseman Kameda, who had failed to connect in three trips to the plate—quite a different story from his three hits in four times up in Sunday's game. Nakata might have won the game for Keio—and he deserved to with his scintillating pitching for eight innings—had he retired the stocky Kamei, but he gave him a free pass to first. He didn't seem to worry much, what with a two run lead, but he found himself in a tough hole when he hit Hasegawa, who had been sent to bat for Backstop Tsukakoshi. And when he failed to find the plate on two pitches to Yano, pinchhitting for Pitcher Shimizu, he quit.

Now that was a tough spot for any relief pitcher to fill. The bespectacled Takagi was plenty excited but his first pitch was a strike and the Keio stands roared. And there was cause for more rejoicing when Catcher Sakurai picked off Karino, who had been sent in to run for Hasegawa, at first with a quick peg to Second Baseman Miyazaki. Here then was a chance for Keio to win the ball game with a doubleplay. But Fielder Kato came through with a single through short to bat in Kamei. At this juncture of the game, the Keio bench sent Nezu to left field, switching Mibuno to right in place of Kusumoto. This shift didn't do much good for Right Fielder Ito, who packs a mean wallop, swung at Takagi's first pitch and knocked it high over Nezu for a smash against the fence. Yano romped home and so did Kato for a hair-raising finish. The Keio students were dumbfounded at this sudden turn in tide. They had been all set for a great celebration in the evening in the Ginza district.

Meiji's Only Chance

The game really should have been Keio's for Meiji's only chance for a score was only in the first inning. And if runs had been scored, the fault would have been Nakata's as he walked the first two men. But Meiji elected to bunt and Yoshida sacrificed, Kitazawa and Ito going to third and second respectively. A hit would have brought in the two men to be sure, but Shortstop Sugiura, a good hitter, was a sucker to an indrop with the count 3 and 2, and First Baseman Nakata looked at a straight one that cut the outside corner for the third strike.

Keio again was first to score. Kawase nicked Southpaw Shimizu for a hit to right after one away in the third inning. He stole second. Miyazaki flied out to left but Sakurai walked on four straight balls. Uno singled to center—he broke his bat doing so—and Kawase romped home.

Captain Yoshida doubled down the left field line after two away in the last half of the third but Sugiura grounded out to third.

Meiji's chance for victory appeared doomed in the eighth when with two men on the bags, Kamei rolled a hopper to third to force out Yoshida, who had singled through the pitcher's box to get on, for the third out.

Saigo Pitches

Saigo pitched a grand game for Rikkyo, yielding but four hits, while his team-mates, as mentioned in the foregoing lashed out 15 hits to register a 13-3 victory.

Rikkyo really won the game right in the first inning by tearing into the offerings of Akaneya, Hosei ace southpaw. Kitahara started off with a single to left. Kiyohara doubled to right to advance Kitahara to third. And then came Kobayashi's triple to right center to score two. Akaneya was sent to the showers and Ariuke replaced him. Kobayashi also scored on Tabe's fly to left before the side was retired.

Tsukamoto took the pitching for Hosei in the fourth when Ariuke lost all semblance of control.

Two of the Hosei runs were homers. Matsushita poled one into the left bleachers, first up in the third, and Captain Tsuruoka duplicated the stunt in the ninth.

The box score follows:

"BELIEVE IT OR NOT" --by Ripley

Six Deer With One Shot

Col. W. B. Hutchinson of Albany, Georgia, nearly had heart failure during a deer hunt on Little St. Simon's Island last November, and he also got in bad with the game warden. Standing behind a tree on a knoll, he saw several deer skirting the edge of the swamp in thick underbrush, but they were all does, so he waited. Then a buck appeared and in the excitement he let go a shot from his 12-gauge shot gun. He called to his two companions, and knowing he had broken the law, said: "Look what a mess I've made." The buck and five does had been felled with one shot, nine of the pellets taking effect. Authorities established the facts of Col. Hutchinson's unbelievable and unfortunate "luck," but did not prosecute.

Schmeling To Meet Louis On June 22

American League Umpire Movement Making Progress

By EDWIN RUMILL
Christian Science Monitor

SARASOTA, Fla., April 1—The movement of the American League to develop former players into umpires is making progress, as proven by the arrival this season of Eddie Rommel from the International League. Eddie is the old knuckleball pitcher of the Philadelphia Athletics, and he was a good one. If he waves decisions like he tossed that knuckler, the junior circuit arbitration staff will be much improved this season.

Rommel has replaced Bill Dinneen, another one-time big league hurler, who has been pensioned by the league.

The advent of the approaching season will mark Eddie's return to the majors after an absence of five years. Retiring at the end of the 1932 campaign, he servd as a coach under Connie Mack in '33 and '34, and took a trial at managing Richmond in '35. But Ed always had an idea he could call balls and strikes.

Started in 1936

In 1936 his umpiring career began, humbly enough, in the New York-Pennsylvania League, which has now been transformed into the new Eastern League. Last year Rommel was promoted to the International, and became one of the most competent play callers that organization has seen in recent seasons.

Rommel broke into professional baseball with the Seaford, Del., team in the old Peach League back in 1916, the same outfit which also sent Joe Boley and Jimmy Dykes to Connie Mack. Jack Dunn gave Eddie a chance at Baltimore in 1917, but the youngster shifted to Newark. In 1919, after a trial with the Giants, he rejoined Newark, appearing in 86 games in various positions, but managing to take 22 victories on the mound.

Connie Mack heard about Rommel, personally scouted him and took him to the A's Lake Charles training camp in the Spring of 1920. In 1922 Eddie had his biggest year, winning 27 games for the seventh-place Athletics. From 1927 until he retired in '32 the veteran worked mostly in relief roles, a chore which he reluctantly accepted.

Well-Trained Eyes

With his long career of pitching as a background, Rommel should eventually earn high regard throughout the American League. Famed for his ability to control the knuckler, Eddie's eyes have long been trained to catch the corners of the plate. It is hoped that the majors will enlarge upon their umpire developing program.

* * *

Rommel made no secret of his dislike for relief hurling. He considered it the bane of all pitchers, and more than once insisted he would never again walk out of the bull pen. But he always did, until forced into retirement at the end of 1932.

* * *

The record books fail to list the number of games relief pitchers have saved for faltering teammates, but Rommel ranks close to the top in this particular line of endeavor. Eddie's knuckle ball helped enrich the lifetime average of such hurlers as Bom Grove, George Earnshaw and Rube Walberg.

* * *

Shorts....Cutter Drury, former semi-pro player around Baltimore, taught Rommel the knuckle ball... The Yankees and Cardinals will return to St. Petersburg again next Spring....The Yanks have trained there since 1925, while the Red Birds replaced the Boston Bees this year ....Don't be surprised if the Bees move their training base again in 1939—to Clearwater.

Muroi Joins Lions

Yutaka Muroi, 25, former star catcher of Meiji University, has signed up with the Lions professional team, it was announced by the Japan Professional Baseball Federation Thursday.

Agree Komazawa Site Is O.K.

Dr. Matsuzo Nagai, secretary general of the Olympic Organizing Committee who returned Wednesday from Cairo (left) called on Count Michimasa Soyejima, Japanese member of the International Olympic Committee, at the latter's residence at Yoyogi Thursday and conversed for an hour on the 12th Olympic Games. Count Soyejima, who assured Count Henri Ballet-Latour, chairman of the I. O. C., when he was in Japan two years ago, that the Games would be held at the Outer Gardens of the Meiji Shrine if allotted to Japan, is reported to have informed Dr. Nagai that there should be no objection to the shift of the main Olympic stadium site to Komazawa if the latter is better.

American League Nines Have Produced More 'Super' Teams

By ALAN GOULD

NEW YORK, April 1—National Leaguers shudder or put cotton in their ears when they think of tackling those ferocious Yankees in another world series.

You can't blame them. Five times in the last 11 years the Yanks have flattened their rivals in the big-money battle. They have taken 20 out of 23 games, including 12 in succession in 1927, 1928, and 1932 against the Pirates, Cardinals, and Cubs. Only the Giants have put up anything resembling a struggle, and last year they came apart, too.

It distorts the picture, however, to contend that this Yankee domination carries with it superiority for the American League as a whole. You can't take the Yankee out of it, of course, but it should be observed (1) that the New York club has contributed chiefly to the 21-12 margin of the Americans in world series competition, and (2) that outside of the series in which the Yanks have participated since the war, the inter-league battle has been pretty much of a standoff.

World Series Factors

The factors affecting world series results are numerous and conflicting. Big league magnates, for example, have twice recognized the inconclusiveness of a best four-out-of-seven series between any two clubs by lengthening the limit to nine games. Aside from this technical point, it is true that relative condition, psychological factors, and the "breaks" have contributed as much to world series outcome as the twin major assets of power or pitching.

The Americans not only have had the happy faculty of producing more "super teams," such as the Athletics of two eras and the Boston Red Sox, as well as the Yankees; but they have established a more effective esprit de corps. For example, in 1910, an all-star American League team was put together to keep Connie Mack's first great team on edge for the world series with the Chicago Cubs, up to then the most feared outfit in the majors. The A's won.

Over a long stretch, the best minds of the American League have pooled their ingenuity and resources at world series time. How much effect this post-season "all for one" policy has had is, of course, a matter for conjecture. It contrasts, however, with the bickering and jealousy evident within the National League family. No doubt, part of this factional feeling has arisen from the more hotly-contested N. L. Pennant races. Quite often it has been felt that the winner just happened to be more fortunate at the right time and that, in fact, the best club had not won.

It will be recalled that in 1928, while the Yankees were in the midst of polishing off the Cardinals four in a row, Babe Ruth brought a storm of abuse upon his head in St. Louis by saying, in effect, the Cards were no better than a third-place club, and didn't belong in the world series. Such has been the feeling among National Leaguers at various times, that managers of pennant clubs have abruptly rejected suggestions from fellow-pilots. The only similar instance we can recall, on the American League side, was when the A's of 1931 refused to take any advice on how to handle Pepper Martin and lost the series to the Cards.

Are Outfumbled

You have read stories of how the Yankees of 1927 "frightened" the Pirates into absorbing four straight lickings by a pre-series exhibition of slugging power by Ruth, Gehrig & Co. The fact is, as I can testify from first-hand observation, that the Pirates were groggy from the effects of a terrific pennant fight that wasn't decided until the day before the regular season ended. They staged a celebration on the way home from Cincinnati that damaged at least one important pitching arm. Even so, in the series, it wasn't that they were outclassed so much as it was that they outfumbled the Yankees.

Last year the Giants had the jitters and were three down before they put up anything like an argument. The Yankees, on the other hand, after staggering around most of the final month of the season without much incentive, played flawless baseball. They did not look like the same team that had dropped an entire series to the lowly Athletics in August.

Contrary to a general conception, again based upon what the Yankees have achieved, pitching has been more important than batting power in giving American Leaguers the world series edge. The records show that each side has outhit the other on 17 occasions. Remember the White Sox, "hitless wonders" of 1906? They beat the Cubs in the world series. Remember the Boston Braves of 1914? They achieved a "miracle" by taking four in a row from the favored Athletics.

If there's anything to cycles or the law of averages in baseball, it's the National League's turn, Yankees or no Yankees.

The decade of 1903-17 saw the American just as dominant in the world series as they have been in the last 10 years. In between the Nationals held their own. In fact, National Leaguers still like to recall, in the midst of current gloom, that the Yankees got no better than one tie in a string of nine consecutive games against the Giants of 1921-23. Maybe the tide of Spring training victory, favoring the Nationals this year, is an omen. Maybe it's an illusion, too.

Biennial Plan For Davis Cup Opposed In U.S.

NEW YORK, April 2—The inducement to leading amateur players to become professionals would be greatly increased if Davis Cup competition were changed from an annual to a biennial basis, the United States Lawn Tennis Association said today in expressing its opposition to the change.

In a letter to the Davis Cup nations which meet at London June 30, Walter Merrill Hall, chairman of the U. S. L. T. A. Davis Cup and International Play Committee, urges the nations to vote against any suggestions for putting cup competition on a biennial basis. Germany and South Africa, the latter backed by England, are expected to submit such proposals.

"We believe," Hall writes, "that the development in tennis of professional competition and exhibitions affords one of the strongest reasons for keeping the Davis Cup amateur competition continuously before the public. The activities of professionals and promoters would undoubtedly be strongly stimulated, particularly in the off years, by a change in Davis Cup competition from an annual to a biennial basis."

Declaring that Dwight F. Davis, donor of the international trophy, is in full sympathy with the U. S. L. T. A. stand, Hall points out further that the annual plan has been a leading factor in the competition's success for nearly 40 years; that no nation now is under obligation to challenge each year; that public and player interest would decrease under an alternate-year program, and that loss of the present annual incentive would lower the average ability of players throughout the world.

A recent poll of European nations indicated the U. S. L. T. A. will be supported by Italy, France, Norway, Ireland, Czechoslovakia and Poland in its campaign to retain the present system of play. Only Switzerland, arguing the excessive cost of annual competition, came out in favor of a change.

South Africa, at the London meeting, plans to propose a direct switch to biennial competition, Germany, on the other hand, has requested that alternate proposals be included on the agenda: (1) that the last four survivors in one year qualify automatically and be drawn against the best four the following season; (2) that eliminations be held one year, and the inter-zone finals and challenge round the next.

Tragic Story Told In Brief Item On Grange

By DAVIS J. WALSH

NEW YORK,—(INS)—The news item was brief even succinct:

"Harold (Red) Grange, the great Galloping Ghost of football more than a decade ago who underwent an emergency operation for a bladder adhesion recently, will be able to leave the hospital in a few weeks, it was announced today."

Only a few words. In 1925, a few million weren't adequate in telling the glowing story of the greatest single figure in the history of intercollegiate football; a man whose career at the time so captured romance and touched the heart that his name became a national institution, the toast of young and old.

He's dismissed with a few words now and so, by implication and by contrast, you get the grim story of just how pitiless Time can be, even with the best of us; the idea being that the fewer the words, the stronger the contrast.

What these don't tell, and cannot, is the little personal touch, here and there, that often is so revealing in determining the measure of a man. And, of course, no mere news item can do justice to the tragic loss of a fortune, once estimated at $500,000, upon which we can dilate subsequently.

The first time I saw Grange at close hand he was sitting among a truck load of football players at Illinois, waiting to be driven over to the stadium for daily practice. He might have been the veriest chump, so quiet and well mannered was he. Yet this was only four days after he had put on a one-man show, the like of which never before had been seen in football, and never since; the four touchdowns in twelve minutes against Michigan in the year of grace, 1924.

The young man, in fact, was quite unspoiled and you liked him immediately. You kept on, as time continued; there is nothing impermanent about Grange's character.

You saw him at a distance that day at Franklin Field—and so, for that matter, did the University of Pennsylvania football team. He turned professional the same year, 1925, and you watched him go out to face 10,000 here in New York with the scared, white face of a little boy and you knew then that fame would never do the things to Red Grange it had done to others. In looking back now, you wonder whether it wouldn't have been better, all around, if fame had.

Grange and his manager, C. C. Pyle, went on to fabulous money with their football traveling circus and everything would have been strictly according to Alger, if Mr. Pyle had restrained his promotional dreams of grandeur. But they ventured together into the Bunion Derby, that utterly fantastic thing conceived by the quite incredible Mr. Pyle.

It started in Los Angeles and should have finished in Bellevue. Instead, they hired Madison Square Garden and that wasn't the only finish. The other was between Grange and Pyle, who finished just ahead of the sheriff.

The result was that Grange, minus his money, continued to play professional football for Waukegon wages until finally, like an old fire horse, he was retired to the status of assistant coach.

The last line of the hospital item tells the rest of the story.

"Grange's illness," it said, "was brought by an old injury of the gridiron."

It was all he had left from a storybook career.

Philippine Teams To Make Debut Here On May 12

The Philippine boxing and wrestling teams, five men on each, that arrived at Kobe Thursday morning aboard the Nippon Yusen Kaisha liner Kamo Maru will make their debut on Saturday evening, May 7, at the Koshien Stadium, against All-Japan teams. In case of rain, the events will be held the next day, beginning at 1 p.m.

Their first appearance in Tokyo will be on Thursday, May 12, at the Hibiya Park amphitheater beginning at 5 p.m.

Presently, the Filipino athletes are making their headquarters at the Koshien Tennis Club.

Rikkyo And Keio Evenly Matched In Spring Series

Followers of the Tokyo "Big Six" University Baseball league are in store for a good treat Saturday and Sunday at the Meiji Shrine stadium with Keio and Hosei meeting in their annual Spring series. Clashing in the other games of the two double-headers are Waseda and Tokyo Imperial University. Waseda and Teidai will meet in the curtain-raiser on Saturday and Keio and Hosei on Sunday.

Depends on Akaneya

Whether Hosei will be able to take the measure of Keio will depend entirely on Southpaw Akaneya. Last Sunday he hurled a 12-inning 1-1 draw game against Rikkyo but on Tuesday was knocked out from the box in the first inning, the resultant score being 13 to 3 in favor of Rikkyo. If he is in shape, his southpaw shoots might well carry on his team to victory.

It is likely that Keio will depend again on Lefty Nakata, who pitched brilliantly against Meiji last Sunday and Tuesday only to lose both games because of tough luck. It was especially so in Tuesday's encounter when he enjoyed a 2 to 0 lead up to the ninth inning. The question arises at this juncture whether he is able to finish a game effectively, or whether he is only an eight-inning pitcher. The task will be easier for him if there is a little more timely hitting on the part of his team-mates.

At any rate, both teams appear to be evenly matched and it appears that the breaks will decide the winner.

Waseda, playing for the first time in two weeks after splitting its series with Rikkyo, is a heavy favorite to make it two straight over Teidai, perennial holders of the league's cellar position. Teidai seems completely lost with the graduation of Yasuji Kubota, who with his scintillating pitching virtually single-handedly gave the other teams a keen fight. A bit more hitting by his team-mates and Teidai would have made a much better showing in the standings during the past few years. Keikichi Yutani, who has been called upon to bear the brunt of the moundwork thus far this season, undoubtedly is not the equal of the diminutive Kubota though he tries hard enough. And then his team-mates are woefully weak at bat.

Waseda Taking No Chance

Waseda already with one setback and determined to oust Meiji from the championship seat will take no chance and will most likely send Southpaw Kondo to the mound. If he has control, there is no doubt the Teidai batsmen will be breaking their bats trying to hit him.

Waseda is much stronger at bat and is also a better fielding team.

Mme. Henrotin Wins Bermuda Tennis Crown

By FRED HAWTHORNE
N.Y. Herald Tribune

HAMILTON, Bermuda, March 19—Mme. Sylvia Henrotin, of France, won the Bermuda women's tennis singles championship for the third time today, gaining permanent possession of the challenge trophy which has been in competition since 1928, by defeating Mrs. Marjorie Gladman Van Ryn, of Austin, Tex., in the final, 3—6, 6—4, 6—2.

Wayne Sabin, of Hollywood, Calif., sixth ranking player, and Bernard Coghlan, of Pacific Palisades, Calif., captured the men's doubles title by turning back Don McNeill, of Oklahoma City, the new national indoor champion, and Robert Murray, of Montreal, 6—3, 6—4, 6—2.

A huge crowd filled the Stadium to near capacity for the closing matches of the twenty-fifth annual Bermuda championships. His Excellency the Governor Sir Reginald Hildyard presented the prizes to the winners in the five divisions, extending his congratulations to each.

Gallery Cheers Mrs. Van Ryn

The opinion prevailed in the islands that the women's singles final was the best ever seen in the quarter-century history of the tournament. Although beaten, Mrs. Van Ryn played spectacular tennis and frequently drew rounds of applause for her sensational recoveries of difficult returns.

The American finalist who was favored to win, led, 3 to 0, in the opening set until Mme. Henrotin's blazing challenge brought her up on even terms. Volleying beautifully and going after every shot, no matter how impossible it seemed, Mrs. Van Ryn swept through the next three games, breaking the French star's service in a love game.

In the second set, however, Mme. Henrotin came back strongly, making effective use of her deadly trapshots and killing her opponent's lobs with severe smashes. Driving close to the sidelines, she gained a 3—0 lead with ease. Then Mrs. Van Ryn put on a great rally, taking the next two games, and eventually coming up to 4—5, but she was forced yield in the final game of the set. This set was a desperate battle, with virtually every game fought fiercely to deuce. Both players volleyed brilliantly, but Mme. Henrotin, after nearly dropping the set and match, finally won the tenth game squaring the match at one set each.

American's Late Bid Fails

Leading at 2—0 and then at 4—2 in the final set, the French ace appeared to have the match well in hand until the seventh game, when Mrs. Van Ryn made a great bid to pull the match out of the fire. Trailing at 0—40, she eventually deuced the points, but Mme. Henrotin took the next two points with a daring trapshot that just cleared the net and a deep volley down the sidelines. The final game went to deuce twice as both players brought off spectacular volleys. Mme. Henrotin clinched the game, however, with a magnificent trapshot that Mrs. Van Ryn could not reach.

The final of the men's doubles was not particularly stirring because Sabin and young Coghlan enjoyed a clear superiority in hitting and service over their rivals. Murray's service was broken four times and McNeill's on three occasions. Coghlan and Sabin lost their service once each. The Californians were the aggressors throughout the match, entrenching themselves at the net and refusing to be budged, and outplaying Murray and McNeill with their harder hitting.

"BELIEVE IT OR NOT" --by Ripley

Armless-Legless Wonder

Cecil John Shirley, born 55 years ago in England and now living in South Africa, has proved that being born without arms and legs need not be a handicap. Using artificial wooden legs which he made himself from native timber in the South African bush, he mounts his horse without assistance—writes with a pen between the stumps of his arms, in better penmanship than average—paints water colors and frames the pictures himself—can thread a needle himself and sew as well as anyone—lights cigaretts, and even fills his pipe from a pouch as well as could a man with two hands. He drives his own team of horses, goes hunting in the bush and handles a gun with ease, and even built his own house without help—just to show he could do it.

Fencing Set Given Benito Mussolini

Domei Tsushin

ROME, April 27—A beautiful fencing set, the gift of the All-Japan Young Men's Association, was presented to Premier Benito Mussolini by the visiting party of Japanese student fencing and judo athletes during the course of a 20-minute audience at the Palazzo Venezia here this afternoon. Masaaki Hotta, Japanese Ambassador, accompanied the party to the audience.

Stressing his friendly feeling toward Japan, Premier Mussolini is reported to have expressed earnest hope that Japan will emerge a victorious and stronger nation from the current Far Eastern conflict. Japan has many strong youths, he said, and any country which has a growing population is bound to become powerful.

The party will leave for Florence at 10:50 o'clock tomorrow morning concluding an eight-day visit here on a tour of leading cities in northern Italy.

Waseda Defeats Keio Eight In 10th Annual Race

For the first time in six years, Waseda University's eight defeated the Keio oarsmen in their tenth annual boat race, Japan's blue ribbon regatta event, Friday afternoon on the Ara river over 3,200 meters, crossing the goal by a two-boat lengths lead. The time was 10 minutes 3 seconds. As it now stands, Keio has six victories as against four of Waseda.

The race, staged during the past few years in rain, was started under perfect weather conditions. The strong wind of the morning had calmed down and there could be no complaint made of the water.

Waseda Leads

Wasela got off to a fine start to lead by three seats but the Keio oarsmen hung on and the former shell was only slightly in the lead at the 250 meter mark. They were even at the 500 meter mark with both crews hitting a steady 36 beat stroke. But there was greater pulling power in the Waseda shell and at the 1,000 meter mark, it was two-thirds of a boat length in the lead. Keio spurted at this juncture of the race, raising its pitch to a 35 to come on even terms with the Waseda barge at the 1,800 meter mark. But the Waseda oarsmen were unperturbed, pulling evenly with a 33 stroke and forged into the lead by the canvas at the 2,000 meter distance. They spurted at the 2,400 meter mark to make open water between the two shells and gradually increased the lead. They showed an even greater spurt in the last 500 meters to win by two boat lengths.

The beats follow:

	Waseda	Keio
Start	43	43
200 m.	35.5	36.5
500 m.	33	33
1,000 m.	33.3	33
1,500 m.	34	36
2,000 m.	33.3	37
2,500 m.	35	37
3,000 m.	43	40
Goal	43	40

The crews were:

Waseda:—Matsuo, coxswain; Noboru Yamada, stroke; Yokota, No. 7; Futoshi Yamada, No. 6; Akimoto, No. 5; Yamamoto, No. 4; Hatakeyama, No. 3; Takahashi, No. 2; Matsushiro, bow.

Keio:—Shibata, coxswain; Kinui, stroke; Tanaka, No. 7; Saito, No. 6; Kyo, No. 5; Takeuchi, No. 4; Iwatani, No. 3; Iijima, No. 2; and Yamada, bow.

The Waseda O. B. eight also defeated the Keio O. B. in the other race of the afternoon over 1,000 meters by two boat lengths. The time was 4 minutes 32 seconds.

Miss Ryan Takes N.Y. Swim Title

N.Y. Times

NEW YORK, March 20—Close finishes featured an A.A.U. aquatic meet in the Hotel Shelton pool yesterday as Miss Elizabeth Ryan of the Women's Swimming Association of New York supplied the highlight with a thrilling triumph in the New York State 100-yard free-style championship.

Never trailing, although strongly pressed by several club-mates all the way, 15-year-old Miss Ryan came through as expected, but by a mere touch. Her hand hit the end of the pool to conclude the race just a small fraction of a second ahead of Miss Mavis Freeman.

Final Slower Than Heat

Flanked by Miss Freeman and 13-year-old Miss Helen Rains, Miss Ryan swam the four pool lengths in 1:03.8. However, the final was seven-tenths of a second slower than her preliminary heat.

Miss Rains and Miss Freeman kept pace until the final twenty yards. Then Miss Ryan drew slightly ahead. Miss Freeman led Miss Rains by approximately a foot for second.

Miss Lorraine Fischer, another W. S. A. representative, was fourth, less than a yard behind the victor. Miss Toni Redfern of the Shelton Dolphins did not defend the title she had won last Winter.

Three in Close Finish

Miss Lillian McArdle of the St. George Dragon Club took the metropolitan junior 100-yard freestyle championship in 1:07.6 by a mere foot. Miss Alice Short and Miss Ferne Bramhall, both of the Dolphins, placed second and third respectively, inches separating them.

A touch gave Miss Gertrude Storm of the Dolphins the decision in the 500-yard free-style handicap. She was first at the start and stayed there to shade her team-mate, Miss Inez Taylor. Third went to Miss Ruth Sheinberg of the Park Central A. A., who elected to swim back-stroke. Miss Sheinberg finished half a yard behind Miss Taylor.

The Summaries

Women's New York State 100-Yard Free-Style Championship—Won by Miss Elizabeth Ryan, Women's Swimming Association; Miss Mavis Freeman, W. S. A., second; Miss Helene Rains, W. S. A., third; Miss Lorraine Fischer, W. S. A., ourth. Time—1:03.8.

Hagen, Kirkwood Lose At Koganei To Japanese Pair

Walter Hagen and Joe Kirkwood, visiting world famous professional golfers, were defeated by Taketo Fujii, pro at the Koganei links, and Kunikiyo Koike of the Kasumigaseki club, 2 up, in an 18-hole best ball match at the Koganei course Friday afternoon.

The Great Haig gave his usual grand performance, displaying his style and finesse that are unequalled, and Kirkwood also did well despite his sore hands but the Japanese played above their heads.

The visitors were scheduled to take on Chin Sei-sui and Rin Manfuku at the Hodogaya links at Yokohama this afternoon.

Kirkwood gave an exhibition of his trick shots for almost an hour that proved a royal entertainment to the gallery that numbered a thousand enthusiasts.

Miss Ryan Retains A.A.U. Swim Title

By KINGSLEY CHILDS

N.Y. Times

NEW YORK, March 28—Successfully defending her senior metropolitan A. A. U. 100-yard freestyle championship and anchoring a record-shattering medley relay trio, Miss Elizabeth Ryan enjoyed a banner afternoon in the Women's Swimming Association's seventy-five-foot pool yesterday.

The 15-year-old W. S. A. free-style ace triumphed by two yards in the title event and a half hour later teamed with two of her opponents. Miss Helene Rains and Miss Lorraine Fischer, to eclipse the women's American short-course 150-yard medley mark by one and three-tenths seconds.

In the record trial the W. S. A. representatives were clocked by three timers in 1:37.5 as they surpassed the standard of 1:38.8, set by a Detroit Yacht Club trio six years ago.

Miss Rains' Time 0:34.5

Miss Rains led off by swimming back-stroke for fifty yards in 0:34.5. In the breast-stroke portion Miss Fischer did 0:35.4. Miss Ryan then thrashed the free-style leg in 0:27.6.

To retain her metropolitan crown Miss Ryan set the pace virtually throughout the race. She had a slight advantage over her four W. S. A. rivals upon rounding the first turn and gradually widened the gap during the remaining three spurts up and down the tank. Miss Ryan, clocked in 1:03, beat Miss Mavis Freeman by a second and a half.

The latter, in second position most of the way, had a half-yard edge on the diminutive Miss Rains, who came up strongly in the final fifteen yards to beat Miss Fischer for third. Miss Mildred O'Donnell was fifth. It was the same order of finish as in the women's New York State 100-yard title event a week ago, but on that occasion Miss Ryan triumphed by a mere touch.

W. S. A. Girls Win Open Tests

Victors in open handicap contests included two other W. S. A. girls. Miss Constance Lang and Miss Kathleen Lawson. The former, one of the organization's most promising stars, prevailed by a half yard in the 100-yard back stroke.

Miss Lawson recorded the day's easiest success, scoring by twenty yards in the 300-yard free-style. She was first off the starting mark with a liberal allowance.

Miss Irene Bobrowski of the Mermaid Swimming Club won the 100-yard breast-stroke handicap by four feet. The junior girls' 100-yard free-style handicap, closed to W. S. A. members 11 years old and under, was contested in two heats, with the placings being determined on times. Miss Phoebe Rosen, scratch starter, was the victor.

The Summaries

Women's 150-Yard Medley Relay (record trial)—Women's Swimming Association Misses Helene Rains, Lorraine Fischer, Elizabeth Ryan). Time—1:37.5. (New American short course record; old mark, 1:38.8, made by Detroit Yacht Club, April 7, 1932.)

Majority U.S. Opinion Against Boycotting Of 1940 Tokyo Games

Domei Tsushin

NEW YORK, April 28—Making public the results of nation-wide survey conducted by the American Institute of Public Opinion, George H. Gallup, director of the Institute, declared today that 61 per cent of those voting cast ballots against boycotting the Tokyo Olympic Games scheduled for 1940.

Mr. Gallup added that the majority of the voters declared that international politics should be completely divorced from the sports world and that a boycott would only increase hard feelings. He also pointed out that many of the voters declared that Japan's war was not a concern of the United States.

In making public his survey and the results, Mr. Gallup declared that this will be useful to guide the American Olympic Committee which will be pressed by a minority favoring a boycott.

Baer Rated 3rd Among World's Heavyweights

N.Y. Times

WASHINGTON, March 28—Max Baer, who began his fistic comeback with a decision over Tommy Farr, received official recognition today when the National Boxing Association rated him second among the challengers to Joe Louis, heavyweight titleholder.

Petey Sarron, former featherweight champion, was dropped from the ratings. The commission's ratings committee said he had outgrown the featherweights and had fought no lightweights of prominence.

These were the first quarterly ratings for 1938.

The ratings for all divisions, in order of merit:

HEAVYWEIGHT—Champion: Joe Louis. Challengers: Max Schmeling, Max Baer, Tony Galento, Tommy Farr, Gunnar Barlund, Nathan Mann, Bob Pastor, Clarence Burman, Al McCoy and Jimmy Adamick.

LIGHT-HEAVYWEIGHT—Champion: John Henry Lewis. Challengers: Al Gainer, Jack Fox, Gus Lesnevich, Eddie Wenstob, Ralph De John, Jock McAvoy, Fred Lenhardt, Tiger Warrington, John Romero, Ignacio Herrera.

MIDDLEWEIGHT—Champion: Freddie Steele. Challengers: Young Corbett 3d, Fred Apostoli, Solly Krieger, Glen Lee, Al Hostak, Walter Woods, Billy Conn, Teddy Yarosz, Ben Brown, Ossie Stewart.

WELTERWEIGHT—Champion: Barney Ross. Challengers: Cefferino Garcia, Saverior Turiello, Andre Jessurun, Jack Carroll, Milt Aron, Vittorio Venturi, Ralph Zanelli, Phil Ferr, Mickey Makar, Holman Williams.

LIGHTWEIGHT—Champion: Lew Ambers. Challengers: Pedro Montanez, Davey Day, Billy Beauhuld, Johnny Bellus, Tippy Larkin, Paul Junior, Yuetton Kid, Eddie Cool, Norment Quarles, Maxie Berger.

FEATHERWEIGHT—Champion: Henry Armstrong. Challengers: Freddie Miller, Baby Arizmendi, Everett Rightmire, Leo Rodak, Ginger Foran, Sammy Angott, Jackie Wilson, Petey Scalzo, Al Reed, Johnny Hutchinson.

BANTAMWEIGHT—Champion: Sixto Escobar. Challengers: Pancho Villa, Harry Jeffra, Johnny Morgan, Lou Salica, Johnny Goudes, Baby Yack, Indian Quintana, George Pace, Joe Rosho, Johnny King.

FLYWEIGHT—Champion: Benny Lynch. First Challenger and American Champion, Jackie Jurich. Other challengers: Peter Kane, Tiny Bostock, Small Montana, Little Dado, Jimmy Warnock, Tut Whaley, Valentin Angiemann, Ernest Weiss, Pat Palmer.

Feller Outhurls Hubbell In Duel But Giants Win

By JOHN DREBINGER

N.Y. Times

NEW ORLEANS, La., March 20—An overflow gathering of 10,000 baseball enthusiasts which included New York's own No. 1 fan, former Mayor James J. Walker, witnessed a variety performance today that must have satisfied the most exacting.

It saw Bob Feller, Cleveland's famed pitching prodigy, outscore the Giants' ace, Carl Hubbell, 4 to 0, in a four-inning mound duel that opened the show.

Scarcely had the applause attending this signal feat subsided than the crowd was on its feet acclaiming the deeds of a new rookie sensation, as Kenneth Keltner, the Indians' 21-year-old third base phenom, exploded two home runs and a double into the reeling ranks of the Giants.

Giants Carry the Day

But in the end Colonel Bill Terry's National League champions carried the day. Blasting seven runs off Melvin Harder to draw even in the fifth and sixth innings, with the last three tallies riding home on a rousing circuit smack by big Harry Danning, the Giants slipped one more tally across in the seventh off Denny Galehouse, on Hank Leiber's two-bagger and Johnny McCarthy's single, the latter shot eventually winning the ball game, 8 to 7.

As a result, the heavy two-day firing which has inaugurated this Spring's lengthy exhibition series between the New York and Cleveland rivals, finds the combatants all square with a victory apiece.

Keltner's first homer, as well as his double, was hit off Hubbell to play a prominent part in the commanding lead which the spectacular Feller gained over the distinguished screwball maestro.

The sensational Milwaukee youngster's second four-master was struck off Hal Schumacher in the fifth with two aboard. All told, Keltner drove in five of the seven runs scored by Ossie Vitt's fighting Tribe.

Feller, making his first exhibition appearance of the year, turned in an unusually commendable performance—unusual in that instead of blazing strikes and wild pitches in customary great disorder, he exhibited excellent control, yet fanned only two.

He gave up only two singles, one by Jo-Jo Moore, the other by McCarthy; walked only two and never permitted a Giant to advance beyond first base. He even managed to trap Dick Bartell off first base after the agile Dick had received one of the two passes.

Against this superb work, Hubbell, off to a bad start, never had a chance to draw even. A pair of singles by Lyn Lary and Bruce Campbell, Keltner's double and another single by Hal Trosky that resulted in Danning having a throw to the plate kicked out of his hands by the irrepressible Keltner, sent the Tribe off to a three-run lead in the first. To that margin was added one more when Keltner hit his first homer over the left-field wall in the third.

Giants Swing Into Action

But with Feller retired for the day the Giants swung heavily into action against Harder in the fifth. A pass, a single by Leslie Powers, who earlier in the day had signed a Giant contract; a double by Moore and another one-bag smash by Bartell accounted for three runs.

Then, after Keltner's three-tally homer that greeted Schumacher's début in the fifth had given the Indians another commanding lead, the mighty Leiber started a sixth-inning rush on Harder that never ceased until the score was deadlocked. Hank doubled, McCarthy tripled, scoring Leiber, and after Lou Chiozza walked, Danning cracked the ball high over the left-field barrier.

Then in the seventh came Leiber's second double, McCarthy's third hit of the day and the Giants moved to the fore never to be headed.

For after his wobbly fifth, Schumacher settled down to some fine pitching in the next two frames, and in the last two Bill Lohrman came on to block the tribe the rest of the way.

20,000 Witness Opening Games Of Pro Ball Loop

Twenty thousand rabid ball fans turned out to witness the opening games of the Japan Professional Baseball league Friday at the Korakuen Stadium. They had a royal treat when Captain Matsuki of the Tigers socked Pitcher Miyatake, erstwhile star of Keio and home run hitter, of the Hankyu nine for a homer with the bases loaded in the second inning of the fourth and last encounter of the day. The Tigers won that game 9 to 6.

Behind the effective pitching of Stalphin, the Giants took the measure of the Lions 5 to 2 in the first game of the day.

The Eagles packed too much power in their bats and downed the Senators 9 to 0 in the second game. Southpaw Nakagawa limited the Senators to three hits.

A four run rally in the last half of the ninth won for the Dolfins by an 8 to 7 score over Nagoya in the third game.

Pitcher Misonou of the Tigers also blasted a homer off Asano who had replaced Miyatake after the Tigers had scored five of the six runs in the second inning.

Third Baseman Kuroda of the Hankyus poled out a homer in the seventh inning, smashing one into the left field bleachers to cut the Tigers' lead to 8 to 5.

Kageura, the Tigers' speed ball artist, relieved Misonou in the eighth. He yielded one run in the ninth when Center Field Horio lashed out a three bagger to right center to bring in Minoru Yamashita.

"BELIEVE IT OR NOT" —by Ripley

Great Ball Of Twine

S. S. Stambaugh of Tulare, California, has a penchant for saving little pieces of twine, and since August 1936 he has rolled up a real Believe It or Not! ball. He picks up short cuts of twine, averaging about 8 inches, from a flour mill, and each day adds his gleanings to the ball of savings. The ball now weighs 320 pounds, measures over 3 feet in diameter. He accurately measured 2175 feet of tied twine to the pound, and he knows that he had to tie more than 1,000,000 knots to make a continuous piece of twine 132 miles long.

Naval Planes Destroy Hangars At Pokwan Airfield Near Canton

Domei Tsushin

SHANGHAI, April 30—Since the outbreak of the current Sino-Japanese hostilities, China has suffered the losses of appoximately 14,000,000,000 yuan, according to an estimate announced by a Chinese economic expert.

The expert analizes the total sum as follows:

	Yuan
Military expenditure	200,000,000
Loss of buildings and properties	10,000,000,000
Commercial and industrial losses	800,000,000

Naval Planes Bomb Pokwan

Domei Tsushin

SHANGHAI, April 30—Japanese naval planes visited Pokwan near Canton and bombed the air field there yesterday. Several hangars were destroyed, it was announced this morning by the Press Section of the Japanese Fleet in China Waters.

All the Japanese planes returned to the base safe.

UNDISCLOSED PLACE, April 30—A Japanese detachment engaged 400 Chinese partisans near Haiking, Honan Province, on April 25, and nearly annihilated the Chinese and captured 50 rifles, one machine-gun, 150 spears, 50 Chinese swords, 50 hand-grenades and 1,000 rounds.

The Japanese casualties were negligible.

Japanese Increase In Shanghai Area; Now Total 22,000

Domei Tsushin

SHANGHAI, April 29—A rapid increase has been made in the number of Japanese residents in Shanghai, now totaling 22,276, according to an investigation made by the Japanese Consulate-General.

Of the present total, the investigation reveals, 20,657 are the Japanese, constituting 6,168 houses, while the rest include 1,138 Koreans, 420 houses, and 481 Formosans.

The number, it is expected, will increase in the near future to 30,000, the total of the Japanese in this city before the outbreak of the present China incident.

Prior to the fall of Taohangchen, it is recalled, the number of the Japanese in Honkew district then under the gun-fire was only 5,000. As a result of the remarkable increase of the residents, all the hotels and restaurants are overcrowded. The Chinese population in the International Settlement and the French Concession is also increasing. It showed an increase by 500,000 since early April.

SINHSIANG, April 29—A steady increase having been made in the number of Japanese residents here for the past two months, a new Japanese residents' corporation and a women's defense association were inaugurated with due ceremonies in a Chinese theater here this afternoon.

About 300 members of the women's association assembled, paid homage toward the direction of the Imperial Palace and sang the national anthem. Japanese army commanders also addressed, bringing the function to an end shortly after 1 o'clock.

Besides California, Mrs. Oshikawa visited Dallas and Austin Texas, Boston, New York, Washington and Chicago where she lectured more than a hundred times. Everywhere she found the Americans enthusiastic pupils and deeply interested in Japanese culture, she said. Mrs. Oshikawa said she believes that through Japanese culture, the Americans will be able to understand and appreciate the Japanese spirit.

She said she was surprised to find that the American women were under the impression that the Japanese women were expected to assume the duties of the soldiers if events necessitated such action. In order to correct this misunderstanding, she said she emphasized that the women of Japan recognized that it was their duty to keep the home running smoothly and allow their men to leave without any worries to keep them from properly performing their duties.

When Mrs. Oshikawa went to America, she explained she was under the impression that the American women were very happy but after visiting the homes of her friends, she soon saw that it was not the American but the Japanese women that were really happy and contented with their home life.

Henry Shimanouchi, of the Society for International Cultural Relations, returned this afternoon after a lecture tour of the United States. According to Mr. Shimanouchi, the sentiment in America was intensely anti-Japanese at the beginning of the Sino-Japanese Incident, but that a great improvement was seen in the attitude of the American public. The average American is most anxious to hear Japan's side of the story, he said.

London Appointment Of Briton In India Protested By Organ

The Working Committee of the India Independence League of Japan, presided over by Rash Behari Bose, passed on Saturday the following resolution in connection with the recent appointment of an Indian Civil Service Englishman as the Acting Governor of the Orissa Province by the British Government:

"Whereas the appointment of a subordinate Indian Civil Service Englishman as the acting Governor of the Orissa Province over the heads of the Indian Ministers who are his superiors, demonstrates clearly the distrust of the British Government in the Indian Ministers, and proves undoubtedly the sham character of the Provincial Constitution inaugurated in India from 1st April 1937.

"Whereas such a Governor can never act with detachment and command the respect and confidence of the Indian Ministers and the Indian public, and consequently the administration cannot be run smoothly.

"This Committee wholeheartedly supports the demand of Mahatma Gandhi and the Indian National Congress for the appointment of the Chief Justice of the Court as the acting Governor instead of a subordinate English official, in accordance with the practice obtained in other British colonies."

SHANGHAI, April 30—After serving with the Japanese Special Naval Landing Party here as commandant for over one and a half years, Rear Admiral Denshichi Ohkochi will soon leave Shanghai to be succeeded by Rear-Admiral Yoshinobu Shishido, it was announced here today.

Prior to his departure for home where he will assume the directorship of the Naval Gunnery School and membership of the Naval Technical Commission, he told Domei at the landing party headquarters that he had managed to discharge his duties as staff officer of the Japanese fleet operating in China waters.

"In the course of the hostilities, it was proven that those officers and men who are gentle at ordinary times had most courageously engaged with the enemy," he stated. "I have done only what ought to have been done. The victory achieved by us must be ascribable to providence and the sacrifices rendered by a large number of officers and men."

RIO DE JANEIRO, April 29—Confirming fears that the South American countries might follow Mexico's lead in expropriating foreign oil properties, the Brazilian government today decreed that all oil refineries in the country must be owned and operated only by Brazilians.

Simultaneously, the Government announced the establishment of a board to regulate the importation of oil. Although Brazil does not yet produce any oil, all oil distributors and refineries are at present owned by British and American firms.

America Rescinds 4-Year Edict On Silver Holdings

Hope Seen For Reestablishment Of Domestic Futures Market

Domei Tsushin

NEW YORK, April 29—President Roosevelt's action today in abolishing the silver nationalization act, which was put into effect four years ago, revived hopes for the reestablishment of domestic silver futures market, it was indicated in financial quarters here.

These quarters pointed out, however, that the 50 per cent tax on profits made from speculation in silver still remains the chief obstacle in the way of reopening the market, though repeal of the silver act has made private ownerships of silver legal.

It was meanwhile revealed that the Celanese Corporation is planning to issue debentures amounting to $15,000,000, the proceeds from which will be partly used to create new chemical production facilities for basic materials for the acetate process and also to increase the capacity of the acetate yarn production through the manufacture of a new short staple fiber.

U.S. Tightens Helium Control

WASHINGTON.—The Interior Department, in its desire to keep helium from military use abroad, has tightened its regulations governing sale of the gas, says the Christian Science Monitor.

The regulations, which came to light recently, are so rigid, persons close to the German Embassy said, it was conceivable that Germany would abandon its current effort to obtain some of the gas for its trans-Atlantic dirigibles.

A shipment of helium already has been authorized by the State Department Munitions Board, but Secretary of Interior Harold L. Ickes had withheld signing a contract with the German Zeppelin Company on the ground that he could not insure against use of the gas for military purposes.

Mr. Ickes' Department, which controls the world supply of helium through a Federal monopoly on the gas, demands in the new regulations approved by President Roosevelt:

"A bond satisfactory to the Secretary of the Interior to be forfeited in case of failure to comply faithfully with the regulations to remain in force as long as the helium sold remains "in captivity," or for three years.

"Deposits ranging up to 120 per cent of the cost of the helium on both current and prospective shipments.

"Inspection by representatives of the United States of the use of the gas and the ship in which it is used, as well of reserve supplies.

"Examination by United States representatives of the processes of inflation."

In latter rules mean that the United States would have the right, if Germany signs a contract with this country, to send an expert to Friedrichshafen or Frankfort, Germany, the main Zeppelin bases.

A final rule authorizes the Secretary to cancel all future deliveries and declare all deposits forfeited in the event of any violation of any rule.

Germans calculate they would have to put up about $300,000 before they could buy helium from the United States.

The Munitions Board approved a shipment to Germany of 2,600,000 cubic feet of helium and authorized a total allotment to the country of 17,900,000 feet, at a cost of just more than 1 cent a cubic foot.

Hosei Beats Keio, 4 To 3, To Split Spring Series; Waseda Routs Teidai, 17-5

Pouncing on the bespectacled right hander Takagi for three runs in the fifth inning to forge into a 3-2 lead, the Hosei University ball tossers bumped off Keio by 4 to 3 Sunday afternoon at the Meiji Shrine stadium to split their Spring series. Keio, by virtue of "Chicken" Honda's scintillating baserunning in the last half of the ninth, had emerged victorious on Saturday by a 7 to 6 count.

Waseda made it two straight over Tokyo Imperial (Teidai) in Sunday's nightcap by bombarding Pitcher Kawai for 11 hits, including homers by Go and Miyoshi, to win by a 17 to 5 score. Teidai put up a surprising fight on Saturday and Waseda barely managed to eke out a 6 to 5 victory.

60,000 Fans Present

Perfect weather prevailed from early morning Sunday and a capacity crowd of 60,000 fans turned out to witness the doubleheader.

Southpaw Akaneya, who went down to defeat on Saturday, checked Keio to three hits up to the last half of the eighth when he suddenly lost control and was relieved by Ariuke.

After three scoreless innings, Keio broke the ice in the fourth. Kawaso romped all the way to second on a wild pitch on the fourth ball. He went to third as Miyazaki rolled out in the infield and then came in on Uno's timely two bagger to right center.

Keio got another in the first half of the fifth. Odate walked and gained life at second when the shortstop dropped the ball on the play that would have forced him out on Inouye's bunt to Akaneya. Both runners advanced on Takagi's hopper to second. Takino dropped Nezu's fly to second and Odate scored. After Kawase's fly to center, Nezu stole second. Here was a chance of further scoring but Miyazaki popped to first.

Hosei Rallies

Hosei came suddenly to life in the last half of the fifth after Ito had forced out Takeuchi at second. And Pitcher Akaneya started the rally by coming through with a Texas Leaguer back of short. Katsumura also landed one safely in almost the identical spot to load the bases. Karasawa followed with a Texas Leaguer to right to bat in Ito for the first run. Takino grounded to third to force Karasawa at second, but Second Baseman Miyazaki in his haste for a double at first pegged wild and both Akaneya and Katsumura scored. Murakami walked and Takagi was sent to the showers, Lefty Nakada replacing him. Tsuruoka flied out to center to retire the side.

Ito's hit through third brought in Yoshida for Hosei's fourth run in the sixth, which proved to be the winning tally, inasmuch as Keio rallied in the eighth to score one run.

Keio had the bases loaded in the eighth with two away. Odate then worked Akaneya for a walk to force in Nagara. He pitched two balls to Inouye and the high sign was given Akaneya. Right Hander Ariuke took over the pitching burden and came through with Inouye flying out to center to retire the side.

Keio tried desperately to duplicate its rally of Saturday in the ninth but Ariuke we going great guns. Nakada grounded out to short. Nezu flied out to center, and Matsumori, batting for Kawase, was out, short to first.

Waseda Takes No Chances

Waseda took no chances with Teidai, remembering the tough time on Saturday, and sent its ace pitcher, Lefty Kondo, to the mound. He yielded six hits and was never in danger as his team-mates had scored six runs in the first for an impressive lead.

Burley Go, Waseda first sacker, smashed one into center field bleachers in the third. Miyoshi's line smash to center in the eighth took a bad hop to develop into a homer.

Miss Gestring Retains U.S. Diving Title At San Francisco Meet

Domei Tsushin

SAN FRANCISCO, April 30—Still in top form after two years from the Berlin Olympic Games, Miss Majorie Gestring of Los Angeles, 14-year old holder of the Olympic spring-board diving title, exhibited her old-time form and confidence as she retained the national diving championship at an aquatic meet here today sponsored by the Amateur Athletic Union to preview possible candidates for 1940 Games.

Miss Gestring scored 135.35 points followed by Miss Helen Orlenkovich, of San Francisco, with 101.95 points.

Pro Grid Group Makes 5 Shifts In Playing Rules

PITTSBURGH, April 11—Professional football put a strap to its out of bounds kickers yesterday as the National League Rules Committee made a total of five changes in playing regulations.

The principal revision was that kickoffs out of bounds shall cause the ball to be put into play on the receiving team's 45-yard line, instead of the 35-yard marker as previously.

In addition the committee instructed official league scorers to keep a record of all punts, originating inside the 40-yard line, which go out of bounds. From this compilation the committee will vote next year whether all such punts should be ruled touchbacks and put in play on the 20-yard line.

Some Opposition

Opposition to out of bounds kicks developed because most coaches believed they restricted the offensive possibilities of the game.

Many instances of deliberate out-of-bounds kickoffs were cited during the meeting and the committee expressed the opinion the new rule putting the ball in play nearly in midfield would limit this.

The committee also said the coaches felt it was not a difficult feat for any league punter to boot the ball out of bounds inside the 20-yard line if he has to kick only 25 or 30 yards. No change is contemplated on punts originating outside the 40-yard stripe. Other rules changes made were:

Any two players withdrawn from a game during the fourth period may re-enter once. (It is intended to prevent an injured player remaining in a game when he should be relieved and was founded on a specific instance in Washington when Ed Janowski, although hurt, continued playing because Substitute Clark Hinkle could not return.)

Half-the-Distance

All penalties against the defensive team within the 10-yard line shall be one-half the distance to the goal line. (Present rule applies only to offside penalties.)

Referee is empowered to penalize 15-yards for deliberate roughing of a forward passer after ball has left his hands. (Caused by tendency to give Sammy Baugh and Arnold Herber, in particular, a bouncing around.)

Forward passes incomplete in the end zone shall be ruled a touchback only on fourth down. If the incomplete pass on fourth down originated outside the 20-yard line the defensive team shall be given the ball at the point the play originated.

The rules committee includes George Halas Chicago Bears, chairman; Steve Owen, New York Giants; Bert Bell, Philadelphia Eagles; George (Potsy) Clark, Brooklyn Dodgers; and Earl (Curly) Lambeau, Breeen Bay Packers.

Trading Session

After the meeting club representatives engaged in a trading session, with Pittsburgh emerging as the "David Harum" by figuring in four deals.

The Pirates agreed to send John Gildea, regular right halfback and punter for two seasons, to Cleveland in exchange for Tackle Joe Maras, Duquesne University captain who was drafted by the Rams.

Then Pittsburgh completed two separate deals with Green Bay. One sends Ed Brett, former Washington State end, to the Packers for Walt Bartanen, 265-pound tackle who divided last season between Green Bay and St. Louis. The other swapped two draftees, Center Pat McCarty of Notre Dame and End Ray King of Minnesota for the Packers' Charles (Buckets) Goldenberg, a 223-pound guard and blocking back, and Chester (Swede) Johnson, a fullback.

New York and Pittsburgh exchanged draft rights in the other transaction—the Giants giving Ted Doyle, Nebraska tackle, for Hugh Wolf, University of Texas fullback.

All Set For Komazawa

Count Michimasa Soyejima, member of the International Olympic Committee, photographed Sunday evening as he talked from his residence at Yoyogi by international radiophone to Count Henri Baillet-Latour, chairman of the I. O. C., at the latter's residence at Brussels. There was much to be desired in the telephone reception but Count Baillet-Latour's exclamation of "Splendid" to Count Soyejima's notification of the decision of the Olympic Organizing Committee to construct the main Olympic stadium at Komazawa was clearly received.

By FRED VAN NESS
N.Y. Times

NEW YORK, March 31—Henry Armstrong, the dynamic featherweight champion of the world, added another knockout to his long list at the Hippodrome last night when he stopped Lew Feldman of Brooklyn in 1 minute 51 seconds of the fifth in a scheduled ten-round fight. Armstrong's title was not at stake.

A left hook to the jaw dropped Feldman near his corner, where he took the full count, though he tried to rise. He had been down in the first and fourth for nines and was badly beaten. Armstrong weighed 133 pounds and Feldman 134.

The fight was the main event on a card arranged for the benefit of the family of the late Charley Lynch, boxing judge and former newspaper man. The paid attendance was 4,605, the gross receipts $9,923 and the net receipts $8,601.

Armstrong and his manager, Eddie Meade, announced that they had donated their share of the purse, which amounted to $2,150. The Lynch family will benefit to the extent of $5,000.

Feldman, although no match for the hard hitting, ever-rushing Armstrong, put up a game fight to the end. He took a drubbing, but fought back at times so hard that the arena resounded with cheers.

Feldman Circles Rival

In the first half of the opening round Lew circled Armstrong and stabbed him repeatedly with a long left. After about two minutes, however, Armstrong landed a left hook to the jaw that dropped Feldman over the lower strand of the ropes for nine.

But Feldman recovered enough to give Armstrong a real argument in the second. Unable to keep his opponent away, he stood toe to toe with him and slugged until Henry's stinging blows forced him to break.

He tried to fight with Armstrong again in the third but Henry showered him with punches to the head and body until the Brooklyn boxer had to retreat and cover up. A left hook to the face had Feldman hanging on the ropes, but he saved himself by holding until the bell.

The end was in sight when Feldman came out for the fourth. He looked tired but he tried to dance away. He had circled the ring only once, however, before Armstrong caught him with a terrific left hook to the jaw and dropped him. Feldman took a count of nine.

By covering up, Feldman managed to weather the balance of the round. He made Armstrong miss repeatedly but when Henry landed the blows hurt and Feldman was very tired as he went to his corner.

Armstrong rushed out for the fifth round, with a savage attack to the head. Almost unable to protect himself, Feldman attempted to slug with the Pacific Coast fighter.

Victor Is Unmarked

As they broke from close quarters Armstrong landed the left hook that ended the fight. It was his thirty-eighth knockout in forty fights and also his thirtieth straight victory. Moreover, Armstrong emerged unmarked.

Before the main bout, the crowd stood for a moment in silent tribute to Lynch.

In the semi-final eight-rounder that followed the main bout, Bernie Friedkin, 133, of Brooklyn outpointed Paul Lee, 128, of Indianapolis.

Preston Wins British Football Cup Final, Beating Huddersfield

Domei Tsushin

LONDON, April 30—The Association Football Cup final was played off at Wembley this afternoon before a crowd of over 100,000 enthusiasts. King George watched the match which resulted in Preston defeating Huddersfield by one goal to nil after extra-time had been played.

Tigers Remain Unbeaten In Pro Baseball Series

Already the Osaka Tigers, champions of 1937, are the only undefeated team in the Spring season of the Japan Professional Baseball league which got under way last Friday as the result of games Sunday at the Koshien stadium, near Osaka. The Tigers wallopped the Eagles by 6 to 2 in a game that was halted because of darkness after the seventh inning.

More than 20,000 fans turned out to witness the opening games of the league in the Kansai, with excellent weather prevailing.

The Lions eked out a 5 to 4 victory over the Dolfins in the first game.

A seven-run rally in the eighth aided the Senators to triumph over Nagoya by 10 to 6 in the second game.

Hankyu stepped into the winning column by taking the measure of the Giants 8 to 2 in the day's third tilt.

The summaries follow:

Dolfins	000 031 000—4
Lions	210 020 000—5

Batteries: Kikuya and Hara; Furutani and Matsumoto.

Senators	100 011 070—10
Nagoya	000 030 300— 6

Batteries: Ito, Asaoka and Kitaura; Matsuo, Morii and Miura.

Yale Oarsmen Are Expecting Strong Varsity

Christian Science Monitor

NEW HAVEN, Conn., April 7—For the past month five heavy Yale crews have been hard at work under the tutelage of Head Coach Edward O. Leader. While it is too early to make predictions, there is every indication that the 1938 Varsity at Yale will shape up as strong as that of year's which gave Harvard quite a race.

The varsity, freshmen, and lightweights—some 12 crews in all—have been doing their daily seven or eight miles for the past four or five weeks. They work out from the Bob Cook Boathouse at Derby. During the past week of vacation the varsity has taken two heavy practices and the personnel of the Number One boat has been kept fairly well intact.

Stroking the varsity is Capt. Louis Johnson who has the same position as last year. At No. 7 is Sinkler Manning who did not row last year, but led the freshmen in 1935. At present, Robert Black is at No. 6, Francis Geer from last year's varsity is No. 5 in the first boat. George Victor, Granger Frost, and Charles Ruprecht are in positions 4, 3, and 2, respectively. In the bow is James Dempsey from last year's junior varsity. Clifford M. Brown is coxswain. Although four veterans graduated last year, the new men are working in with the rest in good style.

In the second boat Coach Leader has placed Howard Johnson, last year's junior varsity stroke, at the same position. John Rannenberg, from the 1937 freshmen, is at 7. Charles Adsit, No. 6 in the varsity last year, is at his old position in the second boat. Three men from the 1937 junior varsity, Paul Nick, Stanley Livingston, and Fred Cross, are at 5, 4, and 3. Willard Brown, another veteran, is at 2, with Theodore McGraw in the bow. Robert V. Smith is coxswain.

The first competition for the varsity is the Blackwell Cup race at Philadelphia, May 7. This is followed on the 20th, at Ithaca, against Cornell and Princeton. The outstanding event of the year is the four-mile pull upstream against Harvard at New London on June 24. This race will start at 6:10 p.m., eastern standard time. On the morning of the 24th, the freshmen and junior varsity crews from Yale and Harvard will have it out.

In preparation for this final classic, the varsity of 24 goes to Gales Ferry on June 12. The freshmen squad of 15 will be there at the same time. For almost two weeks the crews will put in some heavy work polishing off for the main event of the season. Last year it was a thrilling race with Harvard out in front. Both boats broke the upstream record with the Crimson eight clocked in 20m. 2s, and Yale in 20m. 6 2-5s.

Bowled 100 Successive Games

To fulfil his prediction that he could bowl 100 games consecutively with only a minimum of rest, John Kester, of Portage, Wis., did just that February 2-3, 1938. Starting at noon on the second, he bowled for 15 hours and 47 minutes, with only 40 minutes rest. His stunt cost him 12 pounds weight. He weighed 170 pounds at the start and 158 at the finish. Conditions of the contest were that he must bowl no less than 125 per game, or on failing to do so was to "rebowl" it. He failed on only one game. Knocking down a total of 15,899 pins, his average of better than 158 pins a game.

Son Of Man Of War Wins The Grand National Race; First U.S. Horse To Do So

By ROBERT P. POST

N.Y. Times

AINTREE, England, March 25—Battleship, a son of Man o' War, owned by Mrs. Marion Scott of Montpellier, Va., won the 100th Grand National Steeplechase today by a scant head and paid 40 to 1—and slightly better in the mutuels.

According to all records available, Battleship is the first horse bred in the United Stotes and owned by an American to finish first in this race, which generally is regarded as the toughest steeplechase in the world, though other horses owned by Americans have won in the past. The California-bred Rubio won in 1908, but was owned by a Briton.

Battleship, whose owner is the wife of Randolph Scott, the movie actor, only beat Royal Danieli, Irish horse owned by H. C. McNally, in the flat at the end of the race. Third—a bad third—was Workman, owned by Sir Alex MacGuire.

It was in many ways one of the most unusual Grand Nationals ever run. Battleship is one of the smallest horses ever to win (he stands only 15.2 hands) and was ridden by Bruce Hobbs, son of Reginald Hobbs, who trained the horse. Bruce, at 17, is the youngest winning jockey in the history of the race.

At the same time, it was a bad day for favorites. Cooleen, who came in fourth, was the only well favored horse to finish well up. Royal Mail, highly fancied in the pre-race betting until last night, pulled out with an injury in the second round of the 4-mile 856-yard course, while Delachance and Blue Shirt, both heavily favored, came to fifth and seventh, respectively.

Only thirteen of the thirty-six steeplechasers that went to the post finished. Rock Lad, owned by H. R. Bain, fell at the water jump on the first round, directly in front of the stands, and broke his back. The dead horse was being removed in a horse ambulance as Battleship and Royal Danieli battled down the stretch for victory.

Mrs. Scott arrived here this afternoon, only an hour before the race started at 3:21, English time, having made a last-minute dash across the ocean to see her horse run. She leaves for the United States next week.

Mrs. Scott was too excited to lead in her own horse and that function was performed by Trainer Hobbs, who didn't know whether to be happier because his horse or his son had won. Mrs. Scott is well known in American steeplechasing circles. In 1934 she won the American Grand National at Belmont with Battleship, whom she bought as a 4-year-old, and she also owned Troublemaker, with whom she tried to win the Grand National a few years back.

Battleship's time was 9 minutes 29 4-5 seconds, which compares with the record of 9 minutes 20 2-5 seconds made by Golden Miller in 1934.

The race was run on a fairly dry track, owing to weather conditions of the past few days. The firmness of the track, in the opinion of many old racegoers, was a strong factor in Battleship's success, and it was a disappointment to many stables when a cold, intermittent rain this morning stopped shortly before the race and gave way to brilliant sunshine.

The early bad weather, however, did not bother the tremendous crowds which began to converge on the course early and eventually reached a total of 250,000. The crowd bet £32,274 (approximately $160,000) at the mutuels—another record for the National.

Even Watch From Barges

Many of the spectators walked around the course and viewed the terrific jumps before the time came to settle down in the grandstands at the finish and erected along the course—some of them on barges moored in the Liverpool-Leeds Canal. They were as well-ordered and quiet as only English crowds can be. To Americans viewing the race for the first time it was remarkable how only a well mannered murmur, "They're off" greeted the start and how quiet the stands were during the really thrilling finish.

Not a soul rose from his seat as the two horses raced neck and neck down the stretch and only the buzz-heightened conversation would have told a blind man that one of the greatest races in the world was being won by only a head.

Battleship won the race at the very end. All the horses got off in a line except Royal Mail and What Have You, owned by F. M. Gould, the only other American-bred horse in the race. Away from the stands and into "the country," which is that heart-breaking stretch on the National course which includes Becher's Brook, the Canal Turn and Valentine's—three of the worst jumps on any course—Airgead Sios led, with only Royal Danieli of the eventual high finishers anywhere near him.

Three Fall Early in Race

The first two fences took three of the thirty-six out of the running when they either unseated their riders or refused.

At Becher's Brook, the first of the famous obstacles and the sixth jump of the course, Airgead Sios still led, but he fell four jumps later, having negotiated both the Canal Turn and Valentine's. By the time the leaders jumped the twelve-foot water jump in front of the stands only nineteen horses were still up. It was here the Canadian Rock Lad fell and died of his injury. Delachance, owned by J. B. Snow, another American, was leading, with Royal Daniel close behind and the rest of the field, including Battleship, trailing.

Meanwhile, riderless horses continued to follow the course, sometimes running out and then returning to the course. One of these took the water jump in his stride barely a second before Rock Lad came down.

Hobbs on Battleship began to make his bid as the field once more headed into "the country" with three terrible jumps ahead of the riders again, but with the comforting feeling that only fourteen obstacles remained.

Takes Lead at Becher's

At Becher's he passed Royal Danieli and Workman and other horses who were to finish in the ruck. The other two caught him again at the fence after Valentine's—twenty-sixth on course—and the three who were to finish "in the money" settled down to race it out free of other competition.

At the second fence from the finish Royal Danieli landed a length ahead of Workman, with Battleship coming fast. A minute later Workman was a badly beaten horse, and the two others began their dingdong struggle to the finish line. A loose horse bothered each, but they came over the last fence almost together.

It was in the last 494 yards that Battleship's stamina told, and he nosed out his larger rival, despite the fact he carried 160 pounds, compared to the latter's 157. A riderless horse who didn't take all the jumps actually was the first over the line.

Battleship and Delachance were the only two American-owned horses to finish. Robert Lehman's Didoric pulled out at the fourth fence and What Have You was left at the post and then fell.

Mrs. Scott was almost too excited to talk after the race and said she didn't know her plans for Battleship's future. However, it is considered likely he will return to the United States to stand at stud. He has already been at stud—another remarkable thing in Grand National history.

Battleship has been here seventeen months. He was third in the Cheltenham Steeplechase March 8, when he was beaten by Red Knight, who was in the ruck today.

Danish Mermaid Sets New World Record In 500-m. Freestyle

Domei Tsushin

COPENHAGEN, May 1—Continuing the series of record-breaking performances that have placed her in the front rank of the world's swimming aces, Miss Ragnhild Hveger, Danish girl star, today bettered her own recognized world mark in the 500-meter freestyle by 6.6 seconds. Competing in a meet here, she covered the distance in 6 minutes 39.1 seconds, as compared with the record time of 6 minutes and 45.7 seconds which she established 1936.

N.Y. Giants Win 6 In Row In National League

Domei Tsushin

NEW YORK, March 2—A spectacular winning streak of six games by the New York Giants of the National League featured the second week's play in the 1938 Major League baseball series. The Giants, with 11 victories and one defeat, led the National League by a comfortable margin.

Pittsburgh's streak of six consecutive victories was snapped this week and the team dropped from first to third place in the standings, Chicago led Pittsburgh by half a game.

In the American League, Cleveland continued to lead while the Washington Senators were a game and a half behind.

Standings of the teams in both Leagues including games played yesterday were as follows:—

National League

	Won	Lost	Pct.
New York	11	1	.916
Chicago	9	4	.692
Pittsburgh	8	4	.666
Boston	5	5	.500

Bids Go To 6 Track Stars

N.Y. Times

NEW YORK, March 28—Six outstanding foreign stars, three of them just credited with world records, have been asked to compete in the Princeton Invitation Track Meet at Palmer Stadium on June 18, it was announced yesterday by Asa S. Bushnell, director of the games, from his New York headquarters, the Central Office for Eastern Intercollegiate Athletics.

They are:

Sydney Wooderson of England, holder of the one-mile world record of 4:06.4.

Jacques Mostert of Belgium, who last year established a new world mark of 3:00.4 for three-quarters of a mile.

Miklas Szabo of Hungary, who has done 8:56 for two miles, also a world record.

Henry Jonsson of Sweden, 4:08.8 miler, who has been picked by Paavo Nurmi as "the best in the world between 3,000 and 5,000 meters."

James Alford of Wales, the new British Empire mile champion in 4:11.

Arthur Godfrey Brown of England, Olympic 400-meter runner-up, who is acclaimed as the world's best quarter-miler.

Basketball Body Shifts Date For National Tourney

In line with the shifting of the opening date of the 12th Olympic Games to the last week in September by the International Olympic Committee at its March meeting at Cairo, the Japan Basketball Association has decided to stage its national championships for this year during the latter part of September instead of in August—this with the view to preparing for the 1940 Games. Hopes are mounting for a most creditable showing by the Japanese team in this event.

The major events of this year's basketball program follow:

May 28, 29, 30.—National higher technical schools tournament, at Tokyo.

June 4, 5.—Kanto women's championships, at Women's Higher Normal School.

June, middle part.—First annual industrial clubs championships, at Tokyo.

September 10-12.—National middle schools championship, at Tokyo.

September 23-26.—National men's championships at Tokyo.

October to November.—Kanto inter-collegiate league games.

December.—East versus West collegiate games, at Tokyo.

January, 1939—National women's championships, at Tokyo.

January, 1939—Men's district championships, at Tokyo.

The courts to be used in Tokyo will be those at the National Gymnasium at Hitotsubashi and the Outer Gardens of the Meiji Shrine, and others.

The Association will hold a reception at 6 p.m. May 13 at the Chuotei Restaurant, at Marunouchi, in honor of the members of the Japanese, Manchoukuo and Philippine teams that will compete in the Far Eastern championships at the Outer Gardens of the Meiji Shrine beginning on May 14.

The All-Philippine basketball team won its first game Monday afternoon at Keijo out of three games played, there by nosing out the All-Japan team by 43-41. The score at half-time was 28 to 15 in the Japanese team's favor. The Filipinos were scheduled to leave Keijo by the 4:15 p.m. express today for Japan.

Fine Outlook For Minnesota On The Diamond

Christian Science Monitor

MINNEAPOLIS, Minn., April 8—Coach Frank G. McCormick has brought his University of Minnesota baseball squad back to the home grounds after their most successful Southern invasion and allows that maybe "Gophers" was too mild a term for a title-conscious baseball team. "Pirates" would be more to McCormick's liking, especially if the 1938 entry should finish at the top of the Big Ten standings next June.

"It's like this," explains the Gopher athletics director, who doubles every Spring as baseball coach. "When we win a championship up here with the weather conditions holding up an early start to the season, we just about have to go out and steal the title. In that case we're the pirates of the conference."

While making no predictions as to how his charges may fare against conference opposition during the coming season, Coach McCormick is at least well-satisfied with the results to date.

Fine Early-Season Record

"The boys came through with the best early-season record since I've been coaching at Minnesota on their trip through the South," he declares. "They won four games and lost two, both by a single run, and in one of the games we lost, our opponents collected only three hits."

Determined to bring the squad into top condition by the time the first Big Ten game rolls around some two weeks hence, McCormick has announced the scheduling of four additional non-conference games to be played on Northrop field.

The Minnesotans will open their home season April 15 against St. Mary's college at Winona. On April 16, the Gustavus Adolphus nine will provide the opposition, with St. John's scheduled for April 19 and St. Olaf for April 26.

Although only four letterwinners of the 1937 squad have returned for further duty, 11 men who saw some action last season are also on hand to make up the nucleus for the squad this season.

Captain at Shortstop

Capt. Don Lee at shortstop is the only letterwinner in the infield, but Johnny Kundla and Gordon Spear, first-base candidates, were reserves last year. Don Lindeberg, who won a letter for two seasons as an outfielder, has been shifted to catcher; but Ray King and Richard Fossum give the outfield plenty of veteran talent. Lee, Lindeberg, and Spear all hail from Miles City, Mont. Kundla and Fossum are from Minneapolis and King from Duluth.

At least a half dozen of the sophomore recruits have shown promise, particularly Clayton Becker of St. Paul, who hit a home run against Tulane and accounted for several other extra-base hits. Ed Dvorak, another St. Paul product, seems to be outstanding among the sophomore pitchers, turning in a threehit game against Mississippi State College.

A quintet of veterans grace the pitching staff, led by Howard Schultz of St. Paul, a right-hander. Others are John Boland of Duluth; Vern Bruhn of St. Bonifacius; Clint Johnson of Princeton, and Harold Kraft of Enderlin, N. D. Stan Sowa, a newcomer from Duluth, is the only southpaw on the squad.

Catching duties are divided between Lindeberg and Elwood Moore of Minneapolis, a reserve last year. Horace May and George Masolgites are competing for the secondbase assignment, with Gene Sobczyk heading the third-base candidates. Ed Roy and Jim Streich, both on the 1937 squad, are very much in the running for outfield assignments.

Canada-Japan Davis Cup Play To Start At Montreal, July 29

As the result of negotiations between Captain Tamio Abe and the Canadian Lawn Tennis Association, the match between Japan and Canada in the first round of the American zone of the Davis Cup competition is expected to be played at Montreal on the three days beginning July 29, according to a Domei dispatch from Milan where Abe and Davis Cuppers Yasumine Kuramitsu and Fumiteru Nakano have been appearing in exhibitions.

Whether the match is to be played on grass or hard courts will be decided in the course of later negotiations, it was said.

Cambridge Downs All-Eastern Team 39-0 On U.S. Tour

By JESSE ABRAMSON

N.Y. Herald Tribune

NEW YORK, April 9—It was the sort of day that is supposed to favor the underdog in American football, but the mud, rain, fog and mist at the Polo Grounds yesterday were no assets to the All-East picked rugby side that engaged the Cambridge University ruggers in the sixth and last game of their American tour.

The Light Blue fifteen maintained its scoring tempo in the face of the dreadful conditions, winning, 39 to 0, with nine tries, four conversions and a drop-kicked field goal. The 2,000 spectators who huddled in the south lower stand saw another one-sided contest, in which the American forces proved no match for the British university men.

The visitors boosted their scoring total to 221 points in six games played against Yale, Harvard, Princeton, and all-New York side; the New York Rugby Club and yesterday's All-East combination. They yielded only six points, both the result of penalty kicks by the all-New York entry. No American team crossed the Cantab's goal line for a try (rugby counterpart of the American touchdown).

Losers Yard From Goal

The native exponents of England's parent football game were close to a try on three occasions. They forced a scrum by dribbling within five yards of the Cambridge goal in the first half, and they forced another scrum and a line-out inside the 5-yard line on two occasions in the second half. Once they were brought down a yard from the Cambridge goal.

But these American gestures were isolated instances in a game that was monotonously controlled by the superior Cambridge forces from beginning to end. Owing to the greasy footing and the greasy ball, the play was extremely ragged throughout, marked by fumbles and sliding and slipshod tackling. The resourceful Cantabs showed their high-grade ability by surmounting the handicaps ever and anon to rush the ball over the All-East goal through deft passing, dribbling and running, using all the scoring methods at their disposal. The local side did its best work in the first half, when it made several effective stands and held the tourists to a 15-to-0 score at intermission.

With the baseball opener at the Polo Grounds only ten days off, the contending ruggers did a scandalous job on the turf, mussing up every blade of grass. Henry Fabian, the Giants' veteran groundkeeper, was in a terrible fret over the damage. Yet the absence of grass on the Giants' infield annoyed the finer sensibilities of many old ruggers who attended the final exhibition of the Cambridge men.

It was not a suitable day to show rugby in its best light. The field had been cleared of snow and this was piled in a muddy mass outside touch, meaning beyond the sidelines. Now and then the combatants took headers into this snow. All were completely covered with a mudpack at the end. The players were generally unidentifiable.

Bruce-Lockhart Stars

Neither the players, the spectators, nor the announcer, Albert Woodley, secretary of the Eastern Rugby Union, took the game with the seriousness attending American football. The loud-speaker went dead for most of the first half and the spectators were unable to follow the action clearly. There was no scoreboard. The All-East total, however, remained "Nil," as Woodley had it throughout.

It was the fifth wet day encountered by the Cambridge side in six games played in this country. The attendance suffered, and the underwriters of the Eastern Rugby Union, which sponsored the tour, stood to lose an undisclosed amount of money. The Cambridge players sail this morning for Halifax to board the Cunarder Antonia.

Rab Bruce-Lockhart, the shifty stand-off half, was outstanding again in the Cambridge play. He scored two tries, the second on a 20-yard run on which he chucked the dummy, i. e., feinted a pass, twice and reversed his field cleverly. He also drop-kicked a field goal from twenty yards, for a total of ten points. His fellow international-ist, Springy Forrest, contributed three tries by hard running and converted four times for total of seventeen points. Dudley Reed, another of the three-quarter backs, scored two tries.

Forrest scored his first in the first two minutes after passes from Bruce-Lockhart and Douglas Low, the captain and fullback. Another run of twenty-five yards by Bruce-Lockhart and a swift pass to Forrest produced another try and Forrest converted for an 8-to-0 lead and the score continued to mount steadily.

The All-East side, selected from the rugby personnel of Harvard, Yale, Princeton and the local clubs was never able to make much of a match of this final test.

The line-up:

Pos.	Cambridge (30)	All-East (0)
F.B.	Low	Whitehead
R.W.	Reed	Jack
R.C.	Forrest	Kennedy
L.C.	Downes	Hall

Waseda Decides To Send Fencing Team To America

Waseda University's kendo (Japanese fencing) department will send a team to the United States for the second time, it was decided by the university authorities on Saturday last, it was revealed Monday.

The team, led by Instructor Sasaburo Takano and Manager Taro Nakajima, will leave from Yokohama aboard the Nippon Yusen Kaisha liner Chichibu Maru on June 1 and will compete for two months in the United States. The return to Japan is scheduled for the latter part of August.

Those selected to make the trip follow:

Tei Ohka, captain; Masatoshi Nito, Fumito Ota, Takuya Hamada, Sakae Mitsunaga, Minoru Matsuoka, Hirotaro Oshima and Torao Saimura.

Named as alternates were Masamichi Fujita and Tadao Hamaoka.

The team is expected to make Los Angeles, San Francisco and Seattle their principal venues of competition.

Homers Help Villanova Nine Beat Penn, 10-7

PHILADELPHIA, April 2—Lou Wannemacher, Villanova's hard-hitting centerfielder, helped spoil Pennsylvania's baseball opening today by hitting two home runs as the Wildcats won, 10 to 7. It rained throughout the game. Wannemacher, a New York lad, connected in the first inning with the bases empty and again in the ninth with Art Vigilante and Bobby Bond on the paths.

Dick Trexler, making his Red and Blue varsity debut at short, hit a home run, double and two singles.

"BELIEVE IT OR NOT" —by Ripley

Society of Live Oaks

A few years ago, Dr. Edwin Lewis Stephens, then President of Southwestern Louisiana Institute, founded the "Live Oak Society," the purpose of which is to promote the culture, distribution, and appreciation of live oak trees. As acting secretary-treasurer, Dr. Stephens is the only human member of the society. All other members are live oak trees, known or suspected to be more than 100 years old. Oaks less than 100 years old, possessing all other qualifications, are eligible for the "Junior League." There are at present 125 venerable oaks listed as members, each tree having an "Attorney" who watches it carefully and collects the annual dues of 25 acorns from each member.

Cocktail Champion

Three years ago, John McCann opened up a dine-and-dance cafe and bar in Leominster, Massachusetts, and even though he never took a drink in his life, he took over the job of bartender himself. More than half his patrons were women who liked mixed drinks, and McCann developed several hitherto unknown concoctions. The favorites are "Ambrosia" and "Wistaria," which were entered in an international contest recently held by the United Kingdom Bartenders Guild at the Olympia, London, and both drinks won the highest American awards. Yet Mr. McCann still doesn't know what they taste like, because he never drinks.

Tamanishiki Ends Tour In China, Cheering Soldiers

Domei Tsushin

SHANGHAI, May 2—Successfully fulfilling their mission to comfort the Japanese soldiers in action in the front lines, a troupe of Japanese wrestlers led by Grand Champion Tamanishiki sailed from here at 9 a.m. today en route back home aboard the Nagasaki Maru.

During their stay in Central China, the giant Japanese professional sportsmen visited Nanking, Wusih, Soochow, Hangchow and other places garrisoned by Japanese soldiers and gave performances in the time-honored style of Japanese wrestling in sympathy with the frontline soldiers.

Official Program For Track Events Of '40 Games Out

The official program for the track and field events of the 12th Olympic Games in 1940 was announced late Tuesday by the Japan Amateur Track and Field Federation after its receipt from the International Track and Field Federation's office at Paris.

Based on the program followed at the last Olympic Games at Berlin in 1936, the schedule includes the three events for women—running broad jump, 200-meter dash and shot put—and the 10 kilometers walk for men which were added to the list by the International Federation at its recent meeting at Paris.

Of the outstanding changes are the starting of all events in the afternoon with the exception of the decathlon, and the elimination of all trials in the field events.

The events will get under way on the day after the opening ceremony, as in the past.

The program follows:—

Five Changes Made In Court Rules For 1938-39

CHICAGO, April 7—Five changes—two of them designed to give players of the streamlined game more rest—were written into the basketball rule book today.

The changes, adopted by the rules committee of the National Association of Basketball Coaches, were:

1. Increase of the number of time outs in the collegiate game to five from four.

2. Optional use of four 10-minute quarters instead of the customary 20-minute halves, with two-minute rests between first and second and between third and fourth periods.

3. Exemption of the outer half of the foul circle from provisions of the "three second" rule so that a player not in possession of the ball may stay in that territory more than three seconds without penalty.

4. Prohibition of substitutions immediately after a goal and before the ball is tossed into play from the end zone, unless a team has called time out.

5. Permission for optional extension of the end margin of the court from two feet to four feet from the face of the backboards.

No extra time outs were provided for high school games, but the committee ruled referees must call an official time out in the second and fourth quarters if no time has been called by either team durng the first four minutes in those periods.

In addition, scholastic deadlocks will be decided in a "sudden death" overtime session. The first team to score two points—on goal or free throws—will win. If the three-minute period ends with but one point scored, the team scoring will be declared winner.

The only other new matter in next season's rule book will be a rewritten "10-second" rule. Oswald Tower, of Andover, Mass., editor of the National Basketball Committee of the United States and Canada, said the rule was rewritten for clarification, but no change made.

Dutch Soccer Team Beaten By K.R.A.C. By 3 To 1 At Kobe

Special To The Japan Times

KOBE, May 2—In celebration of the birthday of Princess Juliana, the local Netherlands soccer team took on the K.R. & A.C. team, but went down to a 3-1 defeat.

Though the Netherlanders offered tough resistance, the goings proved too tough for them, inasmuch as the K.R. & A.C. team had such all-around players as Westphalen, Wintersbrothers and Manuel Guterres.

Westphalen scored two goals for the winners and stole the show of the afternoon. Mehta scored the other point for the winners, while Gelden scored the lone point for the losers.

A windmill trophy was awarded to the winner of the game.

Champs Comfort Wounded Soldiers

Grand Champions Musashiyama, Futabayama, Minanogawa, and Champion Mayedama, left to right, photographed on their visit to the Tokyo First Army Hospital Tuesday to console the wounded soldiers. Rain put a halt to the sumo exhibition that had been scheduled for the soldiers. But they were able to see a few matches prior to the scheduled starting time. Photo shows Futabayama greeting the soldiers by loudspeaker.

Ohio State Wins Swimming Title As Patnik Scores Diving 'Slam'

N.Y. Herald Tribune

COLUMBUS, Ohio, April 9—Princeton's great medley relay team set the lone new record of the 1938 National A. A. U. senior swimming meet tonight, but Ohio State University stole the show as the Buckeyes became the first college squad to take the team championship, and Al Patnik, brilliant sophomore, rounded out the first diving "grand slam" in history.

The Bucks piled up 41 points, while Patnik's performances constituted a real "honor roll." The blond diver, in sweeping the low and high-board events for the second straight year, added those conquests to his Big Ten and National Intercollegiate sweeps and the National A. A. U. outdoor high board crown.

Michigan finished second in the team race with 19½ points, giving Ohio State four victories in five starts against the Wolverines this year. The lone Michigan conquest over Ohio was by a single point in the National Intercollegiates.

Princeton, with a sensational victory in the 300-yard medley relay, the closing event, ran its points to 17 for third place. Harvard had 10½, the Miami Biltmore Club 10, the New York Athletic Club 5, Iowa and the Providence Boys' Club 3 each, and the Detroit Athletic Club 2.

Princeton's medley relay trio of Albert Vande Weghe, Hough and Parke, clicked through the 300 yards in 2:54.8, knocking six-tenths of a second off the American mark of 2:54.9, set in 1936 by the Lake Shore A. C., of Chicago.

Patnik and Ralph Flanagan, of the Miami Biltmore Club of Coral Gables, Fla., were the only double winners of the meet, the Southern star taking the 220-yard and 500-yard free-style events, while the Ohio State star swept the diving competitions.

Peter Fick, of the New York Athletic Club, successfully defended his 100-yard free style championship in tonight's opening event of the National A. A. U. senior swimming meet, turning in a 51.8 performance.

Kirar, Curwen in Dead Heat

Ed Kirar, of the University of Michigan, national intercollegiate champion, and Henry A. Curwen, of Harvard, finished in a dead heat for second place, a yard behind the winner.

Fick's time was eight-tenths off the world record set in 1927 by Johnny Weissmuller and tied by Fick two years ago. The New York star splashed to victory on the last leg after trailing Kirar to the 75-yard turn. William Kendall, of Harvard, was fourth, and Harold Van Oss, of Princeton, fifth.

Albert Vande Weghe, of Princeton, added the A. A. U. 150-yard backstroke crown to the intercollegiate laurels he won a few weeks ago as he beat out a brilliant field in 1:34.5, two and eight-tenths above the world record of Adolph Kiefer, of Austin, Tex., who did not defend his championship.

Ralph Flanagan, of the Miami Biltmore Club, Coral Gables, Fla., scored the first double of the meet as he dethroned Tom Haynie of the University of Michigan as 500-yard free-style champion.

The Florida star had a twenty-yard lead over John Macionis of Yale who finished second, and more than lapped the rest of the field. His time was 5:24.9.

The summaries:

100-yard free style—Won by Peter Fick, New York Athletic Club; Ed Kirar, Michigan, and Henry A. Curwen, Harvard, tied for second; William Kendall, Harvard, fourth; Harold Van Oss, Princeton, fifth; Otto Jartz, Chicago, unattached, sixth (disqualified for illegal turns). Time, 0:51.8.

150-yard back stroke—Won by Albert Vande Weghe, Princeton; Francis Heydt, Iowa, second; William Neunzig, Ohio State, third; William Beebe, Ann Arbor, Mich., unattached, fourth; Leroy Ogle, Detroit, unattached, fifth; Harold Stanhope, Columbus, unattached, sixth. Time, 1:34.5.

500-yard free style—Won by Ralph Flanagan, Miami Biltmore Club, Coral Gables, Fla.; John Macion's, Yale, second; Phil Carson, Providence Boys' Club, third; Tom Haynie, Michigan, fourth; John Patton, Fort Lauderdale, Fla., unattached, fifth; Jack Ryan, Pawtucket Boys' Club, sixth. Time, 5:24.09.

Three-meter board fancy diving—Won by Al Patnik, Ohio State (153.37); Jim Patterson, Ohio State (152.46), second; Elbert Root, Detroit A. C. (151.57), third; Earl Clack, unattached, Columbus (140.99), fourth; Al Greene, unattached, Chicago (139.16), fifth; William Danforth, Yale (133.34), sixth.

300-yard medley relay—Won by Princeton (Vande Weghe, Hough, Parke); Ohio State (Neunzig, Higgins, Quayes), second; Michigan (Haynie, Haigh, Kirar), third; Ohio State No. 2 and Wayne University, of Detroit, disqualified for premature take-offs. Time, 2:54.3 (new American record); old mark of 2:54.9 set by Lake Shore A. C., of Chicago, in 1936).

Cunningham Defeats Fenske

N.Y. Herald Tribune

CHICAGO, March 26—Glenn Cunningham, the old master of the milers, proved it again tonight before a roaring crowd of 10,000 at the Chicago Daily News relays by conquering his newest rival, sturdy Chuck Fenske, of Wisconsin, by about a foot after a steaming battle in the famous bankers' mile, in 4 minutes 9.9 seconds.

Cunningham, cagy and track-wise, remained off the pace through ten of the eleven laps, and had to turn on every ounce of pressure in the final circuit to pass the brilliant Badger youngster.

Gene Venzke, of Penn, staged a brisk finish to take third place from the fading Jimmy Smith, Indiana Negro. The first quarter went in 62 seconds, the half-mile in 2:06 and three-quarters in 3:08. It was Cunningham's fifteenth triumph of his greatest indoor season, and his eleventh mile in better than 4:10.

Jimmy Herbert, New York University Negro, tied his own indoor mark of 1 minute 11.1 second in winning the 600-yard run.

The Violet flyer jumped away to a short lead in the opening strides and held on to square accounts with Charles Beetham, of the New York Curb Exchange and former Ohio State star, who conquered Herbert here last year in a stirring race.

Herbert headed Beetham by a stride through most of the journey and added another yard in the drive to the tape. Herbert's time matched his achievement in New York March 12. Dick Squire, of Ohio State, was third, about three yards back of Beetham.

Ben Johnson, fleet Negro from Columbia University, sped to victory in the 40-yard dash, finishing in 4.4 seconds.

Johnson lunged into the lead at the start and stayed there to beat Perrin Walker, of the New York A. C. former Georgia Tech star, and Eblace Peacock, of Temple University, in a blanket finish.

Allan Tolmich, former Wayne University star, took the opening section of the high hurdles series, scissoring over fifty yards of barriers in the brilliant time of 6.2 seconds.

Comfort Kits Appreciated By Ex-Varsity Men

Comfort kits were sent by the Tokyo Six University Baseball league to former members of the league who are now serving on the battle fronts in China. Sponge balls were not forgotten so that the recipients would be able to toss them back and forth in their spare moments.

Among those who sent letters of thanks were:

Lieut. Masami Kuroki, former captain of the Waseda team, who went to the front last September.

Lieut. Toshiharu Inokawa, former Meiji catcher.

Lieut. Uchiyama, former Tokyo Imperial University player.

Tatsuo Yamada, former Rikkyo University player.

Lieut. Kajiuye, former Keio captain, who has been on duty in Shansi and Shantung provinces.

Lieut. Tetsuo Nakamura, former Rikkyo University player.

Nornay Saddler, A Fox Terrier Is Best In Show

By KINGSLEY CHILDS

N.Y. Times

ATLANTIC CITY, N. J., April 9—Scoring his third straight best in show as he ran his all-time string to eleven, Champion Nornay Saddler, smooth fox terrier from the Wissaboc Kennels of Westbury, L. I., tonight took the premier award in the nineteenth annual allbreed exhibition staged on the Steel Pier by the Kennel Club of Atlantic City.

This consistent winner, owned by James M. Austin and his stepdaughter, Miss Madeline West, defeated five classy rivals in the grand finale to conclude an all-day program of keen competition, which attracted more than 550 dogs.

Handled by Leonard Brumby, Nornay Saddler flashed a splendid performance before a throng of canine enthusiasts, who stood two and three deep around the judging ring. William L. Kendrick of Philadelphia, who passed upon the merits of the finalists, gave all plenty of opportunity to display their qualities before making his selection.

The judge inspected them carefully, sending each group winner prancing up and down the arena on several occasions. Then he ordered Nornay and Mrs. Vincent Matta's orange sable Pomeranian, Sealand Moneybox, to one side, looked them both over for a few moments and picked the fox terrier.

Winner at Cincinnati, Too

Thus Nornay added another crown to those gained in the Bristol, Tenn., and by the triumph squashed Mrs. Matta's hopes of repeating a success recorded by her famous pom, Champion Little Sahib, here last season.

For Sealand Moneybox it was an eventful day. This little fellow, participating in his fourth show, not only kept intact his record of never having been beaten in his breed, but also headed the toy group for the second time. He was first exhibited at Westminster in Madison Square Garden last February and his owner, who hails from Astoria, L. I., evidently has another great campaigner capable of achieving a brilliant streak of successes.

Also in the ring for the final event by virtue of verdicts in other groups were a dachshund, boxer and chow, all champions; and a handsome English setter, who went to the head of the sporting gun division for his initial group victory.

The English setter was the bluebelton Pilot of Glen Grove of Prunes Own, from the kennels of Mr. and Mrs. Angier Biddle Duke of Tuxedo Park, N. Y. Making his second appearance as an individual contestant, Pilot scored over a formidable array of rivals. He was shown by Mrs. Duke and furnished a surprise in prevailing over the Irish setter Champion Milson Top Notcher, owned by the Milson kennels.

Pennine Paramount Wins

The sporting group also included another Duke breed winner, the lemon-and-white pointer, Pennine Paramount of Prunes Own, a $3,000 importation from England for this year's Westminster. But he failed to gain a place in the group as his kennel mate, purchased for a much smaller sum in Canada last Fall, went on to the final.

The dachshund was the consistent black and tan smooth-coated Champion Heidi Flottenberg, belonging to the Ellenbert Farm of Greenwich, Conn. Heidi, under the guidance of Gordon Forsyth, led his breed for the thirty-eighth time and then gained the chief laurels among the hounds.

For his working group victory, the boxer Champion Eros v. Luisenblick was put down in good condition by Nate Levine. Eros is a well-balanced fawn specimen with white markings and is owned by Mrs. Eulalia Goldsmith of Drexel Hill, Pa.

The chow contesting for the principal prize was Champion Far Land Thundergust from the kennels of Mrs. William Macfarland of Camden, N. J. The big black fellow tallied his sixty-second breed triumph and his twenty-sixth among the nonsporting entrants.

Fifty-six breeds were benched, and cocker spaniels, with 36, topped all others in numbers. The best cooker was a comparative newcomer, Robinhurst Hinda, an attractive buff bitch belonging to the Windholme Kennels of Harry T. Peters Jr. of Islip, L. I.

In the children's handling classes Clifford Nagle of New Brunswick and Miss Joan Saphier of New York won.

Philippine Teams All Set For Debut At Koshien, May 7

(Special to The Japan Times)

KOBE, May 3—The visiting Philippine boxing and wrestling teams will meet their All-Japan opponents on May 7 for the first time at the Koshien park, according to the schedule announced by the Japan Amateur Wrestling and Boxing Association.

The Philippine teams are composed of five boxers and five wrestlers, the pick of the Philippines, and are led by Captain Geronimo T. Suva, acting manager and coach for both teams. Captain Suva was compelled to lead the teams due to the sudden death of their original manager and coach Benjamin Gallegos.

Mr. Gallegos was confined to his bed soon after the ship sailed from Hongkong, and died before reaching Nagasaki. His body was taken ashore at Nagasaki, and was taken back to Manila by the first steamer for that port by his widow, who was traveling with the team.

As the result of the sudden death of Mr. Gallegos, the members have lost a great deal of spirit.

According to their captain, the main object of this trip is to return the visit of the Japanese basketball and wrestling teams which recently toured the Philippines, and he declared that the teams are ready to meet the best in Japan, and whether they win or lose, they are here to show a style of real sportsmanship.

In case of rain the competition will fall on the following day, May 8.

The teams' members are as follows:

Boxing

Francisco Ferreria—Flyweight (National University).

Joaquin Paloma—Bantamweight (National University).

Gonzalo Cordova—Featherweight (Philippines army).

Alex Villacampo—Lightweight (Far Eastern University).

Victor Cabrera—Welterweight (Philippines army).

Wrestling

Melanio Florendo—Bantamweight (Far Eastern University).

Salvador Luna—Featherweight (Gallegos Club).

Silvano Bernabe—Lightweight (Gallegos Club).

Nicolas Arcales—Welterweight (University of Philippines).

"BELIEVE IT OR NOT" --by Ripley

The Oldest English School in the World

Older than the House of Commons, older than the Lord Mayor, older than the Throne, older than the nation itself, is the Kings' School in Canterbury, England, founded in 598 by St. Augustine himself, apostle of the English and Archbishop of Canterbury. It was refounded in 1541 by King Henry VIII, after whom it was named the Kings' School.

Kings' School acually antedates by more than 800 years the famous education statute of England proclaimed in 1406 to the effect "that every man and woman have a right to set their son or daughter to take learning at any school that pleaseth them within the realm."

The Young First Sergeant

John B. Wooten of Atlanta, Georgia, left grammar school at the age of 14, before he even completed the seventh grade, enlisting in the 11th U.S. Cavalry at Fort Ogelthorpe, Ga. He gave his age as 18. He was honorably discharged in December 1918, when he was just past 15. Then in April 1920, he re-enlisted in the 7th Engineers, was made a Sergeant at the age of 16, and promoted to First Sergeant before he was 18—or before he was legally old enough for military service.

$100,000 Match Race Of Seabiscuit, War Admiral On

N.Y. Times

NEW YORK, April 10—The proposed $100,000 match race between War Admiral and Seabiscuit, current rulers of the American turf, moved a step nearer realization yesterday when Charles F. Howard, owner of Seabiscuit, accepted the conditions set forth for the projected contest at Belmont Park in the Fall.

Herbert Bayard Swope, chairman of the New York State Racing Commission, who has been handling negotiations, received a favorable reply from Mr. Howard yesterday by telephone from San Francisco. Since Samuel D. Riddle, owner of War Admiral, already has accepted, the stage for the race is set.

Whitney Message Received

All that remains now is to receive definite approval fror the Westchester Racing Association, which controls the Belmont track. Action by that body is expected soon, for Cornelus V. Whitney, one of the important stockholders in the association, wired Mr. Swope yesterday that he wanted a special meeting of the directors to be held Tuesday to decide on the race.

In compliance with Mr. Whitney's request, Joseph E. Widener, president of the association, has called the meeting. Mr. Widener has not been well and it is doubtful if he will be able to attend. A keen advocate of the proposed match, he has authorized Mr. Swope to act for him in the negotiations.

However, both Mr. Widener and Mr. Swope have made it clear from the outset that final approval depended on Mr. Whitney's attitude. For the present, that is where the matter must rest.

Statement by Swope

In a statement issued from the Racing Commission offices yesterday, Mr. Swope said:

"If Mr. Whitney wishes the match race for Belmont, he can have it. I suggested the race and succeeded in getting the agreement of Mr. Riddle and Mr. Howard. The amount was set by Mr. Howard, who had received several offers of a match, one in especial coming from Arlington Park, Chicago.

"Joseph E. Widener, president of Belmont, was eager for the match and asked me to represent him. He made it plain that the undertaking was to receive the cooperation and support of Mr. Whitney and this point has been made clear in the statements given out.

"I have no doubt of Mr. Whitney's good faith in asking for a meeting of the directors, although, on the other hand, I have no doubt that the directorate would affirm any action taken by Mr. Widener and supported by Mr. Whitney.

"I have notified Mr. Widener, who is in Philadelphia, of Mr. Whitney's request. It's up to Mr. Whitney and the directors. The race is theirs for New York to have if Mr. Whitney and they want it. There is nothing more for me to do. I hope that the best match in years may not be lost to us."

126 Pounds for Each

The conditions, which call for the race to be held at Belmont between Sept. 15 and Oct. 1 over the mile-and-a-quarter route with each horse carrying 126 pounds, were accepted without qualifications by Mr. Howard in his telephone conversation with Mr. Swope.

However, the owner of Seabiscuit said he would prefer to have the stall gate, to which his horse is accustomed, used at the start rather that the walk-up start be used. Mr. Riddle made his acceptance Friday.

When informed of this by Mr. Swope, Mr. Riddle said he would cause no difficulties by insisting that the walk-up barrier be used.

The delay in communicating with Mr. Whitney was due to the fact that he has been away on a fishing trip. The Belmont Parks directors who will decide on the race, are, in addition to C. V. Whitney and Mr. Widener, George H. Bull, Henry W. Bull, John E. Cowdin, John Hay Whitney and Alfred Gwynne Vanderbilt.
